MORNING SESSION

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present; that all the defendants, with the exception of Jargas, are in court with their counsel; that the reporter and interpreter are here; and that the Government is represented.

HUGO BRUNNER, called as a witness by the defense, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

LAW MEMBER: Capt. Bachman, cross examination for the prosecution.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q You say your relationship to Mr. Griesinger was what?

A I was his co-worker.

Q You worked under him, did you not?

A I worked together with him, and my superior was Hoffmann.

Q What was your position at the principal construction site, or the offices thereof?

A Mr. Griesinger, for the greater part, took care of the work that had to be done in the office; whereas I took care of the actual construction job going on at the construction site.

Q You were out at the construction site, were you, all the time?

A I had some office work to attend to myself.

Q Are you an engineer?

A Yes.

Q Is Mr. Griesinger an engineer?

A Yes.

Q Mr. Griesinger is not an administrative man, is he?

A No, he is an engineer.

Q So that there were two engineers both responsible directly to Mr. Hoffmann and not to each other, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q What was the division of duties between yourself and Mr. Griesinger out there?

A Like I said before, Griesinger t ok care of the engineering administration and took care of the technical correspondence and the telephone conversations in that connection; whereas I myself was mostly working at the main construction site.

Q What did you do at the main construction site?

A I had to check the work that was being done by the various firms under contract; that is, I had the technical control of the work.

Q And what did you say Mr. Griesinger had control of? Didn't you say he had control of the technical work?

A Griesinger had charge of this in the same manner, but he didn't have much time to go to the construction site, and that is why I was assigned to him as his assistant, and when there were new problems, we discussed them together.

Q But you were his assistant, weren't you?

A His co-worker.

Q Now, which was it, co-worker or assistant? You used the word assistant a moment ago and you used the word assistant yesterday on the stand. Were you or weren't you his assistant?

A I always emphasize that I was his co-worker.

Q Where was Mr. Griesinger's office?

A It was at the main construction site. I designated it on the map yesterday. It is the site marked with a cross.

Q But it was at the main construction site, wasn't it?

A It was at the main construction site, and like I showed yesterday and the way it is shown on the map, it was about two kilometers away from the railroad tracks.

Q But those railroad tracks were all part of the construction site, weren't they?

A Well, it was in the area of the main construction site, but it was located between the actual main construction site and the prison camp.

Q But this main construction site was several kilometers square, wasn't it?

A Not the main construction site.

Q What do you mean by the main construction site?

A The main construction site was just that place where the main construction project was to be built.

Q You mean just the airplane plant itself?

A Yes.

Q But this was a very large project which involved clearing a large number of trees and running a large number of railroad tracks in, and a gravel pit, etc., all was out there together, wasn't it?

A Yes.

Q And that was where Mr. Griesinger's office was, wasn't it?

A It was situated in this area.

Q Whereas Mr. Hoffmann's office was over at Ampfing, about five kilometers away, is that correct?

A In Ampfing, roughly four kilometers away.

Q Mr. Hoffman's office was set up to take care, I think you said, of either five or six different projects, isn't that correct?

A Yes.

Q Mr. Griesinger's office was set up to take care of the hauptbaustelle, was it not?

A Yes.

Q And he was in charge of that office, was he not?

A Yes.

Q And he spent all of his time down there at that particular office or going over the various works which came under that office, did he not?

A Yes.

Q He had nothing to do with these other projects which came under Mr. Hoffmann's office, did he?

A No.

Q So that if at a later date he was named as Mr. Hoffmann's deputy, so that he would have connection with these other projects, that would have been a promotion, wouldn't it?

A I can't imagine that he could have been made the deputy and at the same time have kept his position as construction leader.

Q And you can't imagine that Hoffmann could have named him as a deputy, because I think you said yesterday that Hoffmann had no confidence in Griesinger, wasn't that correct?

A Like I said yesterday, he had no confidence in Griesinger, and I can't imagine that he could have carried on his work at the office of the main construction site and at the same time carried on this other job in the office at Ampfing.

Q You are familiar with who made the appointments, and the relationships between these offices as they existed when you were there, are you not?

A I was only at this construction site for four months, and I was there as a soldier from the air force, and I was therefore not familiar with the customs prevailing in the OT.

Q If I tell you that Griesinger was, in fact, appointed as Hoffmann's deputy, would you say that you thought that came from Hoffmann himself or from higher authorit ?

A I can't say.

Q When you mentioned the various types of workers there, I believe you said there were free workers and there were concentration camp workers, is that correct?

A Free German labor, free foreign labor, and concentration camp labor.

Q Had the prisoner of war laborers come in when you left?

A Prisoners of war? No, we never had any.

Q That is, you never had any up until the time you left in the fall of 1944?

A I never heard anything about that.

Q You recall that when this underground factory was built, they first built two cement pedestals and then built a cement arch over that, isn't that correct?

A Yes.

Q As they built the pedestals, weren't the cement machines raised right along with the pedestals?

A I must explain this differently. The fundament was dug down 13 meters deep. The earth that was excavated was taken with cranes and made into a dam along the side, and on these dams were laid the railroad tracks in order to carry on the concrete job, so that the upper part of these railroad tracks were somewhat above the pedestals of these cement pedestals. It was necessary to construct these dams in order to build the pedestals in one process.

Q Mr. Brunner, will you get around to answering my question? Weren't the machines raised as the pedestals became higher in height?

A No.

Q You mean that the cement machines were always in the same position while these pedestals went up in height?

A Yes, but I must point out that I was only there as long as the ground work was being laid out with concrete.

Q So that if at a later date these machines were raised, and the height that this concrete had to be carried to was increased, you wouldn't know anything about that?

A I don't know that.

Q You told us about this circular that was put out regarding the beatings, and you told us, I think, that you had been hearing that there were beatings out there, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q By whom were these beatings that you heard about out there?

A I said that I had seen where one German laborer beat a prisoner, and that in consequence of this the circular was put out.

Q But you also told us that you heard about other beatings, both before and after, didn't you?

A I didn't say that I had heard about any beatings before, but it was about five weeks later, or it could have been a little less, after this first circular, I again heard rumors that beatings had been resumed.

Q When you said you again heard rumors that they had been resumed, you mean you heard rumors that there had been beatings before, don't you?

A I didn't say I had again heard rumors.

Q You mean that this circular came out because there was one beating?

A Yes.

Q Why wouldn't it have been easier to correct the one man who did the beating rather than put out the circular, if there was only one beating you ever heard of?

A In order to avoid such incidents being repeated, it was the proper procedure to inform everyone.

Q Didn't you say yesterday, in exactly these words, "The beatings stopped for four or five weeks?"

A Nothing was heard during this period. One didn't hear anything about beatings.

Q And yet you heard of only one beating before, and you used the expression that "the beatings stopped for four or five weeks," is that what you are telling us?

A I didn't say that I had heard this one case. I said t at I had seen it.

Q I have asked you whether you heard of other cases before the circular came out?

A No.

Q You said that in four or five weeks you heard that the beatings had started again, isn't that it?

A Not again, I heard rumors that there had been beatings.

Q And by whom were these beatings taking place, according to the rumors?

A I think that a rumor is just a general statement, and it was just said that beatings had occurred, but one can't place individual guilt through a rumor.

Q I am not asking you to place individual guilt; I am asking you what the rumor said, that is, who the rumor said was doing the beating?

A Those were OT construction leaders.

Q Now, you say that the physical condition of the older people looked bad, is that it?

A No, I said that the condition of the older people showed that they were less able to perform work.

Q But what about the condition of the younger people? Tell us about that.

A Yesterday, I stated that the condition of the younger people varied, but that for the most part they looked well and also strong.

Q And how many people did you see during the four months that you were there, who were obviously suffering from malnutrition?

A During my time I could not say that there were any people who were completely undernourished.

Q You saw no one in the four months that you were there who looked badly undernourished? - Is that what you want to tell us?

A There were some very thin people there, but in spite of this they still working very well.

Q You mean they were kept working very well, isn't that what you mean?

A Them?

Q These people you have just told us about who were very thin?

A All of them had to work.

Q And some of those people who were very thin, went back to camp and died while you were there, from starvation and over-work, isn't that right?

A I never heard anything about that

Q You never heard of anyone starving to death, or by over-work in the camps during the time you were there?

A No. We had no connection with these camps.

Q You never heard of anything that went on in the camps?

A No.

Q Mr Brunner, were you familiar with the policy of the Reich towards Jews?

A Yes.

Q What was that policy?

A It was the policy to subjugate the Jews, and not allow them equal rights with the others.

Q Also to subjugate them and exterminate them, isn't that right?

(BRUNNER-cross)

A I know nothing about the policy to exterminate them, I only knew they were subjugated. After the war, during the time that I was a prisoner of war, and in the hospital, this is after the war, I heard about all the brutal treatment they received in places like Auschwitz.

Q And these very thin people you told us about, who had to work on the construction site, just as everybody else had to work on that construction site, you did not consider that brutal treatment at that time, is that correct?

A As I already stated yesterday, consideration was made for the weaker people also at carrying cement: the ones who were less capable of working hard were only given half a sack of cement.

Q But you said they were all made to carry cement, even these people who were very thin?

A All of them had to work, but I had to take into account the weaker ones, and they had less.

CAPT.BACHMAN: That is all.

PRESIDENT: Any redirect examination by counsel for the accused?

DR. EGGELHORN: No further questions.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT:

QUESTIONS BY PRESIDENT:

Q I believe you stated yesterday that the guarding of these prisoners was exclusively done by the SS, is that correct?

A Yes, that is right.

Q Did the OT have any guards on this site at all?

A No, never.

Q Now you testified that about one third of the workers were prisoners, and about two thirds free labor, is that correct?

A That is correct.

Q Now this free labor consisted of German free labor, and foreign labor, is that right?

(BRUNNER-court)

A Yes.

Q About what proportion of the free labor was foreign labor, and what proportion was German labor?

A I would estimate that about two thirds of the free workers were German, and about one third were foreign.

Q About how many were working on this project at the main site?

A Roughly 1600 to 200 people on one shift.

Q And how many shifts did they have while you were there?

A Two shifts.

Q Do you know whether they had three shifts later on?

A During my time there were only two shifts.

Q Were the shifts about the same size and number?

A Yes. Yes, they were distributed equally.

Q Would you say then, that there were approximately 3600 to 400 workers on this main site?

A It could even have been a few more.

Q Now of this number, how many were Russians, do you know?

A No, I don't know.

Q Was there an appreciable number of Russians working on the project?

A I don't know that Russians were there.

Q We have had certain testimony before this court, that about 1000 Russians were brought back here to work. Did you see any Russians working at the main construction site while you were there?

A There were quite a number of foreign workers there, but I don't know whether they were Russians, or other nationalities.

Q About how many Italians were working on the project?

A I don't know how many. I cannot state a figure.

Q Did you ever see any French working on this project?

A I don't know whether there were any Frenchmen there.

Q You discussed with Griesinger quite often this project, did you not as to how it was getting along?

A Yes.

Q What date of completion were you working on?

A The period allowed was very short, but I don't know what dates were stated for the various sections.

Q Do you know the date which was stated for the overall completion, not the different sections, but the date of completion of the entire project?

A As far as I can remember I think one and a half years was allowed.

Q Did you ever hear that a date of completion had been given as March - sometime during the month of March 1945?

A No, I never heard that.

Q How many concrete mixing machines did they have on this project?

A There were six concrete sections - three on the north side and three on the south side, and these were always rebuilt to suit those sections where the concrete was being made because there were not sufficient concrete mixing machines.

A Let's get back to the question which I asked you. How many concrete mixing machines were there on this main site, if you know?

A During my time there were about nine concrete mixing machines.

Q You were there from July to October - 20th October, were you not?

A Yes - No, June.

Q From the 15th of June to 20th October?

A Yes.

Q During the period that you were there did you ever hear of any transports being sent out from Muenldorf?

A No. Oh! excuse me - what kind of transports?

(BRUNNER-court)

Q Personnel being sent away from Muehldorf.

A No, no. - Do you mean laborers?

Q Yes.

A Yes, it was like this, if a group of people was assigned to a detail on one day, there would be different people on the one day, and the next day they were always being changed.

Q Why was this necessary?

A I had the impression that the weaker ones were kept back in the camp and allowed to stay there, and the other people took their places. That is the question that I answered before.

Q You were familiar with the actual work out on the main site, were you not?

A Yes, I was familiar with it.

A And you observed the different crews or groups working, did you?

A In the first place I had to check the actual work, and see that it went according to plan. I therefore did not get much occasion to observe the people themselves.

Q About how many prisoners did it take to operate one of these concrete mixing machines?

A In order to carry the cement necessary for one concrete mixing machine there were forty to fifty prisoners assigned, and there was another group working exclusively to carry - unloading cement from the flat cars, and taking it into the warehouse.

Q How many were in these latter groups?

A Just as many.

Q At any time during the period of time you were there, was it found necessary to increase these crews or groups, in order to carry out the work necessary for that particular group?

(BRUNNER-court)

A We had nothing at all to do with the work details.

Q You observed these details working, didn't you?

A We saw them working.

Q Was it necessary at any time to increase the size of the details in order to accomplish the desired work?

A During my time it seemed there were too many working here, for instance, when they were carrying cement, there was always a large number who were not employed in carrying cement.

Q Do you know why they increased the number of shifts from two to three?

A I don't know anything about three shifts.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Defense Exhibit D-38 and D-38A for identification.

(Whereupon the documents were marked Defense Exhibits D-38 and D-38A for identification.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, the defense at this time offers in evidence a statement in question and answer form by Mr Metzel to Major Boysen, at the Landsberg Prison, taken on 1st May in reference to the accused Engelhardt, and the true English translation thereof, and request that these instruments be attached to the record and marked Defense Exhibits D-38 and D-38A.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: There being no objection, Defense Exhibits D-38 and D-38A will be admitted in evidence.

(Whereupon the documents heretofore marked Defense Exhibits D-38 and D-38A for identification, were received in evidence as Defense Exhibits D-38 and D-38A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.

(BRUNNEN-court)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to read D-36A in English.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

(Whereupon Defense Exhibit D-36A, the English translation of D-36, was read to the court in the English language.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We waive the reading of D-36 in German until a later date.

The defense calls as its next witness Heribert Danbeeck.

HERIBERT DANBOECK, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION:

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What is your full name?

A Heribert Danbeeck.

Q Your address?

A Thann, House Number 36.

Q What is your occupation?

A Agricultural Assistant.

Q How old are you?

A 36 years old.

Q Do you know Professor Giesler?

A Yes.

Q If you see him in the courtroom, please point him out?

A Yes, number 7.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Giesler, by number 7.

Q What was your occupation around 1 January 1944?

A I had an Agricultural Diploma, and was personal advisor to Professor Griesinger.

Q When did you get that position as personal advisor to Professor Giesler?

A In May 1942.

Q May 1942 - and you kept that position until when?

A Until the end of the war.

Q What was Professor Giesler's position in 1942, if you remember?

A Professor Giesler was Chief Architectural Counsellor for Munich.

PROSECUTION: I would like a correction on the translation. I took the question up with Dr.Leiling, and the word "referant" does not mean "advisor", it means "department chief".

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think it should be.

PRESIDENT: Let the record show, that by agreement with both the defense counsel and the prosecution, the word should be translated as "aid".

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you mean that Professor Giesler was Chief Counsellor - the Chief Architectural Counsellor for Munich at that time?

A Yes, that is what I wanted to say.

Q And he kept that position until when?

A Until the end of the war.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until 1030 hours.

(Whereupon at 1005 the court recessed until 1030 hours.)

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present; that all the defendants with the exception of Jergas, together with their counsel, are in court; that the interpreter and the reporter are here; and that the prosecution is respresented.

HERBERT DANBOECK, called as a witness by the defense, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Cont'd)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, you worked with Professor Giesler until when?

A Until the end of April 1945.

Q I believe you testified that you were Professor Giesler's personal aid. As a matter of fact, you mean that you were his secretary?

A Yes, it was approximately that type of a position.

Q Now, as part of your job as a secretary, did you receive the mail for Professor Giesler?

A Yes.

Q What did you do with the mail that you got?

A I handled the various letters in various ways, depending on the way they were addressed or what they contained.

Q Did you look at the contents of those letters?

A The ones which I presented to Professor Giesler, I looked at.

Q Supposing Professor Giesler got a letter -- that you got a letter and it was addressed to Professor Giesler and there was something personal in it, would you give that to Professor Giesler?

A Yes, that I presented to Professor Giesler.

Q Well, supposing a letter came to you and it said "Professor Giesler" and it had something to do with his position as General Counsellor of Architecture, would you give that to him?

A I most probably would have presented it to him if the matter would have been important enough for him to make a decision.

Q Supposing the letter would have been addressed "Professor Giesler, Head of Task Force 6," would you give that to him?

A If the letter would have been of a private nature I would have given it to Professor Giesler; if it would have been a matter of the OT, I would have given it to Gimpler.

Q If the letter was addressed to Mr. Gimpler, would you have received it?

A No.

Q Supposing the letter was addressed "Chief of the OT — Task Group 6," would you have received it?

A If the name of Professor Giesler did not appear on the envelope, I would not receive the letter.

Q Were you present when Professor Giesler had conferences with people?

A Yes.

Q Well, supposing a gentleman came in and he said he wanted to see Professor Giesler, would you see him before he went to Professor Giesler?

A Yes, under all circumstances.

Q As part of your duties as a secretary, would you ask him what he wanted?

A Naturally.

Q And if you found it had something to do with his position as General Counsellor for Architecture, would you have told Professor Giesler about it and seen that he knew the man was there?

A I would have first asked Professor Giesler whether he would like to speak to the man, and most of the time Professor Giesler called one of his co-workers back.

Q Do you know a Dr. Baumgartl?

A Yes.

Q Did he ever have a private conference with Professor Giesler at which only you and Professor Giesler and Dr. Baumgartl were present?

PROSECUTION: Ask him, "if you know."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, I asked him if he were present; he would have to know.

PROSECUTION: All right.

Q Did Dr. Baumgartl ever have a conference with Professor Giesler at which only Dr. Baumgartl, Giesler, and yourself were present?

A Yes.

Q How many of these conferences did he have, if you know?

A There were all together, three. One couldn't say conferences; they were just short talks.

Q Perhaps you might remember what these three conferences were about. If you do, will you tell me about each one of them? If you remember?

A During the first conference Professor Giesler and Baumgartl walked into Professor Giesler's working study together. Dr. Baumgartl had waited for Professor Giesler before that and Dr. Baumgartl had various wishes concerning his offices in a German museum. He wanted larger rooms and more rooms — I can not exactly remember the particulars any more.

Q Do you know whether he spoke about the main construction site at Muehldorf at that particular conference?

A Nothing was said about the main construction site.

Q Do you recall the second time?

A The second time Professor Giesler was standing at the window and when Dr. Baumgartl passed by he called out and told him to come in and Professor Giesler spoke to Dr. Baumgartl about a sickness of his co-worker Gimpler, who needed a vacation very badly. The result of this conference was that Mr. Gimpler was brought to a hospital.

Q Do you know whether or not they spoke about the main construction site at Muehldorf at that time?

A No, it was not mentioned.

Q Do you remember the third one?

A The third time I called Dr. Baumgartl and asked him to bring certain medicine for Professor Giesler. I myself couldn't get those tablets in any of the pharmacies in Munich. A few days later Dr. Baumgartl brought that medicine and spoke a few words with Professor Giesler.

Q Did they speak about the main construction site out at Muehldorf?

A No, there was no talk about that.

Q Did they speak about concentration camp prisoners?

A No.

Q How about the first two conferences -- did they speak about any concentration camp prisoners at those conferences?

A No.

Q During the time from July first, 1944, until the end of April, 1945, were you away from your position for any length of time?

A From the middle of June to the beginning of July I was absent for about three weeks because of pneumonia.

Q Supposing Professor Giesler had had a conference with someone and you weren't present at that conference, would you have known about it, if you know?

(DANBOCKY-Direct)

A That case never happened. I was always there.

Q I mean the time that you were away, weren't there then — if there had been a conference during that time, you would have found out about it, do you know?

A I was more or less informed by Professor Giesler and by the secretary about the things that happened, while I was sick.

PROSECUTION: Mr. Roth, for the prosecution.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q When letters would be addressed to Giesler in his capacity in connection with the OT, how would they be addressed?

A The envelopes varied. For instance, if an envelope would read "to the Task Force Commander of Task Force 6," I would not open the letter and I would give it to Mr. Gimpler immediately. If it would read "to the Task Group Commander, Number 6, Professor Giesler," then I would open the letter and if it is a matter — if I could see that it is an official letter, I gave the letter unopened to Gimpler.

Q There were many people working in your office, weren't there?

A What do you understand by "my" office?

Q In the office that housed the Task Group 6?

A Do you mean the office where I worked myself?

Q In the office that housed Task Group 6.

A That office had two rooms which were pretty far away from each other.

Q And where would the mail come?

A The mail with anything pertaining to OT or Task Force Commander always came to our office at Prinzregenten Street Number 3.

Q And where was Gimpler's office?

(DANBOLCK-Gross)

A His office was at Prinzregenten Street Number 3.

Q It never went to the other office, did it?

A If there were letters pertaining to the Task Force they always came to me.

Q And then to Mr. Gimpler? Didn't you tell the court before that when letters would come in to you addressed "Task Group 6" that you would deliver them unopened to Gimpler?

A Most of those letters went to Gimpler direct without my seeing them. Only once in a while some came to me by mistake.

Q Is there any doubt in your mind that officially Giesler was the chief of Task Group 6?

A Naturally.

Q What do you mean by "naturally"?

A Giesler was not the real Task Force Commander; the real Task Force Commander was Gimpler.

Q And you mean that was true with respect to his superiors — that they looked to Gimpler as the chief of Task Force 6?

A Whose superiors?

Q Giesler's superiors.

A Professor Giesler's superior in the OT was Mr. Dorsch, and he knew the situation very well.

Q Did you know a lady by the name of Kalda Laine?

A No.

Q Don't you remember the correspondence that took place with respect to the bringing of a lady by the name of Kalda Laine at the expense of the OT from Russia down here to Munich?

A The name is not known to me.

Q Do you remember Giesler's bringing a lady by the name of Laine at OT expense from Russia to Munich?

INTERPRETER: Just a moment, Mr. Roth. I have just been informed that the name was Lang.

Q Good. Do you remember that name?

A No.

Q Do you remember an application that was made by Giesler with respect to the payment to his son of a certain amount of money every month by reason of Giesler's being a civil service employee?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Do you mean the son or the father?

PROSECUTION: The father being a civil service employee, the state paid the son.

No.

LAY MEMBER: Counsel, is this relevant to the matters contained in the indictment?

PROSECUTION: Yes, sir, it shows — first of all, it shows the connection of Giesler with the OT. Secondly, it shows, as to his lack of knowledge of what went on in that office, because, as the prosecution will show later, there is a sheaf of such correspondence indicating his very intimate connection with the OT — not this ethereal, ephemeral connection as the witness will try to show.

LAY MEMBER: He said he knew nothing of such correspondence?

PROSECUTION: That is what he answered. That is the object, to show that he didn't.

Q Did you know that at one time Giesler was the plenipotentiary for Labor Allocation in November 1942?

A No.

Q I show you a copy of a letter and ask you if you have ever seen that letter before?

(DARBOUX—Cross)

LAW MEMBER: Counsel, is that correspondence between November 1944 and the capitulation in 1945?

PROSECUTION: No, sir, this letter was dated in 1942, but he says that he was working for Giesler --

LAW MEMBER: Do you promise to show that he could have had occasion to witness it during the period he was there?

PROSECUTION: Well, sir, he said he was his aid and he opened up all his mail and took care of his mail.

LAW MEMBER: Can you prove this mail was opened in the Fall of 1944 and the Spring of 1945?

PROSECUTION: No, sir, but this comes from Giesler's record.

LAW MEMBER: Your question is, is he familiar with this correspondence?

PROSECUTION: That is my question, sir.

WITNESS HERBERT DANBECK: This letter is not known to me.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION: (Cont'd)

Q During the period that you worked for Giesler, he was busy with other matters, wasn't he?

A With what other matters?

Q He was busy with many matters, wasn't he? Not only with the OT?

A Yes.

Q And where was his office?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Wait a minute. I don't think this witness testified he was busy with the OT. I think the counsel is misquoting the testimony. He never said he was busy with the OT.

LAW MEMBER: You may ask him, if you will.

Q During the time --

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to have my objections translated,

if it please the court, so the people here can know what's going on; and I would like to know what the court says, and the prosecution, as it goes along.

LAY MEMBER: (To interpreter) Interpret what was said, please.

(Thereupon the interpreter did as instructed.)

PRESIDENT: Just a minute. Is there any objection before the court?

PROSECUTION: I consented to rephrase the question, sir.

PRESIDENT: Are you withdrawing the question?

PROSECUTION: Yes, sir, and rephrasing it.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION: (Cont'd)

Q During the time that you were in Giesler's office at the Task Group 6, Giesler had many matters under him, such as the reconstruction of Munich, isn't that true?

A Yes.

Q Yes. And what else did he have under him besides that?

A Professor Giesler has various other tasks besides his job as Task Force Commander. He had the job of General Counsellor of Architecture. He also had the task of rebuilding of various buildings in Munich.

(DAMBACK-Cross)

Q Now he also had many people under him in his capacity of rebuilder of Munich, is that true?

A Under his supervision were only his officials. The workers who were used for those jobs belonged to various firms.

Q I mean that he had many officials under him, that is true isn't it?

A Yes.

Q Is there any doubt in your mind that Gimple was also inferior in rank to Giesler?

A No there is no doubt about it.

Q There is no doubt about it that Giesler was Gimple's superior, isn't that true?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: That is all.

LAW MEMBER: Dr. Kolch, redirect examination, on the part of all of the accused.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you also take telephone calls that came in for Professor Giesler?

A Yes.

Q If those telephone calls had anything to do with the main construction site Muehldorf would you give it to Professor Giesler?

A No, I would have transferred it to Gimple.

Q Exactly where was your office in relation to where Giesler's office was?

A There were three rooms; one for Professor Giesler, one for his secretary, and the conference room. I stayed in the room for Giesler most of the time.

Q Then you want to tell the court that your office, where you stayed all day doing your work, is in the same room where Professor Giesler had his office?

A Yes.

Q How close was your desk to his desk?

A I did not have my own desk, I used the desk of Professor Giesler.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you mean that Giesler never held a conference with respect to the work going on at the principal construction site?

A I didn't say that.

Q Who did he hold conferences with about the work going on at the main construction site?

A I am sure that Professor Giesler spoke to Mr. Gimple about it.

Q Who else did he speak to about it?

A I can also remember that Mr. Hoffmann spoke to Professor Giesler.

Q Do you remember a conference where the representatives of many firms, such as Kell, came to Professor' Giesler's office and Professor Giesler had a conference there with all of these firms?

A I cannot remember that Kell was present at a large meeting.

Q Were there many large meetings with respect to the main construction site that Giesler was present at?

A I cannot remember that.

PROSECUTION: That is all.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

QUESTIONS BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q You testified there were three rooms there, one for Giesler, one for his secretary, and a conference room. Is that right?

A Yes.

Q Where was Gimple's room?

A Gimple worked in Professor Giesler's room at the beginning of his CT career, whenever Giesler was not present. Later on Gimple had his own room one floor up.

PRESIDENT: Witness will be excused.

DR. ENGELHORN: Defense calls as its next witness Richard Ulmer.

RICHARD ULMER, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. ENGELHORN:

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, the defense would like permission to take Professor Giesler out for consultation. We have a guard to look after him.

PRESIDENT: I wish hereafter, if you can anticipate these matters, you could do this at recess. If you can arrange your work in that manner it is more in agreement with the court. We may leave the courtroom.

QUESTIONS BY DR. ENGELHORN:

Q What is your name?

A Richard Ulmer.

Q How old are you?

A Fifty-nine years.

Q Are you married?

A Yes.

Q What is your profession?

A I am a building constructor for the city.

Q Where do you live?

A In Hellbach, near Stuttgart.

Q Were you city building contractor for the city of Fellbach?

A Yes.

Q Were you a member of the army during the last war?

A Yes.

Q When were you drafted?

A On the 1st of March, 1940.

Q What rank?

A At that time I was a Lieutenant in the reserves.

Q What was your last rank?

A Captain and adjutant.

Q Where was your last office?

A In Roumania in Bukarest.

Q What type of work did you do there?

A I was a Captain adjutant in an engineer construction staff.

Q Did you remain in your position until the end of the war?

A No.

Q Why not?

A I was sentenced on the 24th of October, 1942, by court martial of the 179th Motorised Division in Kassel to three years imprisonment because of disobedience and misuse of my power of command. I was degraded from a captain to a private and besides that I lost my civilian position. I spent those thirty and one-half months in Breschenkeft in Zinna in the Prussian city prison, located at Torgau, all of them under the most horrible condition. On the 9th of May, 1945, I was liberated by American troops from this jail.

Q What was the reason for this verdict?

A After the Roumania Reichs law in the spring of 1941 the property of all Roumanian Jews was to be confiscated. I lived from the 15th of January 1941 until the 10th of December 1942 with a Jewish family by the name of Ilja Goldstern in Bukharest, on Bulvadacia street No. 14. In order to save the very valuable property of these people I gave an order for two of my soldiers to take the crystal, silver, and oil paintings from these people's house and to bring those things to a friend of mine, the 2nd Mayor of Bukarest, Dr. Cisek, in order to put them in safe custody in his house for my Jewish friends.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, I would like to inquire whether this statement is material in this case, and if it is not I would like to object to it.

DR. ENGELHORN: I would like to show by this witness what happened to people who acted against the will of the German government.

PROSECUTION: I object as it is irrelevant, immaterial and incompetent.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the objection is overruled.

PRESIDENT: Did he complete his answer?

INTERPRETER: Will the reporter read the last portion of the answer?

(Whereupon the reporter read the answer as follows: "In order to save the very valuable property of these people, etc. - - "

THE WITNESS: This matter came up and I was Court Martialed by a General Court Martial.

QUESTIONS BY DR. ENGELHORN:

Q You said you were punished because of your misuse of your power of command. Where did the Germans see the misuse of command in this case?

A The misuse of my power of command was seen in this matter that I gave an order to two soldiers to take Jewish property away and to hide it in order to save it from being confiscated.

Q Besides that you said you were punished because of disobedience. Where did they see the disobedience in this case?

A Disobedience in this case was that I had free relations with Jews.

Q Before that you mentioned that you were also discharged from your civilian position because of this verdict?

A Yes.

Q Did this discharge also harm you in a monitory manner?

A I did not only lose my rights as an official but I also lost my rights for a pension. I also had financial loss through that, and besides I received bodily harm.

DR. ENGELHORN: I hand the reporter these documents and request they be marked Defense Exhibits D-39 and D-39a for identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Defense Exhibits D-39 and D-39a for identification)

Q Mr. Ulmer, I show you a letter and ask you to tell me what this is.

A This is the certificate of discharge from the army prison.

Q Is the verdict given here, and the reason for the verdict?

A Yes, the verdict is mentioned here. It reads as follows:

(Whereupon the witness began reading the exhibit in German)

PRESIDENT: We can save time by reading the English.

LAW MEMBER: Stop him and ask him if he offers this exhibit into evidence.

DR. ENGELHORN: Yes, I offer it in evidence.

LAW MEMBER: Show it to the prosecution, the English version.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court the defense exhibits D-39 and D-39a are admitted into evidence.

(The documents heretofore marked Exhibits D-39 and D-39a for identification are received in evidence as Defense Exhibits D-39 and D-39a, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record)

PRESIDENT: Does the counsel wish to have this exhibit read to the court?

DR. ENGELHORN: Yes, only the first paragraph.

(Whereupon the interpreter read the first paragraph of Defense Exhibit D-39a, discharge from army prison)

DR. ENGELHORN: I hand the reporter these documents and request that they be marked Defense Exhibits D-40 and D-40a for identification.

Q Mr. Ulmer, I show you this letter and ask you to tell me what this is.

A This letter shows my discharge as a city official after I was sentenced.

Q What is mentioned in here in particular?

LAW MEMBER: Just a moment. Do you offer this in evidence?

DR. ENGELHORN: Yes.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court the defense exhibits D-40 and D-40a are admitted into evidence.

(The documents heretofore marked Exhibits D-40 and D-40a for identification are received in evidence as Exhibits D-40 and D-40a, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record)

LAW MEMBER: Does counsel care to have this exhibit read to the court in English?

DR. ENGELHORN: Yes.

(Whereupon the interpreter read Defense Exhibit No. 40a, discharge of Richard Ulmer as city official)

PRESIDENT: Does the counsel for the accused waive the translation in German of Defense Exhibits Nos. 39 and 40 at this time?

DR. SIEGELHOFF: It is sufficient to have them translated to the court in English.

QUESTIONS BY DR. ENGELHORN:

Q Have you been reinstated to your office by this government?

A Yes.

Q Has the verdict of the court martial been nullified?

A Yes, it has been nullified by the State Ministry of Wuerttemberg in the end of 1945.

Q Do you know the accused Griesinger?

A Yes.

Q If you see him, point him out.

A I don't see him here. There he is, No. 9 (indicating).

DR. ENGELHORN: May the record show that the witness has recognised the accused, No. 9, Mr. Griesinger.

Q What do you know Mr. Griesinger from?

A I know Mr. Griesinger sine April, 1928.

Q During what occasion did you meet him?

A He was 19 years old at that time, and he came to me, to the building construction office of Fellbach and worked as apprentice for me.

Q How long did he stay with you?

A He worked for me for two years.

Q Was he in your office every day?

A Yes, daily.

Q As what type of man is Griesinger known to you?

A I trained approximately 12 young men in my work in Fellbach during the last 21 years. Mr. Griesinger was my best trainee.

Q What can you say about his character?

A Mr. Griesinger always showed diligence, was always willing to help. He always showed truthfulness and he was always very conscientious.

Q Do you know whether Griesinger was a member of the Party?

A He was never a member of the Party.

Q Can you tell us anything about his thoughts of the German Reich?

A He was a fanatical anti-Nazi.

Q How do you know that?

A Since he left the city government of Fellbach in 1930, I have kept up a very good friendship with Mr. Griesinger. Already the days before 1933, we spoke about National Socialism. After 1933, we had many discussions about National Socialism. We spoke especially about the persecution of Jews in Germany, which we were very much against, especially Griesinger. We were especially disgusted with the fact — about the shame of the burning down of the Jewish synagogues, and in the same way Mr. Griesinger was against the fight of National Socialism against the church.

Q After you had been sentenced, how did Griesinger behave towards you?

A After I was sentenced, Mr. Griesinger visited my wife every time when he came home on furlough. He gave her very much encouragement through his mental life in order to help her to overcome the results of my verdict. He continued to write letters to my wife of a very strong content. This was very dangerous to him under the National Socialist methods at that time. And I also know that he suffered mentally very much because of my sentence.

DR. ENGELHORN: That is all.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Captain Bachman, cross examination for the prosecution.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q Your trial and imprisonment was a result of your friendship for these Jewish people, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And your removal from your civil service office was because of your friendship for these Jewish people?

A Yes.

Q Of course, friendship for the Jewish people was contrary to the Reich policy, was it not?

A Yes.

Q The Reich was very severe on people who opposed their policies, weren't they?

A Yes.

Q So that people who were known to oppose the Reich policies could not hold important civil positions, could they?

A Oh, yes.

Q What do you mean by "Oh, yes"?

A I kept my position in the city of Fellbach in the Second and Third Reich.

Q But referring to the time of National Socialism under Hitler, a person who opposed his policies could not hold an important civil position, could he?

A I was a Party member.

Q You were a Party member, but my question was that a person who opposed the policies of the Reich could not hold an important civil position under the National Socialist Regime, could he?

A One always had two faces in the Third Reich. That is the way it was.

Q But if the officials knew that a person was opposed to their policies, they would not permit him to hold an important civil position, would they?

A I always behaved with the Third Reich in such a way that the National Socialists couldn't do any harm to me. I worked in my profession and I didn't bother about politics.

Q Mr. Ulmer, I am not asking you about what you did. I want you to answer the last question I asked.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Will you read the last question, please?

A I know several people who were not Party members, and I could even mention their names, and they still remained in their offices.

Q Mr. Ulmer, if a man filled in a questionnaire stating that he belonged to a society which was banned in Germany, and which was illegal, and if he expressed anti-Nazi sentiments frequently, and those came to the ears of the officials, would they have permitted him to hold an important civil office?

A At that time, no.

CAPT. BACHMAN: That is all.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. ENGELHORN:

Q You say that if he filled out a questionnaire and said that he belonged to a society which was opposed to the Third Reich, then he could not hold his job any more?

A Yes.

Q Do you know anything about the anthroposophic society?

A Yes.

Q Did membership in the anthroposophic society make it impossible for a man to be drafted?

A This question, Doctor, I cannot understand.

Q If a man has been a member of the anthroposophic society, he can still be drafted into the army?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether such a man would be promoted in the army?

A I don't think so.

Q Have you had a trial before the denazification board already?

A Yes.

Q What was the result of this trial?

A I was acquitted.

DR. ENGELHORN: Thank you.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

QUESTIONS BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Are you in business now?

A Yes, already the 15th of July, 1945, I took my old job as city building constructor back.

Q Is that the only position you hold at the present time?

A Yes.

Q During the period that Griesinger served under you as an apprentice, was he given construction work, building work?

A Yes.

Q How long did he work under you?

A Two years.

Q What was Griesinger doing in 1930, do you know?

A He left me in order to study.

Q Do you know where he went?

A To the State Institute for Construction Engineering of Wuerttemberg, which is in Stuttgart.

Q Do you know whether he graduated from that institution?

A Yes.

Q What degree did he get?

A He received the title of a construction architect.

Q Did Griesinger go into business after that, do you know?

A He had various private employments. At one time, he even had his own office.

Q What kind of an office?

A It was an architectural office.

Q What did he do in this office?

A He built houses and residences in Bad Cannstatt, and then he was doing construction work near Reutlingen, and he also worked very much on the competitive jobs.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until 1:30.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1200 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that all the personnel of the court are present; that the defendants with the exception of Jergas and Gickeleiter are present together with counsel; that the reporter and interpreter are present in court; and that the government is represented.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Professor Giesler, will you take the stand.

PRESIDENT: You may make a sworn or an unsworn statement, on which you may be cross examined. You are advised that the court may draw such inferences as the circumstances justify from your refusal to answer or from your failure to take the stand in your own behalf. Are you now willing to testify?

ACCUSED GIESLER: Yes.

PRESIDENT: Do you wish to testify under oath or unsworn?

ACCUSED GIESLER: Under oath.

HERMANN GIESLER, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What is your name?

A Hermann Giesler.

Q And your present address?

A Camp Dachau.

Q What is your usual profession?

A Architect.

Q Your age?

A Forty-eight years.

Q And your usual residence?

A Sonthofen in the Algau.

Q Professor, I know you didn't speak to me about this at all, but I know you are a little bit nervous. If at any time during my examination you wish to take a few minutes to compose yourself, just ask the court and I am sure the court will give you a little time.

A Thank you.

Q How long have you worked as an architect?

A Since 1924.

Q Where did you learn to be an architect?

A First I received instructions through my father who was also an architect, and then I attended the Academy for Applied Arts, in Munich.

Q Did you ever go to an engineering school?

A No.

Q What particular kind of architecture did you concern yourself with?

A Artistic creation. By that I mean a cultivated house from every angle and all details including interior architecture, furnishings, illumination--in short, everything that belongs to a home.

Q I show you a book and ask you what it is. Briefly, now.

A That was the leading magazine for art, from the year 1933 until the end of the war.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you please give us a translation of that, at the bottom?

INTERPRETER POWYS-COBB: This is a magazine with the year 1939, some National Socialist insignia, and the title is "Art in the Third Reich."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I hand the reporter some sheets and ask that they be marked Defense Exhibit 41 for identification.

(Papers were marked Defense Exhibit 41 for identification.)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I hand you some sheets and ask you what they are.

A This (indicating) is a hotel called Elephant in Weimar.

Q And the architect?

A I built it.

Q Are there several other buildings there on those sheets for which you are the architect?

A Yes, there are designs for other buildings but these have not yet been completed. They are models. There are some finished ones over there (indicating). These are also designs and models that I made.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, the defense offers into evidence these drawings by Professor Giesler, of architectural works of beauty, and requests that they be made a part of the record and attached thereto.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to the objection of any member of the court, Defense Exhibit 41 is admitted in evidence.

(The documents heretofore marked Defense Exhibit 41 for identification were received into evidence as Defense Exhibit 41, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Because of the fact that you drew up the plans for these buildings, did you receive any award or recognition?

A Yes.

Q Will you tell the court what it was.

A I was given the title "Professor" and in the year 1938, somewhat later, I was made a Senator of the Reichs Culture.

Q Did you ever get the award of the French Academie, an award for any of your work?

A Yes, in the year 1937 I received the golden medal and the grand prize from the Academie des Beaux Arts in Paris for my work in Weimar.

Q Professor, as a result of your work in artistic architecture, did you subsequently meet Hitler?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court about it.

A By virtue of a competition which was held in a small circle, I received the commission for the plans of the Party Castle at Sonthofen. I began with this project in 1934-1935. In 1935 I had to take part in another competition, to which I was ordered. This competition had to do with the reconstruction of the town of Weimar and with the construction of a large square. I won this competition also, and the models which I made for this work were exhibited in the Reichs Chancellory. Adolf Hitler requested to meet the architect who had drawn up these plans. I was ordered to go to Berlin, was presented to Adolf Hitler, and explained my plans to him. At this point he stated that he desired to see my work in Sonthofen and also other examples of my work from former times, and he inspected Sonthofen, which was finished just about less than a quarter, and after this inspection he informed me that in the future I was not allowed to accept any further commissions unless they were ordered by him.

Q Were you subsequently made General Counselor for Architecture and when?

A That was in the year 1938. In the year 1937-1938, I was again requested to take part in another competition. That competition referred to the Hohe Schule, the project of here (indicating), and after I won this competition I was requested to take charge of the re-creation of Munich. Since this was only a request, I didn't do anything about it and I said that I had too many private projects which I was working on and that in view of the people who had commissioned me to do this work I couldn't let them down. In November 1938, I received a command to take over the re-creation of Munich as the General Counselor for Architecture. This order was published, as far as I know, on the 21st of December 1938. There was a short copy of this order in that volume there (indicating).

Q You say you didn't want to take the position. Will you tell the court why.

A There were several reasons. Up until this time I felt that I was a private architect and that I was my own boss and I felt depressed with this task and also with the size of it, because in re-creating a town of this size one had to fight all sorts of offices. There were Reichs offices, there were state offices, there were municipal offices, and there were Party offices. So that I felt that from a purely administrative point of view I didn't have sufficient experience to cope with all these authorities.

Q You held this position as General Counselor for Architecture until when?

A Officially, from 21 December 1938 until May 1945, the end.

Q Now how much of your time did this job take up,

A This work took one hundred percent of my time. I would like to explain this closely. When I say one hundred per cent, I mean one hundred per cent normal working time, plus a little extra working time. In addition to this there was work going on in my studios - my private studios, respecting Augsberg, Weimar, Senthofen, Oberhofen, and several other individual projects like Kassel, Schwarsburg, later on the city of Klessheim near Salzburg, also Schwarsburg in Thuringia. Particularly in 1944 Castle Fürstenstein in Silesia, but my greatest project since 1942 was the reconstruction of Linz. I can say in general that I worked 18 hours every day, and as much as 20 hours a day.

Q Now, when the office for the General Counsellor for Architecture finally was organized, how many departments did it have?

A It had three sections. The first department was the Planning Department, under that one for the construction of cities - the planning of cities. The second department was the Executive Department which was a group of engineers under the leadership of construction director Gimple. Each one of these engineers was a specialist in his own field. There were static engineers for iron construction, reinforced cement - reinforced concrete, excavation, water canalization, electric specialists, and specialists regarding heat.

Q Now Professor, what was Gimple, if you know?

A Gimple was an engineer. He received his education at the Technical High School in Stuttgart, and was an expert on excavation, and added to that, he was a suitable man from the point of view of organising construction and disposal.

Q Subsequent to January, or around January 1942, was the Executive Department taken away from the General Counselor for Architecture?

A Yes, and I would like to make a further remark. The third department was the Administrative Department and Legal Department. This was under the leadership of Dr.Fraum. I was in charge of the section dealing with city planning. My studios were separate, and were kept on one side.

Q Prior to January 1942, does that wall chart there at the right-hand side portray your departments?

A Yes.

Q And then in January 1942 Gimple's department left, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Now will you please tell the court when and what happened when Gimple's department left in January 1942: why did they leave and where did they go?

A I must make a remark. In January 1940 I received a command from Adolf Hitler to carry out the reconstion of the town of Munich in spite of the war. That means with all necessary firms, all necessary labor, and with the entire supply of building material that was required. This condition prevailed until December 1941. In January 1942 Reich Minister Dr.Todt appeared in my office, and he explained to me that there was an order by Adolf Hitler according to which all engineers, all firms, all labor, and the entire tools and equipment belonging to these firms, and working up until now for the entire Executive Department, should be transported to the Baltic countries.

Q For what reason?

A They were planning to build a railroad network in these countries with all the necessary tracks, and sheds for locomotives, railroad stations, bridges, and everything else that a railway network requires. Thereupon I checked back by telephone, and this order was confirmed. At the same time I was informed that this engineer staff - this was a staff consisting of one hundred engineers were to stay together, and all the firms which were working on this municipal reconstion - these municipal reconstion projects, the one which applied to the town of Munich, and also applied to Augsburg, Weimar and the other cities - these firms were all to stay together in the Balkan countries and form one composite group.

Q And when these people went up to Northern Russia, what was the whole group known as?

A Construction Group "Giesler".

Q That was because you were the head of it?

A I was the head of it in Munich.

Q You mean to say that your office did not go up to the Baltic States, do you?

A No, I received specific instructions that all the architects who were working in the Planning Department and making artistic drafts and plans for the various towns, and also for buildings, and those architects, either in the Planning Section, and those in my private studios were all to stay in Munich.

Q If youroffice did not go up to the Baltic States, who was in charge there?

A Chief Construction Leader Gimple was kept in charge there. That was under agreement with the organization Todt.

Q Will you please tell the court why this group was known as Group "Giesler" ?

A In order to protect this construction group from infringements by the already existing groups of the OT or the Wehrmacht, in order to carry on my Planning Department it was necessary for me to have several engineers, and every time an architectural plan for a building had progressed far enough to start making specifications for details, it was my habit to call for expert engineers - people who were specialists in iron construction, thermo-technics, and electro-technics, and in order not to lose any of these people and in order to be able to call for any one of these people to be transferred back to Munich, this construction group was called Construction Group "Giesler".

Q That was done on whose orders?

A Adolf Hitler himself.

Q Now, did you ever give any orders or instructions in relation to construction in Northern Russia?

A I think I would have made a fool of myself. I don't understand anything about railroad construction, and I had the best of experts and specialists in Germany in my group.

Q Now in order to get along Professor, will you tell the court whether or not you subsequently became associated with the OT?

A On the way - in the area between Germany and Russia, there were certain units of the OT which were called Front OT units. These details - these units were detailed to the various armies, and in the year 1943, an order came out according to which these Front OT Groups, and civilian construction staffs who were detailed to the troops in the large areas to make OT Groups: to bring these people together into OT groups, three such Groups were formed, one in Russia South, Russia Middle, and Russia North, and the OT Central Office in Berlin requested one OT leader for this OT Group "Russia". Gimple was not able to work under this man, and the engineers who were working for Gimple stated that they could not either, and Speer made a compromise and stated "we will make Giesler the nominal head of the Task Group, and Gimple will be acting head of this Task Group. The man immediately under Gimple was the man from the OT Central Office. That was Task Group "Klugar" - Task Group Leader "Klugar".

Q Now, from time to time Professor, if you want to refer to the chart, it is over there and you may do so. Now Professor---

INTERPRETER: He wants to say something else too.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Go ahead.

PROFESSOR GIESLER: If I had not agreed to this compromise, I would have lost my entire staff of engineers.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did this Group from Russia - North Russia subsequently return to Germany, and if so, when ?

A This Group started coming back most of them in July, some more in August, and the rest in September 1944. That means that I slowly recalled the leading people who had been working formerly under Gimple in my executive Department.

Q Did that include Gimple?

A Yes, Gimple was the first man whom I recalled.

Q And this box here (referring to chart) came back here in existence?

A No.

Q Will you explain that answer to the court?

A Developement in Germany was as follows. As the front lines in Russia and France were brought closer, the OT Task Groups had no further duties there, but even before this took place, the necessity for active construction in Germany was so acute, that sections of these groups were recalled back to Germany on reconstruction in Germany, because there was no capable firm left in Germany. All the firms were under war contracts to the OT at the Atlantic wall, Russia, Finland, Italy, and so on.

Q Can you tell us anything about the planning of underground factories, and if so, when did this happen - tell us all you know about it?

A The first I heard about this was under control was the beginning of May 1944. During that time Task "Anemone" in Munich was in existence, organized through OT West in Paris. In my administrative department, there was an office called "G.B.Bau" which means "General Plenipotentiary for Building". This office was in charge of the building economy. This office knew how much cement was being manufactured in one section, how much iron in another; how much labor was in one given section; how many digging machines etc. All this labor; these materials, all these tools and this equipment was being used for the so-called civilian purposes, that is, for air raid shelters, and this Task Group "Anemone" suddenly requested this Department "G.B.Bau" in order to utilize the entire equipment at the disposal of this office for their project.

Q Professor you had a brother did you not who was a Gauleiter?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever speak to him about this situation, or did he ever speak to you?

A He spoke to me about it. He was very much worried through this reshuffle, that his equipment for the construction of the air raid shelters would be cut off, and at the same time he informed me of the details concerning the building project in Muehldorf, and he told me that he had done everything within his power to stop this project and that he had no interest concerning this sort of construction project.

Q What did he say about it and why did he speak to you about it?

A My brother was an architect. He was a better architect than I was. He had more information concerning engineering sides, and he explained to me that these buildings were situated incorrectly, and at the same time he told me also that the office for Land Planning, under Reichsstatthalter Ritter Von Epp had put in an objection to this project in Muehldorf.

Q Were they the only people who objected to it?

A The City of Muehldorf, the Kreisleiter of Muehldorf, and also the Gauleiter of Munich.

Q What I cannot understand is, how you fit into the picture -what good did it do to complain to you?

A The Gauleiter had received an order from some higher headquarters, I don't know from whom, that he was to particularly support this project, and he on the other hand gave the order to the Kreisleiter of Muehldorf to lend special support to this project by assigning rooms, buildings for all sorts of uses, offices, and to requisition soil - the area which was set forth for this factory. The Kreisleiter in this manner was informed of the entire matter, and he told my brother about it, and my brother said that he felt this location being near a place where so many railroads came together, and near a bridge of the importance of the bridge at Muehldorf, was wrong. Muehldorf is a freight relaying station for freight trains from Munich.

Q Did you go out to look whether or not it was in the wrong place?

A He asked me for a rough statement and I told him that I could only give him an opinion - the opinion we had concerning construction in a city. I went out with the section Land Planning.

Q Now wait a moment, you went where?

A To Muehldorf.

Q You went to Muehldorf. Did you go to the main construction site or was it there at that time?

A I did not go to the main construction site so much as I went to the city of Muehldorf to see that, and not until after I had the information regarding the locality did I start these conferences.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for fifteen minutes.

(Whereupon at 1430 hours the court recessed until 1445 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1445.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present; that all the defendants with the exception of Jergas and Flocken, together with their counsel, are in court; that the reporter and the interpreter are here; and that the prosecution is represented.

Will the interpreter make the usual announcement concerning witnesses and remind the witness he is still under oath?

(Whereupon the interpreter did as requested.)

HERMANN GIESLER, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following sworn statement through an interpreter:

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, you were out at Muehldorf, you were telling the court at the close of the session. Did you give your brother any opinion as to the correctness of the placing of that building?

A Yes, after I had inspected the city of Muehldorf and the surrounding area, I visited Hoffmann at his office, whom I saw at that time for the first time. Hoffmann had his office in a small barracks in the woods. I had him show me the plans and I listened to the objections raised by the sector for land planning, and from the Kreisleiter, as well as from the Landrat, and I arrived at the opinion that their objections were justified, particularly in view of the further development which the city of Muehldorf would have to take in the direction of the west. At that time I asked Hoffmann, who had picked out this site and who had specified it. He told me that men of the OT central office did that and also leading men of the OT Task Force Paris West. I asked him how much preparations he had made for his construction work and how much time would be lost if he would look for a new construction site; and he gave me a clear picture of what has happened so far and told me that the only thing that did happen was that the trees were cut down in the area, that the tracks would be moved, and that the construction firms were unloading from their transports and that they were fixing their work places up. All together, he thought it would take one and a half months to look for a new construction site and to move all the equipment.

Q Did they ask you to do anything about it?

A I showed them my papers, told them who I was, and I told them that I am getting the information from the Gauleiter and from the Reichsstatthalter.

Q Did you give them your opinion at that time?

A No. I told Reich to tell them my opinion about them finally, and I had no rights to tell Mr. Hoffmann anything about that. I went back to Munich and made a short telephone call to my brother, and he asked me whether I couldn't take this matter up in person with Hitler in my capacity as General Counsellor for Architecture and as an architect in order to finally find out whether it is the will of the Fuehrer that this project will be finished.

Q Well, subsequent to that time, did you go to Hitler and if you did, why?

A About two weeks later I got an order to take the plans of the project in Linz, to bring them up to Obersalzberg. I packed up my models and my plans and went up to the Obersalzberg and stayed up there for a week, and I would like to say the following to this: on the Obersalzberg I have my own private studio.

Q Did you spend the 8 days and the 8 nights with Hitler?

A I can't exactly express it like that, no, but after Hitler was finished with his military and political duties, he would call me over at night or in the evening, and we would talk over those plans.

Q What did you do during the day?

A During the day I was in my studio and I worked there and I drew there. At the same time I used to go down to Castle Klessheim or to Salsburg to visit the various construction sites.

Q Did you at any time speak to Hitler about Muehldorf?

A I had to wait for that certain time when I could talk to him about a project like this.

Q You mean by that, the opportune moment?

A Yes, the opportune moment, in order not to receive a refusal right away.

Q All right, so you finally got to that opportune moment. Now tell the court what you said to Hitler and what Hitler said to you about this Muehldorf site?

A I told him that the Reichsstatthalter and Gauleiter told me about this project and that I myself went down there to look at it, and according to my opinion -- in my opinion this construction site in comparison to the situation of the city was not a proper one.

Q And what did he say to you?

A He took the time to look at the plans which I had brought along and he said I was right, but at the same time he asked "how much time will be lost if we look for a new construction site?" And I explained to him that the engineers in charge there had explained to me it would be approximately one and one-half months. Whereupon he said, "I can not sanction that."

PRESIDENT: He couldn't sanction the delay in the operation?

ACCUSED HERMANN GIESLER: That's right.

PRESIDENT: All right.

A (Cont'd) "We have to let the whole thing go because I can not lose this amount of time."

Q All right, now, Professor, let's talk about Task Group 6 for a little while. Will you tell the court when Task Group 6 was formed and who was the head of it and everything about it?

A I would like to say that at this time when I had the conference with Adolf Hitler Task Force Number 6 did not exist yet, and I also would like to say that the final words of Adolf Hitler were the following: "This matter has been discussed with the head of the OT central office. Engineers are working there who I trust. It is not your job; don't bother with it." And I called my brother to inform him about that.

Q Now tell us about Task Group 6.

A The end of June a new group was formed, a task force, in the same manner as had been formed on the various fronts and foreign countries, and it was called Task Force Germany. If I can remember right there were seven or eight of those groups in Germany, and the entire area of Bavaria and the Danube Area was looked at as a central point of the construction industry. Speer said, "Giesler is building in Augsburg, Munich, and Linz, and he will also build in Vienna. This is his area of interests as far as construction is concerned." Because at the same time they were thinking of keeping those task forces as peacetime construction task forces. There was even a talk to transfer the Task Force Paris West, which at that time was preparing to return to Germany already, to Munich in order to fill the project Anemone. I had a talk with Speer, and Speer asked me to take charge of the group formally, and he was satisfied with the fact that Gimpler was actually the leader of the group. I asked Speer to tell me

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If you want to use the map, you can use it.

A (Cont'd) The entire project of Main, Franken, and Wursburg does not mean the city of Wursburg, but the entire county of Wursburg; and the same went for Nuernberg, not only the city of Nuernberg, but also the entire area of Franken. The same thing with Bayreuth and Augsburg, which is the Gau Schwaben; and Munich, upper Bavaria; Linz, upper Danube; here the city of Vienna. (Indicating on wall chart.) Those eight groups. In other words, Task Force Bavaria and Task Force Danube was the project of OT Task Group Number 6 Munich; and that the Task Force had the question of airraid shelters, the reconstruction of bombed buildings, agricultural measures, and the reconstruction of the cities. And what did the Group have to do with Mushldorf? The planning, the construction, the time limits, and the building materials came directly from the OT Central Office Berlin to the construction sites of Mushldorf. As far as the group was concerned, the group was only a letter carrier --

PRESIDENT: As far as what was concerned?

A (Cont'd) As far as the OT Central Office Berlin was concerned,

(GIESLER-Direct)

Task Force 6 was only a letter carrier, because the courier route was Berlin-Munich and not Berlin-Muehldorf. The same thing with teletype machines — the teletype lines were from Berlin to Munich and not from Berlin to Muehldorf, but the requisitions for building material which came from Berlin partly came down here in the form of paper. They were bound requisitions for the disposition of construction site Muehldorf. As far as wood and similar construction material was concerned, it was the task of the Group Number 6 to turn those paper requisitions into material. And that was the job of Mr. Gimpler, and he instructed the various saw mills in the construction area Bavaria, and he turned those requisition slips into material, and the same thing he did with the requisitions for cement. But the cement manufacturing was not big enough in this area so that Task Group 6 could take care of the needs of Muehldorf. And that is where we come to the main problem. If this has to be constructed for a question of time. If we need 150,000 or 200,000 tons of cement for this construction — I just named this figure; I could even say 100,000 — then it makes a big difference whether this amount of cement has to be ready in 6 months or in a year's time; and the second factor of these construction sites was labor. That was the largest problem of the entire construction industry in Germany. It was already impossible in the years of 1942 and 1943 to set a time for a construction project, because the time factors could never be given. If there were enough laborers, there was a lack of material, or vice versa. Gimpler, if he had to supply this construction site with material, had to know how much material will be needed at what time. In other words, he had to inquire in Berlin and find out how much would be supplied the supply line down to Muehldorf. Berlin at that time said, "We will supply the entire steel, the entire iron." But we had to make sure that the entire cement coming from Wurzburg, Nuernberg,

(GIMPLER-Direct)

Bayreuth, Augsburg, and so on all the way down the line, had to go only to the construction site Muehldorf. That would have meant that the entire construction of airraid shelters, civilian use of cement, or other use of cement for the civilian sectors would have to remain -- would have to wait. And the second question was at what time intervals will they have to be delivered? One said, and I mean one said, "There will be a time of six months needed to construct this." I myself couldn't say very much to that. I am not an engineer, and I could not overlook the whole situation, and Gimpler explained to me that it was absolutely impossible. If possible, because of the great mass and of the large size of the project. Besides that, we just can not get the material. All the entire construction in this area will have to stop. And Gimpler said, "I will speak to the firms who have the job to construct this project. Only they can give me an objective answer."

Q Professor, how often did you visit the Muehldorf construction site?

A Never.

Q We had a witness on the stand who said he saw you at the main construction site at the corner stone laying, is that right or wrong?

A This witness saw me in Bunker No. 1, and again I say on my first visit to Muehldorf at the end of May or beginning of June 1944, I did not go to the main construction site. It didn't even exist, it was just wooded area.

Q You visited Hitler didn't you?

A Yes.

Q On business?

A I never visited Hitler, I was ordered to come to see him.

Q Did you ever speak to Hitler again about the Muehldorf site?

A Yes, for the second time I tackled the thing even though I was told the first time "this is not your job, this is the job of an engineer" and for the second time, in the fall of 1944, we started to talk about Muehldorf again.

Q Continue.

A I was asked by Gimple again to get directly in contact with Adolph Hitler to inform him about the situation in Muehldorf without going through the OT Central office in Berlin. Most of all was the question of labor. Gimple, as an engineer, explained to me this construction site, figuring from the very beginning that they would get free laborers at their disposal, but--I have to correct something--it was even planned that they would get Italian construction laborers in the form of firms to work there, and they would make special or partial contracts under the superivision of a large German firm. He was very much against the fact that laborers who have never in their life worked in a construction site, who were not skilled laborers, would have to perform work at such a site. I told Gimple at that time "that is none of our business, we are getting our orders directly from the OT Central office at Berlin, this direct supervision of the Muehldorf construction area".

DR. LEILING: I have an objection to the translation. He did not say "we got our orders from Berlin direct" but "orders were issued from Berlin".

PRESIDENT: Do you agree with the translation.

PROSECUTION: Frankly I didn't notice it that closely.

INTERPRETER: I can find out for you.

THE WITNESS: I wanted to say that this construction site at Muehldorf was under the direct power or command of Berlin. This is already expressed in an expression of "special commitment ensemble" and both sides -- the construction site Muehldorf and the OT Central office in Berlin were very jealous that special attention would be paid to that fact. I would like to say that this was not the case with the other eight construction projects which were just as important as the construction at Muehldorf and which were over a much wider area. None of the leading men of any of those construction offices had the right to get into direct connection with Berlin without going through Munich, but they get their plans and instructions only from the OT Task Group No. 6 in Munich. This is what I told Gimple, and I told him "it is up to Berlin" and he told us that our common sense would have to get to the final results, or try to.

(Thereupon at 1530 hours the court recessed)

(Whereupon at 1545 hours the court reconvened)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present, that all of the defendants, with the exception of Sperling, Jergas, and Flocken, are in court, that the interpreter and reporter are here and that the government is represented.

The interpreter will make the usual announcement as to witnesses remaining in the courtroom.

HERMANN GIESLER, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following sworn statement, being reminded he was still under oath, through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Will you continue where you left off right before the recess, and please make it as brief as possible.

A Gimple asked me to tell Hitler that it is not sensible to employ laborers who are unskilled and who cannot do a proper days work on a construction site of that kind, this is not equivalent to the ethics of an engineer, and for the second time I brought that question up to Adolph Hitler even though it was very hard for me to do so.

Q You mean to say you went up to see Adolph Hitler just because of that reason?

A No, I couldn't do that.

Q What was the reason you went then?

A I had to wait for some kind of order or telephone call which ordered me to come up to Headquarters, and again it was the planning of Munich and Linz that was developing month by month. I would like to say this was the only field of relaxation which Hitler had after taking care of his military and political work. I told him in our talk that the construction site of Auschwitz is staffed with Jewish laborers who only do one-third of the normal work required, and I told him that it was promised to me sometime ago that those construction sites would be staffed with free, normal laborers. I used the drastic expression, I said "you cannot construct such a project from a group of lawyers and merchants". Hitler gave the order to Sauckel, via Bormann, to contract Italian laborers to send them to the construction sites with their firms. However, I was reprimanded at the same time and that I should only bother with the architecture job he had given to me and I should not bother with the jobs of Dorsch and Speer. Bormann told me "I am sure this is going to cause friction between Sauckel and Speer".

Q Professor Giesler, we had a doctor here by the name of Baumgartel who said he had a conference with you. Is that right or wrong?

A The way I understand the word "conference" is to work on a certain thing and to talk about it for fifteen minutes or one-half hour. That is my understandinf of a conference, so I can say that I did not have a conference with Dr. Baumgartel.

Q Were you ever with Dr. Baumgartel when only you and he were together?

A Never. Dr. Baumgartel came to see me in my office, the office of Chief Counselor of Architecture, I did not have an office as a formal Task Force Commander, and he made his social call and I told him in the presence of Dimple, who introduced Baumgartel to me, that it is my policy to give everybody a chance to develop his project in a free manner, and if he has any problems as far as the construction site is concerned, and as an OT doctor, he will always find an open door in my place because all of my project commanders had been instructed by Dimple that the demands of a doctor on the construction site are always to be followed.

Q Now Professor Giesler, in order to save time I want you to answer the rest of my questions "yes" or "no" and if I ask for a date just give me the date.

Q Did you visit or were you ordered up to Hitler toward the end of the war, and if so what date?

A In February.

Q Did you bring plans with you for the remodeling of cities?

A Yes.

Q Did you speak to him about OT matters at all?

A Not a word.

Q When you work, Professor Giesler, do you wear glasses?

A No.

Q What have you got them on now for?

A I am only wearing glasses since 1941 or 1942, usually in the theater, when I am looking at something far distant, in order to see better.

Q You mean to say you want to see the court now, is that what you are trying to tell us?

A Yes.

Q When you had a conference with people, in which you were together and not at some distance, did you wear the glasses or didn't you?

A No, never. I never wore glasses in my office.

Q When Dr. Baumgartel came in here he was asked to identify you. He looked around, and he couldn't identify you, and then you put on your glasses.

PROSECUTION: Just a minute. Counsel should not testify. I object to that.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Well, it is in the record.

PROSECUTION: I object anyway.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to the objection of any member of the court, the objection is overruled.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Then you put on your glasses and the prosecutor asked him this question: "I ask you again to look and see whether you can pick out Professor Giesler. Did he wear glasses?" And he answered this way: "As far as I know, never," and then he pointed to you. Now, why did he point out to you? Do you know?

A Because I put my glasses on at that moment, because the prosecutor asked me to do so.

Q Did any of the other accused wear glasses? Have you seen them with glasses in the courtroom?

A Dr. Flocken, yes.

Q All right, but no men. The prosecutor brought out this morning, in cross examining a witness the name of Kalda Laine and he wanted to know if the OT paid her fare or not. Can you tell us about that? Just in a few words, now. Did they or did they not?

A Yes and no.

Q Tell us why you give that answer.

A In the years 1942 and 1943, not even my wife could keep a maid because of the total war, and my wife developed a heart disease and I could not get a maid from a German labor commitment office. The OT Task Group Northern Russia made a contract with a maid by the name of Kalda Laine who was from Reval, or to say better Wesenberg near Reval, and they made a contract and the labor commitment office did not have anything against that.

Q Here is what I want to know. Did they pay her fare, Professor, or not?

A The OT paid the fare from Reval to Munich, and my wife refunded expenses to the OT.

Q There is only one other matter I'd like to clear up. This morning a witness, your secretary, said that he didn't know that a conference was held with Moll or somebody to do with the Moll construction firm. Can you tell us why that might be?

A If I remember right, the witness testified that he was always present in my office whenever I was there with the exception of the dates between the middle of June 1944 until the beginning of July.

Q That is right. Now go ahead.

A This conference with the firms about material and contracting was held on 30 June 1944.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is all. Your witness.

PROSECUTION: Mr. Roth, cross-examination for the prosecution.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q So you mean that any German citizen, Professor, could have had a maid brought in from Poland or Russia?

A Yes.

(Giesler--Cross)

Q And do you mean that the OT would have paid for that?

A No.

Q You mean that because you were an official of the OT that was the reason your wife was able to get a maid, is that true?

A No.

Q Well, you mean that the group up in Russia would have made a contract with a housemaid for anybody who would have asked them?

A No, but every family where the woman was not healthy had the right to get a housemaid.

Q But that would not have been done through the OT, would it, Professor?

A Not normally. They went over the labor commitment offices.

Q But you got your maid by reason of the OT group having made a contract for you, isn't that true?

A No. I got my maid from the labor commitment office in Reval.

Q Didn't you testify just a minute ago that the OT group, your OT group up there in Russia, made that contract for you?

A The OT group in the office up there spent the money for me because I wasn't there. The girl had no money to to come down from Reval to Munich.

Q And they would have done that even though you were not an official of the OT?

(Giesler--Cross)

A Yes, because not only for me but also for Mr. Gimple a maid was gotten, and later on also for an OT laborer who was a common worker because his wife had many children and he was in need of help.

Q All for OT people? Yes or no, Doctor.

A No.

Q All right. Let's go to something else. Outside of these eight main construction offices which are indicated on this chart were there any other main construction offices under Task Group 6?

A Yes, not under their supervision but Gimple had to turn over requisitions for material for other construction offices, by order of Berlin.

Q How about Kaufering? Remember Kaufering? Remember a conference you had with Moll and Co. about Kaufering?

A No, this conference concerned Muehldorf and Kaufering. It was one conference we had.

Q Well, why didn't you have Kaufering put on there? Was there any reason for that?

A I didn't draw that map. I suppose Kaufering is not represented there because we are concerned with the trial of Muehldorf.

Q And Landsberg, that isn't on there either, is it?

A As far as I know, Landsberg a l Kaufering are the same thing.

(Giesler--Cross)

Q Now, Professor, isn't it a fact that Anemone was later taken over by Task Group 6?

A No. Anemone was not necessary any more as soon as the Task Group Paris did not exist any more, but Anemone was not taken over by Task Force Munich, but Anemone went, together with the Task Group Paris West, into a new area, the area of --

Q Have you --

A Wait, I have to say something.

PRESIDENT: Let the interpreter interpret what the witness has said so far.

INTERPRETER WALKER: I have, sir.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Have you ever been in Riga?

A Riga? Yes.

Q What did you do up there?

A I visited my construction group, Construction Group Giesler, in Riga.

Q How many times did you go up there?

A I have got that before in some of the questionnaires I had to fill out in some other camps, and I said that I have, between the years 1942 and 1944, been eight times in the Baltic States or Northern Russia.

Q And that was always in connection with your group that was working up there, isn't that true?

A I took some plans under my arm and I went up there in order to talk things over with the engineers.

(Giesler--Cross)

Q Professor, will you be good enough to make your answers short? That could have been answered yes or no. So that it comes about that you visited the group around Riga about every other month, isn't that true?

A Approximately, but sometimes it was an interval of six months.

Q So that when you told us before that your group went up there but that you remained in Munich, you didn't tell us that you visited that group about every other month, did you?

A I said that already.

Q When did your brother become the Gauleiter of Munich?

A I can't remember the exact date. It was in the year 1943.

Q And that was before or after you became the General Counselor for Architecture?

A It was five and a half years later.

Q What was five and a half years later?

A That my brother became Gauleiter of Munich.

Q During the time that your brother was the Gauleiter, you visited Hitler pretty frequently, didn't you?

A Yes.

Q In fact you visited him about every other month, didn't you?

(Giesler--Cross)

A Mrs. Wolf explained it this way: that sometimes there was a time interval of two months, sometimes a time interval of half a year, sometimes less than that, between the times that I visited Hitler. In other words, that he ordered me to come up there.

Q How many times did you visit Muehldorf? I refer now to the construction site.

A You mean the construction site of Muehldorf which came under Hoffmann?

Q Yes.

A I explained once before. I was never at the main construction site.

Q Weren't you there when some construction was going on, Professor? Now, think it over.

A No.

Q Weren't you in Muehldorf at the time that some huts were being built for workers?

A That was a time in May when I had a talk with Hoffmann, but not as an OT task force leader.

Q What kind of huts were they that were being built?

A As far as I know, they were huts for the OT, which I had already also seen in my visit of the general area around Muehldorf.

Q And did you see the huts that were being built for the prisoners?

A No.

(Giesler--Cross)

Q Did you know what kind of huts they were?

A Yes, those are huts which were also used, which are called roof huts, and they were also used in Russia by the OT for key personnel and also for fighting personnel and they were copied from the Russia huts which were used to house families who worked in factory areas.

Q You mean that German OT personnel were living in huts that were built on the ground and had no flooring in them?

A I myself spent one night in one of those huts. Those huts are built on the ground for the following reasons--that they offer the least resistance for the wind and thus it helps to keep warm.

Q Gimple was under your jurisdiction, wasn't he?

A Mr. Gimple was under my supervision as far as he was a commander of the executive office of the General Construction Counselor.

Q And he was under the jurisdiction of Task Group 6, wasn't he?

A In his capacity as head of the executive department, that means between the years 1938 and 1942.

Q Professor, my questions deal with Muehldorf and with the construction site there. I am not interested in your capacity as Generalbaurat. I am interested now in asking you one question. Was Gimple responsible to Task Group 6? Yes or no?

A Yes.

(Giesler--Gross)

Q Was Hoffmann responsible to Group 6?

A No.

Q Whom was he responsible to?

A The OT Central Office.

Q When he said, in his statement, that he was under Group 6 and that you were his superior, was he lying?

A At least he explained himself very unclearlike.

Q How about Griesinger? Was he under Group 6?

A He was under Hoffmann. Not directly under Hoffmann, but he was subordinate to Construction Counselor Kideden.

Q And wasn't Kideden responsible to Task Group 6?

A No.

Q What was the relationship between Task Group 6 and Griesinger?

A I'd like to say once more that Special Commitment Muehldorf was put together of the OT Task Group West and OT Central Office. I understand it this way. If I could tell Hoffmann to leave or to transfer him, then Hoffmann would be under my supervision, but --

Q I didn't ask you that. Please make it short, Professor. I asked you whether Griesinger was subject to the orders of Task Group 6. Please tell us, yes or no.

A No, because I or Gimple could never have given orders to Griesinger.

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present; that all the defendants, with the exception of Jergas, are in court together with their counsel; that the interpreter and the reporter are here; and that the Government is represented.

Will the interpreter make the usual announcement concerning witnesses, please?

HERMANN GIESLER, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following sworn statement through an interpreter:

CROSS EXAMINATION (Cont'd)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Now, you mentioned yesterday the term "stadthalter." Will you tell us who that was?

A It was Reichsstatthalter General Ritter vonn Epp.

Q And you at one time were connected with Saukel, weren't you?

A Yes.

Q Who was Saukel?

A Saukel was the Gauleiter of Thuringia.

Q And what else was he?

A He was responsible for the labor commitment of workers from the foreign countries who had been working in German defense industries of occupied countries since 1943.

Q And what was your connection with Saukel?

A I was building. In Weimar I built the House Klephant and I built the City Square and other buildings. Weimar was the residence of Gauleiter Saukel.

Q And what was your duty with respect to the procurement of labor?

A Nothing.

Q Didn't you take a trip one time with Saukel?

A No.

(A document was marked Prosecution's Exhibit P-86 for identification.)

Q I show you this letter and ask you if you ever saw that before?

A This is a letter which was written by the Administration and Legal Department to the Finance President in Munich in order to make arrangements for a journey of the General Counsellor of Architecture in Munich by order of Saukel. I have to explain something to that. Twice in my life I have been in Paris. I was in Paris in 1936 or 1937 -- I can not exactly remember the date -- and in 1940 I was in Paris again for exactly 4 hours. Since that day I have never entered Paris again. The same goes for France, and I ask you to look at the date that letter carries.

Q And, as a matter of fact, that last time you were with Hitler was the last time you were in Paris -- that was the time that you visited the opera with Hitler, isn't that true?

A Yes and no. I got the order to be in Paris, I think it was June or July -- I can not quite remember, but I could tell you the date because it was the date of the capitulation of France. I received an order to come to headquarters immediately and at that time I was in the Vienna area in civil. I was more or less arrested in the street, put in a plane and flown over to the headquarters. At 3 in the morning Adolf Hitler and an architect by the name of Speer -- later on Speer was Reichsminister -- and myself drove to Paris with a small accompanying staff and approximately 6 o'clock in the morning we visited the Paris Opera for maybe 15 or 20 minutes for a building survey.

Q Just a moment, Professor, that question has been answered and that was quite sufficient.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I believe the witness can explain. He was asked the question, and I believe he has the right to explain.

LAW MEMBER: The question was about the occasion he went to Paris with Hitler, and he is explaining.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: All right, if the court thinks that is enough.

PROSECUTION: I now offer in evidence this letter which has been identified by the defendant and is marked Prosecution's Exhibit P-86 for identification. Is there any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I would like to ask the witness a question before I make any objection.

LAW MEMBER: You may take him on voir dire as to the exhibit offered.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Well, if it please the court, I am going to object to the admission of this document because I don't believe it has any bearing on the case. The man hasn't denied anything in the statement — the witness hasn't denied -- and prosecution can ask him anything he wants to about it. If there is any discrepancy, then, I admit -- But this wasn't signed by the witness and it wasn't sent to the witness. The witness says he knows about it.

PRESIDENT: Do you want to ask the witness a question with reference to that exhibit?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, sir, not unless it is going into evidence. Then I would like to. But I don't see where it has any bearing on this case.

LAW MEMBER: Did you ask him about this transaction as a predicate for impeachment?

PROSECUTION: Yes, sir, and he denied that he held the office described in that paper.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Which office did he say he denied?

PRESIDENT: The General State Surveyor of Buildings?

PROSECUTION: No, sir.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: At the end of the first paragraph, I believe. It doesn't say in the letter that this man held that title.

PRESIDENT: Ask him which one of the men held that title.

PROSECUTION: I withdraw the exhibit, sir.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION: (Cont'd)

Q Your office had a subdivision for the supply of food to Muehldorf, did it not? Will you please answer "Yes" or "No"?

A As far as OT personnel was concerned, yes.

Q Now, you know that the OT drew its food from the army supply to feed the prisoners, don't you?

A No.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Can we have dates on these things? Because —

PROSECUTION: We are talking about Muehldorf, Dr.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: All right, will you put that in there so we will know what you are talking about?

A (Cont'd) If the OT would have supplied the prisoners they would have done that as a whole. In other words, the OT would have also cooked for the prisoners, but due to the fact that Camp Dachau reimbursed the OT as far as rations were concerned —

Q Professor, I didn't ask you that. Will you please answer my question? Did your office have a subdivision for the procurement of food from the army for the prisoners at Muehldorf, Yes or No?

(GIESLER-Cross)

A This question I can only answer with "No."

Q Now let me ask you this question: Did you have this question asked of you and did you make this answer? "Is it not a fact that someone at the office of Einsatzgruppe 6 was responsible for the procurement — "

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Can we get the date on this?

LAW MEMBER: Let the court have the date.

PROSECUTION: This is the defendant's statement, pre-trial statement, dated 12 February 1947.

Q Question: "Is it not a fact that someone at the office of Einsatzgruppe 6 — ". I withdrew that. "Now, in addition to supplying materials, it was also necessary for the OT to supply food for the OT personnel as well as the prisoners who worked at the OT construction sites, isn't that true?" Answer: "I can not answer this question; I am not informed." The next question: "Well, Professor, where did the food for the OT personnel and the food for the prisoners who worked at the OT construction sites come from?" "Also this question I can not answer. I don't know."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Just a minute. Are we getting answers to these individual questions?

PRESIDENT: He is asking them in a group, apparently.

PROSECUTION: Yes, sir, I am asking them in a group.

Q (Cont'd) Question: "Is it not a fact that someone at the office of Einsatzgruppe 6 was responsible for the procurement or distribution of food for these prisoners?" Answer: "Certainly, yes."

A Yes, that is a fact.

Q Who in your office was responsible for the procurement of food for prisoners at Muehldorf? Just name them.

(GIESLER-Cross)

A As far as the free laborers and the OT personnel was concerned, it was the responsibility of Dr. Gutmut.

Q Professor, I told you before, we are only interested in Muehldorf and we are only interested in prisoners. Now will you please tell us who it was who was responsible in your office for the procurement of food for the prisoners at Muehldorf?

A I can not explain that to you.

Q You mean you don't know?

A I know more about it today.

Q Where did you learn about it now?

A I found out from this trial.

Q All right, tell us from whom you found that out.

A In general, I can not name the individual witnesses, but the general picture was that the food supply came from the OT, but only as far as raw food was concerned.

Q All right, now --

A (continued from last answer) With the exception of the bunker soup, which was dished out in general. The next witness said that the food was paid for by Dachau.

Q Now, Professor, your office, then, was responsible for at least supplying the raw food and this bunker soup for the prisoners, isn't that true?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Now, if it please the court, this gentleman has testified on the stand here and in his statements that he didn't know who furnished the food for the prisoners. He said that during the trial he found out who furnished the food for the prisoners. Now, we have to keep those things apart, I believe. You've got to ask him questions about what he knew before the trial and what he found out after the trial.

LAW MEMBER: Counsel will be permitted to frame his own question. You may offer such objections as you care to.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Well, if it please the court, counsel has asked him where he found out certain things, and he said he found out since the trial started. Certainly he can't be held responsible for the things he found out since he has been in jail here, for any knowledge of things he learned since the trial started. I think it should be separated.

PRESIDENT: Do you have an objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes, sir, I do, because I think the question should be framed in this manner: "When did you find out this information?"

LAW MEMBER: Counsel, the point is: Counsel may not want to ask him the question you framed. He has the right to frame his own question.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think for clarification of the court and the witness

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the objection is overruled.

PROSECUTION: Will the reporter please read the last question?

(Whereupon the question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Question: Now, Professor, your office, then, was responsible for at least supplying the raw food and this bunker soup for the prisoners, isn't that true?")

A That, I also have to answer with "No." The responsibility was the self-supporting main construction office Muehldorf.

Q Now, Professor, are you going to tell the court that your Group had absolutely nothing to do with the Oberbauleitung Muehldorf?

(GIESLER-Cross)

A I don't want to say that.

Q I want you to tell the court what the connection was between Group 6 and the Oberbauleitung at Muehldorf headed by Hoffmann, of which Griesinger was a member. And make it short.

A One can not make those things too short because one has to explain those matters.

Q Please make it short, Professor.

A When this group was originated the construction site Muehldorf and Anemone was in existence and started to get things under way.

Q Wait a minute. Let me interrupt you and ask you to list them for us 1, 2, 3, 4, what connection there was between your group and the Oberbauleitung headed by Hoffmann. Just a list of them.

A Gimpler had to turn over the requisitions which came from Berlin into actual material. That was wood, small steel parts, and the main content was cement.

Q Now, that is one item. Give us another item.

A The second connection between the Task Force and Muehldorf is shown here by the second line which states GB Construction. (Indicating wall chart.)

PRESIDENT: I wish you would tell the witness not to talk too long. If you can't interpret it and it is too long, the court isn't getting the evidence. Tell him to speak for a reasonable length of time so you can remember what he is testifying to and then translate it to the court.

(Whereupon the interpreter instructed the witness accordingly.)

A (Cont'd) In Berlin was the Office of the General Counsellor for Building Construction of Germany -- for Building Economy in Germany, and in Munich was a subordinated office to him. Berlin was the superior office and Munich was a subordinated office. This office was called plenipotentiary for the building economy, construction economy or building economy. This office was a connection with the construction and building operation office Gimpler. When this group was formed, this office of the plenipotentiary for building economics was included in Task Force Number 6. The task of this office was to see that no material would be wasted and that every bit of construction being carried on was legal -- has been authorized -- and that each construction site was made in a priority list from Berlin.

(SIEGLER-Cross)

Q Let me interrupt Professor. I asked you please to list the matters in which your office stood in connection with the Oberbauleitung. Please don't give us a history, just list them one, two, three, four.

A That was No. two. And otherwise there was no connection of the Task Force as a construction organization with the construction site of Muehldorf, because the sanitation department, and the front leader department, and the housing department came under the head of Berlin and they only had a representative from Berlin at Task Group No. 6.

Q So you are telling the court whatever Task Group 6 did independent of these few items which you named, they did it all independent of the Oberbauleitung at Muehldorf, isn't that true?

A I do not understand your question.

PRESIDENT: Frame the question in a little simpler form.

LAW MEMBER: And ask the subordinate question, not the preliminary question. Just ask a direct question.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you mean, Professor, that while your office stood in connection with Oberbauleitung with respect to some matters, with respect to the other matters with which they were charged they acted independently.

A No, the head construction office was entirely independent from the group.

Q So that you are telling the court now Professor that all Task Group 6 existed for was for the purpose of supplying items of wood, iron and cement for Muehldorf. Is that right?

A As far as Muehldorf construction is concerned, yes, because this was a special construction office. The way I understand it, if it is a general construction site and I am responsible for it, like the construction sites of Nuernberg, Bayreuth or Munich, then I will make the plans, I will make up the priority lists and I will take care of the building supplies.

Q So that Professor you are telling the court now that all you had to do with the Group, with respect to Muehldorf, is to supply materials. Is that right? Answer yes or no.

A I explained it very clearly by mentioning as far as the building sector is concerned.

Q Now outside of the building sector, what did the Group have to do?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am going to object to that as being repetitious. I have gone through it on direct and the prosecution is going through it on cross examination, he has asked four or five questions on this same thing.

PROSECUTION: I haven't had a direct answer from this man since he started to testify.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court the objection is overruled.

PROSECUTION: Will the reporter read the question please?

(Whereupon the reporter read the last question)

THE WITNESS: Had the message center up to the time that Muehldorf had its own teletype machine.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Next item?

A Medical department, but the medical department was fully organised from Berlin, down to the last OT doctor.

Q Next item?

A You could compare it with the--

PROSECUTION: The witness has answered the question, tell him to give me the next question.

LAW MEMBER: Let him translate it.

PRESIDENT: I want this last statement made by the witness translated.

THE INTERPRETER: It is organized the same way the medical department of the army was organized.

THE WITNESS: And this is only one-half of the question, I have to answer the entire question.

PROSECUTION: I want the court to direct this witness not to make comments but to answer the question simply and in a few words.

PRESIDENT: What does the witness want to say?

THE WITNESS: I would like to answer the question as fully stated.

PRESIDENT: He may proceed.

THE WITNESS: I did not have the authority to give orders or advice to the OT Task Group doctor, for instance I could not take this man out of his office nor could I put him into office, and the doctor was not responsible towards me he was only responsible towards the head physician of the OT Central office in Berlin.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Now I want you to answer this Professor. What did you have to do with the prison laborers at Muehldorf?

A If Nothing.

Q How about the Group?

A Nothing with the Group.

Q And yet when Muehldorf ran into trouble with its prisoner labor they came to you didn't they and they sent you up to Hitler to try to straighten it out.

(Diesler-cross)

A They came to Mr. Gimple and said since the OT Central office could not handle it any more they asked me to do a personal favor and go up in privacy.

Q But when they ran into trouble they went to Group 6 and not to Berlin, didn't they?

A They came to Berlin and since Berlin couldn't help them any more they tried to make headway via private personal contact and that was me.

Q They didn't come to you, they came to Gimple?

A They didn't come to me they came to Gimple and Gimple asked me personally to do that, and I at first denied his request.

Q Now one more question. Isn't that the reason you said in your statement Professor "I myself was contacted only when important conferences required my authority". That a conference with the Gauleiter considered the extent of the civil construction, isn't that the reason?

A I have to say that Muehldorf is not a civilian construction site; Muehldorf is a governmental construction which was ordered by the Fighter Staff and is of high military character.

Q Do you mean that the Gauleiter talked to you in your capacity as General Architecture Counselor or in your capacity as Leader of Group 6?

A The Gauleiter Paul Gimple spoke to me as a brother.

Q And when you said you were called into conference, was that call into conference you mean as a brother or in some official capacity?

A No, I have to explain something.

Q I don't want any explanation, just answer the question please.

A I'll answer the question the following way, that the civilian building sector questions came up which Gimple had to decide. If Gimple, because of his position, ran into difficulties with the construction sites between Wurzburg and Vienna he came to see me after he had made his decision and told me about his difficulties.

Q Do you mean that Gimple never came to you on a question involving Muehldorf?

A I can only tell you that in the month of August I only spent one day in Munich.

Q Now forget about August. I am talking about June 1944 to May 1945, did Gimple ever come to you with problems?

A Naturally.

Q What kind of problems did he come to you with, Professor?

A He came with the following problems: He said first, Professor, unfortunately I had to strike the following air raid bunker off from the list---

PROSECUTION: I am not interested in any particular bunker--

LAW MEMBER: Let him answer the question.

PROSECUTION: I am not interested in learning about his troubles or about the air raid bunker--

COL. TOMLINSON: Maybe the court is interested.

PRESIDENT: Let the witness answer the question and don't interrupt the witness until he has completed talking.

PROSECUTION: Will the reporter read the answer as given.

(Whereupon the reporter read the last answer)

THE WITNESS: Were stricken from the lists in Munich. I'll tell you the example now: Besides that I had to quit the construction of the medical bunker in Munich, besides that I had to strike the housing bunker in the Signal department in Munich because Muehldorf received the entire cement by order of Berlin. The Gauleiter treated me like a son-of-a-bitch on the telephone whom I asked him to help me. The Gauleiter said "while my air raid shelter and my protective service for the people are being taken off from the list in Munich, Mr. Hoffmann is building his personal protection in Ampfing. That is the moment I came into the picture and Gimple said "I can't make myself clear any more, I have not got the authority".

Q Do that again, Professor, when they ran into trouble they came to you?

A If Gimple got into difficulty with the Gauleiter I was never there, for instance Vienna, Linz, Munich, or any of the other cities, I had to help him out.

Q Can you tell the court whether Gimple knew the condition of the prisoners there in Muehldorf?

A That I don't know, but I don't think so.

Q Did Gimple ever go to the construction site?

A I think so, yes.

LAW MEMBER: Are you offering this in explanation of a paragraph of Exhibit P-15, or are you on a new subject?

PROSECUTION: This is a new subject.

Q How often did Gimple go to the construction site?

A This I can't answer, I don't know.

Q Was it more than once?

A I suppose he was there more than once, but I don't know.

Q Was it more than ten times?

A Impossible.

Q You mean that Gimple didn't go to the construction site at all except on rare occasions?

LAW MEMBER: What is the connection of the Gauleiter's visits to the construction site?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He has answered the question three times and I object to it being repetitious.

LAW MEMBER: I'll withdraw my statement.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am objecting to it as being repetitious. He has asked three questions right in a row and the man has answered he didn't know.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court the objection is sustained.

PROSECUTION: That is all.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I have just one question, Professor. Something was brought out on cross examination that I wish to clear up for the court. The prosecuter showed you a paper and you seemed to know something about it and the people mentioned in there. That letter was dated the 10th of November, 1942. I am going to ask you one question and I want you to answer "yes" or "no" so we wont take up the time of the court. On that date, on the 10th of November, 1942, were you the Plenipotentiary General for Labor Allocation? Answer yes or no.

A Never.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is all.

PRESIDENT: Court will take a recess for thirty minutes.

(Whereupon at 1015 hours court recessed)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Let the record show that all the members of the court are present; all the defendants, with the exception of Jergas, who is sick in the hospital, together with their regularly assigned defense counsel, are present; that the interpreter and reporter are in court; and that the Government is represented.

Will the interpreter make the usual announcement regarding witnesses in the courtroom and also remind the witness he is still under oath?

(Whereupon the interpreter did as requested.)

HERMANN GIESLER, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf, and being reminded that he was still under oath, continued to make the following sworn statement through an interpreter:

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

QUESTIONS BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Professor Giesler, what are your relations with Dr. Baumgartl? Are they pleasant and agreeable, or not?

A I only got to see him shortly, and I only spoke to him for a short time, all in all, three or four times.

Q You heard him testify to the effect that he had had conferences with you from four to six times?

A They were short and precise conferences which mainly dealt with the welfare of his fellow workers or the sheltering of the offices, or a difference which he may have had concerning a Nuernberg official office. Furthermore, he made a short report at a meeting or conference of the actual oberbauleiters, of the eight oberbauleiters of the OT task force. However, this conference was discontinued on account of a heavy air raid in Munich. This air raid forced me for an immediate departure to Munich. It was very late. The meeting took place outside of Munich in a small house.

Q I simply asked you, Professor, what your relations were with him. Were they pleasant and satisfactory?

A It was always pleasant and satisfactory.

Q He testified, I believe, that he had seen you out at the main construction site about 10 or 15 times. Did you hear that testimony?

A Yes.

Q Was that true or was it false?

A I never entered the main construction site at Muehldorf.

Q So that wasn't correct testimony?

A Therefore, this is not correct testimony by Dr. Baumgartl.

Q I believe you heard him also testify that in one of his conferences, he had told you that the conditions at Muehldorf were terrifying?

A I cannot recall that. He only could have said that during a conference with Mr. Gimple.

Q Do you recall him telling you that from 5 to 15 people were dying at Muehldorf daily?

A No. May I explain something further to that? If Dr. Baumgartl had looked me up in order to discuss questions with me concerning the OT, I would have called in immediately the person responsible for that or competent for that subject; in this case, Mr. Gimple.

Q You heard him also testify that he had made a second complaint to you covering approximately the same things that he had complained of previously, and that you promised to do something about it, is that correct or incorrect? This was in the autumn of 1944, is that correct?

A That is incorrect. I would like to explain that further.

Q You may amplify your answer.

A In the late fall of 1944, I met with Dr. Poschmann in Berlin. He told me that he had spoken to Gimple. Gimple had looked him up. Based upon discussions with Dr. Baumgartl, Dr. Poschmann, the chief doctor of the OT, explained to me that everything would be done in order to do away with possibly arising emergency conditions.

Q What was the date of that, Professor Giesler?

A As far as I can remember, it was about the middle of November.

Q What had been done between July and November with reference to the complaints made to you by Dr. Baumgartl?

A As far as I can see, according to my opinion, these complaints could only have been brought out in Berlin, based upon what I found out here during the course of the trial, in October.

Q Were you known as the head of Task Force 6 by your associates?

A All my fellow workers knew that Gimple was the man in charge of the task force, and that I only had the title "task force leader," in a representative manner.

Q You heard Dr. Baumgartl testify that he knew you as head of Task Force 6, did you not?

A Yes, this I heard.

Q You heard the testimony of Roehr, did you not, that he knew you as head of Task Force 6?

A Yes, I heard that, too.

Q Was the question of delousing installations ever taken up with you?

A No.

Q You never gave any instructions with reference to delousing plants?

A These instructions I gave very generally in Russia North sector, and also frequently at the beginning of the Munich group. Then I explained that all the questions of the medical doctors, or as far as the sanitary department was concerned, with respect to the construction matter as far as it concerned us -- that means all requests for dispensaries, hospitals or sanitary installations, also delousing installations and disinfecting installations -- in other words, all requests of the medical doctors are by all means to abide by.

Q Did you hear this testimony of Dr. Baumgartl with reference to the lack of facilities and supplies and hygiene at Muehldorf, "I went to him because Ciesler was the only one who had power to make a change?"

(GIE LER-Court)

PRESIDENT: What is the objection on the part of the defense?

DR. LEILING: The question was not correctly translated. I have the record before me here and it says, "with authority to make a change." That is what the president said.

QUESTIONS BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q Dr. Baumgartl was asked this question, "Before you go any further, will you please tell the court why you went to Giesler with that information? A Because I know that Professor Giesler was the only person who would have authority to make a change." Is that correct or not, or on what do you consider Dr. Baumgartl based that statement?

A I do not have an explanation for that, because he could have gone to Hoffmann with this request and Hoffmann had a direct connection to Berlin, the office where he got his orders from, and Poschmann had a direct connection to these doctors of the construction site.

Q Do you remember Dr. Baumgartl making this statement, "Giesler could have done a great deal"?

A Yes, he stated I could have requisitioned private drugstores or medical supplies or army medical supplies. Aside from the point that I could not do that, I did not have the authority to do that, I also know that private drugstores were completely exhausted and did not have anything any more.

Q You also heard him testify to the effect that the supply house at Schwindegg was for Muehldorf, did you not?

A Yes, but I did not know until the beginning of the trial that there was a medical supply depot in Schwindegg.

Q Did you know prisoners were dying out at Muehldorf?

A Once I heard about this through Poschmann, but not in such a meaning that the condition in Muehldorf was in such an awful form.

Q Did you ever hear of any laborers being sent in to Muehldorf?

A Not that either.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and resumed his seat in the dock.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked D-42 for identification.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I offer D-42 in evidence as being a statement by the accused Otto Sperling, made on the 6th of May, 1947, in which he explains certain statements which he made previously and in which he denies that certain statements were true, and giving the reason therefor, and request that it be attached to the record and made a part thereof.

CAPT. BACHMAN: If the court please, the prosecution objects to the admission of this exhibit by reason of the fact that this defendant is present here in court today and able to testify. There is no reason whatsoever for admitting a written statement except the inability of the court to obtain the testimony of the witness in person. We all recognize, of course, that a statement is not as good testimony as the testimony of a witness upon the stand for the reason that he cannot be cross examined, for the reason that the court cannot observe his demeanor in making such statement, etc. We all recognize in this court that statements are necessary because witnesses cannot be obtained at times, but when they can be obtained and are present, there is no reason whatsoever for admitting such a statement.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I would like to explain the situation on the part of the defense. As the court knows, we have various interests in this case and we have various lawyers representing these interests. I myself have an interest, of course, in all of the accused, and a certain few in particular. Dr. Leiling has the interest of this particular man who made the statement at heart. Dr. Engelhorn has to do with one of the men mentioned in this statement. If it please the court, I would like this man to take the stand. That is my own wish in the matter. I spoke to Dr. Leiling, and Dr. Leiling said, "This man will not take the stand." I cannot compel him to take the stand, and, as a matter of fact, neither can Dr. Leiling, even though Dr. Leiling doesn't want to make him take the stand. But it has nothing to do with the case and nothing to do with the accused himself. It has to do only with two other members of the accused, and it only explains previous statements made by him which have been put into evidence by the prosecution. Just one more thing. This statement was not taken by any member on the staff of the defense. It was taken by Mr. Horowitz.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to the objection of any member of the court, the objection is overruled and defense exhibit D-42 is admitted into evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Defense Exhibit 42 for identification was received in evidence as Defense Exhibit 42, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I would like to read the statement.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

(Whereupon D-42 was read by the defense counsel.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense rests.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution recalls in rebuttal Franz Egger, a U.S. Civilian, who has been examined in this case before.

FRANZ EGGER, called as a witness in rebuttal by the prosecution, being reminded that he was still under oath, testified as follows:

RE DIRECT EXAMINATION

(Whereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language.)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know the accused, Sperling?

A Yes.

Q Did you have occasion to examine him by way of a pretrial statement?

A Yes. I examined Sperling three times.

Q Did you ever beat him?

A No.

Q Did he ever tell you that anybody ever beat him in Dachau?

A He stated he was beaten but not in Dachau.

Q Did you say anything to him about beating?

A Yes.

Q What did you say to him?

A I told Sperling he was not to be afraid; he wouldn't be beaten in Dachau, and questioned him where he was beaten.

Q What did he tell you as to where he was beaten?

A He told me he was beaten in Feldafing by Jewish former prisoners, and later after his transfer from Feldafing to Garmisch he was beaten at Garmisch.

Q Did you have conversation with him with respect to Gickeleiter and Griesinger?

A Yes.

Q What did he say to you, and what did you say to him?

A I questioned Sperling as to from whom he received orders to beat prisoners, and Sperling answered, "Why don't they get Gickeleiter and Griesinger--these are the ones responsible while I am sitting here."

Q Did he give you the impression that he was afraid of you?

A No.

Q What was the relationship between you and Sperling?

A I had interrogated Sperling one time--I believe it was December '46, and I took the statement off of him. He denied all beatings by himself. Later on I confronted Sperling, and took the statement after the confrontation, and Sperling informed me he had been lying before, and upon that he told me "Why don't they get Gickeleiter and Griesinger--these are the ones who are responsible while I am sitting here".

Q Following that, what action did you take with respect to Gickeleiter and Griesinger?

A I went and checked back to see if Gickeleiter and Griesinger were wanted previously, and I found that both of them were listed in CROWCASS, and upon that Gickeleiter and Griesinger were arrested.

Q Did you ever tell Sperling that you were going to beat him?

A No.

Q Did he ever indicate to you that he was afraid of you?

A No, he was sitting like any other prisoner in my office.

Q Did you take a supplemental statement from him?

A Yes.

Q Did he make a statement about Gickeleiter and Griesinger in a supplemental statement as well as the one preceding this supplemental statement?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: You may examine.

(Egger-Direct, Redirect)

LAW MEMBER: Dr. Welch, cross examination on the part of all the accused.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q He said he had been beaten before, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And it is your understanding when he was being interrogated he had been beaten, but not at Dachau?

A No. He distinctly said he was not beaten when he was interrogated at Feldafing.

Q But he had been beaten?

A He had been beaten, Yes, afterwards.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is all.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN BACHMAN: The prosecution offers as its next witness Arno Van Der Milich.

LAW MEMBER: Is that rebuttal?

CAPTAIN BACHMAN: Yes, Sir.

ARNO VAN DER MILICH, called as a witness in rebuttal by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN BACHMAN:

Q State your name.

A Arno Van Der Milich.

Q Your age?

A 43 years of age.

Q Where are you now residing?

A I used to live in Munich, Daubenstrasse, Number 4.

Q What is your nationality?

A German nationality.

Q Where are you living at the present time?

A Now I am here in the camp.

Q In what capacity?

A As an internee.

Q Why are you interned here in camp?

A Because I am supposed to have beaten Jews.

Q And that was at Muehldorf?

A Yes, that was in Muehldorf.

Q How long were you at Muehldorf?

A Six and a half months I was in Muehldorf.

Q From when until when?

A From August until the end--the capitulation in Muehldorf.

Q August of what year?

A August '44.

Q At what camp were you?

A I was in Muehldorf, then I was in Sachsenhausen, and then in the end I was in Dachau.

Q The question was, in what camp of Muehldorf were you?

A From Dachau.

Q There were several lagers in Muehldorf, were there not?

A There was the old camp, and then there was the Forest Camp.

Q Which camp were you in?

A The old lager, afterwards for five days in the Forest Camp.

Q What were your duties in Muehldorf?

A My duties were the following, to watch or supervise all prisoners and all capos.

Q You were a capo yourself?

A Yes, I was the chief capo.

Q And you were known as a "green patch" prisoner?

A Yes.

Q That is, you were a criminal prisoner at Muehldorf?

A Yes.

Q Your duties as head capo consisted of what?

A Everything was supposed to be reported to me. I had to observe everything, and I was in charge of everything.

Q That was at the main construction site?

A Yes, at the main construction site.

Q About how many prisoners were under your direction?

A There were approximately 2,000 prisoners under my supervision.

Q About how many capos?

A 15 Germans and 60 Jewish capos.

Q In directing the work of these prisoners, who in turn worked under these other capos--what sort of work was being done at the main construction site?

A Mainly carrying of cement.

Q How was the cement brought into the main construction site?

A The cement was brought in these little small type wagons to the main construction site.

Q Where was it stored there?

A That was stored in large shacks or warehouses.

Q How nigh did these shacks or warehouses become?

A According to my estimation, these warehouses were 6 to 8 meters high.

Q How was the cement put up into these shacks or warehouses?

A The cement bags were stacked one on top of the other one, and a wooden board was leaned or placed against the cement bags, inclining sort of, and the prisoners had to walk up that wooden board.

Q And when they walked up this wooden board, they were carrying these cement bags, weren't they?

A Yes, they had to carry cement bags.

Q How far was this storage place from the cement machines?

A They were next to each other. Right here (indicating) was the warehouses, and right next to it was the mixer, and that was in one block only over there at the Forest Camp--that was different.

Q What do you mean, "that was different"?

A In the back there was a new silo being built, and the prisoners had to carry the stuff for about two floors.

Q How far was this silo from the machines?

A Here is the warehouse (indicating), and here is the silo (indicating), and there was a wooden board from the warehouse to the silo, and that wooden board was about 35 meters inclining.

Q Were people dying out there at the main construction site?

A According to my estimation, very many.

Q What were they dying from?

A From the heavy work and from the food--the little food that we got.

Q How many shifts were working out there at the main construction site?

A At first, one, afterwards, three.

Q Was there a time when there were two shifts?

A Yes, for a time, two shifts.

Q Can you tell us how long there was one shift, how long there were two shifts, and how long there were three shifts?

A Each shift was approximately 8 to 9 hours.

Q My question was this, what period of time were there two shifts, and what period of time were there three shifts?

A The shift in the morning was from 6 until 2, in the afternoon; then from 2 to 10; and then from 10 to 6 in the morning.

Q That was when there were three shifts. How many months did they work two shifts, and how many months did they work three shifts?

A That varied, depending on how much cement we had, but mostly we worked three shifts--that was in August, September, October, November, but not in December when it was very cold.

Q What about the condition of these prisoners who were working there at the main construction site in regard to clothing and shoes?

A That was very poor. I did not have shoes; I did not have stockings; I had nothing.

Q Did you see other prisoners there who did not have shoes?

A Yes, I saw that, too. We had to make special shoes in order to get some shoes for the prisoners, otherwise, their feet would have been frozen.

Q What about the conditions in regard to washing after doing this cement work?

A Very poor. There was no warm water there in the camp.

Q Do you know anything about a barber shop being set up at the main construction site?

A Yes. The barber shop was furnished or established by the former inmate, Herst, who was a Jewish prisoner--he was a clerk.

Q Could any prisoner go to the barber shop when he wanted to?

A When there was time, Yes, then they would get a piece of paper, and if they would be taken on, but usually they could not go in there because it was always full.

Q Whose permission did they have to get to go to the barber shop?

A From the capo.

Q Would the capo let them go when they were busy carrying cement?

A No. When cement was being carried no prisoner was allowed to go there.

Q Do you know the defendant Gickeleiter?

A Yes, I know him.

Q Is he in court?

A Yes, Gickeleiter is here. He is lying on a stretcher, on my left (indicating).

CAPT. BACHMAN: Let the record show that the witness properly identified the defendant Gickeleiter, No. 6.

Q Do you know the defendant Griesinger?

A Yes, I know Griesinger also. Griesinger has No. 9. He is sitting here on my left, a little off to my left (indicating).

CAPT. BACHMAN: Let the record show that the witness properly identified the defendant Griesinger, No. 9.

Q Was the defendant Gickeleiter at the main construction site?

A Yes.

Q What were his duties there?

A I believe his duties there were to rush the whole construction up into the air so they would get through.

Q How often did Gickeleiter talk to you?

A Two or three times a week, but there was one week when he was always there.

PROSECUTION: Didn't he say "einige Wochen"? Some weeks?

(Whereupon the interpreter, Weissglas, questioned the witness.)

THE WITNESS: It varied. Sometimes he was two or three days a week there and then there might have come a week when he was there every day.

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q What did he talk to you about?

A He spoke to me that the work didn't proceed fast enough. There is not enough here.

Q What answer did you give him about that?

A I gave him as an answer that I don't have the food. The food is bad, and the people are perishing in here.

Q What did he say to that?

A He shrugged his shoulders. Nothing else. This was his answer to me.

Q Do you know what action he took regarding his dissatisfaction with the work?

A No, he told me frequently that this had changed, I had to chase or push my capos more.

Q Did he tell you how you were to push the capos or what the capos were to do to achieve the results he wanted?

A I am of the opinion that he meant that we should sometimes really beat them. This is the opinion I had.

Q What about the defendant Griesinger, what were his duties at the main construction site?

A He was every day at the construction site.

Q For what purpose?

A Also so the construction could be rushed through.

Q Did he discuss that matter with you?

A No. No, he didn't talk about it. He only said, "Faster, faster, faster." But I couldn't any faster.

Q Did he say that to you?

A Yes, he said it to me, myself.

Q Did you say anything to him about why the work couldn't go any faster?

A I also told him that the reason for it was the bad food, the people are perishing, and in addition to that there was no warm water in camp, and that this was too much for the prisoners to work three shifts.

Q And what did he say about that?

A He also shrugged his shoulders. That was his answer.

Q Where were his offices?

A His office was in the back of the forest, about fifteen minutes away from us.

Q From where the factory was being built?

A Yes.

Q Did he spend most of his time in his office or over at the factory?

A When he was out with us, he stayed out there for about three or four hours and then he went back--maybe for breakfast or lunch--and in the afternoon he might have come back again.

(Van Der Milch--Direct)

Q How often did he come over to the main construction site?

A That varied. For instance, for one week he might have been out there for three or four days a week and then for another week he might have been out there all the time except when he went back to eat.

Q Was there much beating of the prisoners going on out at this main construction site?

A Yes, for instance, I can name you one of the best friends I have here. He is the man who is sitting over there (indicating) in the far corner, on the left to me, Mr. Sperling. He himself gave me several slaps across the face.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Let the record show the witness properly identified the defendant Sperling.

Q Do you know of other people who were beaten by Sperling?

A About other people I don't know so much except for one, two, or three different instances where prisoners came over to me and complained to me about Sperling, that they had been beaten by him.

Q Do you know of any other members of the OT who beat prisoners?

A I don't know them by name, but if they should be here I can point them out individually.

Q My question was: Do you know of other members of the OT who beat prisoners? Not by name, but whether it happened.

(Van Der Milch--Direct)

A Yes, that happened. This I have to answer in the affirmative.

Q How often would you say that happened?

A I'd like to say practically every two or three days, but I can also say practically every day.

Q Do you know of any capos who beat prisoners?

A Yes, we all were beating them. There were none among us who did not beat them.

Q Do you know of any Polensky and Zoellner personnel who beat prisoners?

A According to my opinion, all OT personnel were from Polensky and Zoellner.

Q These people that you speak of as OT people, were they wearing OT uniforms?

A Yes, all of them.

Q Were you ever present when the defendant Gickeleiter was there and saw prisoners beaten?

A That also I have to answer in the affirmative.

Q Were you ever there when prisoners were beaten and Griesinger was there and saw the prisoners beaten?

A Yes, I answer that in the affirmative too. I did it already.

Q Did any of these people who were beaten have to go to the hospital as a result of these beatings?

A Yes, that also I answer in the affirmative.

Q Did any of these people die, if you know?

A That I suppose that they did. I cannot tell you that with certainty.

(Van Der Milch--Direct)

Q Did you ever protest to the defendant Gickeleiter about these people who were dying from underfeeding and overwork?

A Yes, I also did that.

Q What did he say or do about it?

A That is not his affair; that is the matter of the camp.

Q Did you ever protest to the defendant Griesinger about these people who were dying from overwork and undernourishment?

A That protest I raised with him too and as answer I got a shrug of his shoulders. That is all he did.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess until 1330.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1200 hours.)

(Van Der Milch--Direct)

7 May 1947

AFTERNOON SESSION

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present; that all of the defendants, with the exception of Jergas, are in court together with their counsel; that the interpreter and the reporter are here; and that the prosecution is represented.

ARNO VAN DER MILICH, called as a witness in rebuttal by the prosecution, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

CAPT. BACHMAN: We had finished with this witness. He is your witness.

LAW MEMBER: Dr. Leiling, cross examination on behalf of -- ?

DR. LEILING: All the defendants.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. LEILING:

Q Mr. Milich, when were you born?

A On the 14th of February 1903 in Hamburg.

Q Where did you live most of your life before you got into a concentration camp?

A In Hamburg.

Q Didn't you say that you were living in Munich, Tauben Street Number 14?

A Yes, lately.

Q Can't you give me your exact address in Hamburg?

A I was living at my mother's home in Hamburg, Borgfeldebau Street Number 24.

Q You have never lived in Silesia?

A No.

(MILICH-Cross)

Q For how long a period of time have you lived in Munich?

A In Munich I was living from the 18th of May until the 19th of October, until I was arrested.

PRESIDENT: May 18th until October 19th when?

WITNESS ANNO VAN DER MILICH: May 1945 until October 1945.

Q You say you were arrested in October 1945. Where were you brought to?

A To Garmisch.

Q Since when have you been in Dachau?

A I am in Dachau since six weeks.

Q When were you interrogated for the first time in the case of Muehldorf?

A Eight days ago.

Q Whereabouts in Dachau have you been during the last six weeks?

A Here in the camp.

Q In the War Crimes cage?

A Yes.

Q What previous convictions were you convicted of before you came into a concentration camp?

A Because of theft.

Q Tell me all of your previous convictions.

A Do I have to? If I don't want to, I don't have to say that.

Q How do you know that you don't have to testify?

A I know it because I am familiar with American law.

Q Where did you learn about that?

A In the United States. I was in the United States for four years and I am a ship's engineer from 1926 until 1930.

Q When did you live in Hamburg?

(MILICH-Cross)

A When I was young and when I was learning and when I worked there as a stoker and as an engineer.

Q Where did you live since 1930?

A Starting in 1930 I lived in Hamburg again.

Q What did you have to do with American courts?

A I had nothing to do with courts themselves in the States. I just know from my boys if they were locked up for maybe two weeks or three weeks sometimes because of violations of shipping laws.

Q Why did you as a criminal become head capo?

A Why? I think because I was a good worker. Otherwise I would never have become head capo. There were many people who were against it.

Q Did you work that well?

A I think, yes.

Q What type of work did you do?

A My work consisted of machine work and tunnel construction.

Q As head capo you had nothing to do with machine work, you were to watch over the people?

A I had everything under my supervision whatever there was.

Q You would like to say that the head capo is a position of trust?

A Yes.

Q Were you qualified to this position of trust because of your previous convictions?

A I don't think so.

Q As a head capo, didn't you have to watch over the Jewish prisoners especially?

A Why do you just pick on the Jewish ones. I had all prisoners under me, also the Germans.

(MILICH-Cross)

Q How was the relationship there? How many Jews and how many Germans?

A There were 1800 to 2000 prisoners on that construction site.

Q I didn't ask you that. I asked you how many people of Jewish faith were there and how many Germans were there.

A There were 15 German capos there and 60 capos of Jewish faith.

Q I am not talking about capos. I am talking about the workers, the ones you supervised. How many workers of Jewish faith were there and how many other ones?

A There were 2000 Jews working there and 15 German capos.

Q You understand why I am talking about the people of Jewish faith, because they were the ones who represented the majority there?

A Yes, that's right.

Q Those people were put under your custody as head capo, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And you had to take care of those people, didn't you?

A Yes.

Q Would you say that it is a very good way to care for people if you beat them?

A I don't quite understand the way you mean that.

Q You understand me very well.

A No, I don't.

Q Because you yourself know that in direct examination you said you beat the prisoners.

A Naturally, we all had to beat.

Q Isn't it a fact that you were one of the main beaters in Muehldorf?

(WILICH-Cross)

A No.

Q Isn't it a fact that people of Jewish faith beat you afterwards because you had bothered them so much?

A No. I would like to have proof of that.

Q You would like to say that you were never beat by Jewish people at all at Altotting?

A No.

Q How much did you get to eat as a head capo?

A Just the same as the rest of the prisoners did.

Q Isn't it right that the capos received three times as much?

A No.

Q You testified before that a prisoner fixed up a barber shop at the construction site?

A Yes.

Q How was that possible?

A How that is possible? Because all the prisoners could not be shaved in the camp.

Q You don't answer my question. I would like to know how it is possible how a prisoner out of his own will opens a barber shop on the construction site?

A Because he asked the camp headquarters for it -- for permission.

Q Were you there when he asked for permission?

A No.

Q How do you know?

A From him himself.

Q You also talked about a shoe shop. Where was that shoe shop?

A That was on the main construction site. We got that with the permission of Mr. Griesinger because the people did not have any decent shoes on the main construction site.

Q How many prisoners did you say worked on one shift?

A In one shift, including the old and the wood camp, I would say approximately 500 people.

Q In direct examination you made testimony about the carrying of cement. Do you know anything about carrying cement?

A Yes.

Q How high was the cement piled up?

A Sometimes 5 meters, sometimes 6 meters, sometimes 4 meters, depending on how much cement was delivered.

Q How big was this room?

A This room I would figure to be 3½ meters high.

Q You say that concrete was piled higher than this room?

A Yes.

Q You don't know that you can only pile cement a certain height because if you pile it over that height the cement on the bottom will spoil?

A There was a base underneath there — a foundation.

Q I am talking about the sacks below.

A It wouldn't bother the cement any whether the bags would break or not. The loose cement would be carted anyway.

Q I didn't say the bags would break, but the cement as a whole would spoil.

A No.

Q You were talking about a cement silo?

A Yes.

Q You said that from the cement silo cement was also carried?

(MILICH-Cross)

A Yes.

Q Have you ever been in a cement silo yourself?

A Yes.

Q How high was the cement piled in this silo?

A Do you mean where we carried it or where it was stored?

Q Where it was stored.

A It was stored — piled approximately 4 meters.

Q In bags?

A Yes.

Q How was the cement brought into the silo?

A It was carried there.

Q I am not talking about the outside, the inside.

A With lorries.

PRESIDENT: It was what?

WITNESS ARNO VAN DER MILICH: It was brought in there with lorries.

Q In small cars or large cars?

A Large cars.

Q DR. LEILING: I would like at this time to ask for a ruling of the court whether this witness is entitled to keep back any information as to his previous convictions.

PROSECUTION: I didn't understand that.

DR. LEILING: I ask for a ruling of the court to the point whether this man is entitled to keep back certain information as to his previous convictions.

CAPT BACHMAN: If it please the court, we realize the witness must answer all questions and should be so instructed, but we also would like to ask the court that the witness be instructed that he need not make any statements which might tend to degrade or incriminate himself. His case is pending and he should not be required to testify to anything which might be held against him. We admit that he was a habitual criminal and was hired for that purpose, and I think that is the answer to Dr. Leiling's question, and I think he should be instructed as to that.

PRESIDENT: Order in the court.

DR. LEILING: As far as that is concerned, I think he has degraded himself by admitting that he beat prisoners, which is a crime already, and I think it is very important to know what his previous convictions are -- that it is very important to know what he did before -- especially a man of his credibility.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, on the provisions of Section 270, subparagraph f, the witness will not be required to give answer to questions that will incriminate him, and in view of the fact that the witness himself has claimed the privilege, the court holds the testimony with reference to previous convictions would tend to incriminate him.

PRESIDENT: Are there questions by the prosecution?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, I have just a couple of questions regarding the firms and the CT.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Cont'd)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q How long were you at Muehldorf? From when until when?

A I was in Muehldorf from August until the end.

Q All right, now, you were in Muehldorf from August until the end. Isn't it true that you were in Dachau between August 1944 and May of 1945?

(MILICH-Cross)

A No.

Q Well, when were you in Dachau?

A I came to Dachau September 1944.

INTERPRETER WALKER: I think he misunderstood your question. I am not quite sure.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I don't think he did.

INTERPRETER WALKER: He contradicted himself.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I realize what he did. Just translate what he says.

A (Cont'd) I think I got there in August. I don't know.

Q All right. You got there in August of what year?

A August 1944. It was the beginning of August.

Q All right. And you stayed in Dachau until when?

A I was in Dachau two weeks. Two to three weeks.

Q And was it still August when you left here?

A Yes, it was still August.

Q And then you went directly to Muehldorf, is that it?

A Yes, from here I went directly to Muehldorf.

Q I believe you testified on direct examination that you yourself had no shoes and no socks, you had nothing, is that correct?

A No, I had nothing. Very little.

Q You want the court to believe you were a head capo over all the capos and over all the prisoners, isn't that true?

A Yes.

Q At the time that you had no shoes and no socks did all the capos and all the prisoners below you also have no shoes and no socks?

A They were in the same shape. They had nothing. I got a pair of shoes and they were completely ruined already.

Q But you want the court to believe you had no shoes and no socks and yet you were head capo?

A Yes, that's right. That, I would like to state.

Q All right. Now, you beat the prisoners, didn't you?

A Yes.

Q How often did you beat prisoners?

A I admit two or three times a week.

DR. ENGELHORN: Cross examination by Dr. Engelhorn on behalf of the accused Griesinger.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. ENGELHORN:

Q Mr. Milich, where did you live before you came to the concentration camp?

A In Hamburg.

Q And what was the real reason that you came into a concentration camp?

A We were removed from the street.

Q Who removed you from the street?

A The Gestapo.

Q Was there any reason why you were removed?

A Maybe because I had too many previous convictions.

DR. ENGELHORN: Thank you. That is all.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

(MILICH-Cross)

CAPT. BACHMAN: I hand the reporter this document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit No. 87 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Exhibit P-87 for identification)

If the court please, prosecution offers into evidence at this time a paper which has been marked for the purpose of identification as Exhibit P-87, which consists of a letter written by Dr. Baumgartel on the 21st of September 1944.

LAW MEMBER: Is this given in the rebuttal of evidence offered by the defense?

CAPT. BACHMAN: It is. This is evidence of the witness, I don't remember his name, the doctor of the OT from Berlin who testified that the OT had no responsibility for medical supplies.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I think that agrees with this letter. He says that the OT did give medical supplies later on and I am going to object to the letter at this time. This man was here, he was a witness before the court. Why weren't these matters brought out at that time.

CAPT. BACHMAN: We didn't have that letter then. It shows the agreement in good faith, the OT did supply them in September, 1944.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: This man was here on the stand and he testified. I see no reason why we need this now. If the court please, we don't know anything about the signature, or about the letter itself.

CAPT. BACHMAN: We can put someone on to identify that signature. The letter has been in the possession of the CIC, and we just obtained possession of the letter.

LAW MEMBER: Is the original signed.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is not the original, that is the carbon copy.

CAPT. BACHMAN: The German copy is signed.

LAW MEMBER: Is this an original impression of the letter?

CAPT. BACHMAN: I presume not, Sir. Not according to the content; the original went to Berlin.

LAW MEMBER: I don't believe you understood my question. Is this an original carbon copy of the original letter?

CAPT. BACHMAN: Yes sir.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: There is nothing to show that. The original could have been made a week ago and destroyed and this a carbon copy of that original.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court Exhibit P-87 is admitted into evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Exhibit P-87 for identification is received in evidence as Exhibit P-87, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record)

CAPT. BACHMAN: With the permission of the court I should like to read a part of Exhibit P-87 to the court at this time.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

(Whereupon Capt. Bachman read a part of Exhibit P-87, which was statement by Dr. Baumgartel)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers as its last rebuttal witness Rennewolf.

RENNEWOLF, called as a witness in rebuttal by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Tell the court between what dates you were a prisoner at Muehldorf.

A From the 15th of August 1944 until the 2nd of May 1945.

PRESIDENT: Tell the witness to speak out so the accused can hear him.

(Whereupon the interpreter did as directed)

Q What was your job at Muehldorf?

A From the 3rd day after I got there I worked in the S3 office.

Q At what?

A As a clerk.

Q Now did you know a man by the name of Jergas?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever see him beat anybody?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I am going to object as this isn't rebuttal testimony. I don't think we ever put anything on about Jergas.

PROSECUTION: If it wasn't I want to withdraw the question. My impression was that there had been some testimony about Jergas.

LT. HUGHES: There was no witness put on for the defendant Jergas.

PRESIDENT: What was the purpose of bringing this witness in, to rebutt what witness?

PROSECUTION: The defense witness who had testified against Jergas, so I will withdraw with Jergas and continue with another witness which was brought in by the defense.

LAW MEMBER: You stand corrected as to Jergas?

PROSECUTION: Yes Sir, I stand corrected.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know a man by the name of Spaeth?

A Yes.

LT. HUGHES: I don't recall any testimony on him.

PROSECUTION: One of your witnesses testified. I have just one point I am covering.

LT. HUGHES: I stand corrected.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know what Spaeth's job was in the camp?

A Spaeth was the Assistant Camp Commander in Camp M-I.

Q Were you in Camp M-I?

A No, I was in the Weed Camp but I knew Spaeth through correspondence and telephone calls.

Q Do you know Engelhart?

A Yes, Engelhart was the Adjutant to SS Major Langleist.

Q How do you know that?

A I have seen copies of the original from Camp M-I where First Sgt. Engelhart was carried as the Adjutant of SS Major Langleist.

Q Will you give us a closer description of what you saw?

A About Engelhart?

Q About Engelhart. Yes, what kind of correspondence was it?

A There were commitment reports which were sent every two weeks to the main camps at Dachau, and in those rosters Engelhart was always carried as a member of the Headquarter staff and as Adjutant to SS Major Langleist.

Q Do you knew a man by the name of Bayha?

A Yes.

Q If you see him in the courtroom, point him out.

A Right here (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified Bayha, No. 8.

Q Did you ever see Bayha beat anybody?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court about it, fixing the time and the place.

A I watched from my window in my office and I could see very well and I saw that he had beaten prisoners several times in the Holzinger detail.

I also saw Bayha when he was duty sergeant that he had beaten prisoners when the prisoners went in or left the camp.

Q What did he beat them with?

A Either he beat them by hand, or, when he was at the Holzinger detail, he beat them sometimes with branches.

PROSECUTION: That is all. You may examine.

LT. HUGHES: Lt. Hughes cross examination on behalf of the SS.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY LT. HUGHES:

Q Did you ever see any Orders from Camp M-I signed by Engelhardt?

A Yes.

Q And how was this signed?

A That was printed by machine saying "Adjutant of the SS, Major SS".

Q Are you positive, Wolf, that these papers that you saw were nothing more than correspondence between the camps?

A I saw that they were addressed to Camp M, that they were either orders or some kind of rules.

Q Do you know a man named Ostermann?

A Yes.

Q You got along pretty well with Ostermann, didn't you?

PROSECUTION: I object to that now, Sir. That wasn't brought out on direct examination, and this is rebuttal.

LT. HUGHES: That is all.

PRESIDENT: Witness will be excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution closes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I think we have two witnesses for Surrebuttal, but they are Dr. Leiling's witnesses and I will go out and see what happened to them.

LT. HUGHES: I hand the reporter this document and request that it be marked Defense Exhibit No. 43, for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Exhibit D-43 for identification)

If the court please, at this time in Surrebuttal, I would like to read into the record an interrogation which took place in Landsberg by Major Beysen of the Counsel Section at Dachau. I would like to read this in because this witness is not available, and with the permission of the court I would like to read it at this time. It is an interrogation of a man by the name of Fritz Degelow.

LAW MEMBER: Is it a marked exhibit?

LT. HUGHES: This is Exhibit D-43, marked for identification.

LAW MEMBER: What is the date of it, please?

LT. HUGHES: I May 1947.

LAW MEMBER: Is the prisoner incarcerated there?

LT. HUGHES: Yes Sir, he is a former SS 2nd Lieutenant.

LAW MEMBER: Do you offer this in evidence?

LT. HUGHES: Yes Sir, I do.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court Exhibit D-43 is admitted into evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Exhibit D-43 for identification is received in evidence as Exhibit D-43, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record)

LT. HUGHES: With the court's permission I would like to read it at this time.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

(Whereupon Lt. Hughes read Exhibit D-43, statement of Fritz Degelow)

(Exhibit D-43)

DR. LEILING: The defense calls as its next witness Maria Lechner.

MARIA LECHNER, called as a witness in surrebuttal by the defense, after being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. LEILING:

Q Give us your name.

A Maria Lechner.

Q Your age?

A Thirty-two years of age.

Q Profession?

A A cook.

Q Did you work in Muehldorf between June 1944 and April 1945?

A Yes.

Q In what position?

A As a cook.

Q Where?

A For the firm of Polensky and Zoellner.

Q Where?

A In Mettenheim.

Q Who did you cook for?

A For the people who worked in the office.

Q Did concentration camp prisoners work with you in that kitchen?

A Yes.

Q How many?

A Four Jewish women and four French women.

Q What ration did these people receive?

A The general rations.

Q What do you mean by "general ration"?

CAPT. BACHMAN: If the court please, I don't know where this comes in on surrebuttal. If the defense is reopening their case to put in more evidence so we can cross examine on that theory, that is a different matter.

LAW MEMBER: It is evidently preliminary to surrebuttal, but get to it as soon as possible.

QUESTIONS BY DR. LEILING:

Q In other words you say they received the same food the Germans did?

A Yes.

Q Who ordered that?

A Mr. Gickeleiter.

Q Did Mr. Gickeleiter give any other orders concerning the food?

A No.

Q Did he give you any orders about the food which was left over in your place?

A Yes, whatever is left over in food and bread we should give to the Jewish prisoners.

Q Did you do that?

A Yes.

Q How about the air raid shelter? Did Mr. Gickeleiter give any orders for the prisoners as far as they were concerned?

A Mr. Gickeleiter said that anybody can go into the air raid bunker, Jewish, foreigners, or Germans, there was no difference, but the people who were really in charge of the bunker, they threw them out.

Q What did Mr. Gickeleiter do them?

A He said everybody can go into the bunker, either Germans, foreigners, Jews, there was no difference.

Q Did you know the prisoner, Dr. Scabades?

A Yes, I know him.

Q Did he speak to you about Gickeleiter once?

A Yes.

Q What did he say?

CAPT. BACHMAN: If it please the court, I want to object as not being proper examination on surrebuttal. No statement went in for direct evidence for the prosecution about Dr. Scabades. If the defense is reopening their case and presenting this, we should like to know for cross examination.

LAW MEMBER: What are you bringing out?

DR. LEILING: I think during the rebuttal, the prosecution brought in new evidence as to the attitude of Mr. Gickeleiter towards the concentration camp inmates, and I want to show through this witness what his real attitude was.

CAPT. BACHMAN: I fail to see how a conversation by Scabados can do this.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: Dr. Scabados said that he had treated Mr. Gickeleiter's children already on the construction site.

QUESTIONS BY DR. LEILING:

Q Did he say how Gickeleiter treated the prisoners?

A He said good, very well.

DR. LEILING: No further questions.

PRESIDENT: Court will take a recess for fifteen minutes.

(Whereupon at 1430 hours court recessed)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1445 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present; that all the defendants with the exception of Jergas, together with their counsel, the reporter and the interpreter are here; and that the Government is represented.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Let the record show that after the recess all the members of the court are present; all the defendants, with the exception of the defendant Jergas, who is in the hospital, are present, together with their regularly assigned counsel, with the exception of Dr. Welsh, who is absent on business of the defense; the interpreter and the reporter are both in court; and the Government is represented.

Will the interpreter make the usual announcement regarding witnesses in the courtroom and remind the witness she is still under oath?

(Whereupon the interpreter did as requested.)

DR. LEILING: I just want to state to the court that I did not keep this witness from the stand. I didn't even talk to her. She had gone outside and I didn't know where she was.

MARIA LECHNER, called as a witness by the defense in surrebuttal, being reminded that she was still under oath, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q By whom are you employed now?

A I am working in the hospital of Muehldorf.

Q But during 1944 and 1945 you were employed by Polensky & Zoellner, is that right?

(LECHNER-Cross)

A Yes.

Q This cooking that you were doing was for whom?

A For the employees of the office of Palensky & Zoellner.

Q Your kitchen didn't feed prisoners, did it?

A No, only for ——

INTERPRETER WALKER: Sir, I don't know how to translate it. She uses a term which is a very degrading term for Jewish women. There is no English equivalent for it.

DR. LEILING: I don't think so. This is a common woman, and she uses the term ——

LAW MEMBER: Can you agree that she means Jewish women?

CAPT. BACHMAN: We agree that she means Jewish women, but I think we should also agree that the term which was used was a term of degradation towards Jewish woman. I tink the record should so show.

LAW MEMBER: Ask her the question again.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Will you read the last question?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the court reporter.)

THE WITNESS: No prisoners.

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q So that your testimony only related to the eight prisoners who worked in the kitchen, is that correct?

A Yes, they were working there.

Q Will you tell us again who those women were that worked in the kitchen?

A They were four Jewish women from Hungary and four from France.

Q In speaking of those women in your direct testimony, what word did you use to describe them?

PRESIDENT: I understand from the translation she used the same expression that she used in the direct.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Sir, I understand she used a much worse word than she used towards them, and I would like to have the word in the record.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Will you read the question, please?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q In speaking of those women in your direct testimony, what word did you use to describe them?")

THE WITNESS: We fed them the same way as the other ones.

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q Will you tell us what word you used to describe those Jewish women?

A What do you mean?

Q Didn't you use the word "Judenweiber"?

A I said Jewish women.

Q Did you or did you not use the word "Judenweiber"?

A No.

CAPT. BACHMAN: That is all.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense rests.

CAPT. BACHMAN: I would like to have the interpreter sworn, sir, and placed on the stand.

LAW MEMBER: Do you offer surrebuttal of surrebuttal?

CAPT. BACHMAN: Yes, sir. If the court please, I should like to explain my reason for doing this. In her direct testimony, this last witness used a particularly degrading term regarding Jewish women, which she then denied having used. In two questions, I can have this interpreter tell the court the word she used and what it means.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

CAPT. BACHMAN: Thank yousir. Please step forward, Mr. Walker, and be sworn.

HOWARD H. WALKER, called as a witness in rebuttal by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

(Whereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language)

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. BACHMAN:

Q Will you state your name?

A Howard H. Hallmer.

Q Your residence?

A Dachau, 7708 War Crimes Group.

Q What is your occupation?

A Court interpreter.

Q For what court?

A For the Kuehldorf trial.

Q Are you one of the interpreters in the case of the United States against Franz Auer, et al?

A Yes, sir.

Q Did you interpret the testimony of Maria Lechner, one of the witnesses herein?

A Yes, sir.

Q On direct examination of that witness, was she asked a question regarding the prisoners who were employed in her kitchen?

A Yes, sir.

Q In her answer regarding the Jewish women who were so employed, what word did she use to describe the Jewish women?

A Do you want me to state the German word, sir?

Q Yes.

A She stated the word "Judenweiber."

Q How did you translate that word to the court?

A I didn't, sir, because I am not familiar with such terms, and when I asked her to explain what it was, she said Jewish women.

Q Will you tell the court what the meaning of Judenweiber is?

A The best translation would be "Jewish bitches."

Tr 197-po-Muehlbert-5/7-5

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You say you are not familiar with that word?

A It is a word which I am not used to using, no.

Q The question is, are you or aren't you familiar with the word?

A Well, I am not quite accustomed to translate that type of word,

Q Then you really don't know how to translate it, do you?

A I do, sir.

Q In spite of the fact that you are not familiar with the word, you do know how to translate it?

A Yes.

Q You have been translating off and on in this court ever since the trial started, haven't you?

A Yes, sir.

Q And many times you have not understood the witnesses correctly, isn't that true?

A That is correct.

Q And several times you have made mistakes in translations, haven't you?

A That is up to the court, to the check interpreter to determine.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, I would like a direction from the court that the witness answer the question.

PRESIDENT: Read the question and have the witness answer it.

(Whereupon the last question was read by the court reporter.)

THE WITNESS: That may be.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you know whether you have made mistakes or not?

A I suppose so.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is all.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution rests with all exhibits and records.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I thought we were finished with that witness, but Dr. Leiling has a few questions he would like to ask.

PRESIDENT: I wish you would indicate to the court when you are through with this witness, or if you want the witness recalled. It will assist in avoiding delay in the court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I don't speak German at all, but Dr. Leiling told me something that I thought perhaps he could bring out before the court, but I won't insist.

PRESIDENT: Dr. Leiling will be permitted by the court to make an explanation, if he desires, of that word to the court.

DR. LEILING: I think this word caused a misunderstanding unduly, because this witness is a common woman. She normally speaks Bavarian dialect, and in Bavarian dialect they never use the word "fraulein." They talk about weiber as for all females, and she tried to speak high language, which for her is, so to speak, a jacket into which she doesn't properly fit, and that is why at first — I didn't hear it myself — but she might have first said "weiber" and afterwards corrected herself to "fraulein." I don't think that should be held against that woman.

PRESIDENT: Do you waive translation of your explanation?

DR. LEILING: Yes, I will waive it.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense rests.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution rests.

PRESIDENT: The court doesn't desire any witness called or recalled. Does the prosecution desire to open its argument?

PROSECUTION: The prosecution wishes to make a closing statement. I would like to state, however, that it is already ten minutes after three, and since we won't finish today with closing arguments, I suggest, if it please the court, that all closing arguments proceed at 9 o'clock Monday morning, and that will enable us, perhaps, to be finished with all closing arguments by noon.

PRESIDENT: Does the counsel for the defense concur in those statements?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Counsel for the defense does concur in those remarks.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1510 hours.)

Closing Arguments 1476

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours, 12 May 1947.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present, with the exception of Colonel Dickey, who is ill and in the hospital, and is excused VOCO; that all the defendants are in court together with their counsel; that the reporter and interpreter are here, and that the Government is represented. The prosecution asks the permission of the court to withdraw these prosecution exhibits, which are charts and which are numbered Prosecution Exhibits 5, 6, 7, 16, 19, 20, and 39. It asks to withdraw them and substitute photographs thereof for them.

PRESIDENT: The request is approved by the court. The prosecution may open its argument.

PROSECUTION: On the stipulation with the attorney for the defense, arguments will not be translated, but will be taken by the reporter, if it is agreeable with the court and translated to the defendants at some future date.

PRESIDENT: Let the record so indicate.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, these accused stand charged for participating in the common design to encourage, aid, and abet in the participation in the operation of a concentration camp; that in the operation of that camp persons who were non-Germans, persons who came from almost every country of eastern Europe, also including France, were subjected to cruel inhumanities and starvation. This crime is made punishable under the rules relating to land warfare which imposes upon a victorious power the duty of preserving the lives of persons who are inhabitants and citizens of vanquished countries. The duties imposed upon such power that comes in as a victorious force impose a duty upon that power to take steps to preserve the lives, the property of persons residing in the varquished country. The rules of land warfare make it a crime not to discharge that duty toward the citizens of such a conquered country, and in pursuance of the rules of land warfare these defendants stand charged here by reason of their having participated in the violation of the rules of land warfare and by reason of their participation in a crime, violation of those statutes, deaths resulted.

The purpose of Concentration Camp Muehldorf was the working of prisoners. It conformed at this Camp Muehldorf to the general policy of the Reich to exterminate various classes of people in Europe, but it was also a policy of the Reich insofar as Concentration Camp Muehldorf was concerned to extract from persons who were destined for extermination the last ounce of work that was left in them. When they could no longer work, the general idea was to get rid of them by a gas chamber. Most of the persons who came to Camp Muehldorf never got as far as the gas chamber—they died before it was necessary to gas them.

The starvation, beatings, the inhumanities to which these people were subjected was described here, and there is very little that I can add to this description. I believe, if it please the court, that these charts which the prosecution has prepared tell the story, and I want to point out now, if it please the court, that these charts represent figures which are not ours. These figures which are represented here were not dreamed up by the prosecution, but were taken from figures and records which these defendants kept themselves in the orderly course of conduct of Concentration Camp Muehldorf. Captain Braaf, a United States Army officer, when he worked over these figures, had no reason to lie. There was no possibility of lying, if it please the court, because the figures from which these figures came are in evidence in this courtroom. When Captain Braaf found the card index, he took 500 of them at random, as he says, an this chart was the result, "Age at Death of Camp Kuehldorf Prisoners", and this one here, "Life Expectancy at Kuehldorf", and the reason that 467 was represented and not 500 was that 33 of those cards did not indicate the age at death, but insofar as the other 467 are concerned, this chart is accurate, based on figures, not on Dr. Braaf's figures, but rather on the figures that were kept by these defendants themselves. Insofar as this chart here is concerned, "How Prisoners Left Kuehldorf", the figures which were attached to the Bruck exhibit peculiarly enough were borne out almost within a figure of 10 or 20 by the records which were found at UNRRA, and which they gave us. Those records which we found at UNRRA were not in the possession of Dr. Braaf, were not in the possession of Bruck at the time that this chart was made. The fact of the matter is that when we found those records after this chart was made, we checked them, and we found that those records bore out Dr. Braaf's figures within a figure of 10 or 20. The court found that as names were mentioned during this trial, we were able to go to the records that UNRRA had furnished us and invariably we found the name or names mentioned by the witness stated in UNRRA's records, and those UNRRA records were made independent of the records furnished by Dr. Braaf and by Bruck, and both of them checked. Those records are accurate, and so are these figures accurate, and the end story of the whole thing is that 8300 people passed through Kuehldorf, 3934 of them died in nine and a half months, an average of 47 percent. That is a pretty good average--47 percent--even for this precious "Thousand-Year" Reich.

May it please the court, Kuehldorf was a product of the third Reich. It was an expression of the policy that underlay it. It was an expression of that policy, if it please the court, to take and exterminate politically unwanted people, and to that end Kuehldorf came into existence.

Now, the crime does not involve German people, the crime with which these defendants are charged, if it please the court, is the extermination of people other than Germans, vanquished people, conquered people, people to whom these defendants and their government owed a duty, and what was that duty--to preserve their lives and to preserve their property, and the contravention of those rules of land warfare which our Government, their government, almost every government in Europe laid down. Instead of preserving their lives, they went out of their way to exterminate, to kill, and that is the crime with which these people are charged, and these defendants were the willing instruments of that policy of the German Reich, of their own government. Each of these defendants had a motive; each had a reason for his whole-hearted participation in this crime--Giesler's reason, well, a passion for ever greater honors at the hands of his chief; Dickeleiter a blind, a passionate, a germanic loyalty to the firm with which he worked, combined perhaps with the hope of gain, the . an uncontrollable overpowering sadism; Griesinger a get-the-job-done co plex, the job's the thing, and life is cheap, get the job done no matter what the cost in human life; and Flocken a perverse, a sadistic desire to see nude men helpless before her, or in the satisfying thrill of marking them for death.

The pattern among the three principal groups was simple. The SS guarded prisoners; the OT fed, housed, supplied medical aid, and protected the interests of the Reich and Polensky and Zoellner, directed the work, directed the prisoners in their work while they were on the construction site while they were working. Dickeleiter's statement bears that out. Dickeleiter said:

"Q Who actually performed the labor?

A Germans, Italians, Russians and concentration camp prisoners.

Q And the employees of Polensky and Zoellner supervised the direction of the work you just named?

A Yes."

Bachmann said:

"Q Who directed the laborers in their work?

A Polensky and Zoellner.

Q In other words, Polensky and Zoellner had control of the direction of the workers during the hours of work, is that correct?

A During the time of work in the construction site, Yes."

And Bachmann continues:

"Q These capos were professional criminals who were put in as foremen over the prisoners, is that correct?

A I don't know, sometimes the capos knew something about the work and that was the reason they were made capos.

Q And they saw to it that the work as directed by Polensky and Zoellner foremen was carried out, isn't that right?

A Yes, the OT personnel could give orders at any time, but most of the time, we had the say."

And in the middle stood the prisoners--against Polensky and Zoellner, the ..., and the OT--friendless, alone, starving, beaten, and dying. And food--there was hardly a witness who took the stand who didn't describe how the prisoners looked--undernourished, thin, and weak. They themselves could see that. Every one of the defendants has said at one time or another that those prisoners looked bad, looked weak and starved, and the responsibility of supplying the food was the OT's. Listen to Spaeth's statement, Spaeth, sitting over there, who was responsible for the requisitioning of the food from the OT:

"Q Did you request the rations from the OT?

A Yes, on the basis of strength reports that were made out by the camp clerk."

And let's not forget Spaeth's statement regarding fuel:

"Q Billeting--did you have to requisition the straw, the few tents, and the blankets?

A Yes, from the OT."

And housing—that rested on the OT, too. You heard their own witnesses come in, men who worked for the OT and built those huts that they lived in; and when they built those underground huts, they didn't even put beds in those huts but let the prisoners sleep on the ground, and nothing between the prisoners and the earth but a little damp straw that was lousy and walking away with lice. And clothing? Wooden shoes that created sore feet. Medicine—well, everyone tries to shirk that one, and while the OT and SS fought around as to who was going to supply the medicine, the prisoners were dying for want of medicine, and finally in September 1944 an agreement was made—an agreement through the effort of Dr. Baumgartl. I would like to read part of that statement of Dr. Baumgartl, if I may. It was dated September 21, 1944. It is on the stationery of the Organisation Todt, Task Group VI, and I would like to point out to the court that this isn't from Berlin, this is Baumgartl's report to Berlin, notwithstanding the position taken by the defendants that it was Berlin that did this and Berlin that did that; it was always the other fellow, it was either Berlin or somebody else. Here is the original that was written by Dr. Baumgartl, it is on the stationery of the Organization Todt, Einsatz Gruppe VI. Einsatz Gruppe VI is the heading of it, and it is to the Chief of the Medical Branch of the OT at Berlin.

"Subject: Medical care of SS concentration camps (Jewish camps) connected with the OT construction sites."

And here is what it says:

"Concerning medical care of concentration camp labor (mainly from the Jewish camps) assigned to our big construction sites at Muehldorf, Landsberg and Allach, an arrangement has been made with the medical staff of the SS at Dachau, SS Sturmbann-fuehrer (Major) Wittler, according to which exclusively the SS will provide medical care. The OT will additionally and principally guarantee the furnishing of medicines since it has been found out that the medicines supplied to these Jewish camps by the SS have been quite insufficient. We have to adopt the point of view that every laborer will be kept fit if possible and all efforts have to be made in order to keep the percentage of men unable to work as low as possible, while assigning the full number of workers to the construction sites. Moreover, we have expressly reserved to ourselves a far-reaching influence in medical matters referring to control of prisoner doctors, hygienic supervision etc.

"During the whole time of my activity in this group I have observed that the medical care administered by the SS has been quite insufficient and has indicated very little sense of responsibility. These observations have been confirmed to me by Dr. Starrach."

Dr. Starrach came from Berlin.

"Regularly all main construction offices and the physicians under my charge complain to me about the SS neglecting its own matters. When a typhoid epidemic broke out in a camp and SS Sturmbannfuehrer (Major) Wittler was informed by us, he expressed his surprise to Dr. Starrach that we were unnecessarily concerned about matters which really were his business. Besides, he considered the situation to be far less serious than the OT physicians did. Only when it was pointed out to him energetically that a spreading typhoid epidemic would highly endanger also our OT personnel and eventually constitute a severe danger to a big construction project of decisive importance for the whole war, Sturmbannfuehrer (Major) Wittler assigned a medical non-commissioned officer of the SS to fight the imminent danger.

"On 18 September the Oberbauleiter (chief construction manager) of the main construction office Ringeltaube at Landsberg, informed me that he with regard to the very poor medical care administered by the SS was most seriously concerned about his whole construction project . . .

"Dr. Poschmann had on the occasion of his last visit already an opportunity to be informed by me as well as Professor Giesler about complaints concerning difficulties as to the cooperation with the SS."

Now, I ask the court to look at this exhibit, it is Prosecution Exhibit 87. Look at the old paper and the faded type, and the date of it--21 September 1944. This letter was written at a time when there was no thought of a trial, when a trial was the last thing in the world that they thought of, and listen to the last paragraph.

"Dr. Poschmann had on the occasion of his last visit already an opportunity to be informed by me as well as professor Giesler about complaints concerning difficulties as to the cooperation with the SS."

But even after that letter, even after Baumgartl complained, the medicines still never got there. We found Frau Flocken ordering medicines, signing her name to them, but the quantities were so insufficient that still and all, with all the complaints, with all the fightin around with the SS and the OT, still and all the medicines never got there, and the prisoners still were dying. When our troops walked into Schwindegg they found enough medicines there to supply the whole of Bavaria. You heard Roehr's statement that there was enough medicine there, and Dr. Braaf, who is an American medical man, went down to Schwindegg and examined the medicines which they had, and the warehouse was overflowing with medicines and bandages, but the prisoners never got any of them. Why is it that Dr. Baumgartl on 21 September 1944 made a deal with the SS in which he said, "We are going to supply the medicines; now this is going to be a job for the OT". And who was he speakin of—Giesler's outfit. "We are goin," but nothing ever happened. She was there; Giesler knew it because Baumgartl says so, and that was written in September '44. He wasn't afraid then that he was going to be prosecuted, but the medicines never got there. Why? Because they didn't care; they didn't want them to get there. The general idea was to kill them, to starve them and don't give them anything—that was the general idea of the SS and the whole policy of the German Reich. That was the general idea of the German Reich, and she participated in it and so did he. That was the general idea.

What happens to that fancy argument that everything she did for the prisoners was done out of the kindness of her heart? She ran the risk of prosecution. She was going to be prosecuted for giving the prisoners some medicines. May it please the court, Flocken wasn't running any risk for any prisoners; Flocken isn't built that way; she didn't do that kind of thing. She is the kind of person to order that not more than two per cent of the prisoners at Muehldorf were to be admitted at any one time, and if there is any more than two per cent, throw them out of the hospital, get rid of them, send them to the gas chamber. You heard the doctor himself. Dr. Gruenbaum came in here and testified that Flocken herself came into the hospital and told him that under no circumstances were more than two per cent of the total population of Buehldorf to be in the hospital at one time; it was not allowed. Flocken isn't running any risk for any prisoners. Flocken is the kind of a person who orders the downgrading of food of the little girls that worked in the hospital because they were given the same ration as the German employees. She is the kind to come around and say, "That is too good for them, give them some bunker soup; we are going to give them the same grade of food as we give the prisoners. She is not running any risk for any prisoners. She is the kind of person who tells the dentist not to work on prisoners. He had no reason to lie about her. He worked under that woman. She is the kind of person to tell him, "If I catch you treating the teeth of any prisoners, I will throw you out of here." She is not running any risk for any prisoners. That is the story, a funny story because Flocken is not that kind of a person. Flocken's theory was: "Let them die; they don't need any medicines; it is too good for them." She picks out a shoemaker instead of Dr. Gruenbaum for the head of that little hospital. She picks out a shoemaker and leaves the doctor standing there. She left the doctor and put a shoemaker in there to be a doctor for the prisoners. Flocken is the kind of a person who lets the fleck fieber patients lie in the same hospital with those who didn't have fleck fieber, to be sure they do become infected, and when Dr. Braaf gets there he findsenough fleck fieber serum at Schwindegg to inject the whole of Bavaria he says, but the prisoners never got any, and she was running a risk for the prisoners by supplying the medicines. Well, that is a good story, if it please the court. The only difficulty is that it isn't borne out by the facts. The only thing is Flocken lent herself knowingly and willfully to the extermination of prisoners by neglecting her job of takin care of them, seeing that they got medicines. That is why she is guilty.

The general idea of Camp Muehldorf was to keep those prisoners working, and maybe that is the reason that Polensky and Zoellner paid for her personal maid. There has never been any explanation of that. Why should a millionaire concern like Polensky and Zoellner supply Flocken, a state official, with a personal maid. Flocken offers no explanation of that. There is no doubt about it because the maid herself comes in and says, "I got my salary from Polensky and Zoellner; they paid for my services to Flocken". Flocken doesn't offer one word in rebuttal or any explanation as to why it took place. Maybe that had something to do with that efficiency factor that we have been hearing so much about. The defendants turned handsprings in the courtroom here to explain it away. Maybe that was the key to the efficiency factor. Maybe Flocken was that key because Polensky and Zoellner didn't want any sick people around there. This was a matter of money or profits, as you and I understand profits, and they didn't want any sick people around. Of course, Polensky and Zoellner say they practically had to have their arm twisted to take this contract for 25 million marks, but that is another department again which is also open to a certain amount of doubt. I don't know whether Polensky and Zoellner put up much of an argument about taking the 25 million marks' contract, but the fact of the matter is that the efficiency factor which we spent two days talking about here included keeping well prisoners who were not sick, keeping well prisoners on the job. That was part of the efficiency department because you can't have efficiency if you have sick prisoners, and Polensky and Zoellner knew that because we know something about efficiency in the United States. The only difference is when we make a contract with the union with respect to efficiency, the employee, the worker gets the fruit of his own efficiency, but not here. Under this contract, Polensky and Zoellner got the profit for increased efficiency. Read the contract. Not the concentration camp prisoners, not the OT or anybody else—it was Polensky and Zoellner. Why do you think that they tolerated this beating; why do you think they tolerated all the things that went on at Concentration Camp Muehldorf and at the construction site—only because of the fact that there was one of the ways to make money out of this contract—to up the efficiency—beat the prisoners so that they worked to the last, and when they can't work any more, get rid of them, and get rid of them right away. That was Polensky and Zoellner's idea of efficiency under the contract, their own contract which they supplied to this court. And Flocken was the key to the efficiency clause of that contract because when they couldn't work any more Flocken got rid of them for Polensky and Zoellner, for the OT because the OT was involved in this deal, too. They were paying for these prisoners, paying Concentration Camp Dachau for these prisoners. They didn't want any sick ones around either, and in the middle of the whole deal stood the prisoners and, of course, on cross examination the defense turned itself inside out to show inconsistencies in the manner in which Flocken chose the prisoners. Counsel stood in the middle of the room with his interpreter and almost turned handsprings to find out, "Did Flocken go to the prisoners, or did the prisoners go to Flocken", "Were they behind her or in front of her", "Was Schmidt over on this side, or was he over on the other side", but there is one thing that the counsel for the defense was not able to get around, and that was that Flocken picked them. That was the deal; that was her job—to get rid of the sick prisoners, and she did it very efficiently. She ought to get an efficiency rating, too, for her excellent record for pickin the prisoners to go to Auschwitz, for putting the finger on them to go to death, and after they got all through cross examining for hours, there is no inconsistency shown in any of the witnesses who appeared here, and there might have been 250 of them who appeared here to testify with respect to her selection. Counsel sought to confuse and confound by confusing one transport with another, and there were many transports that she was present at, but it didn't help because those people,know, if it please the court, who walks around and who selects people for transports. I would know and I would remember her for 40 years, and you couldn't kid the prisoners as to the manner in which these prisoners were selected, and you couldn't kid the prisoners into not believing that Flocken did because she did, and she admits that she was there in her statement. These prisoners saw what was going on. When a man is confronted with death, he takes notice, and these prisoners, too, took notice, and whether Dr. Schmidt was behind or in front or whether Flocken went to the prisoners or the prisoners went to Flocken, the fact is that she picked them, and the evidence was always the same. Flocken was there, and Flocken picked them.

And where was Giesler all of this time? Giesler was up there in Einsatz Gruppe VI. He is pulling in the honors while Flocken is picking the prisoners; Giesler is up there talking to the bossman, Mr. Hitler and pulling in the honors, and on his own admission he does nothing—nothing to save the prisoners, to feed or house or clothe them, or anything else, and the prisoners go on dying. Why didn't he do anything about it? In the first place, he didn't know anything about it. Giesler never knew what was going on in the construction site or what was going on in the camp. And second, he had nothing to do with Einsatz Gruppe VI, in the first place, nothing at all. He was only there as a figurehead. Somebody told him he was a figurehead, and that was the only reason he was there. Giesler testifies in his own defense:

"Q What did you have to do with the prison laborers at Muehldorf?

A I? Nothing.

Q How about the group?

A Nothing with the group."

Not Giesler. The burden of Giesler's testimony was to convince the court that not only was Giesler free of responsibility for Muehldorf, but he was also free of responsibility for the group. He had nothing to do with it. His answer to the prosecution's charges is, "The construction office was on the construction site, and this construction office was independent of my Task Group, and took orders from Berlin", and the construction office was a stranger to the group that Giesler headed, and that is a perfect answer, a perfect answer because that divorces Giesler entirely from the responsibility. There is only one trouble with it, it isn't true, it isn't borne out by the facts, it is a lie, and I will show the court that it is a lie.

Let's look at some of this testimony that has come out. Giesler tells us, first of all, about his Task Group Russia. It was called Task Group Giesler. That apparently was Giesler's first contact with the OT. At first when he testified he tried to give the impression that Gimple was the man. Gimple went up there, and he had nothing to do with that at all. It was only on cross examination that Giesler admitted when he was pressed that he had made 8 trips up there to Russia. Why? He had nothing to do with this deal. He was only a figurehead. Why was he so interested in running up there to Russia 8 times as he so admits? Why? I will tell the court why he first denied it. Because it is a part of the pattern of Giesler's defense to make a complete denial of everything. He doesn't want to have any part of Task Group VI—"Task Group, stay away from my door," because as soon as he admits that he had something to do with Task Group VI, it only falls upon him to save the lives of 3900 people, but that doesn't work.

As hard as Giesler in his testimony sought to deny his connection with Hoffman's office, the facts come back to plague him. Listen to what Hoffman says:

"Q Did the construction in Muehldorf have any connection with Dachau?

A The construction itself did not.

Q Who did you get your orders from?

A The authorities at Munich.

Q What is the name of the man who was over you at Munich?

A Hauptbauleiter Somerer and Professor Giesler."

That is Hoffman's statement.

"Q Did you receive your salary from this firm (Polensky and Zoellner)?

A No, from the OT.

Q Who was your immediate superior in the OT?

A Professor Giesler."

Now, that is Hoffman's statement, and remember that that statement was made in 1945, before Giesler was arrested, two years ago. Listen to the testimony of John, and this is most telling testimony because John is a representative of one of the biggest firms in Germany—almost as big as Polensky and Zoellner—who did just as big a job as Polensky and Zoellner did. Listen to John's testimony for Moll and Company. John worked under Giesler on the Kaufering job.

"Q Can you tell the court who it was who was the responsible head of Task Group VI in Munich?

A Professor Giesler.

Q Did you ever confer with any persons who were part of Task Group VI?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever see Professor Giesler at any of these conferences?

A Yes.

Q How many conferences did you have at which Professor Giesler was present?

A It might have been two or three.

Q In your trade, Mr. John, was it generally recognised that Professor Giesler was the responsible head of Task Group VI

A In my opinion, Yes."

Now, Giesler said that Kaufering and Kuehldorf stood on the same level insofar as responsibility of Task Group VI is concerned. Of course, Mr. Giesler forgets about Kaufering, the murder factory. Kaufering here, that was under him, too. He forgets about that. I am referring to—I don't think it is in evidence. He forgets Kaufering.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, I am going to object to any testimony about Kaufering, even in the closing argument. We have nothing to do with it, and it has not been proved here that it was a murder factory. It is only to make an impression on the court, and I don't think it should be allowed.

PROSECUTION: I will withdraw the remark, if it please the court, it is not important.

LAW MEMBER: The president has directed this ruling: Subject to the objection of any member of the court, the objection is overruled and the weight will be allowed in argument on both sides.

PROSECUTION: And what does John say further about the work? He said when he started the job he submitted figures to Task Group VI, and that the contract for Kuehldorf was discussed with Task Group VI, after having said that, Kaufering and Kuehldorf stood on the same level.

"Q And did the OT produce all these materials for you?

A The OT tried to get them.

Q When you say the OT tried to get all the materials which were used, what part of the OT are you referring to?

A To Task Group VI, and furthermore the local construction offices helped, too.

Q How many conferences did you have at which Professor Giesler was present?

A It might have been two or three.

Q In your trade, Mr. John, was it generally recognised that Professor Giesler was the responsible head of Task Group VI

A In my opinion, Yes."

Now, Giesler said that Kaufering and Muehldorf stood on the same level insofar as responsibility of Task Group VI is concerned. Of course, Mr. Giesler forgets about Kaufering, the murder factory. Kaufering here, that was under him, too. He forgets about that. I am referring to—I don't think it is in evidence. He forgets Kaufering.

A The OT tried to get them.

Q When you say the OT tried to get all the materials which were used, what part of the OT are you referring to?

A To Task Group VI, and furthermore the local construction offices helped, too.

Q Were these local OT units which you refer to and who also helped in the procurement of material, were they under Task Group VI, if you know?

A Yes, the chief construction offices were under the supervision of Task Group VI.

Q What was Task Group VI—what was their work—or what did they do in connection with the procurement of these Jewish prisoners, if anything?

A According to the work schedule we needed for the carrying out of the work a certain amount of labor. When these laborers were not present at the construction site then our construction leaders would contact the local chief construction office of the OT and would say, 'We need our sufficient number of laborers in order to complete our job on schedule.'

Q That local office was under Task Group VI, isn't that true?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether the head of your firm, namely, Mr. Moll, ever had a conference with Professor Giesler personally?

A I know that the head of our concern, Mr. Moll, had one or two—I don't know how many—conferences with Giesler about the progress of the war, about the installations which were made, about the quality of the cement.

Q Do you know whether Mr. Moll discussed with Professor Giesler the question of a completion date?

A I assume so for certain."

John also said, "To my knowledge Gimple was a representative of Giesler, and he was the main liaison with the construction companies, and he gave the most of the orders, and he originated most of the instructions they received." That is referring to Giesler's representative. He is referring to Gimple. Gimple originated most of the instructions which the firm received. John says further, "At the beginning of the construction job under question, Task Group VI did not exist to my knowledge. Giesler came there later as the man in charge of that task group. Before there was a certain Mr. Liebermann in charge". John ends his testimony:

"Q Do you mean that you got your concentration camp prisoners through Task Group VI?"

And he answers, "Yes". And that is John's testimony, and John has no reason to lie. John has no reason to give false testimony. A man like John doesn't give false testimony, he is too big a man to indict that man with testimony if it was not true because John came in and told the truth, but that isn't the only evidence that Giesler's testimony was a lie from the start to the finish. Haeuschen worked for Polensky and Zoellner. There is one of his bosses lying there, and he has no reason to be friendly to me. He still works for Polensky and Zoellner, and worked at the Wettenheim site at the office there.

"Q Did Polensky and Zoellner have anything to do with a unit called Task Group VI?

A Yes, that was the office from which we received our orders." (Polensky and Zoellner)

Now we come to Baumgartl:

"Q What was your relationship to Giesler when you were working in Task Group VI?

A Giesler was head of Task Group VI.

Q Were you chief of one of his departments?

A Yes, I was head of the medical department."

Now, he doesn't say he was the head of the medical department from Berlin, he says very clearly, "I was chief of one of his departments," and "I was chief of the medical department".

"Q Will you please tell the court what specifically were Professor Giesler's duties, as far as you know?"

And here is the department chief:

"A As far as I know, Professor Giesler's job was to construct the planned buildings, together with the help of his co-workers, of specialists of various firms, also of concentration camp inmates."

"As far as I know, Professor Giesler's job was to construct the planned buildin s."

"Q Do you know whether one of the tasks that Task Group VI had was the building of a factory at Muehldorf?

A Yes."

Then he described how he had conferences with Giesler about Muehldorf, and he says: "I submitted a letter and also a report, an oral report about the conditions of lack in concentration camps--the poor conditions in concentration camps," and there is the letter the court asks. Now, there is Baumgartl's testimony in which he refers to this very letter which the court has before it, and I ask the court again to see whether Baumgartl wrote that letter before he came in there. Look at the date of that letter, the faded type. I want you to look whether that letter doesn't square with the contents of the letter which the court has before it. Yet, in the face of all that evidence, here is Baumgartl. Giesler: "I don't know what you are talking about; what is this Task Group VI; I don't know what you are talking about". Giesler was as far away from here as we were, he would like to have us believe. And look at the contents of that exhibit which I laid before you a moment ago with respect to the task which Einsatz Gruppe VI undertook with respect to those medicines. See whether Baumgartl lied when he took that stand with respect to the fact that he told Giesler what was going on there, and Giesler says, "I don't know anything about that at all", but look at the last paragraph but one in which he says to Berlin, "I told you, and Giesler told you", now, why would he say that in September '44. If it weren't true, why would he come in here and give the lie to Giesler? Was he anticipating that in September 1944 "Dr. Poschmann had on the occasion of his last visit", says Baumgartl, "already an opportunity to be informed by me as well as by Professor Giesler about complaints concerning difficulties as to the cooperation with the SS". And Baumgartl takes the stand and says, "I went up there to Giesler and told him", and Giesler comes here and says, "I don't know; I never saw the man before;

I don't know; I don't know what he means". And I ask the court with respect to that letter to notice the heading of that letter from the Einsatz Gruppe VI in Munich to Berlin telling Berlin about the arrangements which Baumgartl made, not Berlin telling Baumgartl, but Baumgartl telling Berlin. Baumgartl gives Giesler credit for the delousing units. Why would he do that if he were an enemy of Giesler. Why would he give him credit for the delousing units? He said "Giesler moved himself and he gave us some delousing units". Why would he be inconsistent about a lie? If a man tells a lie, he tells a complete lie. Giesler takes the stand and says, "I never heard of anything like that before", but the situation even after that letter, and even after all the reports to Giesler didn't improve. Baumgartl says, "Could Giesler have given authority to withdraw from Schwindegg Medical Depot sufficient medicine and bandages to take care of the needs of Ruehldorf, if he wanted to?" "Yes". "He could have done much more, and I could not assume that he did anything, at least nothing decisive."

"Q Do you know whether Giesler was ever at the principal construction site?

A Yes, I know that.

Q Can you give the court an estimate of how many times he was there?

A 10 or 15 times.

Q Do you know whether the deplorable conditions which existed there regarding the health of the prisoners was known to Giesler?

A Yes, first off he knew it from me, and then my doctors who were working on the various construction sites made the same complaints to him."

And then Baumgartl spoke about Hoffmann:

"Q What was Hoffmann at the principal construction site?

A Hoffmann was for the main construction site the same as Giesler was for the Task Group. Hoffmann was subordinate to Giesler."

Don't you think that man knew what he was talking about? Don't you think he knew the setup of the OT just as well as Giesler? One of their own witnesses said, "You don't go through life with your eyes closed". Of course, you don't, and neither did Baumgartl.

Let's look at another, Endroess, the little fellow who came in here and started to testify on behalf of Giesler. He knew all about it. There was nothing about the task group or the OT that he didn't know until he got to cross examination. The defense set him up as an expert, and he was doing fine until he came to cross examination.

"Q For what was Bruno Hoffmann responsible to Task Group VI?"

And, by the way, that was their expert.

"A I can't explain that—I would have to describe the entire activity of the construction chief.

Q Go ahead and describe it.

A I can't do that—this matter would have to be explained by someone who was working in Task Group VI."

That is the expert that they brought in to testify as to Hoffmann's responsibility and Hoffmann's jo . I can explain this, Task Group VI, according to the table of organization was the office in charge of the construction site in Muehldorf, but the construction site was allowed to appear directly to Berlin in case of urgency of great importance.

"Q In other words, when you say "independent", that in case of urgency they had a right to short circuit Group VI and that is all their independence amounted to, isn't it?

A Yes."

The other witness who appeared for Giesler was Toepler. You remember the attorney who came in here. Toepler was a lawyer. He had worked for the General Counselor for Architecture—for Giesler. After testifying at great length to many matters, it developed on cross that he had not the slightest idea of the setup of the OT or Task Group VI, and the reason was obvious—he didn't work for Task Group VI, he worked for Giesler in his capacity as General Counselor for Architecture, but the last answer that he gave is enlightening.

PRESIDENT: The court will take a recess for 30 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1000 hours the court recessed until 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present, with the exception of Colonel Dickey, who is ill and in the hospital, and is excused VOCO; that all the defendants are in court together with their counsel; that the reporter and interpreter are here, and that the Government is represented.

Before the recess I was discussing the testimony of Dr. Toepler on behalf of Professor Giesler. In his last answer prior to leaving the stand, he was most enlightening, and I would like to call the court's attention to a question:

"Q You know, don't you, that Gimple did have a great deal to do with Task Group VI?

A Yes.

Q And there is no doubt in your mind that for all purposes Gimple stood under the jurisdiction of Giesler?

A Yes."

And now I would like to turn to Speer's statement. Speer made a statement on behalf of Giesler, and after reading through it, one fact stands out. He says, "But I know from a disagreement between the chief of the OT center and Giesler that Giesler in this case said to Horst that Gimple was responsible for his technical tasks. Note the word "technical". Certainly Gimple was the technical expert. Certainly Giesler leaned on Gimple for Gimple was an engineer, which Giesler was not. There is no dispute at all that Gimple was the expert, whose engineering brains pushed the work at Muehldorf, but how does that relieve Giesler? Gimple was subordinate to Giesler, and we know too much about the doctrine of respondia superior to say that Giesler was relieved of responsibility because he appointed a responsible subordinate. Giesler was and still is responsible for his acts and the negligence of his subordinate, Gimpl, and then listen to what Griesinger says. Griesinger knew he was on the job, and notice what he said in his pretrial statement, Exhibit 27:

"Q Who was chief of commitment Group VI?

A That was Professor Giesler.

Q What did Group VI have to do with the construction at Muehldorf?

A Group VI furnished the plans from the OT headquarters in Berlin to the construction group in Muehldorf. The group also furnished the labor and machinery."

Don't you think that Griesinger knew who was furnishing the labor; don't you know that Griesinger knew what Giesler's responsibility was? Do you think that Griesinger went through life with his eyes closed when he needed help, and he knew when he needed help he had to go to one place—not to Berlin—for labor when Dachau was down at Munich. Wouldn't that be the silliest thing in the world to do? Griesinger went over to Giesler when he needed help and when he needed labor, and he said so in his statement, and this is Griesinger again:

"Q How was labor for the principal construction site gotten?

A Commitment Group VI procured labor for the work, and in this connection procured foreign workers and also arranged for the procurement of labor from concentration camps.

Q Who determined the amount of food that the prisoners were to eat?

A That was determined in Munich at Einsatz Group VI headed by Professor Giesler."

That is Griesinger's statement, and Griesinger was on the spot, and when Giesler says in his own statement that there was somebody in his office who took care of procurement of the food, doesn't that square with what Griesinger says?

"Q Who looked sick or bad at the principal construction site?

A The Russian PW's looked bad--partly also the inmates but mostly the older ones.

And listen again to Hoffmann's statement--Hoffmann knew:

"Q Did you have to requisition workers from Dachau?

A We did not have to order them. They were sent here from Dachau to replace Italian labor that did not appear.

Q How did Dachau know how many to send?

A We requisitioned the laborers from the Munich authorities and they would assign them here."

Listen again to Gickeleiter. Gickeleiter was the one who represented Polensky and Zoellner.

"Q Do you know Giesler?

A Yes.

Q What was his position?

A He was Generalbaurat. He had the title of Generalbaurat and Professor, and he was leader of the OT group in Munich."

Gickeleiter doesn't say this or that, or somebody was the leader, he said Giesler was the leader. And don't you know that Gickeleiter knew who was the leader in Munich, who he looked to?

"Q Did you receive instructions from that OT group in Munich?

A Yes, by way of Hoffmann.

Q What was Hoffmann's position?

A He was leader or chief of the OT in Ampfing.

Q And he took his instructions from Giesler's group, is that correct?

A Yes."

May it please the court, Adolf Hitler said, "If you tell a lie, tell a big one, and if you repeat it often, people are liable to believe it; don't tell a little lie, tell a big one", and Giesler learned well from his chief. He told the biggest lie he could possibly think of.

He told a lie to this court when he said he had nothing to do with Einsatz Gruppe VI. Not only did he tell a lie, but he repeated it so often that the theory of his boss stuck out all over it like a neon sign. "Tell a big one, don't tell a little one, but if you tell a lie that is so ridiculous in its grotesqueness, people will believe it". He told lies. He came in here and said he didn't have anything to do with Einsatz Gruppe VI and that he didn't know anything about it. That was his theory because it was necessary for Giesler to lie if he was going to get out of this thing. He couldn't possibly admit his connection with Einsatz Gruppe VI because Einsatz Gruppe VI had the control of Muehldorf, and it was up to Giesler to say 4,000 lies. That is why he tried to duck it to get out of it, and the only way to get out of it was to show first they had nothing to do with VI, and the group itself had nothing to do with Muehldorf. That is why he pushed it off to Berlin. "It was the other fellow's fault, not mine". One of his own witnesses after testifying at great length admitted on cross that Giesler did not bother about details, but had to be consulted on matters of broad, general policy, and that is about the position of the prosecution all along. I know that Giesler did not bother about how many pencils were used at Muehldorf, but when it came to the broad general policy, the boss was consulted. Didn't they consult him with respect to the labor? Why did they do it? Why did Dimple come around crying to the boss, and why did he bother with that kind of labor? "We have to get normal workmen". Why did they come to Giesler if he had nothing to do with it? He tells us that was only a personal matter. "It was a matter between my brother and me, but really I had nothing to do with it."

Gentlemen, when they ran into trouble, they came to him. That is what he was there for. They got him to go up to Hitler to try to straighten the thing out. Why did Dimple go to him? Because he had nothing to do with the construction site at Mue'ldorf. That is the story that he can tell somebody else, but not in this courtroom because the facts speak for themselves. Everybody recognized him as the chief, the boss. If there is any doubt about that, the only doubt is entered in this case by Giesler himself, and everybody who testified in this case with respect to Giesler gives the lie to Giesler. Giesler, when he testified here, knew the facts and figures; he knew all about the setup and organization and tables of organization. There is only one thing that Giesler didn't know anything about, that was why it was people died in nine and one half months--47 per cent of the people at Muenldorf--why they died. He didn't know anything about it except what his own department head told him about.

Gentlemen, Giesler's testimony was a fabrication of lies made of the whole cloth. It was a last effort to mislead and distort. I will admit he was a convincing liar, an excellent liar, but what nazi wasn't? They had to be a good liar. They were masters of the art. That was their stock in trade. They were successful liars only as long as they had nobody to controvert them, and unfortunately for Giesler, his own colleagues controverted him and gives a lie to Giesler. Now, because he wasn't telling the truth, things didn't happen the way Giesler described them. The facts are in the record. He is smart; he had to be smart in his job, and when he took the stand, his counsel was most tender with him and said, "Sit back; if you need time to recover, the court will be glad to give it to you". That was as phoney as Giesler's testimony was phoney. What under the law was his duty? Under the Geneva Convention his duty was to go out and see that nobody died. It was his duty to see that he wasn't working dying men. It was his duty to prevent Dickelsitter and Frie-linger and the rest of them from giving orders, "If they don't work, beat them". That was his job and he didn't do it. That is what humanity expected of him, and your own Government expected of him when they put their signature to the Geneva Convention, they said that those things which Giesler did or didn't do wouldn't happen again, and that is where he failed in that duty. That is why he was guilty under the law. His duty was twofold--it was negative and affirmative. It was affirmative to take steps to prevent suffering and death, and it was a negative duty to see that nobody died there, and that was his job. He failed in it, and therefore he is guilty. He failed because he was a willing accomplice to the general policy of the German Reich--to kill, to exterminate by work and overwork. That was his job. He was a willing instrument, and because he was a willing instrument he is guilty. Nobody attained the stature in the nazi hierarchy that he attained without being a willing instrument to the general policy set by the Reich. He was too big, too important. A word or a look from him would have made those over at the main construction site shiver and shake. He didn't give that word or that look, and there isn't a word in evidence that Giesler ever extended himself to issue or execute one order that would have saved one life. All he did when he was asked on the stand--the only thing he said was to tell the court, "I didn't have anything to do with it".

May it please the court, the evidence with respect to Giesler is clear and convincing. The prosecution in this case asks the court to find Giesler guilty, pleads with this court to impose a sentence of death on Professor Hermann Giesler.

CAPT. BACHMAN: May it please the Court, Gentlemen of the Defense, Gentlemen of the Prosecution: Mr. Roth has covered at some length the picture which existed in this camp or ring of camps called Muehldorf. Very early in the case the prosecution proved the duties of each of these defendants and the part which he played in operating this camp. I won't stop to review this evidence at this time, but the court will recall that we successively introduced statements showing a connection of each of these defendants with that camp; and none of them except Professor Giesler, who ineffectually denied the importance of his part, Flocken, who tried to prove her acts were in an unofficial status, and Engelhardt, who denied the title of adjutant--none of them have denied that evidence of their part in this case. Each is guilty of common design and with the one exception they failed to take the stand and deny their parts in the common design.

I was appalled at the stories that were told in 1945 of the number of people who were beaten to death by the OT and SS men, who were killed at these various spots, and I say to this court that although those witnesses didn't know the names of the people and were not in a position to identify who it was who had done those killings, undoubtedly some of these defendants in the stand were guilty of those killings. But if they were not guilty with their own hands, they were accomplices. They were accomplices to the acts of each and every one of the defendants in this camp. Just as many a man has gone to the electric chair who stood outside of the bank while his accomplice went in and killed the cashier, so these people are guilty, as accomplices and as a part of the common design, for every killing that went on in that camp.

However, since to some extent the severity of the sentence of each defendant must depend on his individual acts, I should like to review the individual acts of each of these thirteen defendants.

We shall begin with Capt. Ostermann, No. 11, captain of the Wehrmacht on temporary duty with the SS. Supposedly there as a guard company commander, he was actually the commanding officer of Wald Lagers V and VI (testimony of Dr. Gruenbaum, at page 179 of the record; testimony of Eisenhandler, at page 242 of the record; Judkowiez, page 321; Hoffmann's statement, P-3, page 7; Benoze's statement, P-56, page 3). Every one of them places him as commanding officer of the Wald Lager and as such commanding officer he was responsible for all of the acts of his men of which he had knowledge in that Wald Lager V and VI. But Capt. Ostermann did much more than that. He killed men by his own orders. What did he do as punishment for a minor offense? He forbade heat in the bunkers for three days and men died as a result (testimony of Eisenhandler, page 265 of the record; Wellner, page 691 of the record). He withdrew the rations or water from the starved men as punishment (testimony of Eisenhandler, page 266; Wellner, 691; Lewin, 816, Judkowies, 321). Gentlemen, there is the record. He used an unheated bunker for punishment and he confined people in there for three days at a time, without food or water, so that they died (testimony of Eisenhandler, 270; Wellner, 691; P-62, page 4, statement of Herskovics, can actually tell you about that bunker).

Do you remember the description of Hoffmann who was shot in front for trying to escape and the story that he wasn't trying to escape, and how Ostermann had him brought out in the square and made the prisoners march around in front of him instead of punishing the guard (Eisenhandler, 252; Judkowies, 323)? You remember how he removed the floors of the bunkers, those miserable quarters. That is the testimony of Wellner at 691 of the record.

He was a fine commanding officer. When the citizens of the community protested to him about the prisoners who were beaten to death on their streets, he put out an order that it wasn't to be done any more in public. That is the testimony of Eisenhandler, at 270 of the record.

Ostermann even joined in the sending of these sick people to work (testimony of Raskin, 469 of the record).

There is no question that many of the prosecution witnesses, as well as the defense witnesses, testified that Ostermann did help the prisoners on many occasions. That testimony is frequent and quite sincere, apparently. How do we explain this conflict of acts? Ostermann was a nervous man. He was a very heavy drinker and often drunk (testimony of Lewin, his own orderly, at 916 of the record; and Eisenhandler mentions it, at 267). When he was drunk, he would amuse himself, like this: midnight roll call when he turned all of the people out at midnight and fifteen prisoners caught pneumonia, while he hid one of the prisoners in his own room to check the efficiency of his own guards (testimony of Eisenhandler, 267; Judkowiez, 321).

This Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde, who was turned over to the SS because he was not good enough for the German Army, deserves consideration for his good acts, we admit, but he cannot escape the punishment for the murders he committed.

Defendant No. 12, Schmidberger, 1st Sgt. of the SS, detail leader with a reputation for brutality. As Lang says (569 of the record), one tried to stay off his details, one could not bear it if Schmidberger was on the job. He was a terrific beater. Beatings were mentioned by Lang (561 of the record). Rosenberg (766 of the record) was kicked in the ribs by Schmidberger for being slow in taking off his hat. Eisenhandler (263 of the record) remembers his frequent beatings with a cudgel. Raskin (page 467) tells how Schmidberger beat practically daily with a club, too often to state a time.

prisoners. Schmidberger was along on that final transport. You remember the condition of that transport, how the SS fired into these helpless prisoners. [illegible] this court finds that Gentlemen, these witnesses did not come in to persecute anyone, they did not come in to persecute Schmidberger. They did not say he fired any of those shots. That is a natural thing, because they did not stop to look at who was doing it. But we do know that Schmidberger was along, that the SS did the firing, and that Schmidberger was the kind of a man who would have been firing on those prisoners. That he was along on the transport there is no doubt (Raskin, 472; and his own testimony, P-28, page 4). Volkmer (516) told how, even in the forced Lang to do a day's work in two hours an punishment (568). [illegible] and it was confirmed by their [illegible]. I refer now to the shooting on this detail, to that Schmidberger was in charge of at the railroad work station. You remember that (testimony of Lang, 561), even Langleist stopped an SA man from shooting that prisoner in the morning. When Langleist left, Schmidberger did not protect him and an SA man shot him [illegible] (Ruskin, 468). In answer to that, they bring in Major Vollmuth, major of the gendarmerie, who testified (936). You remember Vollmuth did about as good a job of heel-clicking as a man ever did sitting down. He went on to say that it was done by an SA man. He also showed what all of Germany thought of these concentration camp [illegible]. [illegible] a stick to prisoners. It is very interesting to know that Lang's testimony (361) says that the actual murder was committed by a gendarme major, and I submit to this court that there was no gendarme major in that vicinity except Vollmuth himself.

Why didn't you take the stand, Schmidberger, and deny the charges? Because he was afraid the murders that he had committed would come out further than they did on the testimony.

No. 3, Wilhelm Bayha, 1st Sgt. of the SS, a detail leader, known as "the lame one." There isn't so much to tell about Bayha. Wolf (at 1464) tells of several beatings by Bayha. Judkowiez (316) told how, even in the cold weather, the prisoners had to take off their overcoats in order to work, and that was confirmed by their own witness afterwards, how they were driven to work at an early hour, how they were beaten on the neck with a stick, and treated to kickings by Bayha daily, how he ordered the capos to beat, and extra work as punishment. Also, according to Judkowiez (317), he forbade the use of air-raid shelters, and that is confirmed by Eisenhandler (373), who testified how Bayha shot at him because he was trying to get into an air-raid shelter as an air raid was imminent.

Bayha, you couldn't take the stand and deny any of that, could you?

Consider No. 8, Daniel Gottchling, "the black Hungarian." Gottchling went around carrying a stick to beat (Lang 569). In his own statement, he admits he carried a stick to beat (P-26, page 2). How did he use it? He beat the prisoners to the ground with that stick (Mannheimer, 450; Schuster, 726). Whom did he beat? The young boys on his detail (Mannheimer, 454). And what did he beat them for? Such things as licking an empty pot because they were starving to death (Lang, 567).

You remember how Gottchling stuck that potato fork into a man's leg and crippled him (Froelich, 714).

I want to read from the record Berressi's testimony, page 774.

"Q Will you tell the court about Gottchling in connection with a friend of yours?

"A Yes. After having been in the camp for a while, I saw Gottchling grab a friend of mine. Yes, he took him to his warehouse and he told another prisoner, who was a prisoner just like us, to take him and give him 25 strokes on his behind. Yes, he told this fellow to give him 25 strokes and Max had to do it. He beat him, but as he was a comrade of his he only beat him lightly, but he said to him, "Go ahead and beat him hard; otherwise, I am going to beat you." After this comrade received the 25 strokes on his behind, and as he always said, "Beat him harder, harder," this comrade had to go to the hospital."

That is Gottchling, gentlemen.

Gottchling hung prisoners up in his cellar, hung them up by their arms. That was a common practice in concentration camps and Gottchling thought it was a good idea (Froelich, 728). Gottchling did other things that killed men. He stole the food of these starving prisoners who were already dying from starvation--from them he took further food to trade for his own shoes or to give to his girl friend (Mannheimer, 455; Froelich, 713).

His whole attitude towards these prisoners was shown by Froelich (707 of the record). Gottchling went out and brought back the food that had been issued to one of the transports and what did he say? "They don't have to eat, they are already finished." They were, gentlemen.

Who came in and spoke for Gottchling? His co-criminal, Neubauer, the man who heard everything that went on in camp if it helped the defendant, and the best that Neubauer could say for him (1263) was that he only used his hands to beat. That won't help, Gottchling, not when you yourself said that you beat with a stick, in your own statement (P-26, page 2) and not when you yourself did not take the stand to deny the evidence against you.

No. 10, Wilhelm Jergas, Tech. Sgt, roll-call leader in the Waldlager. Here, gentlemen, we come to our first direct murder--the Hungarian boy who was beaten to death. Testimony of Raskin, 466 of the record:

"Q Now, can you tell me anything about the beating administered to a Hungarian prisoner?

"A From the many memories I have from the various camps, this is one of the most terrible things I have seen.

"Q Fix a time and place first, and then tell us what happened, will you?

"A It is very difficult for me to fix a date, but it must have been in the winter of 1944, sometime. We had been working on a detail next to the camp. The work was digging out roots of trees. We had been working beside the main camp at that time. Then this Jergas came out of the camp and looked at the people--the men who had been working around. There was a Hungarian boy who did not seem to work fast enough so he grabbed a shovel or a spade in that instance and beat this man with the spade so that the man fell, bleeding terribly. He was taken to the hospital; and he was taken to the hospital after this defendant left. About 20 minutes afterwards I had the possibility to go into the dispensary, where I saw the body of the boy in the middle of the hall. I asked the man from the infirmary, "Why is the boy still here? Why doesn't somebody take him to the hospital to take care of him?" and he said, "It is no use, the guy is dead." I have had experience with thousands of dead bodies, and when I came out of the hospital, I knew that the boy was really dead."

That is Jergas, gentlemen. He was a murderer, all right. You remember the testimony of Wellner (692), who said he not only was known as a beater but told how Jergas went around after the final transport left looking for the few Frenchmen who survived because he wanted to shoot them to death. He used a whip frequently. He beat to the ground. He kicked prisoners on the knee or the back of the ankle (testimony of Eisenhandler, 261). He often beat them unconscious (testimony of Raskin, 465). He always had a stick, using it to beat them unconscious. Reading from the testimony of Gruenbaum (199 of the record):

"A Jergas was roll call sergeant. Technical Sergeant Jergas was roll call leader. That took place at every roll call. He always either carried a whip or a small, thin stick with him.

"Q Go ahead.

"A And he would hit them on the head or on the legs, these prisoners who couldn't run fast enough and get to the place of roll call quickly."

Jergas would appeal to the court's sympathy now because he is sick with heart trouble. Any man's heart would trouble him, with the crimes that are on Jergas' head.

No. 13, Herbert Spaeth, Tech. Sgt. of the SS, food manager of M-1, and representative of the camp's commanding officer. Is there any doubt about his being the camp's commanding officer's representative? Wolf said so, at 1463. P-3, page 3, Hoffmann's statement, says that is what Spaeth was. He joined in the stealing of prisoners' food, according to Froelich (713), but he was described much more seriously by Mannheimer, at 453, as being much feared by the prisoners. He told how, when the women tried to share their scanty rations with the men, Spaeth went among them, beating the men who accepted rations, over the head, neck and back, and wounded many of them. Landau, at 549, called him a brutal beater and said one always kept out of his way.

He used a stick or club. Lang, at 569, told of being beaten; Froelich, at 708, described Spaeth and his stick with three wires; Schuster, at 726, told how Spaeth used a stick every day; P-26, page 2, Gottchling's statement, tells of how Spaeth used a club.

The severity of these beatings was terrific, gentlemen (Kiwilewics, 369). Kuritzka (397) told how he beat badly at every chance and particularly remarked how he sent Professor Zenent to the hospital. Schlaecter (608) remarked how he beat a man called Glaser unconscious. Schuster (725) told how he was present and directed the severe beatings of these PW's who dared escape from his camp. Nechama (654) told how he went into the musselmann block, the sick people, and beat them.

But much more serious than that, death after death is laid at his door. Schlaecter (608) told how the people in the sick block were to get nothing to eat at his orders. Why? Because he said they were going to die anyway. They did, gentlemen. They died from hunger.

Nechama (655) tells how many died from his beatings. Edelstein (678) tells what a beater he was and how he directed the beatings from which many died. Froelich (709) tells of the man who was dragged into the kitchen by Spaeth and beaten and carried out in such a condition that he died the next day.

Quoting from Edelstein's testimony (679 of the record)--this refers to one of the things that Spaeth did--

"Q How frequently did you see people hanged by the wrists or feet at the orders of the defendant Spaeth?

"A I was told about that once, and I was told so by the men who were working in my detail.

"Q Would the defendant Spaeth be present when this order was carried out, if you know?

"A Yes.

"Q Do you know of anyone who died as a result of such punishment?

"A Yes, one man died as a result of this.

"Q When was that, if you know?

"A That was in Spring.

"Q Spring of 1945?

"A 1945, yes."

This, gentlemen, was just one among the murders that Spaeth committed.

What did Spath bring to this court in his defense? Our friend Neubauer, who would speak for anyone whom no one else would speak for. What was the best Neubauer could say for him? At 1249 he says Spaeth did not beat hard. But, gentlemen, read P-22, page 1, Spaeth's own statement, in which he admits that he used a stick for his beatings and he adds these words: "The possibility exists that I kicked them." Gentlemen, the people who died from Spaeth's beatings thought he beat pretty hard.

No. 4, Heinrich Engelhardt, Tech. Sgt. of the SS. The prosecution alleges that he was the adjutant of the ring. He has brought in pretty good evidence that the ring had no adjutant but, whether officially or not, the fact is that he acted as the ring's adjutant, signed as such, and carried out the duties of an adjutant (Kiwilewics, 367; Kuritska, 393; Edelstein, 674; Delicat, 837--that was brought out by the court's own questioning, not the prosecution's; Wolf, 1463, who saw orders signed by him as adjutant; P-22, page 2, Spaeth's statement, names him as Langleist's adjutant).

But whether or not he was an adjutant, he was a beater, a killer, and a brutal man. In more playful moods, he took the women's extra clothing away so they could not do any laundry, and he started the fleck fieber epidemic (testimony of Almosninos, 558; Kiwilewics, 367; Kuritzka, 393; Neohama, 654; Edelstein, 676). That was his more playful mood.

In his more serious moods, he would beat, kick, and seriously injure these prisoners. Almosninos (558) was herself beaten by him. Kuritzka (393) mentions many beatings. Edelstein (664), who was herself beaten by him, tells how he used a whip until the prisoners were bloody. And of course a man died from his beatings. Testimony of Edelstein (675):

"A It was like this. Our block was opposite the kitchen, and the night shift who was getting ready to leave was standing there getting their food. When Englehardt approached the rows of these people as they were standing there, they had to take off their caps. Everybody had to take off their caps when any of the SS people came along there. One of the prisoners took off his cap a little slowly. He was already a very weak prisoner. And then this man had to be taken to the dispensary and I heard about him through a nurse who was there who was a friend of mine. I told her to get some information on how this man was doing and this man died three or four days later."

That refers back to this question:

"Q Do you know whether or not any prisoners ever died from a beating at the hands of the defendant Engelhardt?

"A Yes."

There is the record, Engelhardt. You couldn't come to the stand to deny it.

Only Neubauer, the boon of all defendants. He never heard that you beat, but then of course Neubauer never heard that there were any Auschwitz transports. He didn't even know the most common fact in camp --that Auer was a beater.

Next, Defendant No. 6, Gickeleiter, Chief construction engineer for Polensky and Zoellner. He was their representative at the site, with full power to do what was best to accomplish their mission. He dealt directly with the OT (Raskin, 140; P-3, page 11, Hoffmann's statement). Gickeleiter was in charge of the cement column (P-57, page 1). What does Gickeleiter say in his own statement? That he was responsible for the main construction site construction to the OT and to Polensky and Zoellner. And he accomplished that mission by working these starved prisoners to death. Polensky and Zoellner men beat to get the work done. There is no question of it (Landau, 544; Van Der Milich, 1447) and Gickeleiter was present and saw and approved (Van Der Milich, 1444-1447). He saw these poor, sick prisoners working (Lang, 565; P-29, page 4, Sperling's statement). But, more than that, he took a hand himself in the beating of these men who couldn't work (Raskin, 477) and it was his fault that he drove everyone else to beat. He told the capos, "Rush the work," and he implied, "Beat the men to get the work done" (Van Der Milich, 1444). He always was out there, driving, driving, driving these starving men (Lang, 546). P-29, page 4, Sperling's statement, made in 1945 when there was no thought of a trial, said that Sperling protested that the men were not strong enough. What did Gickeleiter say? They must be worked under any circumstances. Gickeleiter reported a man who had quit work two minutes early, in order that he might be deprived of his food, although he was already starving to death (Delicat, 829-830 of the record). He was there to make a profit for his firm. Sperling's statement (P-27, page 3) contains these words: "The quicker the work the more money the firm would make," so Gickeleiter ordered the foremen to drive the prisoners and "they certainly drove them." Those are the truest words in the record, "they certainly drove them."

"Q Was the defendant Gickeleiter at the main construction site?

"A Yes.

"Q What were his duties there?

"A I believe his duties there were to rush the whole construction up into the air so they would get through."

Yes, what Gickeleiter was doing there was rushing the work up into the air so they would get through. Yes, as his own witness said, they worried because they were using prisoners (Holsworth, 1044) because they were unskilled laborers and they needed skilled labor. That was their only interest whether they were using prisoners or not. P-58, page 1, the continuation of Sperling's statement --and what was his statement in there to Sperling, his assistant? "Don't treat them like prisoners of war, but like enemies--you will get the prisoners to work for you." And, gentlemen, they did. They got the prisoners to work for them, got them to work so that they died like flies from overwork.

You made your profit, Gickeleiter, in human blood.

No. 14, Otto Sperling, chief foreman of Polensky and Zoellner, Gickeleiter's assistant, in charge of all the foremen there. Not only guilty of the same sin as Gickeleiter in working these starved prisoners, but he was particularly known as a beater. P-29, page 2, his own statement made in 1945. What did he say then? That he always carried a pistol or a club at work. Note that he says that two-thirds of the cement machines were going all the time.

On page 3 of that statement, he admits frequent beatings "with my stick or any stick that was handy" and on page 5 he says that these men he beat were sick and undernourished. He knew that fact, gentlemen, but he added it was necessary to get the proper mixture of cement. Yes, gentlemen, that was the whole attitude--let them die, let them starve, but we've got to have the proper mixture of cement. That is Sperling.

What sort of a man was he? Remember his statement that he put in writing, that he had made previous statements because he was afraid of being beaten. Well, that same question came up in 1945 in this statement (P-29, page 5). He made this statement: "I did not receive these bruises from you or your assistants," speaking to the investigator, "but from the ex-prisoners at Feldafing a few days ago." That is the beating he got and he got it because those ex-prisoners at Feldafing had suffered under him as long as they could stand it.

What sort of a beater was he? What kind of a club did he carry? (Landau, 544; Lang, 569) And Lang adds that he was the most-feared man on the Herzberg site of the Hauptbaustelle.

Van Der Milich (1447) was beaten by him and tells of two other beatings by Sperling. Schlecter (609) told how the defendant used a board to beat people when he saw they weren't working. Wellner (669) testified that he was known as a beater. Berreasi (773) said he made two men work all night, stripped stark naked, in the cold as a punishment for something that didn't suit him. Finally, Delicat (828) testified how, in January 1945, a man died from Sperling's beatings. There must have been many men who died from them, gentlemen, but we have at least one specific case in the record and never did any witness, including the defendant Sperling, say one word in his defense or in denial of these statements I have just called the court's attention to. Why? Because he was a cold, brutal man for whom nothing could be said.

No. 9, Wilhelm Griesinger, Hoffmann's OT man in charge of the main construction site, the spiritual man who worked starved men to death for the glory of the Fatherland. This able man was responsible for the entire work commitment (Lang, 555; P-57, page 4, Gickeleiter's statement, and Gickeleiter adds that Griesinger was his superior). He was there five or six times a day, according to P-61, page 3, the statement Herskovitz made in 1945. This philosopher ordered the capos to beat. Testimony of Raskin (476):

"Q Did you ever see Griesinger at the main construction site?

"A Twice or three times."

You remember Raskin was very seldom there himself.

"Q Tell us what you saw.

"A I saw him give the orders to the foreman and the capos there, and I have heard him specify that people had to be beaten there, that everything had to be taken out of the people to carry that cement, and I have seen him twice slapping a prisoner who was carrying cement."

You remember that Raskin said that he himself beat [illegible].

Lang (566): [illegible]

"Q Did you ever see Griesinger kick or hit anybody?

"A Yes.

"Q Tell the court about it, when and where?

"A There was a prisoner who was rather corpulent, and he was not able to do hard work, and he asked me whether I couldn't get him some light work. And then I told this prisoner to stand there and check on the other prisoners that they kept on working. And Griesinger came and gave out tickets for food working records, and the cement silo pushing was running empty. And during this procedure the OT called down, saying that there was no more cement in it, and Griesinger dashed up to this fat Jew and said, 'What are you doing here?' And the Jew said, 'I'm the capo.' And Griesinger said, 'Well, you're a nice capo,' and he gave him a kick with his foot so that he fell into the cement."

Yes, gentlemen, this decent man who loved Jews.

Herskovitz (P-61, page 3) tells about the same thing--not the same incident, but beatings by this defendant. He saw the sick prisoners who worked there and he saw them beaten time after time, this conscientious man. One witness after another told the court about it (Lang, 565; Schmeter, 611; Reliaat, 850; Einicke, 1191, 1192, 1194; Van Der Milich, 1446, 1447).

Yes, gentlemen, this conscientious man knew what kind of prisoners he was driving, and what was his reaction to all of that? Van Der Milich told us (1445), that always his cry was "faster, faster, faster."

This quiet man used these premium certificates very effectively. The testimony of Schlaester (611) calls attention to this use of these premium certificates. What did Schlaester say about it? "My own opinion is this, through those premium certificates, Griesinger killed more people than he should have killed by beating them himself." How did he use these premium certificates? To get more work out of the people and he gave them to the people who would drive the men the hardest. It didn't matter that they were being driven into the mass grave. They had to be driven to get more work and the capo who drove the hardest got the premium certificates (Benvessi, 775; Meitles, 823). Even his own witness Rinicke (1190) said that the Jews had to perform the most difficult work out there, [illegible] and the [illegible] hangs.

What was the attitude of this fanatical anti-Nazi? Eisenhandler (259) testified to the attitude that he had and that was that if Germany lost the war it was going to be necessary to exterminate these people so they wouldn't be witnesses against them.

"Q Well, what was said at that conversation? [illegible]

"A And they were talking about the chances which were left to Germany at the end of the war; and then the question was raised: what was going to happen then if these prisoners are still here? Eye-witnesses of their crimes. Thereupon Griesinger made the remark, 'There is only one thing to do, to exterminate these people.'"

Gentlemen, they very nearly did exterminate all these witnesses. Fortunately there were a few left who came here and told you the story against these defendants, but that, gentlemen, was the attitude of Griesinger, our fanatical anti-Nazi, our friend of the Jewish people. But he got promoted, this able, upright man. He did a good job of driving these prisoners. P-85 shows that order for promotion.

Gentlemen, if a man won't take the stand when his own life is at stake and testify regarding the men that he is alleged to have worked to death, can you believe what anyone else says for him?

Franz Auer, No. 1, Tech. Sgt. of the SS, labor commitment officer for the ring. What was his name? "The devil." (Froelich, 710). The man who has murdered more men with his own hands at this and other camps than he could name between now and the time that he hangs. He murdered by driving sick people out of the sick block to work. Gruenbaum (192) names the people who died the next day after he drove them out of the sick block. (Eisenhandler, 255; Kisler, 264; Kiwilewics, 365) Raskin (475) describes it this way:

"Q And how did the people look who were chased out of that hospital by Auer?"

"A Some of these people had to crawl on their feet and hands, because they couldn't stand on their legs."

Those, gentlemen, were the people whom Auer drove out of the hospital to work, and they came back to the hospital to die (Lang, 565). Dr. Benze (P-56, page 11) names seven people who died in one day, after Auer drove them out of the hospital to make them work on the last day of their life. (P-62, page 4, Herskovitz' statement.)

But he killed other ways than that. He killed with his own hands, with a pick-axe (P-67, page 2, statement of Tichauer). He killed by beatings. Talking about Auer, this question was asked (Kiwilowicz, 365):

"Q How did he send these people out to work?

"A With a pistol in his hand, with beatings.

"Q How severe were these beatings?

"A They were very severe, and sometimes it happened that they had to be carried away from the roll-call square.

"Q Were there people that died as a result of these beatings at the roll-call square?

"A Yes. They could walk up to the roll-call square on their own feet and then they were carried away dead."

Lang (562) names another person Auer beat to death, among all the people he killed.

After that it seems almost superfluous to mention some of the other things that Auer did, but we are considering what kind of a man Auer was. He used men and women as horses (Kuritzka, 400; Edelstein, 673). Witness after witness told of his terrific beatings (Eisenhandler, 255; Mannheimer, 451; Landau, 542, who still carries scars that Auer gave him and will carry them until he dies; Edelstein, 672; Froelich, 709;

P-61, page 4, statement by Herskovitz).

What else did Auer do? He ordered children and women to carry cement (Kuritzka, 390; Lang, 562; Edelstein, 672). He ordered them to work. If they had no shoes, they still couldn't walk for three-quarters of an hour through the woods without shoes (Mannheimer, 450; Landau, 647). He issued the orders for supervising the work that killed these French and Italian prisoners (Schlaechter, 616; Berressi, 771). I call the court's attention to P-62, page 4, statement of Herskovitz. What did Auer say? Auer said the Jews will never get out of the camp alive. Gentlemen, thank God the Americans came when they did or there wouldn't have been a Jew got out of that camp alive.

That is Auer, gentlemen, the black one.

The remaining defendants I shall try to cover rather quickly, although there is a great deal in the record about them. Mr. Roth has covered both of them from their duties. I want to cover them from the specific evidence against them.

No. 5, Dr. Flockeh, chief doctor of the OT group, an attractive, intelligent woman whose mind became so warped by Nazi philosophy that these prisoners ceased to be individuals with feelings. In her eyes, they were pieces to be used for the glory of the Fatherland and discarded when they were worthless. They weren't even cattle, because we protect cattle from needless suffering. Is there any question she chose these transports to go to Auschwitz for extermination and after Auschwitz fell, to go to Kaufering, and on those transports over half of the persons died. Who saw it? Who saw her choose those transports, gentlemen? Dr. Gruenbaum (184) told the court:

"A It was made an announcement in the morning that a commission was coming and we at the camp dispensary were informed too. And also it was told the work details of the prisoners who went out of camp for work. At the dispensary it was like this: we had the sick people to get out of bed naked, and the clerk had to mark down always their numbers wherever the Doctor pointed to them--'This one, this one, and this one.' The ward was the base at the roll-call place. The people were undressed naked and the Doctor passed by and pointed out 'This one, this one, this one.' And there was one department at the camp dispensary where the Doctor didn't go at all. That was the department for the diarrhea cases, and the Doctor said right away, 'Mark down all of them.'

"Q Now, Doctor, did you see the accused Flocken at any of these selections?

"A Yes, in October 1944.

"Q I ask you, Doctor, to explain to the court exactly what Dr. Flocken did at that selection.

"A She was together with Dr. Schmidt. The people were lined up at the roll-call place. The male physician started to go through one row, and the female physician went through the next row.

"Q When you say 'female physician,' Doctor, whom do you mean?

"A Dr. Flocken.

"Q Proceed.

"A At this occasion my very best friend, a pharmacist, was picked out and sent away.

"Q Now, Doctor, was your friend, the pharmacist, standing in the row that was examined by Dr. Flocken or on the row examined by Dr. Schmidt? If you remember?

"A In the row of Mrs. Dr. Flocken.

"Q And what did Dr. Flocken do as she walked down the line? Please explain the picture to the court.

"A She walked through the row, pointed to a fellow --'This fellow is weak; take down his number. This one. This one.'"

That was only one of the many witnesses who saw her pick these transports. At 185, we find that he named another, Weisshaus, who was chosen.

The witness Eisler (281) saw her choose a transport. The witness Judkowitz (320) saw her choose a transport:

"A We had a roll call and then the order was given that everybody had to undress until we were half naked, and she pointed out left and right--left to death and right to live."

Yes, gentlemen, she chose those transports--left to death and right to live. Landau saw it (341). Almosnino saw it (354) when she herself was chosen but fortunately she hid out, but the others who were chosen with her went to Auschwitz and were exterminated. She told of another transport (356) of pregnant women. Kuritska (402) saw her choose a transport and the camp eldest told her where it was going. Nechama (555) saw a transport and named a particular prisoner who went on it. Schuster, 722; Deutsch, 747. Sapir (802) saw her sister chosen by Dr. Flocken and sent away, and never heard from her again. P-8 shows she is dead. Spaeth's statement (P-22, page 4) tells how Dr. Flocken picked that transport. Dr. Benzse's statement (P-56, pages 10 and 11), given back in 1945 right after the liberation, remarked that Dr. Flocken chose transports for Auschwitz. No question of them all ganging up on someone because they were on trial. (P-66, page 8, Dr. Schoenfeld's statement given in 1945 after the liberation).

As Mr. Roth told you, the methods varied. Of these people who testified from this camp, some were in the hospital when chosen, some came in from work, some were at roll call. Of course she stood in different places. But these people didn't forget who pointed them and their friends out for death. Does she dare claim she didn't know what it was for? P-22, page 7, Spaethis statement, tells about the secret order on Eberle's desk before the transport left stating where it was going and says Flocken must have known it. Eisenhandler (254) tells how everybody in the camp knew what they were being chosen for. Was Dr. Flocken so innocent, so blind, that she was the only one who didn't know what she was choosing these people for? Even if she did claim that, look at the statement of Kiwilewica (372). He didn't say that she picked him, but said she came by and looked at him in bed and three hours later he was called out to go on the transport along with practically all of the sick block. Then what happened? He was a good chauffeur and Eberle took him out so that he didn't have to go. So the time then came when he was driving for Eberle and Dr. Flocken was along and they were talking about the fact that he had been chosen and Eberle had taken him out of the transport. And what happened? She, Dr. Flocken, leaned over and patted him on the shoulder and said, "You can thank the camp commandant that he saved your life." She knew what it meant to go on a transport. I asked this question (374):

"Q When you say 'she' said that, whom do you mean by 'she'?

"A Miss Flocken.

"Q Were there any transports picked after that time, if you know?

"A I know of two other transports besides this one."

"Q Do you know who selected these subsequent transports?

"A Miss Flocken."

After she had already stated that she knew it meant death to go on a transport, she came down there and picked more transports and she knew that left was death and right was life, picked out those who were worthless for work. She was down there to protect the OT's interests. They wanted well people out there to carry cement until they dropped dead or had to go on a transport. You couldn't have sick people. You have to feed them and look after them. They are a nuisance. Send them to Auschwitz where they will be exterminated. Gentlemen, that is the most serious thing against Dr. Flocken.

There are lots of other things. Medical supplies were hopelessly inadequate. There is no question, if you will read this record. Could Dr. Flocken have remedied that? Roehr said she could. He discussed (75) it with her. Why? Because she was the one who could remedy it. She requisitioned it (80, Roehr's statement) or her subordinates did. The supplies were there. (Roehr says so at page 89; Dr. Gruenbaum, 181; Lang, 572.) Major Braaf's statement (P-4, page 11) gives the story of these supplies and Dr. Benese's statement (P-56, page 4) states that supplies came in two days before the liberation. They were there. They could have been there nine months before the liberation but they came in two days before to make a good show to the Americans who were liberating the camp. [illegible] Kolenndrr was never in Muehldorf and said she had no duties at that camp, but admitted he didn't know what she did. Von Kimpelheimer, also from Berlin, said she had no "official" duties and those words, "official duties," were stressed. [illegible] What did she do? Let's not talk about what she was supposed to do. She chose Dr. Gruenbaum (170 of his testimony) as a nurse and then put a barber over him to be in the hospital. She refused Almosninos (353) admission to the hospital, so that she had to be operated on with scissors without an anesthetic. She refused the use of Schwindegg for an appendectomy, according to the testimony of Auritzka (392). She visited all of the lagers--M-1 daily, Waldlager V and VI every two or three days. That is the story of her own driver, who drove her there (Pirsch, 664 and 669; Sapir, 802). Why did she go there? Because she took charge of the hospital, gave the orders to the doctors, told them that they were forbidden to treat illnesses, only to give first aid for injuries (Dr. Scabados, P-64, page 4; Dr. Schonfeld, P-66, page 8).

Gentlemen, Auer at least inflicted pain for his own pleasure, because he was a sadist, because he enjoyed inflicting pain; but Dr. Flocken inflicted pain from complete indifference and she killed more people than the devil Auer.

Last we come to the individual acts of the defendant Giesler, chief of Task Group 6. Mr. Roth has covered his duties, his lack of interest because he had his head in the clouds rebuilding Munich for the greater glory of Hitler. I won't go into the question of organization in any detail, but after all even though Professor Giesler never killed a man with his artistic hands, by his own misuse of authority or disinterest in his own duties he killed three thousand nine hundred thirty-four people at Muehldorf. I'd like to look at the record for just a few more minutes to show you what he did.

He was the head of Task Group 6 (Moehr, 75; John, 125; Hauschen, 140; Baumgartel, 838). His own witness, Toepler (970), says that on decisive questions he wasn't the formal leader but the actual leader. Even Danbeck (1364), who did his best for his old boss, could not deny that Giesler was Gimple's superior.

Now he brings in a chart. He disclaimed that he drew it. Who identified it? Endress was the only one who identified it, showing that independent relationship, and yet on cross examination (1107) when we tried to ask about it, his answer was always, "I don't know. I can't answer this." Even he said the chart was incomplete. When you tried to pin him down on whether those two things were all Group 6 was responsible for, his answer was: "I can't answer that. I am not familiar with the particulars." And Mr. Roth read to you how he admitted that that independence was only a matter of a short circuit in case of great urgency. And even that is new since the trial began.

Remember Hoffmann's statement, taken in 1944, and Giesler's statement which said nothing about it's being a formal job. Griesinger says the OT was under Group 6, under Giesler, which furnished the labor. That statement shows they determined the amount of food the prisoners got and the rations came from the OT. P-57, page 3, Glckeleiter's statement, shows he received his orders from Giesler through Group 6, through Hoffmann.

Baumgartel (840) reported to Giesler that the death rate was terrifying. Why? Because he knew he was the only one with authority to make a change. He reported to Giesler again (843 of his testimony) and said that Giesler could have done something and what Giesler could have done. What did he do? What did Giesler do to save lives? Look at the chart, gentlemen!

Auer killed for pleasure; Flocken from indifference to the individual; but Giesler, by neglect and indifference of all humanity, allowed men and women to die by the thousands while he dreamed up new designs to while away the Fuehrer's idle hours.

I'd rather meet my Maker like Auer, with blood on my hands, than like Giesler, with blood on my soul.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess until 1330.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1155 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that all the personnel of the court, with the exception of Colonel Dickey, is present; all the defendants, together with their counsel are in court; that the reporter and interpreter are here; and that the government is represented.

CAPT. BACHMAN: If it please the court, I had finished this morning with my discussion of the acts of each of these individuals. There remains only for the government to request formally the conviction and penalty regarding these defendants.

The government therefore asks that each of these thirteen defendants be found guilty as charged. The government further asks penalties as follows:

Upon Anton Ostermann, whose life is forfeit by the lives he took but who redeemed himself to some extent by the lives that he saved, the government asks a sentence of life imprisonment.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Just a minute, please. We'd like to have this part of it interpreted as we go along.

INTERPRETER POWYS-COBB: Will you read it, please?

(Whereupon the reporter read the last paragraph, which the interpreter translated.)

CAPT. BACHMAN: Upon Jacob Schmidberger, who stupidly, blindly, and madly participated in this mass murder, but on whom the government has proved no direct killing, the government asks a sentence of life imprisonment.

Upon Wilhelm Bayha, who drove his men madly through the woods to work and back, but on whom no direct killing was proved, the government asks a sentence of life imprisonment.

Upon the defendant Daniel Gottchling, for his brutal beatings and his starving of these prisoners, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Wilhelm Jergas, for his murder and his brutal beatings, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Herbert Spaeth, for his many murders, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Heinrich Engelhardt, for his one killing and the many prisoners who were injured by his brutal beatings, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Karl Gickeleiter, for the sick and starving men that he drove to the mass graves, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Otto Sperling, for the man he killed and the many others he drove to death, the government asks the death sentence.

Upon Wilhelm Griesinger, for the lives that he watched ebb away, with his aid and approval, for the greater glory of the Fatherland, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Franz Auer, for his many murders, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Erika Flocken, to answer for the murders she committed by pointing a finger, the government asks the death penalty.

Upon Hermann Giesler, for his complete disinterest in the responsibilities of a position he accepted, whereby the whole murder factory of Muehldorf was possible, and for every death therein, the government asks the death penalty.

DR. LEILING: Dr. Leiling, for the defendants Gickeleiter and Sperling.

May it please the court, the facts of the case at issue occurred during the last nine months of World War II. The importance of this observation can hardly be overestimated. We must remember that after the successful invasion of the European continent from the west the Allies were victorious on all fronts. The territories occupied by Hitler's armies and Germany herself were exposed to a relentless battering from overwhelming air power. Inside the country, the events of the 20th of July were a sign on the wall of tremendous significance. All these facts are certainly known to the court and to each member as to every other Allied soldier; but not everybody is perhaps to the same extent familiar with other factors which dominated this specific time and site of the crimes at issue. Hitler's regime was based upon a devilish propaganda and an inconceivable system of terror. The more hopeless the situation became at the different fronts, the more brutally the grip was tightened on every individual person and the more intense the terror inside the realm of Hitler's dwindling power. In spite of all this terror, however, the signs of the final collapse became more and more evident. In daily life, as in the whole economic sphere, a shortage of practically every commodity was felt to a catastrophic extent. Food became shorter and shorter, the system of transportation was so disorganized that the authorities could not cope with the problem of moving goods to the spot where they were most needed. In this case, machinery was not available as the factories suffered hard under the air attacks and their output was reduced to nil. Raw materials were so short that one had to take them from one priority project to another just to fill the most dangerous gaps. The times were hectic, and overlapping directives, orders revoking former orders were the characteristics of those days and, above all, a last attempt of Hitler's regime with all its organizations to subjugate the nation for the purpose of their fatal war effort.

Under such auspices the building project of Weingut I, near Muehldorf, was started. From the statements of witnesses and from the pictures in evidence the court must have gathered that it was a huge building site. This 500-meters-long tunnel was meant to serve as an air-raid shelter for important industries. The planning as well as the performance of this project required a mass of labor, and the labor allocation authority of the Reich tried to collect this labor as rapidly as possible, from almost every quarter of Europe. They used all their power and their channels to make labor available. The big organization of the OT had to rush workers from France and Russia, and the personnel and workmen of about sixty-four firms to the building site in upper Bavaria.

The highest officers of the OT were concerned with this problem too. They tried to hire labor from Italy, as the witness Lorey stated before this court. The building project was of highest priority. When, therefore, the Reich's labor allocation could not provide the necessary workmen out of these sources which I mentioned before--for obvious reasons, because in Germany practically every physically capable man had been called up and the Italians knew better than to place themselves at the disposal of the Germans shortly before the end of the war--they resorted to concentration camp labor and surprised the engineers at the building site with the announcement that this project of high priority had to be partially carried out by concentration camp inmates.

I have tried to lay a broad description before the court in order to show how this project had necessarily to suffer from the same shortages and insufficiencies from which every enterprise suffered in the war-stricken and dismembered Germany of those last days, and how the situation was dominated by over-organisation, by desperate attempts of the potentiaries to alter their fate, and by terror exercised through all those well-known organizations the regime disposed of.

Now, turning to the defendant Gickeleiter, the only problem I have to deal with is the question of how far he can be made responsible for crimes committed against the concentration camp inmates at Muehldorf. The charge sheet accused this defendant, as all the other defendants, of acting in pursuance of a common design. I need not enlarge upon this problem especially as there is no evidence to this effect before the court. There was no connection proved between the defendant Gickeleiter and the operation of Concentration Camp Muehldorf--not as regards clothing, housing, feeding, general treatment, or work allocation. He has not negotiated plans for employment of concentration camp prisoners nor has he ordered or directed their employment in general or in particular.

I can't see how he can be tied into a common design, which the prosecution described this morning. There ought to be definite and direct proof of his co-operation. It isn't enough to make just general statements about "Here comes this man in and here the other man comes in." We can only rely upon the statements made by the witnesses here and by other evidence before the court and I don't see any evidence that would prove that Gickeleiter was a member of a common design, the purpose of which was to kill off those prisoners at Muehldorf.

The prosecution apparently wanted to establish responsibility as a consequence of the defendant's position as chief engineer of the firm of Polensky and Zoellner, but even this point was not proved.

First of all, I want to state that Gickeleiter was merely an engineer of that firm, Polensky and Zoellner. He is not a representative in the wider sense. He is not a director, he is not a manager. He is merely an engineer. He holds no special function within that firm. So everything that was said about the firm and was tried to burden on Gickeleiter must be rejected from the side of the defense and must not be taken into consideration.

There was no evidence that Gickeleiter instigated the order passed by higher authorities of the OT and there was no evidence that he voluntarily took over the position he was assigned to or that he negotiated contracts or preliminary arrangements or later arrangements. Nothing of that sort was brought out before this court. On the contrary, the witness Wiedmann emphasized that the firm of which Mr. Gickeleiter is an employee had no choice to accept or to refuse an order because that would have meant the destruction of the firm as such. I need not add that a small employee such as Gickeleiter had no choice either.

There was no evidence that the defendant Gickeleiter was responsible for the plans of this project or for the way it had to be carried out. He did not make the construction plans, and he did not organize the employment of concentration camp inmates. It was not brought out that he had instigated or even influenced the way the different stages of work had to be done, nor did any witness testify to the fact that he in general supervised the work of the concentration camp inmates. I don't see where the prosecution takes the accusation from that Mr. Gickeleiter supervised the cement detail. From my knowledge, it was not brought out before this court and if an indication could be found in a statement like Hoffmann's, I'd like to see that. Hoffmann himself would be, as things stand, the chief defendant in this case. It is obvious that Hoffmann knew when he made his statement what would happen to him if he did not escape, as he did, and it is obvious again that all his statements must be examined very carefully and with a view to that general purpose of his, that he wanted to get out of that position as much as possible beforehand.

The position of this defendant, Gickeleiter, does not, furthermore, imply responsibility for the workmen or the foremen of those sixty-four firms. On the contrary, it was proved that he had no disciplinary power over those persons. That was brought out by the witness Holzwarth, on cross examination by the prosecution. It was therefore not possible for him to fire a person or punish him, had he heard of any criminal acts. This again is shown by the circulars several witnesses testified to--I mean the circulars which came from the offices of the OT at Ampfing, warning everybody not to mistreat concentration camp prisoners. All these considerations support the conclusion that the defendant Gickeleiter cannot be made responsible by virtue of his position.

Now in this connection I must say that I have to deal, unfortunately, with another question which was brought up by prosecution during this trial--namely, the allegation that Gickeleiter drove the workers to do more work in order to make higher profits for his firm. This conception of the prosecution is based upon a misunderstanding of technicalities. In order to prove this, I am forced to discuss the efficiency factor, which caused so much confusion before this court, and I beg the court to have patience with me for a few minutes. Experts and engineers have tried to explain this problem, and now a lawyer will do his best to put it in plain language. I think the situation is this.

Every firm which worked under the OT had to submit an estimate of the expected costs. One item of these costs was the price for labor which the firm would have to pay to the laborer per hour. In order to gain an average, the price for a German laborer served as a basis for the price mentioned in the estimate. It was, however, common knowledge that certain categories of laborers did not work as much as a normal German laborer. All the same, the price for the German laborer was inserted into the estimate, with the view of later alteration according to the experience made with other categories of laborers on the individual building site. This alteration was called the efficiency factor. As long as the efficiency factor was not fixed, no firm, provided it wanted to profit by exploitation of labor, could have a reasonable interest in speeding the work up, because then the experience on the building site would have shown that an efficiency factor was either not at all or only to a very small extent necessary. This state of affairs prevailed in the case at issue up to the beginning of March 1945 when the firm received the letter, in evidence, which fixed the efficiency factor for the concentration camp inmates. After March, however, there was hardly any work done until the liberation in April.

For completeness' sake, I must add that the fixing of the efficiency of the concentration camp inmates at one-third of that of a German laborer does not mean that the firm only had to pay one third for a concentration camp inmate for the same amount of work. As for the same amount of work, a prisoner needed three times as long. They would, without the correction through the efficiency factor, have had to pay three times as much as for the output effected by a German laborer. Through the efficiency factor, the firm neither lost nor won by the fact that prisoners worked on the building site. Several witnesses have testified that the price for a prisoner was the same as the price for a normal German unskilled laborer. Whether the individual prisoner got this pay for the work is another question. This was arranged for by the concentration camp authorities, but there was no connection between these and the firm, and above all no connection between these and the defendant Ciekeleiter.

I must say that I was a bit surprised this morning when I heard that the firm--and, through the firm, Mr. Ciekeleiter--was connected with the defendant Flocken, through the maid of Mrs. Flocken. I think that is a very, very vague statement and it is not testimony and is not evidence at all. The only fact that is before the court is that a maid who was paid by Polensky and Zoellner was used by Mrs. Flocken who worked down there as a doctor. The maid herself is stupid enough. I mean, everybody could see that. I don't see how a firm, through a maid, could be tied in with what Mrs. Flocken is alleged to have done down there at Muehldorf. I don't think I need make any answer to this kind of evidence.

Now the most important question, however, arises--the question whether the defendant Gickeleiter can be made responsible on account of alleged actions. The witness Holzwarth testified that the defendant Gickeleiter protested against the employment of concentration camp prisoners, and under cross examination the witness said, "Gickeleiter protested because he was against this kind of labor on principle." Not only, as the prosecution pointed out this morning, because he thought that these laborers were less efficient. No, because he was against it on principle. What more can one expect in this connection? He protested to Hoffmann, the man in charge, although it was not Gickeleiter's duty to protest as he was not responsible for the allocation of labor for this building site.

Now, the prosecution tried to connect the defendant Gickeleiter with the alleged crimes through witnesses. One witness told the court that he just once saw Gickeleiter at the building sight, during the night. I must say I think it is a very incredible story he told us. The witness was himself detailed to a comfortable job more than a mile away from the building site, but out of sheer curiosity he walked over to the cement detail just to see Mr. Gickeleiter--all that during the night. Moreover, the situation was described wrongly. The testimony of Lt. Tonner (P-74) shows that the incline to the mixing machine was at the side of the mixer. The witness mentioned that it was in front of it. Compared with the testimony of Lt. Tonner, the distances were wrong. And who would believe that a man in the striped uniform of a concentration camp inmate could sneak over to the cement detail and watch closely how the others had to work, while he himself stood around doing nothing?

The second witness, the witness Delicat, was similarly vague. It is remarkable that he said Gickeleiter did not beat anybody and that he only saw him shortly before closing time, not otherwise, on the building site. I may add here that there was not a single witness who could properly identify Gickeleiter and could state that he saw him a considerable number of times at the building site. This witness thought Gickeleiter was an OT construction officer, a fact which was not confirmed by any other evidence and which obviously is not true.

The allegation that Gickeleiter reported people is very unclear. In what way did he report the people? To whom did he report? Did he report individuals whose names and numbers he did not know, or did he make a general report. It is very unlikely that a man of Gickeleiter's character would bother about two or three minutes' work. On the other hand, it was not shown that the alleged result, namely the reduction of food, could by any means be foreseen by Gickeleiter, because this happened in the camp, where Gickeleiter had no influence and of the customs of which he even had no knowledge. Above all, having dealt with the problem of profit and having shown to the court that there was no reason to speed up the work of these people, I don't see what Gickeleiter's personal reason would have been to drive those prisoners to do more work. I think prosecution owes us an explanation of that fact. Very much so, because everybody who acts acts somehow sensibly or at least we must assume that.

Now, to a large extent the prosecution relied upon Sperling, the co-defendant of Gickeleiter. I should like to point out at the beginning that Sperling himself took back what he said in his two statements before, namely all the incriminations of Gickeleiter. It is obvious that he would incriminate Gickeleiter at first and he said so. He said he was afraid, not only because he was once beaten--no matter by whom--but he was afraid again because he did not want to take everything upon himself or he did not want to admit what he himself did and therefore he tried, as he explicitly said, to put the blame on other people. But he took it back now and I think we can believe his statement which was submitted to the court now because why should this man here in the court, where his life is at stake, take the statement back? Only because he feels now that it would be unfair to leave this evidence as it was and put the blame on people who were not guilty and were not responsible for what he accused them of.

In general, concerning the witnesses I should like to say this. It goes without saying that everybody must have the greatest understanding for their feelings and the greatest sympathy for their sufferings. But it seems to me that they are all inclined to testify more to generalities than to facts and to facts which may have happened than to distinguish between hearsay, general knowledge, and real, personal experience.

I need not examine in detail the testimony of the witness Milich, who is one of the habitual criminals about whom more than one witness of the prosecution complained before this court. Everyone knows that it was the devilish system to put such characters in charge of the concentration camp prisoners. It is common knowledge that they tyrannized their fellow prisoners in order to keep their positions as capos. This witness obviously knows that he is himself sufficiently incriminated and he now tries to admit a little beating but to put the blame on other people in order to prepare his own forthcoming case. I am sure no business man would ever base a decision on the information he would get from a habitual criminal who does not even dare to announce his previous convictions. I am equally sure that no court in the world would choose such testimony as the basis of its verdict where the life, honor, and welfare of an individual as well as of a whole family are at stake.

Isn't it safer to rely upon the testimony of the former inmate, Dr. Scabados, who unfortunately could not be brought before this court but who left voluntary statements for the defendant Gickeleiter. Dr. Scabados is an educated man. He had close contact with the defendant and he was on the building site all the time because he was in charge of the first-aid station established there for him. The statement of Dr. Scabados was corroborated by the witness Lechner, who knew that Scabados was on friendly terms with the defendant--an amazing and decisive factor, considering Dr. Scabados' experiences as a concentration camp prisoner. In this connection it must be emphasized again that the statements of Dr. Scabados were made long after the liberation.

I would also like to recall the testimony of the witness Lechner, which shows how the defendant Gickeleiter treated the female prisoners who worked in his office and for whom he was really responsible. He gave orders that they were to have free entrance to the common air-raid shelter, additional food, and food had to be sent to the construction site, just as he had installed tea kitchens at the construction site for the benefit of the prisoners, although the food problem as such did not come under his responsibility. I think there is no doubt about that, and it was brought out by the prosecution itself.

I again should like to mention the testimony of the witness Holzwarth, who said that the defendant Gickeleiter was against concentration camp labor on principle.

To complete the picture, I should like to scrutinize a final question, namely the problem whether the defendant Gickeleiter is guilty through an omission. As far as I am informed, it is a rule of criminal law in every civilized country that an omission can only be held against a person where the person was legally bound to act and where his action would have interrupted the chain of causes, so that the criminal result would have been prevented. There was no specific legal duty for the defendant Gickeleiter to act. I have mentioned before that he had no disciplinary power, and he definitely had no power over the people who were responsible for the hardships of the concentration camp prisoners.

For the sake of clarity, I should like to mention that there is a difference between a Nazi organization, or a state organization, and a private firm. Apart from the fact that his own private employees were not under his power, one could not normally make him responsible for the acts of employees in the same way as an officer is responsible for acts of his subordinates or as an official of an organization is responsible by virtue of his semi-military status. But even if one assumes that every human being has the duty to prevent crimes, he can only be made criminally responsible if his intervention could have prevented the crime. This, however, has to be denied. Even if Gickeleiter had had knowledge of the alleged crimes, which has not been proved, even if he had acted in the interest of humanity, he would not have altered the lot of the concentration camp prisoners one wit. He himself would have, as things stood, either gone to the concentration camp himself or faced one of those quick trials plus execution which were usual at that time. No criminal code, however, demands that a person should endanger his own life to prevent other people's crimes.

From whatever angle one approaches the question of Gickeleiter's responsibility, the result is negative. Prosecution has not connected this defendant with the crimes which undoubtedly happened at Mühldorf. It is clearly impossible to prove such a connection, because Gickeleiter was only a small wheel in a gigantic machine. This building site was not dominated by private enterprise. It was dominated by Hitler and his terror and it would have required a high-ranking man of great influence to alter the lot of the concentration camp prisoners.

Considering these facts, I should like to request the court that Gickeleiter be acquitted.

I shall now turn to the defendant Sperling. First, I want to clarify one misunderstanding. Sperling was not the chief foreman down there. He was just one foreman among many others, of sixty-four different firms. The defendant Sperling has frankly admitted that he beat prisoners. In his statement, he explained he thought it was his duty to keep order and to keep the machines running. This was certainly a primitive statement, but one cannot expect otherwise. He has spent all his life on building sites, where manners are rough. He was abroad with the OT during the war, where working conditions were even tougher. Strong as he is himself, he expected efficiency from those beneath him in his dull and insensitive way. Witnesses have testified that the prisoners tried to avoid work and he thought it was his duty to prevent this, in that manner of misunderstood duty which a mediocre mind is inclined to have. He did not see further than his small realm of work and, in that fashion of servile obedience which was crammed into the masses during Hitler's Reich, he did not stop to consider whether it was right or wrong, but just kept the machines going. I am sure he is not a bad man capable of malice aforethought, and he would have certainly rejected the idea of causing the death of a human being. He is too stupid to understand the complex situation of a concentration camp prisoner and I request the court, in spite of the overwhelming evidence, to take all this into consideration before it arrives at a final decision.

To conclude, I want to resume my initial chain of thought. It was Hitler's folly to think he could challenge the whole world with his insufficient means and as the war progressed the shortage became more and more evident. Things were of a catastrophic character long before the Allied armies arrived, but the Nazi machine went on and on. One may call it madness, but one cannot make the individual responsible for these facts without proving a specific crime one man personally committed.

DR. ENGELHORN: May it please the court, as defense counsel for the accused, Griesinger, I should like to present the following arguments:

The accused Griesinger is an architect by profession and belonged neither to the Nazi party nor to any organization of the party, as the SS or SA. He is married and the father of an eight year old child.

During the war he was drafted to the construction management of the air force. His military rank was that of a private first class, he did not obtain any higher rank. Due to his excellent knowledge as an architect he was used in this profession by the construction management of the air force, until he was ordered for temporary duty to Muehldorf by his office on 9 May 1944. It was a military transfer against which Griesinger, of course, could not raise any objections, being a soldier.

What position did Griesinger hold at Muehldorf? By the main construction office, the chief of which was Hoffmann and which was located at Ampfing, Griesinger was allocated as the manager of the main construction site. Hoffmann was Griesinger's superior, and between them there was the technical department, the head of which was an architect called Kiderlen. Griesinger's task, being the immediate subordinate of the Chief Construction Manager (OT Colonel) Hoffmann, consisted solely and merely of the technical supervision of the construction parts of the main edifice. In particular, he had to examine and remeasure, whether the parts in construction complied exactly with the blue-prints, which had been drawn by the OT headquarters in Berlin. To assist him in this work, three construction leaders had been assigned to him, whose task also was only the technical supervision of the constructions, and who had nothing to do with the accomplishment, i.e., the building proper.

Any divergences of the constructions from the construction plans had to be reported at once by Griesinger to his superior Hoffmann, who as Senior Construction Manager had the sole right to decide what measures were to be taken. The assignment of the three mentioned construction leaders and the assistant Brunner, who was interrogated as a witness, to Griesinger had been necessary, because Griesinger was occupied by his works in the office of the construction management so much, that he was not able to visit the construction site every day. For Griesinger had to take care of all the correspondence with the Main Construction Office and had also to be at his office as much as possible in order to answer inquiries by telephone of which he was the only one who had the necessary knowledge. Besides his duties at the main construction site, Griesinger had also to supervise the work on the rail construction, road construction, and the allocation of the trucks.

Therewith the duties of Griesinger are described in detail. In particular, Griesinger had nothing to do with the food, billeting, and clothing of the prisoners whatsoever. For these tasks there had been set up special sections of the Main Construction Office at Ampfing; while the guarding of the prisoners was the exclusive matter of the SS. Just as little did Griesinger have to do with the disciplinary supervision of the OT personnel; for this there was also a special section, the manager of which was a man by the name of Seebauer.

In connection with this I would like to mention, that the prosecution strived to denote Griesinger as the deputy of Hoffmann. It is correct, that formally he was appointed the deputy of Hoffmann on 15 February 1945. This was due to the fact that a certain Kiderlen, who up to that time had been the deputy of Hoffmann and had his residence of office at Ampfing, had been transferred to another place. But upon the appointment of Griesinger as deputy it had been ordered expressly that he was to continue in his position as manager of the main construction site, and it was mentioned also that he was entitled to sign bills. According to German law every official must have a deputy, so that in case of absence or illness his position is taken care of at least in the beginning. But this case never occurred, Hoffmann was always present at Ampfing. In case the deputyship would have come into effect, Griesinger, of course, would have had to take residence with his office at Ampfing. But he was always remaining at his office near the main construction site.

I will now refer to the charge and want to mention the following in advance: After the accomplishment of several trials against the influential persons in concentration camps it has been established a sure fact that there were concentration camps, which one ought to denote as extermination camps. This, however, led to the fact that many people throw all these camps into one pot and believe that all these camps had had the same purpose, namely the extermination of the inmates. I must oppose such generalisation most explicitly. Characteristically for the extermination camps is the mass execution of prisoners, taking place by shootings to death with machine guns, gassing or injection of chemical means into the blood vessels, and such things, but there were no such installations at Muehldorf. The Muehldorf camp was purely a work camp.

The prosecution charges all the accused to have participated in the accomplishment of a common design, which consisted in the assistance of the maintenance of the Muehldorf concentration camp. This conception, however, is actually wrong and cannot be substantiated legally. The concentration camps had been set up by highest authorities and were all under the jurisdiction of the Economic and Administrative Main Office. The decision about the foundin of such a camp or about its disbandment was solely up to this office. Those persons active in the camp were altogether more or less people in subordinate positions, who did not have the slightest influence upon the management or the continuance of the camp. They merely had to obey the orders given to them by the Economic and Administrative Main Office.

The accused are further charged to have exercised their duties in pursuance of a common design by beating and tormenting the prisoners, exposing them to starvation and humiliation, and treating them in a manner undeserving of a human being. If the prosecution believes that the SS pursued such endeavors, so this is still no proof, that other people dealing with prisoners had the same intention. This in particular can never apply to the members of the OT.

I draw the attention to what has been proved by witnesses, that originally free labor had been intended for the performance of the construction work at Muehldorf, and that due to the lack of German workers same had to be procured from Italy. The witness Lorey described in detail what intensive work had been done in Italy in order to win over Italian workers, and he also indicated the reasons for which this plan could not be carried through in Italy. After good success in the beginning, opposition began to form in Italy, which was caused by the moving of the front lines too far toward northern Italy and by the fear of the people to be separated from their families upon a sudden end of the war, furthermore also by the resistance which the guerillas offered against the OT in Italy in the middle of the war.

The OT did not have the least thing to do with allocating prisoners to the construction works at Muehldorf. On the contrary, we have heard that the OT was highly dissatisfied with this plan to allocate prisoners, and that Hoffmann complained to his superior office that prisoners were employed at this large scale construction because he was of the opinion that these people comprising all professional classes did not possess the specialized knowledge for the correct performance of their work. However, the complaints of Hoffmann did not have any success and it was maintained that prisoners would work at the main construction site. As the SS had the commission to accomplish this construction, they had to use the prisoners whether they wanted to do not, but for this reason they were also interested in keeping the prisoners in a good state of health in order to be able to accomplish the work to which they were assigned as well as possible. Therefore, it is wholly incomprehensible that the SS should have been striving to drive these prisoners to death by exposing them to unnecessary tortures and hunger.

I will now refer to the direct charges made against Griesinger. Upon an interrogation before the chief trial a certain witness Herschkowitz stated, Exhibit K-16, that Griesinger had once slapped him with his hand. He then described the appearance of Griesinger and stated among other things that he had gray eyes, black hair, and several golden teeth. These three marks do not apply to Griesinger. He has brown eyes, dark blond hair, and not even one golden tooth, but all perfect, natural-colored teeth. If a person has several golden teeth, everyone who speaks with him can easily notice that, and merely in regard to the statement about the golden teeth it can be said for sure that Herschkowitz had another man than Griesinger before him, and that another one beat him. Herschkowitz also stated that the person he carmen had been wearing golden shoulder straps with two stars (pips). This statement, too, does not apply to Griesinger. It has been confirmed by several witnesses that Griesinger had never been wearing such insignia at all. In this case it is quite obviously a confusion of persons, which can be easily explained by the fact that the prisoners heard the names of SS members merely by chance, and that Herschkowitz is referring to another person besides Griesinger.

Griesinger is further accused by a witness, Raskin, who claimed to have seen twice that Griesinger slapped a prisoner. Here, too, it can only be a confusion of persons, for this witness stated that Griesinger had been wearing a brown uniform with a red arm band with a swastika and a pistol. This description, too, can never apply to Griesinger. He never wore an OT uniform with arm band and particularly during all the time that he was at the construction site, he not once carried a pistol, which has been proved by witnesses.

The accused, Sperling, stated upon a previous interrogation that he had beaten the prisoners and had been instigated to do so by Griesinger and Gickeleiter. Upon an interrogation on 6 May 1947 Sperling withdrew these statements as not being true and as a reason for this misstatement he said that he thus wanted to have his own guilt appear less grave, and that he had been instigated to do this by the others. This new statement of Sperlingis absolutely credible; he had to admit on his previous interrogation that he had beaten and he just wanted to excuse himself by saying he had been instigated to do so by other persons.

Another onus is based on the statements of the witness Van Der Milich. This Van Der Milich was a prisoner in camp and he was wearing a green triangle. He was, therefore, a criminal. The entire appearance made by Van Der Milich is a rather bad one, and I cannot think that the court will believe such a witness. This Van Der Milich himself is detained in American custody because he was accused by several Jews to have beaten them. He was the chief camp, and under him he had 15 German and 60 Jewish camps. He himself admitted that he frequently beat the prisoners. Of course, he expects to be put on trial for these mistreatments and thus tries to mitigate his own guilt as much as possible. Therefore, he is using the excuse that Griesinger had been informed about these conditions and to make his statements more credible, he particularly declared that Griesinger had been present at the main construction site every day. This claim has already been disproven by many witnesses who have testified that because of all the work he had to do at his office he had been able to go to the main construction site only two or three times a week, and then only for a few hours. The witness himself stated as a reason for his arrest and being committed into a concentration camp, that he had so many previous convictions. He thus belongs to that species of criminals to whom every means is right to make their own misdeeds appear in another light. A person like Griesinger cannot be indicted by the testimony of such a man.

The prosecution further brought up the matter of the premium coupons as a further cause to charge Griesinger. These premium coupons were a social and humane institution and should be viewed in the light of a reward for the prisoners. One of the witnesses, Schlechter, made a completely false description of this institution. He stated that these premium coupons were given largely to the capos and in particular to those capos who beat. Schlechter was only present on one occasion when these premium coupons were distributed, and he was also not in a position to make any statements concerning the method by which they were distributed.

Among the capos on the main construction site, 60 were Jewish capos and only 15 were German. It is incredible from the start to think that these Jewish capos would have allowed themselves to receive these premium coupons thus depriving their fellow citizens of the benefit. I am absolutely convinced that if any one of these Jewish capos had received several of these premium coupons, he would have distributed them afterwards to the rest of the Jewish capos. It seems that the witness Schlechter did his best to incriminate all the accused when he said that the institution of these premium coupons cost more lives of people than if Griesinger had actually done some beating.

Then this is not a statement based on fact, this is just an opinion of the witness which lacks all basis. We can see his hostile attitude by the fact that he can make an insupportable statement like this. The testimony of Schlechter is confronted with other testimony, for instance, that of the witness Speer, Esser, and Bowman, who stated that the premium coupons were divided equally among the weak prisoners. The sole testimony by Schlechter, which has no substance, cannot be credited.

I would like to make a general statement concerning the credibility of the witnesses. Among these witnesses are many who had to suffer a difficult life in the concentration camps, and it is humanly understandable that they have a certain feeling of hatred which results in generalization and exaggeration. I also request that consideration be given to the fact that these incidents are all several years ago, so that the witness who desires to speak the truth may make a mistake. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the statements of these witnesses are by no means fit to incriminate Griesinger.

It may have happened that there were beatings at the main construction site. At a construction site where several thousands of workers are employed, this may even happen then and now with free laborers, and these beatings may even have had their reasons in particular cases, for instance, laziness of the worker concerned. There is no proof of any kind that Griesinger saw these beatings or that he had given his consent to them. It can be assumed that rough people who otherwise would work this way restrained themselves in the presence of Griesinger because he otherwise would not have tolerated such things.

In this connection, I would like to draw attention to the fact that the witness Lorey once saw a prisoner bein, beaten and that he reported this to Griesinger, and that Griesinger owing to this incident issued a circular to the various work places to the effect that the beating of prisoners or foreign workers were strictly forbidden.

Although, as I already mentioned, Griesinger did not have anything to do with the care of the prisoners, I want to go into some details on behalf of all the accused. It has been testified by several persons that the food situation of the prisoners, at least part of them, was not too well, but I ask to consider that this concerns the time from the summer of 1944 until April 1945. It is necessary to look at the food situation in Germany. Owing to the longer duration of the war and the loss of certain valuable farm areas in the eastern territories, the food situation in Germany became increasingly worse. The entire German population had to suffer from the decreasing allotments of food rations. People in excellent health suffered considerable losses of weight without exception, which on the average amounted to 10 to 20 kilograms. Sick people, of course, were even more affected by the scarcity of food. It has been proved by statistics that particularly such sick persons who needed additional rations or a special diet were suffering a high mortality rate. That such a situation would also have its repercussions in a concentration camp is natural. Just during the time in question, the concentration camps had to accommodate prisoners who had been evacuated from other concentration camps in the east. A huge lot of people gathered there and everybody knows that even the very best organisation would hardly be able to feed such a crowd of people sufficiently. The present conditions in Germany illustrate these difficulties in the very best way. Today the fact cannot be denied that the food situation in many PW camps left something to be decided in the past two years, but what reasonable person would think of making the camp personnel responsible therefor? Here the situation is simply more powerful than the possibilities of alleviation. Therefore, I would issued a circular to the various work places to the effect that the beating of prisoners or foreign workers were strictly forbidden.

Although, as I already mentioned, Griesinger did not have anything to do with the care of the prisoners, I want to go into some details on behalf of all the accused. It has been testified by several persons that the food situation of the prisoners, at least part of them, was not too well, but I ask to consider that this concerns the time from the summer of 1944 until April 1945. think it a grave injustice to make one of the accused responsible for this who was in a subordinate position and who did not have any influence over these conditions.

To shed light upon the labor conditions in Germany in 1944 and 1945, I submit the following. Since the year 1942 every German was compelled to work and he only received a food ration card if he had an identification by the labor office saying that he had employment or was not able to work due to illness. The requirements of workers for industry and other war essential businesses were so excessively high that every German was already allocated to a job. The working time, formerly having amounted to the normal 8 hours, was increased to 12 hours.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess for 30 minutes.

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court, with the exception of Colonel Dickey, is present; that all the defendants are in court together with their counsel; the reporter and interpreter are here; and that the prosecution is represented.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

DR. ERGELNORN: At last I spoke of the situation of the German labor market, and I will now continue. The work time, formerly having amounted to the normal 8 hours, was increased to 12 hours. Among those allocated for work there were, of course, many people who could hardly work due to the bad food they received, but it was requested from them nevertheless. With this I merely want to prove that the prisoners were not allocated for work maliciously, but had to work merely due to the fact that there was such a grave lack of labor in Germany.

Finally, I want to enter into the character of Griesinger. There appeared several witnesses for Griesinger, who all without exception described Griesinger as a very decent and helpful person, who was not capable to harm anybody. Griesinger was a member of the Anthroposophic society, which is spread over all civilized countries of the world. The members of this society support all endeavors of humanity and are fighting for the human rights. They do not know any difference between nations or races. Everybody can join this society who places himself on the basis of their endeavors. We did also hear that Griesinger has never been a member of the Nazi party, that on the contrary he has always been a strict opponent of the party and was disgusted by the anti-semitic attitude of the Third Reich. We did also hear that Griesinger employed Jewish prisoners at his office management though this was prohibited, and that he treated those in a human way and not like prisoners and let them have all kinds of privileges. The witness, Fuchner, in whose home Griesinger was a frequent guest, testified that she gave food to the Jewish prisoners who came to her house, though it was strictly forbidden, and that Griesinger knew about this and consented to it. Griesinger was the last to consent to that kind of employment of these Jewish prisoners, but he did not have the slightest influence to be able to make any changes.

Somebody who has not been in Germany during the period of the Third Reich can hardly imagine how hard the pressure of the government was and how powerless the individual was against the measures of the government. Anybody who acted in contrast to the orders of the Third Reich was subject to the greatest dangers involving his life. I refer to the testimony of the Municipal Councillor for Constructions, Ulmer. He had been on duty as Captain, adjutant with an engineers staff in Rumania. He had friendly relations with Jews and upon imminent confiscation of the Jewish properties he helped his friends to hide these properties. For this act he was punished three years, and he lost his rank, being degrade private. Besides that he lost his position as Muni at Fellnbach near Stuttgart and at the same time all c and retirement.

Concluding, I would like to say that there is not a deed that could be classified as a war crime, that could be prov be committed by Griesinger, and that he did not have the slightest influence upon the conditions as they prevailed at Muehldorf, so that according to my opinion he cannot be proved guilty at all, and, therefore,
I ask for his acquittal.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If it please the court, for the accused Professor Giesler, I should like to point out to the court that at the outset the prosecution did very little with the case of Giesler and that can be shown from the amount of work that was put in on the summation. Of course there is always one way. If you don't have anything against anybody, you call him a liar. That is a trick that everybody knows. There was only one thing he did not call Giesler and that is "a Fascist." I was waiting for that. What did his witnesses--all the witnesses that were available for the use of the United States government in two years--what did they say about Giesler? I will tell you what they said. They said that Giesler was the head of Task Group 6. Here we have it over here (indicating chart). That wasn't denied. The defense never denied that, but said that Gimple was the man. There is the man, right there (indicating), who is responsible if anybody in Task Group 6 was responsible, and it wasn't Giesler.

The prosecutor commented upon the fact that Giesler said he had nothing to do with the task group that went up to Russia and Giesler said he didn't. As you remember, witnesses said that the office of Gimple went up to Russia but Giesler's office didn't. Then he makes a point of the fact that Giesler admitted under cross examination that he went up to Russia. Sure, he went up there for a couple of visits. So what? He went up to consult with some of his engineers. So what?

Was it on OT matters? Does the prosecution prove that?

No. No. They put a man on the stand and said:

"Q Was Giesler out at the main construction site?

"A Yes, he was out there at the laying of the cornerstone."

and then the defense proved--I think beyond the shadow of a doubt--that this didn't take place during the daytime; it took place at night. How could he be out there? This man didn't know a thing about it. He couldn't even identify him when he came in. He said he thought it was the man.

One man was damaging to Giesler. Baumgartel.

What kind of a man is Baumgartel? He was in this Task Group 6. He was the kind of a man who said he gave medicines to the prisoners and the prisoners were dying like flies. And that is the man who comes in here and puts the finger on somebody else. The prosecutor spoke about this man Baumgartel who had something to do with the roll call. He didn't say anything about this construction site over here (indicating). No; he didn't say anything about that. He talked about Kaufering and about a conference and did the prosecution bring out what Giesler did at that conference? I wonder why. Something he should have done. Something to do with that main construction site. They know better than I and better than you why they didn't bring out what he did at that conference. He was present, yes, but they didn't bring out what he did. And he was asked this question, on direct examination:

"Q When you say that this labor . . . were supplied by the OT, what unit of the OT supplied that labor, if you know?

"A I think there was a central office for the distribution of work in Berlin and labor was requested through this office there."

Where is that office? That wasn't here (indicating). That was up here (indicating) and he had nothing to do with that. This prize witness that was brought in here, the only one who could put the finger on Giesler, the only one. Who was it? Baumgartel. Here is the way the testimony runs, and I quote from the record.

"Q Do you know a man by the name of Giesler?

"A Yes.

"Q If you see him in this courtroom, will you please point him out.

"A For sure, I cannot say which one is Mr. Giesler.

"Q How many times have you seen Mr. Giesler in your lifetime?

"A Maybe ten times."

And then again they go on:

"Q I ask you again to look and see if you can pick out Giesler. Did he wear glasses?"

Now, I wonder why the prosecutor asked him that--"Did he wear glasses?" It so happens that a few seconds before Professor Giesler had put his glasses on and he is the only one of all the accused who has glasses. And let's see what the answer is.

"A As far as I know, never. That is where Mr. Giesler is sitting."

My goodness! Isn't that something now! All of a sudden he knows him. He says he had five or six conferences with him. Nobody present, and yet the secretary sat right at the same desk with Giesler all the time. Are we supposed to believe that man Baumgartel? Are we supposed to hang that man because he said that from the witness stand? I don't think this court will do that. No, I am sure they won't. This is an American court. This isn't a German court. They might do that in Germany, but not with us.

And then he spoke about medicines. He said Giesler could have done an awful lot about medicines, but who was the one who did the things about medicines? Baumgartel, of course. Whom would you expect? And he did it in spite of everything. He went and stuck his neck out to get these medicines and then of course, later on, on cross examination, he stated it was approved. It had been approved by somebody and he didn't say that Giesler approved it but he did say that this group up here (indicating) did approve it. He did say that. Sure, he didn't say Giesler said it. Why? Because he wasn't supposed to. He didn't come in here for that. He came in here to put the finger on him.

If it please the court, we claim that we have proved this chart is an accurate chart and we don't say that everything on it is the way it was. I mean, there were things left out. I was the one who made this chart. Why should I put Kaufering on there when it had nothing to do with this case? Wouldn't that be foolish? That would be almost as foolish as this chart over here (indicating) where they put three murderers on. Why didn't they put other people on there? I wonder if that was to influence the court?

We had a man get on the stand and testify about all this stuff over here (indicating) and he said he didn't know all that (indicating) and all down here (indicating). He was frank enough to say he didn't or he wasn't brought here to find out what Hoffmann did. He was up in Berlin. He knew what was going on around here (indicating). He knew the contact between the OT Central and Berlin and down here (indicating). But he didn't know what Hoffmann was supposed to do.

Did the prosecutor at any time catch that man in a lie? That is the test of a witness. No. Every time he asked him a question he gave him an answer, a direct answer, and right from the shoulder, the same with Giesler. And because he came back with an answer every time we are supposed to say now that he is a liar. What kind of witnesses do we want on the stand? The kind the prosecution produces? They don't know when things happened, and think that about this time or that time things happened. We put people on the stand and state this time this thing happened. This fellow Endroess testified:

"Q Isn't it a fact that the chief construction office was under Task Group 6?

"A Not all of it."

So what is wrong with that? I am not going along with Endroess' testimony because I believe the court knows all about that and there is no reason why I should have to reiterate that here.

I'd just like to comment upon a couple of things the prosecutor brought out in his closing argument. He said that Giesler had a passion for honors from his leader. Well, I don't think that was proved. Anything in the closing argument should have been proved during the trial. One witness here on the stand said she thought he had World War I medals. I don't know what Hitler had to do with World War I. He certainly got no honors in World War II. He admitted he had the Nazi badge. I don't think we are trying him for that here. It seems to me some other court should try him for that. We are trying him here for Muehldorf and nothing else.

If it please the court, as far as the accused Flocken is concerned, the defense is not going to be so foolish as to say that Dr. Flocken never entered any of these camps. We admit that. We admit that Dr. Flocken may have been very nosey. We know how women are, all of us, how they like to butt their noses into something that doesn't concern them. But there is a big difference between putting your nose into places where it doesn't belong and committing the crimes that this court is supposed to hang this woman for.

She admits that she was present at the time when Dr. Schmidt was there, when he selected people. That is in her own statement in the first Dachau case.

But the defense does maintain that she did not pick people out for a transport which later went to Auschwitz. The prosecutor has put quite a few statements in from people who weren't here. Of course the court realizes that after two years it is pretty hard to cross examine or get in touch with these people. But, here is a report of investigation of alleged war criminals by an investigating team. This, if it please the court, was made up under the auspices of the American government, by American Army people and people who didn't give a darn about anything but finding out the truth if they could. It wasn't made by anybody who was trying to hang people for something that had been done at a camp and trying to hang everybody connected with that camp. This report of investigation says: "The September and October transports went to Auschwitz to the gas chamber." Two, two transports went to Auschwitz. If it please the court, I beg of you to keep that in your mind. Two transports went to Auschwitz, September and October.

Dr. Gruenbaum, witness for the prosecution, said that Dr. Flocken was present at one of the selections. He said one transport was in October and he was very definite about that--that it was one, not two or three or four. He said one. He was definite about one and this man was a doctor there all through the time that Forest Camp 5 and 6 existed, so he should know how many transports went out of there for Auschwitz and he said it was one. If the court will recall, he was asked on direct examination to testify about it and he said these people were undressed--that means fully undressed--and they were in lines and Flocken went from one side and Dr. Schmidt went from the other side. He also testified, if it please the court, that at later times Dr. Schmidt, the SS doctor, came in by himself. So, this one time that Flocken was there and only one time he said she selected them.

Now we come to the witness Dr. Gruenbaum.

"Q Tell the court what an invalid transport is.

"A Weak people who were not able to work any more. Practically each month a commission came to pick out these people."

And Flocken was there once.

"Q Now, Doctor, did you see the accused Flocken at any of these selections?

"A Yes, in October 1944.

"Q I ask you, Doctor, to explain to the court exactly what Dr. Flocken did at these selections?

"A She was together with Dr. Schmidt. The people were lined up at the roll-call place. The male physician started to go through one row and the female physician went through the next row."

And then we wanted to find out how it was he knew that this transport went to Auschwitz. After all, if she selected people, for the sake of argument, and these people were to go to another camp to be built up, they weren't being sent to the gas chamber. I wonder if that was it? If she did select them, was it to go to some place to be built up? Let's find out from this doctor who says that this transport went to Auschwitz. When did he find out about it? "A few days later I was told that from Muehldorf . . . they were taken away to Auschwitz. I was told by the SS guard who escorted them there."

If she did pick out anybody and she didn't know they were going to Auschwitz, we can't hold her for that, not the American way anyhow.

Now, these people were going to be exterminated, and they were just about dying at the time she was sent out. Now, we are talking about Weisshaus, that friend of the doctor's.

"Q At the time that he was sent out, Doctor, what was his physical condition, good or bad?

A He wasn't so weak yet, but he had a little bit of edema."

In other words, he may have been sent away to be built up. They had those places in Germany, and I know the court knows about that.

"Q How many times did you see the selection of prisoners for a transport?

A There were several, September, October, November, January. They were every month.

Q How the ones that went to Auschwitz, how many of these were there?

A I knew of one. I know for sure they were picked out in October and went to Auschwitz.

Q Were you present when those people were selected for the transport?

A Yes.

Q Was that the only one that you were present at?

A I had to be present at every selection.

Q I am talking about the ones that went to Auschwitz. Was that the only one that you were present at, the one in October?

A I remember that was in October.

Q I ask you now is that the only one that you were present at?

A No, I was there several times always."

And how many went to Auschwitz? One in September and one in October—and this man says "several times". "Several" is more than two.

Now, we come to the witness, Eisler:

"Q Will you tell the court when this selection took place and where in which Dr. Flocken was involved?

A In any event, it was in Forest Camp V, but I do not know any more whether it was on the 20th of October or 15th of November 1944."

We have two transports going to Auschwitz—September and October—and now we have a witness that gets on the stand and says that there was one in October and one in November. And then we asked the witness, or he was asked rather by the prosecutor to tell the court about the selection, and he said, "they had to bare the upper half of their bodies". The first fellow testified they were all naked. This fellow says they bared only the upper half.

If it please the court, she says that she was at one of them—October or November—one—and he was there all that time. What was this fellow? He was the clerk in the camp. He didn't know what was going on. He did know that there was a selection, and he only knew there was one. He was there all the time and Flocken says she was only at one, but they seem to disagree. Ordinarily, this might not mean anything. One fellow says they were naked, and one says that they were only half naked. My goodness, are we going to hang somebody on the testimony of people that don't agree? And this fellow says that the prisoners had to form lines, about 10 in a row, and Schmidt came from one side and Flocken from the other side, so we have two different ways of doing it again. He says Flocken was on one side and Schmidt on the other, and this was testimony on cross examination of the same witness.

"Q. Do you remember being asked this question and having given this answer . . .?"

And this was in reference to Lt. Hughes interrogating him in our office:

"Q Do you know how the orders were received as to the transport? And I might add this had reference to the transport which left 20 October or 15 November, and your answers We had to send a daily report about our activities to Dachau. It had to contain the number of prisoners on work details, the number of prisoners in the camp and sick prisoners, and if there was a considerable number of sick prisoners in the camp, Dr. Schmidt used to come from Dachau to select the prisoners for the sick transport. Do you remember that question and do you remember giving that answer?

A Yes.

Q Is that true?

A Yes."

Again:

"Q Were you on that particular occasion asked this question, and did you give this answer: Then after the prisoners you say were selected for the transport had departed from your camp, you did not see them any more, is that correct?

A No, but I want to stress, I do not maintain she knew of the purpose for which these prisoners were selected. In other words, she could have been under the same impression that Ansor was.

That is the man that is here but he has never been tried. He is here, but he is not on trial. "Schmidt knew of the purpose, that was quite sure. I do not know whether she knew." And his next answer: "I would like to make a point of the word 'stress'. I cannot say I remember having used that word."

"Q All I want to know is, on that occasion when you gave that answer, was it true as far as you know?

A At that time, Yes, but I arrived here on the Tuesday, and on the Wednesday I was called in to see the Lieutenant. In the meantime I have had an opportunity to refresh my memory considerably concerning events I experienced at that time, and today, not only today, I am quite sure that Dr. Flocken knew what the purpose of this was", etc.

So after he had time to refresh his memory he knew, and when he got on the stand he remembered.

"Q Do you know where the transport on the 20th of October went to?

A We never were informed about the exact destination of the transports."

"A Yes, I remember. It says that we were never officially informed."

"Q Do you know where the transport went that left on 15 November 1[illegible]?

A I do not know any more than the first transport, I can only assume the same thing.

Q Was there any prisoner in the camp who would have officially known where these transports were going?

A It could only have been possible in case a prisoner had spoken to an SS guard or any member of the guard detail after they came back."

And we are asked to hang this woman for something, if it did happen, it happened once, and the prosecution did not know that she knew where it was going; and then I would like to read to the court the answers that he gave to the court later on when the court asked him about this. There must have been some question in the court's mind.

"Q Did you know what these people were selected for at the time?

A Me?

Q Yes, You.

A I was absolutely certain for what they were picked out."

Now, there have been other witnesses that have testified about transports, too, as a matter of fact, one prisoner who was in the hospital was there about a month, and he said she came in, and every day when she came in she made notes in a notebook, and that was ostensibly for a transport, so I guess that transport left every day. It may have been that she was trying to find out why they were sick and, of course, she won't get credit for that. I wouldn't blame these witnesses, and if I had been in a concentration camp as long as these witnesses were, I might do the same thing, maybe a little bit worse, but it is up to this court to do justice.

And then the prosecution made big time about this woman that was operated on with primitive instruments because Dr. Flocken wouldn't let Jews into the Schwindorf hospital. She didn't like Jews. No, she didn't like Jews, but a month or so before she contacted the civilian hospital, and that wasn't her duty. She contacted the civilian hospital to admit a man there to be operated on for the same thing, and did they take him? Yes, and how did we find that out? We were lucky. They kept that record in the hospital, and that was the only way we could do it. We produced that record, and it showed that man was admitted on Dr. Flocken's order. Did she have any right to do it? No, she didn't have any right to do it. She did it because she hated Jews. He was saved. And later on they called up and wanted to send somebody to Schwindegg hospital. If they could have taken anybody in the beginning, why didn't that man go there? It certainly proves that they couldn't take him there, so she got him into the civilian hospital; and then we hear about a telephone call. This is hearsay evidence piling up and piling up and piling up with nothing to base it on. We even had a witness on the stand here that said a transport left on the 28th of March to go to Auschwitz and yet, Gentlemen, we have this from our own people—September and October—and I am inclined to believe that if anything. I don't say that it is accurate all the way through. At least, it is not biased; at least, it is the truth as they know it.

This man also testified that there were several transports around March that went to Auschwitz. They all go to Auschwitz, and how do they know it—from hearsay. And then we have another witness, Kapin:

"Q Go ahead and tell the court what happened."

It is very easy for these people to tell the court what happened. What can we do to the defense against things like this:

> "A We always knew that when Frau Flocken was coming to see us that something would happen because she was the one that picked out the people who were to be sent to the crematory."

You get witness after witness—and yet how many transports went to Auschwitz? Two. Here is a man, this same man was in the hospital 30 days, and while he was there for 30 days two transports went out to Auschwitz. They must have been going out every other day.

" And who was the camp leader?

A Gabel."

He knew Flocken's name, but he didn't know the camp leader's name. Talking about a transport:

"Q Did you see the transport?

A Yes."

"Q Were there any people in there who were not sick?

A Yes, many."

"Q Who were not sick?

A Yes, Yes, they came from the rest block, and they only got weak from eating."

If it please the court, we contend that Flocken was there once at a selection, and she was there as an onlooker; she was there as a busy-body. She had no right there, we know that. We try to keep these women out of a lot of places where they shouldn't be. So the prosecution wants to hang this woman because she was in the wrong place.

Now, the prosecution spoke about all these people being killed at Muehldorf. We have no way of checking on the figures. What can the defense do? But the prosecution never told where these people came from and the prosecution never told how long they had been in other concentration camps. The prosecution never said how weak they were when they came there. I wonder if it is possible that these people were pretty well on the road to dying when they got to Muehldorf. Maybe that had something to do with it.

Now, the prosecution told about the medicines that the Americans found when they came into Muehldorf. Evidence has been brought out to show that these medicines were received a few days before the end.

Certainly, there were lots of medicines--medicines that were received two or three days before the end of the war before the Americans came in. The prosecutor said that it was up to the people at Muehldorf to kill these people; that is what they were there for, to kill these people. For what were they building that place at the main construction site? Doesn't it seem sound and sensible that they would try to keep them alive? We don't say that they didn't, but it shows that their only purpose wasn't to kill them.

Now, as far as signin these requisitions for medicines, I am not going to touch on them because I believe the evidence has been brought out by the prosecution that if Flocken signed any requisitions for medicines, she wasn't doing it because it was her duty. In a little way she might have thought she was doing a big thing, but we know it was insignificant, but she was doing something to try to help out, if she could, in a very small way, and it didn't do any good because these people were in a bad way, but she did try to do something, and I believe, if it please the court, that should be taken into consideration; and on this transport, she was there all right. We can't deny that; we don't want to deny that, but were all the different people that testified they were there correct that the doctor was there at one time or another? We even had one man that said they were in lines coming up. If the court will recall now, it couldn't have happened two or three ways. There could have been only one way it happened. Yes, there were two selections, there is no doubt about that. This fellow, Schmidt, did that, but she didn't do it, and the witnesses got the thing confused. She was at the camp. Yes; she was there many times, and as far as these female witnesses are concerned, the court knows as well as I do there is no scorn like a woman's scorn for another woman.

Mr. [illegible]: If it please the court, I would like permission of the court for the use of three minutes to present my argument. I want to compliment the court on the manner in which this trial has been conducted. I would like to emphasize the [illegible] patient attention and intense interest which it has given each and every witness that has appeared upon the witness stand.

This has been a long, drawn out, and tough ordeal. It has been hard and tough on each and every one of us. That, I feel that the court because of its close attention to detail, the extreme impartiality of its rulings, is as aware of the facts pertinent to this case as I am, and I deem it strictly unnecessary for me to attempt to clarify the maze of evidence presented to this court, as I feel that this court is perfectly capable of arriving at a just decision without my attempting to enlighten it, and I assure the court I don't intend to belittle the intelligence of this court by attempting to do so.

There is just one thing that I would like to ask the court for before I rest--it is a question. If, through some fortuitous circumstance this court would find itself in the same position as these defendants, would the members of this court be willing to be judged by men in the same frame of mind as you are. If so, on behalf of the [illegible], I personally fear no fault of this court.

[illegible] to present anything further to present?

[illegible]: The prosecution has nothing further.

[illegible] the defense at this time?

[illegible]: Not any further.

[illegible]: The court will be closed.

(Whereupon the court was closed at 1635 hours.)

PRESIDENT: During the recess, it is desired that the accused who was acquitted, be removed from the courtroom under guard.

Court will recess for thirty minutes.

(whereupon at 1010 hours the court recessed until 1040 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1040 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present, with the exception of Lt.Col.Dickey: the defendants are all present together with counsel: The court interpreter and the court reporter are also present, and the prosecution is represented.

PRESIDENT: The court will receive evidence of previous convictions and any extenuating circumstances.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution has no evidence of previous convictions.

PRESIDENT: Do any of the accused desire to give evidence of extenuating circumstances, or make any further statement to the court?

LT.[illegible]: I have one defendant sir, who would like to make a statement to the court. Also two others say they do, Gottenling, Spaeth, and I believe Bayha.

[illegible]: They will take the stand.

Will the interpreter admonish the defendant that he is - that any statement he has to make is limited and he is not to touch on the facts that have been brought up on the case, subject to cross-examination.

[illegible]: Yes,sir.

under bad conditions, and they were housed there. Since,my wife has no parents, and I only have an old motherand she is dependent on the house support. My wife was sent from Russia with a sick transport to Roumania. The women were undernourished and sick and they were brought to the hospital in Hermannstadt. My wife was raped in Russia and was brought - and she gave birth to a baby, then she was brought from Russia to Hermannstadt, with that baby, in a sick condition, and a few days afterwards she died from typhus. My poor children are left all alone, and they have no one , and they are waiting for me to go home. I have not been a member of the Party, and I never had a previous conviction. I have been in custody now for two years and it is four years since I have been home last. Before that I had been four years with the Roumanian Army, and I could only spend time with my family during my furlough, so it is now almost eight years that I have been away from my family, and I beg this court to give me mild punishment in order that I can return home to my children soon again. They have no one: even my brother is still a prisoner.

PRESIDENT: Is that all?

ACCUSED GOTTCHLING: Yes.

PRESIDENT: You may be excused.

(Whereupon the said defendant was excused and resumed his seat in the prisoner's dock.)

PRESIDENT: Do any of the other accused desire to give evidence of extenuating circumstances, or make any further statement to the court?

LT. HUGHES: The accused Spaeth desires to make a statement.

PRESIDENT: Will the interpreter warn the witness in the same way as the other?

(Whereupon the interpreter did as directed.)

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

ACCUSED HERBERT SPAETH: My name is Herbert walter Kurt Spaeth. I am 28 years of age. My profession is merchant. After five years duty in the German Army, I was wounded by a grenade splinter and lost my right eye sight, and lost the hearing in my right ear. Through that injury I was not able to perform any more duties in the front lines, and the firm I worked for in Brandenberg asked for my release from the Army. This application was refused, and in the year 1944 I was transferred to the Waffen SS to do duty with concentration camp Dachau. From there I was transferred to the out-camp of Muehldorf. I am the only son of my parents and my home is in Brandenberg-Havel. My parents I have not seen for three years,,and they are still there, and in the Spring of 1944 they lost everything through the war . They are both sick, and at an age when they need me to support them. I have never got into any conflict with the law during my time of being a soldier, and also during the time of being a civilian, and I have never been punished. I myself have been in American custody since 5 May 1945. I had the chance several times to escape, and also I could have been discharged as a member of the German Army if I hadn't have told them that I was amember of the Waffen SS. I did not do that because I have always gone through life as an honest man, and I like to satisfy my own conscience. I therefore ask this court to take those circumstances into consideration when passing my sentence.

PRESIDENT: You may be seated.

(Whereupon the defendant was excused and resumed his seat in the prisoners' dock.)

PRESIDENT: Do any of the other accused desire to introduce evidence of extenuating circumstances or make any further statement to the court?

DR. ENGELHORN. On behalf of the accused Wilhelm GRIESINGER, I ask that this document be marked for identification as Defense Exhibit D-45.

(Whereupon the document referred to was marked Defense Exhibit D-45 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: No objection.

DR.ENGELHORN: I offer this document in evidence. It is a letter from Alexander Strakosch, dated 26 April 1947, and I request that it be received in evidence as Defense Exhibit D-43.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

PRESIDENT: What is the date?

DR.ENGELHORN: 26 April 1947.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the letter from Alexander Strakosch, marked Defense Exhibit D-43 will be received in evidence and marked Defense Exhibit D-43.

(The documentheretofore marked Defense Exhibit D-43 for identification was received in evidence as Defense Exhibit D-43, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

DR. ENGELHORN: I ask the interpreter to read this letter to the court because it is only in English here.

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

(Whereupon the interpreter read Defense Exhibit D-43 to the court in the English language.)

DR. ENGELHORN: I now ask that this document be marked for identification as Defense Exhibit D-44.

(whereupon the document referred to was marked Defense Exhibit D-44 for identification).

DR. ENGELHORN: The defense counsel now offers in evidence this letter which is from Auguste UNGER, of Dornack, dated April, 1947, and requests that it be marked Defense Exhibit D-44.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the document will be received in evidence and marked Defense Exhibit D-44.

DR. ENGELHORN: I request that the letter be read by the interpreter since it is only here in English.

PRESIDENT: YOU may proceed.

(whereupon the interpreter read Defense Exhibit D-44 to the court in English.)

PRESIDENT: Does any other accused desire to offer any evidence of extenuating circumstances or make any further statement to the court?

DR.LEILING: On behalf of the accused Karl GICKELEITER, I want to calla witness.

TIBOR DEMBIK, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION:

QUESTIONS BY DR.LEILING:

Q What is your name?

A Tibor Dembik.

Q Where do you live?

A In Muehldorf.

Q What is your nationality?

A Hungarian.

Q What is your religion?

A Jewish.

DR LEILING: Mr Dembik, I want you to testify only as to the personal character of Mr Gickeleiter.

WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY DR.LEILING:

Q Were you ever a prisoner in Mettenheim?

A I was a prisoner in Mettenheim myself.

Q Do you know the accused Jickeleiter?

A I know him - I knew him while I was a prisoner, by name.

Q Since when did you know him personally?

A After the liberation.

Q Would you tell the court about the personal character of Mr.Griesinger?

A I can testify that I was a male nurse in the hospital, and my comrade Dr Sanbotage spoke very often about Mr Gickeleiter as a person. He was a doctor in the main construction site, and he told me very often that Mr Gickeleiter had spoken to him. He told me very often that he was surprised that such a human being is still in existence in the third Reich. Later, after the liberation, I heard from Dr. Sanbotage that Mr Gickeleiter had been arrested, and Dr Sanbotage said to me "I feel it is my duty to help Mr Gickeleiter now", which he did with several of his comrades who were still present at Sachsburg at that time, so Mr Gickeleiter was set free again. Afterwards I myself investigated his personal character, and this investigation turned out to be negative and as far as he personally was concerned, there was no incriminating testimony.

Q Testimony by whom?

A By the other prisoners.

Q In what capacity did you make these investigations?

A As an investigator for Military Government.

DR. LEILING: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Mr Dembik, do you know a man by the name of Alfons Baer?

DR. LEILING: I object to this, and don't think it is proper cross examination to bring new things out here when it is only a question of mitigation.

[illegible]: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q At the time that the proceedings took place at the denazification board, were there any persons who appeared against Gickeleiter?

DR. LEILING: I object again because that was not brought out on direct examination. He never talked about a denazification board.

(DEMBIK-cross)

LAW MEMBER: Subject to objection by any member of the court, the objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know whether or not Dr.Saabetage ever treated Mr Gickeleiter's children?

A Yes, I know that from the time that I was a prisoner/

Q Can you tell this court towards whom Gickeleiter ever showed any kindness or consideration, except to Dr. Saabetage?

A I know a man by the name of Nagel, but he is back in Hungary.

Q Well then, go ahead and tell the court what he did for Nagel?

A I don't know that. Nagel was working on the main construction site.

Q Isn't it a fact that Nagel was in the office of Gickeleiter?

A Yes.

Q Yes. And isn't it a matter of fact that Nagel was a clerk for Gickeleiter? Isn't that so?

A Yes, I heard he was working for Mr Gickeleiter.

PROSECUTION: That's all.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR.LEILING:

Q But you stated before that you had taken the testimony of many prisoners during that investigation, is that right?

A Yes, I myself was interested in this case.

Q And did these people not say good things about Mr Gickeleiter?

A Mr Gickeleiter was a pretty big man on the main construction site, and only the people who worked on softer details got to know Mr Gickeleiter, and those people spoke about the humane treatment they got from him/

Q Were those prisoners?

A Yes.

DR.LEILING: I have no further questions.

PROSECUTION: I have.

(DEMBIK-redirect)

Tahe 208, SQ Muehldorf.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION:

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I want you to tell the court, any person who so expressed himself, with respect to Mr Gickeleiter, and give us his address?

A Most of the people went back to Hungary.

Q Well, give us one?

A Dr.Mende.

Q When did this investigation take place?

A It took place right after the liberation.

Q Why did you make an investigation?

A There was an order by Military Government that everybody would submit a questionaire.

Q And you were working for Military Government at that time?

A Yes.

Q And Military Government investigated Mr Gickeleiter?

A Yes.

Q Will you tell us what detachment of Military Government that was?

A Yes, Muehldorf.

Q Who else was it besides this other Doctor who gave you a statement about Mr Gickeleiter?

A There were several ten thousands of people, and I spoke to quite a few of them.

Q Did you report to Military Government?

A Yes.

Q And you mentioned names on that report?

A I think so but I cannot quite remember.

Q You made a report to Military Government but yet you don't remember what you stated in that report?

A That was two years back. I said that even though Mr Gickeleiter had been a party member since 1929, the prisoners and even the German population also, could only say good things about him.

(DEMEK-recess)

Q Was Gauleiter in custody at that time?

A Before that, yes.

Q Who was it who took him into custody?

A I think the C.I.C.

Q The C.I.C. took him into custody and yet the Military Government was making an investigation?

A Yes, the C.I.C. arrested him and then let him out again, and afterwards, after he had filled out his fragebogen - his questionnaire, the case was being investigated because there was a political question there.

Q Did I understand you to say that Military Government investigated every questionnaire that came into your office?

A Yes.

Q How many questionnaires came into your office while you were at Military Government?

A Several tens of thousands.

Q And Military Government investigated ten thousand questionnaires?

DR. LEILING: I object to this. It is getting right off the substance of this case. It is common knowledge that Military Government investigated practically every questionnaire.

PROSECUTION: I would like to answer Dr.Leiling. I am a former Military Government Officer, and I know that Military Government did not investigate all these questionnaires, and that many of them went to Berlin.

PRESIDENT: Do you know that for testimony?

PROSECUTION: I offer that in contravention of Dr.Leiling's statement.

DR.LEILING: I was in Military Government too and I know that they did./

PROSECUTION: All right then. I withdraw the question. That's all.

(DEMBIK-recess)

PRESIDENT: Is there anything further?

LT. HUGHES: The defense has nothing further.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution has nothing further.

PRESIDENT: Court will be closed.

(Whereupon at 1115 hours the court was closed.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the entire personnel of the court is present with the exception of Lt.Col.Dickey; that all the defendants are without the courtroom pending sentence: that their counsel are in court, together with the court reporter and the court interpreter, and that the prosecution is represented.

PRESIDENT: All spectators are cautioned not to make any demonstration after the sentences are announced by the court.

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, the Prosecution is ready to proceed with the case of the United States of America against Jurgen Stroop and 21 other defendants. May it please the Court, there are two interpreters to be sworn, Mr. Rudolf M. Nathanson and Mr. Rudolph H. Schubert.

PRESIDENT: Mr. Rudolf M. Nathanson and Mr. Rudolph H. Schubert have been appointed as court interpreters. They will be sworn.

(Whereupon Rudolf M. Nathanson and Rudolph H. Schubert, U. S. Civilians, were sworn as court interpreters.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, there are six court reporters to be sworn, Miss Patricia Stewart,

Mr. Irving Hayett, Mrs. Sally Rose Hayett, Miss Imogene D. Butler, Mr. John MacDonald, and Miss Paula Silverman as interpreters of the accused.

PRESIDENT: Miss Patricia Stewart, Mr. Irving Hayett, Mrs. Sally Rose Hayett, Miss Imogene D. Butler, Mrs. John MacDonald and Miss Paula Silverman have been appointed as court reporters. They will be sworn now. I am informed

(Whereupon Patricia Stewart, Irving Hayett, Sally Rose Hayett, Imogene D. Butler, John MacDonald, and Paula Silverman, U. S. Civilians, were sworn as court reporters.)

PROSECUTION: Whom does the accused desire to introduce as counsel in addition to the regularly appointed counsel?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The accused, may it please the court, are represented by myself, Colonel Gerhan, Major Saxon, Mr. Rachel, the three regularly appointed American Defense Counsels. In addition, there are four German counsels here. The lady is Dr. Frost. Next to her is Dr. Ruj; then comes Dr. Duerger, then Dr. Aheimer. Does the Court desire me to make that statement now in advance of the denazification boards concerned?

LAW MEMBER: Yes, I did. And further, if any of said

DEFENSE COUNSEL: With respect to the four German counsels--Dr. Frost, I am informed, is exempt by virtue of her nationality from the normal denazification proceedings. The remaining three, the three men, have now pending before their denazification boards their application for permission to practice before the German courts. All three of them were members of the German court. Final action on their petition for the right to practice now is still pending before the denazification boards and have not been completed. Mens of them have been barred from practicing at the present time. All four have appeared in the past before military commissions. Each of them has been requested specifically by various members of the accused. In view of all those circumstances, I request on behalf of the accused and the German counsels concerned, permission from the Court for them to appear as attorneys before this Court for this particular case only. I am informed that the Prosecution has no objection.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution has no objection.

PRESIDENT: Based upon the statements made by the Chief Defense Counsel, and there being no objections on the part of the Prosecution, the German nationals now presented to this Court as special counsel for certain of the accused are authorized by this Court to appear and represent as counsel the accused requesting them as special counsel in this case, with the understanding that each special counsel will present to this Court his credentials showing him qualified to practice before this Court as soon as their individual cases now pending before the denazification boards concerned are completed. And further, if any of said special counsel are disqualified by action of their denazification boards while this case is pending, said special counsel shall immediately notify this Court.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 1 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 1 for identification.)

PRESIDENT: If there is any person in the Court who has been called as a witness in this case or who may be called as a witness, they will now leave the Court and remain outside the Court room until called as a witness.

PROSECUTION: We ask the Court to make an exception in that case in the case of four American witnesses which will be called by the Prosecution, Captain Eric Mohlgut, Captain Thomas S. Smith, Mr. Kurt Tiel and Mr. Gerald Coates. Those will only be called for identifying signatures on statements made by the Accused, but they are working with the Prosecution's team, and it is desired that they be allowed to remain in Court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: The exception is granted.

PROSECUTION: I now offer in evidence this document which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 1 for identification, the letter appointing counsel in this case.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objections.

PROSECUTION: And I ask that it be made a part of the record and that the Prosecution be permitted to read the same.

PRESIDENT: There being no objection, the letter appointing counsel, marked Prosecution's Exhibit 1 for identification will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 1, followed by a translation into German.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 2 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 2 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: I now offer in evidence this document which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 2 for identification, the order referring this case to this Court, and request that it be made a part of the record and that it by the Prosecution be permitted to read the same.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: There being no objection, the order referring this case to this Court will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 2, followed by a translation into German.)

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the following members of the Court are present:

Brigadier General Emil C. Kiel, AC, President USA
Lt. Colonel Frank A. Hunter, Inf., Legal Member
Colonel Gilbert E. Ackerman, Cav.
Colonel Harry R. Pierce, CAC
Colonel William W. Robertson, Inf.
Colonel Jacob E. Bechtold, TC
Colonel Earle B. Dunning, AC
Lt. Colonel Edward B. Walker, AC

The general nature of the charges and particulars in this case is as follows: There are 10 charges. Number one accuses all of the defendants of participating in a common design and a criminal conspiracy, particularly by dissemination of illegal orders which brought about the mistreatment and killing of surrendered and unarmed prisoners of war, and all of this occurred between the 8th day of December 1941 and the 8th of May, 1945. Charge Two alleges that all of the accused were, after the first of September, 1939, members of certain organizations declared criminal by the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg, with knowledge that those organizations were being used in the commission of acts declared criminal by that tribunal or were personally implicated in the commission of those acts. Charges Three to Ten allege certain specific murders committed on certain dates at certain places, and being murders of surrendered and unarmed prisoners of war, all of which occurred in Germany during the war.

The prosecution will not call any member of the Court as a witness. Will the Accused call any members of the Court as a witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The Accused will not call any member of the Court as a witness.

PROSECUTION: Has any member of the Court a personal interest in this case?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that Lt. Colonel Frank A. Hunter, a member of this Court, is an officer with legal training.

PRESIDENT: The Court has satisfied itself that it is properly constituted under the laws and rules governing Military Government Courts and has jurisdiction over the persons and offenses of the Accused. If either the Prosecution or Defense has any ground for challenge of any member, it is requested that it be disclosed now.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution has no challenges.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the Court, the Defense has a challenge to the entire Court which, by arrangement, it will present later on in the proceedings, after the charges have been read.

PRESIDENT: The Court is declared to be properly constituted.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Perhaps for the sake of the record, I ought to state that we have no individual challenges against individual members of the Court for the reasons normally given.

PROSECUTION: As the Prosecution understands, by the remarks of the Defense, speaking of the challenge of the Court, the Defense is referring to a motion attacking jurisdiction.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That's all, and I wanted to make it plain that that was the only ground.

PRESIDENT: The trial will be conducted in open Court. Let the record show that by agreement all interlocutory questions arising during this trial will be decided by the President of the Court, subject to the objection of any member of the Court.

The Accused will now be interrogated as to their names, [illegible], residences, nationalities and status.

PROSECUTION: At this point, I would like to call the court's attention to Military Government Regulations, Title 5, particularly Rule 5-327.7, which is entitled, "Trial in Absentia." That rule reads as follows:

"In the event of the accused not appearing before the court, the following action may be taken -- and in this connection, I am referring to the absent accused, Leonard Brenner, No. 1?

"If it is proved that the accused was duly served with a summons to appear, the court may proceed with the trial in his absence, and may, if it considers the case against him proved, record a conviction and sentence."

May it please the court, the accused Leonard Brenner was not served with a process in this case. Paragraph b of the rule provides as follows:

"If it is not so proved but the court is satisfied that, after reasonable steps have been taken to find and summon the accused, he cannot be found, the court may proceed in his absence up to but not beyond the recording of evidence and making any order permitted under Sub-rule (e) of this Rule. In the event of the accused being subsequently brought before the court, such recorded evidence shall be admissible as evidence in the case, provided that the accused shall be entitled to cross examine any of the original witnesses for the prosecution whose attendance can be procured (in which case the prosecution shall be entitled to re-examine) and both the prosecution and the accused shall be entitled to introduce additional evidence.

"Sub-paragraph (e). In either of the above cases, the court shall appoint an officer of the U. S. Forces or other suitable person to represent the defense."

We therefore request the court at this time to appoint the regularly appointed American defense counsel to represent the absent accused, Leonard Brenner. May it please the court, on behalf of the Government, I have investigated the absence of the accused Brenner, and it has been reported to me that on or about the 31st of August, 1946, he escaped from Dachau prison camp. Efforts have been made to re-apprehend him, but he has not been discovered. We are present [illegible] by verbal order of PRESIDENT: Has the defense any statement?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Just this, may it please the Court, that Paragraph b referred to calls for a finding of fact on a very important issue by this court, if this court is satisfied, and I find myself unable to agree on the bare statement by the prosecution that there is a sufficient basis of fact for such a finding.

PRESIDENT: Will you call the witness?

PRESIDENT: Have you anything further to offer?

PROSECUTION: During the recess I telephoned War Crimes Headquarters in Augsburg and spoke to Mr. Stegner, who previously handled the preparation and investigation of this case. He told me that efforts were made from the time of the escape of Leonard Brammer on until the present time, and are still being made, to reapprehend him. If further evidence is desired by the court there are available at this time the chief of the Screening Section here in Dachau and one of the civilian investigators from War Crimes Headquarters in Augsburg, who will testify about the escape of Leonard Brammer.

PRESIDENT: Will you call the witness?

CAPTAIN VANCE: Call Major Brooks.

PROSECUTION: On behalf of the prosecution, Captain Vance will interrogate the two witnesses now.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I address to the court that it was not the intention of the accused or myself speaking for the accused to challenge the fact that this man escaped from Dachau. What troubled me was the second and third phrases in that section which discusses the necessity for reasonable steps to reapprehend and serve the accused, so that if the purpose of these witnesses is merely to prove the escape --

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Please state your name.

A Kurt Teil.

Q By whom are you employed? personally play in the

A United States Army, War Crimes Group;

Q In which place? Lechfeld when Captain Sloan came

A In Augsburg. I heard him talk on the phone to

Q Are you familiar with and did you investigate the escape of one prisoner named Leonard Kraemer?

A Yes I heard him talk on the telephone to the Augsburg Police and to [illegible] Germans of this case.

Q Are you familiar with what efforts have been made to reapprehend the accused Branner?

A I know that Captain Sloan from the control section in Augsburg has notified Third Army Provost Marshal.

Q Do you know what if any efforts this Captain Sloan has made to apprehend the accused Branner?

A Captain Sloan came down here to Dachau to investigate the escape, and he talked to people over here at the hospital, trying to find out how Branner got out of the hospital, and he tried to get some leads as to the possible whereabouts from people in the hospital.

Q As of yesterday had the accused Branner been reapprehended?

A No.

Q Is an effort still being made to apprehend the accused Branner?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions. Cross examination.

CROSS EXAMINATION:

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What part, if any, did you personally play in the effort to reapprehend Branner?

A I was in the SS bunker when Captain Sloan came down from Augsburg, and I heard him talk on the phone to the hospital.

Q I am sorry. I didn't hear you.

A I heard him talk on the telephone to the hospital here and to the several security officers of this camp.

(Teil - Cross)

I don't know their names.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you read that answer, please?

(Whereupon the answer was read by the reporter as follows:

"A . I heard him talk on the telephone to the hospital here and to the several security officers of this camp. I don't know their names."

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What else?

A Well, I know that Captain Sloan has called the Third Army Provost Marshal from Augsburg, told him about the escape, and asked him to undertake--make every effort to recapture and reapprehend him.

Q How do you know he made those telephone calls?

A I heard him. I heard him.

Q So that your knowledge of the efforts to reapprehend Branner consist of the fact that you heard one Captain Sloan talk on the telephone to certain people in the hospital here and you heard him telephone to various provost marshals in different territorial sections, telling of the escape and asking them to reapprehend Branner; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And that is a fair statement of your complete knowledge of the efforts made to reapprehend Branner and to serve him with notice of trial in this case; is that correct?

A Well, I know that they tried to recapture him. I don't know anything about the --

PRESIDENT: The court is satisfied that reasonable steps have been taken, and the court will proceed in absentia in the case of Leonard Brenner. The court appoints the regularly appointed defense counsel to defend the accused Leonard Brenner.

PROSECUTION: Subject to any objection by the defense, it is requested that all arguments on questions of law be recorded and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: It is so ordered.

Precedent - You are advised that under the law of Military Government you are entitled in this court to the following:

1. To have, in advance of trial, a copy of the charges upon which you will be tried.

2. To be present at your trial, to give evidence, and to examine or cross examine any witnesses.

3. To consult counsel before trial and to conduct your own defense or to be represented at the trial by counsel of your own choice, subject to the right of this court to debar any person from appearing before it.

4. In any case in which a sentence of death may be imposed to be represented by a member or civilian attorney of the United States Forces and such other counsel as the accused may designate.

5. To bring with you to this trial such material witnesses in your own defense as you may wish, or to have them summoned by the court at your request, if practicable.

6. To apply to the court for an adjournment where necessary to enable you to prepare your defense.

7. To have the proceedings translated when you are otherwise unable to understand the language in which they are conducted.

8. In the event of conviction, to file a petition for review to the appointing authority setting forth grounds why the findings and sentence should be set aside or modified.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes, except, of course, in the case of Brunner.

PRESIDENT: There being no objection on the part of the prosecution, the defense and the court, the reading of the charges and particulars in the English language is dispensed with and the interpreter is directed to read the charges and particulars to the accused in the German language.

(Whereupon the interpreter read the charges and particulars in the German language.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, at this time the defense presents for the consideration of this court a motion challenging the jurisdiction of the court over the cause and over the persons named in the charges and particulars. I have here in writing a motion which I should like to read and then invite the consideration of the court. A copy of this was given to the prosecution yesterday. It is captioned,

"Dachau, Germany, case number12-2000, 9 January 1947, United States against Jurgen Stroop and others."

"MOTION

1. Now come several of the accused as named hereafter and move to quash the Particulars and Charges brought against them and for reasons assigns the following:

a. That Jurgen Stroop, Hans Trummler, Otto Hermann, Arthur Fuchr, Hans Eichel, Johann Kiwitt, Wilhelm Albrecht, Philip Hamann, Bernhard Fay, Georg Best, Julius Lassak, Frits Sirks, Heins Hellenbroich, Erwin Goss and Matthias Michely were members of units recognised as an intregal part of the armed forces at the several times the offences with which they are charged were alleged to have been committed.

b. That Jurgen Stroop, Hans Trummler, Otto Hermann, Arthur Fuchr, Hans Eichel, Johann Kiwitt, Wilhelm Albrecht, Philip Hamann, Bernhard Fay, Georg Best, Julius Lassak, Frits Sirks, Heins Hellenbroich, Erwin Goss and Matthias Michely not only were members of units recognised as intregal parts of the German armed forces at the times and under the circumstances as set forth in Paragraph 1a but were also members of the armed forces at the time of their captures.

c. That Erwin Goss the not only a member of the armed forces at the time and under the circumstances as set forth in Paragraph 1a and b but has not yet been discharged as a member of the German armed forces."

The motion is signed by myself, William Berman, Lieutenant Colonel, Air Corps, Defense Counsel.

I am informed that last night or early this morning a discharge from the German armed forces was effected in the case of this man Goss, I imagine by some officials connected with War Crimes. I will admit that whoever procured the discharge was legally authorised to do so.

By this motion, may it please the court, the defense and the accused named in that motion challenge the jurisdiction and the authority of this court, not only of the causes as set forth in the particulars and charges as just read into the record, but also challenges the authority and jurisdiction of this court over them personally. The defense will always seek to avoid extended arguments on any motion and will content itself likewise in that case with two or three sentences as the basis of the motion.

It is the contention of the accused that the Geneva Convention established the procedures and the causes and circumstances under which members of military forces of enemy nationals can be tried by, for example, the United States. It is our contention that rights so established by the Geneva Convention cannot be taken away by any action of certain subscribing parties to the Geneva Convention for anything they did subsequent to the Geneva Convention. It is our understanding that under the terms of the Geneva Convention, members of armed forces of any national, as in this case, Germany, when tried by a capturing government, must be tried by that capturing government for offenses committed while they were members of hostile armed forces in accordance with the procedures and the rules and regulations laid down for the trial of members of the armed forces of the capturing national.

Trial by military commissions such as this court, under the rules of procedure and evidence and so on which govern this court, would be absolutely illegal for the trial by an American commission or a member of the United States armed forces for an act committed while a member of the armed forces. It is therefore our contention that it is likewise illegal to try in this way by this court under the rules governing this court the men who were named in the motion since they were members of units recognized as integral parts of the German armed forces at the time of the commission of the alleged offenses and consequently are entitled to the same rights an American soldier would have before an American army court.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the term "war criminal" is of very recent origin. All the offenses of any importance which the term "war crime" properly denotes are old and well known to the laws of war. War criminals are of various states, ranging from heads of state and top ranking civilian officials down to the grades of the army to the private. They are found among civilians, both those who do and do not accompany or serve with the armies in the field. Previously, before modern times, war criminals were called "brigands", and that is what they are, -- brigands, buccaneers, pirates, guerrillas and marauders. Today we are nice and we say "war criminals." For present purposes, the important rules concerning brigands are the following: Death is the punishment they deserve. It has been held many times in the past that brigands have withdrawn from the agreement and broken the treaties -- yes, the treaties of the human race.

Now, let us come to modern times. Wheaton, an acknowledged authority on international law, states:

> "....The judicial power of every independent State extends to the punishment of offenses against the law of nations 'by whomsoever and wheresoever committed.'"

Oppenheim, another acknowledged authority on international law, states:

> "....In contradistinction to hostile acts of soldiers by which the latter do not lose their privilege of being treated as lawful members of armed forces, war crimes are such hostile or other acts of soldiers or other individuals as may be punished by the enemy on capture of the offenders."

Wheaton has said this:

> "If men are taken prisoner in the act of committing violations they are not properly entitled to the privileges and treatment accorded to prisoners of war."

The weight of authority is clearly against the contentions of the defense that this court is without jurisdiction over certain of the defendants. Precedents were established here in Dachau in the Mauthausen and Malmedy cases on the very same question. In those cases this same point was raised and the court made a decision adverse to the accused. These accused were war criminals as of the date they committed their crimes now that those crimes have been discovered. No court has ever said anything to the contrary. At least, they became war criminals on the 14th of December, 1946, when I served charges upon them. And when they became war criminals, they lost any rights they had to the Geneva Convention.

Now, in the Yamashita case, Mr. Justice Murphy said this in his dissenting opinion, although the court was not called upon to decide this question:

"Upon service of the charge he was removed from the status of a prisoner of war and placed in confinement as an accused war criminal."

Now, as I said, the majority opinion did not decide the question of when an accused becomes an accused war criminal because they were not asked to answer that question. However, they did decide this point and I quote from the majority opinion:

"Petitioner further urges that by virtue of Article 63 of the Geneva Convention of 1929, 47 Stat. 2052, he is entitled to the benefits afforded by the 25th and 38th Articles of War to members of our own forces. Article 63 provides, 'Sentence of may be pronounced against a prisoner of war only by the same courts and according to the same procedure as in the case of persons belonging to the armed forces of the detaining Power.' Since petitioner is a prisoner of war, and as the 25th and 38th Articles of War apply to the trial of any person in our own armed forces, it is said that Article 63 requires them to be applied in the trial of petitioner. But we think examination of Article 63 in its setting in the Convention plainly shows that it refers to sentence 'pronounced against a prisoner of war' for an offense committed while a prisoner of war, and not for a violation of the law of war committed while a combatant."

It is the pride of modern humanity.

to be observed well.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the Court, I should like permission for Dr. Rau, speaking for German counsel, to talk very briefly on the same subject.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

DR. RAU: Members of the Court, I cannot fight enough against the opinion of the Prosecution. It is contradictory to the clear wording and the purpose of the Geneva Convention, to the general principles of law and is of the greatest importance, especially according to the opinion expressed in English law. Everybody is innocent in the eyes of the court until his guilt is proven. Therefore, the accused can be treated as war criminals only from that time when the court has determined that they are war criminals and until that time they have to be considered as prisoners of war, with all the rights which they have according to the Geneva Convention. The Geneva Convention, you might say, is the Magna Carta of the prisoners of war or as a teacher of international law said, it is the pride of modern humanity. There would be no purpose for the Geneva Convention if now you would declare that the accused are not subject to the rules and rights of the Geneva Convention. It is the purpose of this trial to prove whether or not the accused are war criminals. I am therefore of the opinion that the rules and regulations of the Geneva Convention as expressed in Article 82 have to be observed well. Article 82, furthermore, states that until such time when prisoners of war are sent home again, they have the benefit of these rules of the Geneva Convention. The accused have not been sent home as yet. I wish furthermore, to bring to your attention that the Geneva Convention is part of American Constitutional law in accordance with the Constitution of the United States from 1789.

PROSECUTION: I have nothing further.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further from the Defense.

PRESIDENT: The Court will be recessed until 1:30 P.M.

(Whereupon at 1140 hours the Court recessed.)

pls 35

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1350 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court except Colonel Ackerman, who has been excused by the appointing authority, all the members of the defense, all the members of the prosecution; all the accused except Brenner, the interpreter and reporter are present.

May it please the court, the prosecution desires to correct the record in that this morning an announcement was made that all the accused were present. An exception should have been made in the case of the accused, Brenner.

PRESIDENT: The record will be so corrected.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I was going to suggest, may it please the court, since this situation is going to come up frequently, we might agree to stipulate now that whenever the statement is made that all the accused are present, that will be understood to mean all the accused except Brenner.

PROSECUTION: That is good, sir.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is approved by the court. The defense, in support of its motion, relies on the terms of the Geneva Conference in its contention that certain of the accused are prisoners of war and should be tried as such. The court is of the opinion that Article 63 of the Geneva Convention pertains, as pointed out in the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, in the so-called Yamashita case, to offenses committed while a prisoner of war and not to violations of the laws of war committed while a combatant. The motion of the defendants is overruled.

PRESIDENT: Off the record.

(Whereupon there was discussion off the record.)

PRESIDENT: On the record.

Do the accused understand the charge?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: They do, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: How do the accused plead?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I understand that the accused are going to be called to plead individually and I will plead for them. I will follow the roster as it is stated in the charge sheet.

LAW MEMBER: Have you any objection to their all being pleaded at one time?

PROSECUTION: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: Then it is not necessary to plead individually.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will plead in one group without waiving the contention as made by them in the motion challenging the jurisdiction of the court which has just been denied, but relying upon them, all the accused, including those who raised that question, plead "not guilty" to each of the individual specifications and to each of the charges with which he stands accused, with one exception. The one exception, may it please the court, is the accused, Koller, who pleads "not guilty" by reason of insanity. With respect to this one accused, arrangements have been made to have him examined by a psychiatrist who is waiting outside, and there is also the additional possibility he may be hospitalized for an indefinite period of time. In view of those circumstances, the defense stipulates that the evidence against Woller may continue while he is absent as though he were present in court.

PROSECUTION: That is agreeable to the prosecution, particularly because of the fact that the evidence principally offered against Woller will not come until a later state of the trial. He is principally concerned with Charge No. 3, and if it is agreeable to the court, that accused may withdraw at this time as the psychiatrist is waiting in an outer office and would like to begin his examination at this time.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Thereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order. The court directs that the accused, Hermann Woller, be examined for insanity, and directs the prosecution to take necessary steps to have such an examination conducted and an official report made, as soon as possible, to the court. The accused is excused.

(Thereupon the accused, Hermann Woller, was excused and withdrew.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We return his number back to the prosecution until he returns.

PROSECUTION: We will check with the psychiatrist at the first recess of the court.

PRESIDENT: Yes. At a later stage of this trial, the accused may make an unsworn statement on which they may be cross examined. They are advised that any statements they make in their trial will be evidence in this case. They are also advised that the court may draw such inferences as the circumstances justify from their refusal to answer or from their failure to take the stand in their own behalf. However, they may not be sentenced for contempt for refusing to answer.

pla 80

Does the prosecutor desire to make an opening statement?

PROSECUTOR: The prosecution does desire to make an opening statement.

The prosecution intends to offer proof to convict the accused on ten separate charges.

Under Charge I we will prove that between 7 December 1941 and 8 May 1945 the accused individually and collectively as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators and accomplices engaged in, formulated and participated in a common plan or design to commit or cause to be committed violations of the laws of war, and wilfully, deliberately and wrongfully encouraged, aided, abetted, ordered and participated in or took a consenting part in the subjection of surrendered and unarmed prisoners of war who were members of the armed forces of the allied nations, to cruelties, mistreatment, including killings, beatings, tortures, abuses and indignities.

We will prove the established law that when two or more persons unite to execute a purpose to injure or destroy the life of another, a conspiracy exists. The mere combination of persons to do a criminal act is a crime, even though the object of the combination is not consummated. If two or more persons act together with an unlawful intent to commit a crime, the common design and acting together make them co-pirators, ipso facto, and a conspirator in a consummated crime thereby makes himself a part of what has therefore been said and done by his fellow conspirators in the furtherance of the common design. The existence of the assents of minds which is involved in a conspiracy may be, and from the secrecy of the crime, usually must be inferred from proof of facts and circumstances which, taken together, apparently indicate that they pretermitly [illegible] result of acquiescence in, or consent to, [illegible] execution of the or the existence of the criminal intention of the criminal [illegible] party and generally the smallest degree of consent or collusion. [illegible] further into the [illegible] or course of one against the other. [illegible] Count 2 which will [illegible] the violation of paragraph 1(c) of [illegible] Article 2 of Control Council Law No. 10, we will prove that after September 1939 all the above-named members of organizations which have been declared criminal by the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg if what is known as the Leadership Corps, the Gestapo, the SD [illegible] SS, with full knowledge that said organizations were being used — in the commission of [illegible] criminal by Article 6 of the Charter of the International Tribunal referred to the [illegible] and establishing the [illegible] tribunal, [illegible] August 1945, were personally implicated in the commission of such criminal acts [illegible] We will prove that each one of the accused has committed membership in one or more of these criminal organizations and by the evidence offered in the case as a whole, so that they knew that these organizations were used for criminal purposes and were actually involved in the perpetration of such criminal acts, [illegible] We will establish nine such groups and prove that certain of the accused actually fired the fatal shots and, in other words and of the laws of war, murdered [illegible] while they were prisoners of war; and that, combining their efforts, all of the accused were implicated and brought about the commission of these original deeds.

"I will establish by Charge 3 the murder on or about 3 October 1944 of an unknown, surrendered and unarmed American prisoner of war at or near Giessen, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was herewith effectuated, and that the accused, Branner, No. 17 fired fatal shots. The accused, Branner, is not in the prisoner's dock. It is the purpose of the prosecution to see that the evidence is received against him as well as against his co-conspirators in accordance with the Office of Military Government, U. S. Zone, Military Government Regulations Title 5, Legal and Penal Administration, entitled "Trial in Absentia". That rule provides in part as follows: - In the event of the accused not appearing before the Court, the following action may be taken —

"a. If it is proved that the accused was duly served with a summons to appear, the Court may proceed with the trial in his absence and may, if it considers the case against him proved, record a conviction and sentence.

b. If it is not so proved but the court is satisfied that, after all reasonable steps have been taken to find and arrest the accused, he cannot be found, the court may proceed in his absence up to but not beyond the recording of evidence and making any order permitted under sub-rule (a) of this Rule. In the event of the Accused being subsequently brought before the court, such recorded evidence shall be admissible as evidence in the case, provided that the accused shall be entitled to cross-examine any of the original witnesses for the prosecution whose attendance can be procured (in which case the prosecution shall be entitled to reexamine) and both the prosecution and the accused shall be entitled to introduce additional evidence.

c. In either of the above cases, the court shall appoint an officer of the U. S. Forces or other suitable person to represent the defense."

plo 39

The court has appointed the present American defense counsels to represent the absent accused.

We will establish by Charge 4 the murder on or about 19 October 1944 of a surrendered and unarmed American soldier believed to be Sgt. Willard F. Perry at or near Wiesbaden, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused Hohler, No. 5, and Fuhr, No. 4, fired the fatal shots.

We will establish by Charge 5 the murder on or about 30 December 1944 of a surrendered and unarmed American soldier, believed to be T Sgt Robert N. Garrison, at or near Delkenheim, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused Fuhr, No. 4, fired the fatal shots.

We will establish by Charge 6 the murder on or about 15 February 1945 of a surrendered and unarmed American soldier believed to be Ray F. Hermann, at or near Bensheim, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused, Stattman, No. 21, fired the fatal shots.

We will establish by Charge 7 the murder on or about 22 February 1945 of a surrendered and unarmed American prisoner of war believed to be 2d Lt. William A. Duke at or near Bieber, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused, Moller, No. 9, fired the fatal shots.

We will establish by Charge 8 the murder on or about 22 February 1945 of a surrendered and unarmed American prisoner of war believed to be 2d Lt. Archibald B. Monroe, Jr., at or near Offenbach, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused, Fay, No. 12, and Hartman, No. 13, fired the fatal shots.

We will establish by Charge 9 the murder on or about 16 March 1945 of a surrendered and unarmed American prisoner of war believed to be Jimmy R. Heatherman at or near Hillersbonstein, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused, Michely, No. 15, fired the fatal shots.

We will establish by Charge 10 the murder on or about 24 March 1945 of two surrendered and unarmed American prisoners of war believed to be Lt. William H. Forman and Pvt. Robert T. McDonald at or near Benshein, Germany, in which crime a common design and conspiracy of certain of the accused was effectuated, and that the accused, Stattman, No. 21, and Asaf, No. 22, fired the fatal shots.

We will conclusively prove the allegations contained in Charges 1 and 2, but in addition thereto and further in support thereof, there will be submitted the evidence of the crimes specifically alleged in the Charges 3 to 10 inclusive.

This is not the Superior Order case. That is a legal fiction and so-called defense which the court cannot recognize. These are flier slaughter cases and the evidence will show a vicious and nefarious combine of German arch-criminals who set up and developed the notorious criminal organizations that the American Military Tribunal has stigmatized and which will be written in the recordings of crime and sin for centuries to come. The proof will show that these hirelings of Hitler and Himmler who now sit in the dock before this court, fully cooperated with these despicable men in the furtherance of a vicious plan to violate all known decent standards of human conduct; the rules of warfare; the laws and usages of war, the laws of humanity and the Conventions and Agreements that were championed and made sacred by the great powers at Geneva.

"There were differences of rank and position among the accused but we will show that they had equal rank as willfull violators of International law, the laws and usages of war, and the laws of humanity, and equal rank as despicable criminals, and, therefore ultimately there should not be, and cannot be any gradation in punishment.

> "In the coming war we shall fight not only on land, on sea, and in the air. There will be a fourth theatre of operations—the Inner Front. That front will decide on the continued existence of the irrevocable death of the German Nation."

Those were Himmler's words in September, 1937, and the Inner Front which he predicted is that which the police forces were ordered to maintain to the last. To continue the fight on that front, even beyond the duration of actual hostilities, was undoubtedly the task Himmler had allotted to the German Police in conjunction with the SS.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 3 and 3A, respectively, for identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits 3 and 3A for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution offers in evidence a paper entitled "Extracts from War Department Basic Field Manual Entitled Laws of Land Warfare", being 27-10, dated October 1, 1940, and ask that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 3, and the German translation thereof, as Exhibit 3A, and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We have no objections.

PRESIDENT: There being no objections, Prosecution's Exhibit 3 will be admitted.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 3 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 3, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution's Exhibit 3A was offered, is there any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: You mean the German translation? No, of course not.

PRESIDENT: It will be admitted.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 3A for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 3A, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution then asks permission of the Court to read Prosecution's Exhibit 3.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution's Exhibit 3.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter three documents and request that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibits 4, 5 and 6 for identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits 4, 5 and 6 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution offers in evidence a map to be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 4, being Sheet L-51, geographical section of General Staff No. 4346; and offers map, Sheet K-51 to be marked Exhibit 5, geographical section of General Staff No. 4346; and offers in evidence map, Sheet L-50, to be marked Exhibit 6, geographical section of General Staff No. 4346. Any objections?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No.

PROSECUTION: These maps, may the record show, are for the guidance of the Court and contain information as to the location of the areas in which the alleged crimes were committed.

PRESIDENT: There being no objections on the part of the Defense, Prosecution's Exhibits 4, 5 and 6 are admitted.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 4, 5 and 6 for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 4, 5 and 6, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter two documents and ask that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibits 7 and 7A for identification.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, the Prosecution is about to offer in evidence a secret document prepared by SHAEF Headquarters, G-2 Section. Prior to offering that in evidence, I would like to read this letter.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I see the letter before it is read into the record?

PROSECUTION: It is a cancellation of classification of the instrument.

Prosecution

Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence a book issued by Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Evaluation and Dissemination Section, G-2, Counter Intelligence subdivision entitled "The German Police" and bearing date of April, 1945, and ask that it be received in evidence but that the Prosecution be permitted to withdraw it at the conclusion of the case; and, also, at the same time, Prosecution would like to offer in evidence typewritten extracts from this document to be made a part of the record, which have been marked Prosecution's Exhibits 7 and 7A for identification, and read into the record. Does the Court desire that the book be given a number? My intention is only to read into the record certain parts of that book.

LAW MEMBER: Are you going to give the extracts a number?

PROSECUTION: They have been typewritten, and they have been given a number. There are a lot of things in that book that are irrelevant, but I would like to have the Court see the whole book if it desires.

LAW MEMBER: Give the book a number.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter the book and ask that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 7 for identification only, and that the two previous exhibits be changed from Prosecution's Exhibit 7 and 7A to Prosecution's Exhibit 8 and 8A.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 7 for identification, and the numbers on the two previous exhibits were changed to Prosecution Exhibits 8 and 8A for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution now offers the book, which has been marked as Prosecution's Exhibit 7 for identification, in evidence, and asks that the Court grant the Prosecution permission to withdraw the same at the conclusion of the trial.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: On behalf of each of the accused individually, the Defense objects to the receipt of this book in evidence in whole, as it's now offered, I take it, and even in part. I am sorry that I, personally, have never seen it before; so that my comments are based on very rough statements from my associates as to what is contained in that.

PROSECUTION: Before counsel continues, I think it would be appropriate in view of the remark just made for one of your associates to inform the Court that the book was submitted to your side several days ago for check.

MR. RACHAEL: Two days ago, colonel.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I hope we won't get touchy about these things. I was just about to say that. To avoid any misinterpretation, I will state that Major Saxon did see the book several days ago, but didn't have a chance to read it; but that doesn't pertain to the objection at all. Our objection to the Court as to that document's being received in whole or in part is generally that its receipt will be highly prejudicial to the substantial rights of the accused, and more specifically on this ground. There is a distinction in the receipt by this Court of official documents of military tribunals. During the course of this trial extracts from official documents of military tribunals will be offered, and at that time we will take objection to them, but there is a vital distinction--that a document prepared, for instance, in accordance with accepted legal procedure, guarded and supervised by legal precedence in proof of charges is a legal document which is governed and prepared according to set rules. This thing here is merely a document compiled by a section of the Army without regard to rules of evidence, without regard to procedure, without regard to hearsay. It is more or less an intelligence report which used to be disseminated during war, tipping people off as to what to expect, as to what to look for--the enemy is using this kind of tactic--or something of that kind.

There is not a single thing in this book, as far as I know, referring to the accused on the charges for which they stand or face this Court.

End Ta 7,
PS fols

To open this court and this trial to this particular book would be, in effect, to throw this trial open to the hundreds and thousands of individual intelligence reports which were made and upon which this book was based and compiled. It is hearsay of the rankest kind. It is a general discussion of the police in general, or the police system as a whole, and does not apply in the slightest degree directly to those men or what they had. It is our contention it has no probative value; it is not relevant or germane to these issues by the widest stretch of the imagination; and to put in this book and open it to the inspection and consideration of this court, in its entirety, would deprive this trial of practically all semblance to recognized legal rule.

[illegible]: May it please the court, I would not have offered this book had it not been my intention to comply with the rules of evidence that have been laid down for the guidance of this court at previous war crimes trials and Inspector Generals' reports, and various reports of this nature have been received in evidence in the Kalmody case. That was done in numerous cases, the Dachau, Mauthausen and Nuremberg cases. A number of times documents of this kind were received without question. Now, as to counsel's contention it does not apply, Stroop's name is mentioned, Trummler's name is mentioned, Jurgen's name is mentioned, this chart is shown, their connection with the police is shown -- the court will see all of the structure of the plan we are trying to prove, so it is, therefore, very relevant, and applies to each and every accused.

[illegible]: Anything further by the defense?

[illegible]: Just this comment was suggested to me, that there is much better evidence to prove the police setup, if that is the purpose for which the book is offered.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. The exhibit will be admitted as evidence.

(The book heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 7 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 7, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to have one thing cleared up, may it please the court. I objected to the receipt of that book in evidence. The objection was overruled, and I would like to be able to assume that my objection to its receipt is saved without adding, "I would like an exception." The mere fact that I object to it means I would like my exception saved, in case I am overruled. Is that agreeable?

PROSECUTION: That is agreeable. Furthermore, it is always open to the defense, after an exhibit goes in, if it so desires, to move to strike it out again.

Prosecution now offers in evidence ——

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted to the prosecution to withdraw the exhibit at the conclusion of the case.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I must have been a little bit off my guard at that time, may it please the court, for which I apologize, but inasmuch as in the opinion of the counsel for the defense the introduction of that book would constitute serious error, I am wondering now how our rights on an appeal or review will be prejudiced if the exhibit is withdrawn.

PROSECUTION: The book was obtained from the War Crimes Library in Nuremberg, and when returned to that place, will be available to the reviewing authority at all times.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then I think a very thorough description of the book should be read into the record, so there can be no mistake as to what book was introduced. [illegible] document in the record.

[illegible] DEFENSE: Let that be done. [illegible] the prosecution.

PROSECUTION: I will do it again. I believe I offered it as an official publication from SHAEF Headquarters, entitled, "Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Evaluation and Dissemination Section, G-2 Counter Intelligence Sub-division, entitled 'The German Police,' prepared jointly by M.I.R.B. London branch and E.D.S. in consultation with the War Office, dated April, 1945.

The Prosecution now offers in evidence extracts from Exhibit 7, in English, and asks that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 8. The extracts are paragraphs of the book, numbered 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 17, 18, 30, 91, and three extracts from the annex in the book.

I have offered Prosecution Exhibit 8, which is the extract from the book.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the accused individually object to the receipt of those extracts in evidence on the general ground that their introduction is highly prejudicial to their rights, and on the second ground that they are extracts from a book which has been received in evidence in toto, and the effect of it is to introduce in duplicate certain evidence already before the court. Likewise, in my opinion, it is prejudicial for the prosecution to pick out certain sections of an exhibit which has been introduced as a whole, and introduce those special parts as separate exhibits. May I add one word more? In our opinion, the procedure would be proper, I think, for the prosecution to point out to the court certain sections of an exhibit that they desire to invite the court's particular attention to, and that is the way we think it should be done.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution thought it more practicable for the reviewing authority and for the court to have this read in the record, attached to it, rather than bind that document in the record. Any way the court desires it be done, it is agreeable to the prosecution.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We would rather have it done our way, the whole thing go in. [illegible] present [illegible] of

PRESIDENT: Off the record. [illegible] by the appointing [illegible]

PRESIDENT: On the record. [illegible] and, the reporter, and the interpreter [illegible]

The court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1505 hours.) [illegible] the admission of these extracts will be of convenience to the court and the reviewing authority. It is the privilege of the defense to introduce at the present time any further extracts from prosecution exhibit 7.

Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 8 is admitted in evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 8 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 8, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

[illegible]: The prosecution offers in evidence prosecution Exhibit 8-A for identification, which is a true and correct German translation of Exhibit 8.

[illegible]: Subject to the same objection.

[illegible]: Objection overruled.

[illegible]: The prosecution requests the court's permission to read Exhibit 8.

[illegible]: The document will be admitted.

(The document herein referred to for identification as Prosecution Exhibit 8-A was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 8-A, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court are present except Colonel Ackerman, who has been excused by the appointing authority; all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter, and the interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The court feels that the admission of these extracts will be of convenience to the court and the reviewing authority. It is the privilege of the defense to introduce at the proper time any further extracts from Prosecution Exhibit 7.

Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 8 is admitted in evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 8 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 8, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution offers in evidence Prosecution Exhibit 8-A for identification, which is a true and correct German translation of Exhibit 8.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Subject to the same objection.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution requests the court's permission to read Exhibit 8.

PRESIDENT: The document will be admitted.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 8-A for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 8-A, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 8.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 8.)

PRESIDENT: Off the record.

(Discussion off the record)

PRESIDENT: On the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, before the German translation is read, I would like the court's permission for Mr. Rachael, who is associated with the defense, to make his motion with respect to what has just been read.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, on behalf of each and every defendant, I respectfully move this court to strike from the record prosecution exhibits P-7 and P-8 on the ground that it is the worst kind of prejudice to the substantial rights of the accused given to the accused in these courts. There are very few rights which the laws allow to the defendants. One of them is very specific, and it says that evidence of bad character of an accused shall be admissible before finding only when the accused person has introduced evidence as to his own good character. Several times I heard the prosecution specifically refer to the defendants here as "little Himmlers." Himmler has been convicted by a court and people of that type have been definitely shown to be persons of bad character. The prosecution has referred to these defendants as "Himmlers." I respectfully renew my motion.

LAY MEMBER: Has there any reference other than the one that counsel has referred to?

MR. RACHAEL: Not only that, but he has characterized the organizations too, which he has not yet proved to have been criminal, as criminal organizations to which the prosecution is going to claim that these defendants are members; and it also refers to them directly as to their character. The entire exhibits P-7 and P-6 are complete with such characterizations. I respectfully submit that they should be stricken from the record.

PRESIDENT: Court will be closed.

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that all the members of the court except Colonel Ackerman, who has been excused, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The court is of the opinion that the use of the words "little Himmler" referred to in the defense's argument went to the position held as a designation of the extent of authority, the position carried, and not to the character of any individual. Furthermore, the document from which exhibit 8 is an extract, was written at a date prior to any person being tried as a war criminal. The court will disregard the reference as having any reference or bearing on the character of any of the accused. The motion to strike from the records is overruled.

The court will adjourn until Monday morning at nine o'clock.

(Whereupon the court adjourned at 1650 hours until 0900 hours Monday, 13 January 1947.)

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the personnel of the Court are present, all the members of the prosecution and all the members of the defense, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should like to ask permission to address the Court for a moment. One of my associates feels very strongly on the matter involving something that took place on the last day of the record. I am not in agreement with him, but inas much as he is my associate, I do not feel justified in refusing him an opportunity to address the Court on the matter. Mr. Rachael wishes to address the Court about an argument made by him on the last day of Court which, by order of the Court, was not put into the record.

MR. RACHAEL: May it please the Court, at the session on Friday I moved to strike from the record, Prosecution Exhibit 7 and Prosecution Exhibit 8. I stated my grounds for the motion. Part of the grounds were put in and part of the grounds were left out of the record. There is a statement in the record by the Law Member, subsequent to the piece that was put in, "Off the record". I respectfully submit that the record should be corrected to include my complete statement on the motion and that the record as it now stands does not truly reflect the record of the proceedings on Friday.

PRESIDENT: The record will reflect the entire statement.

tm 11 IJY 2

MR. RACHAEL: One more thing, may it please the Court. It is my opinion that everything that takes place in the courtroom must be transcribed into the record. I do not know whether my associates agree with me but it is my opinion also that there should not be any conversation between anybody that is not transcribed into the record. I request the Court, on my behalf, that there be no "Off the record" insertions in the record.

PRESIDENT: The Court will determine that when the time comes.

PROSECUTION: Does the Court desire, at this time, the reading in German of the extract of the G-2 Report, that was received in evidence on Friday?

PRESIDENT: The Court does desire that it be read.

(Whereupon the Interpreter read Prosecution Exhibit 8-A in the German language.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 9 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 9 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution now offers in evidence a photostatic copy of a chart entitled Organization of German Police, the original of which is in the C-2 document, Prosecution exhibit 7, and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 9 and be made part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense objects on the same ground it did to Exhibit No. 7, and likewise, on the ground it does not admit at all it is an accurate representation.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. It will be admitted in evidence.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 10 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 10 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution offers in evidence, a photostatic copy of a chart entitled Organization of the German Police, the original of which is in Prosecution Exhibit 7. This chart is in German and is a translation of Prosecution Exhibit 9, and we ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 10 and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Same objection, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. It will be admitted in evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 10 for identification, was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 10, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

HANS GUNTHER, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What is your full name?

A Hans Gunther.

Q How old are you?

A Thirty-four years old.

Q Are you at present an internee at Dachau?

A Yes.

Q Were you a member of the armed forces of the German Reich during World War II?

A Yes.

Q To what military organization did you belong, and from what day to what day?

A From December '39 until May 1940, I was a member of the Infantry Regiment 112 in the Army. Later on, until December '40, I was a member of the Infantry Regiment 80 until December '41, in the Army. Then I was wounded in the hospital until April, 1942. Thereafter I was on the Eastern front with the Eight Infantry Division and with the 93rd Division, with the Army. There I was badly wounded, again in the hospital until May 1943. Then I was transferred from the Main Personnel Office of the Army to the Waffen SS and was taken over by the Waffen SS and was ordered to the Higher SS and Police Leader, Rhine-Westmark, in Wiesbaden.

Q Who was that Higher SS Police Leader?

A General Stroop.

Q Were you assigned to duty as a member of General Stroop's staff?

A Yes.

Q To what duty were you assigned?

A I had to take care of the security plan which I took over from Captain Kaesmann.

Q What title did you have?

A My title was 1-A.

Q Is that known as Operations Officer?

A My duties included to keep the security plan, excluding the forces, equipment, etc., current. I had no power whatsoever to give verbal or written orders or to sign papers.

Q Would you recognize General Stroop if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, point him out.

A No. 1.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused, Stroop, as wearing No. 1.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q In connection with your duties as 1-A on the staff of General Stroop, were you familiar with General Stroop's jurisdiction and his command?

A Yes.

Q Was General Stroop in command of the police in the Rhein-Westmark area?

A Yes.

Q What special commands were under him?

A Under the command of General Stroop was the Orpo, the Sipo, and various organization staffs.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Pardon me, you are both going too fast for me. Will you read that last answer.

Ta 12 30 pls 1-13-47

THE WITNESS: Furthermore, General Stroop was in charge of the general SS as the Commander of the SS Main District, Rhein-Westmark.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Were you familiar with the police sub-division known as the Wehrkreise?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court what that means.

A Wehrkreise is the military name, and in peacetime it had an army corps in its district. During the war the title, the general command, was changed to assistant general command, and was taken care of by the commander of the Wehrkreise and the commanding general. In the hands of the Wehrkreise were the entire replacement problems of troops for the front service. The borderlines of the Wehrkreises usually were the same as the borderlines of the Gaus.

Q What is a Gau?

A Gau is a party name for a certain district of Germany.

Q Is it a political sub-division?

A In the beginning it was a political name, later on, during the reform of the Reich, it became also part of the Reich organisation. The Gauleiter was in charge of the Gau. The Gauleiter usually, at the same time, became Reich Commissar and Commissar for Reich Defense.

Q Was the Gau territorially usually smaller than a Wehrkreise?

A Yes.

THE INTERPRETER: Will you read that answer of the witness?

(Thereupon the reporter read the answer as follows:

"Answer: In the beginning it was a political name, later on, during the reform of the Reich, it became also part of the Reich organization. The Gauleiter was in charge of the Gau. The Gauleiter usually, at the same time, became Reich Commissar —")

THE INTERPRETER: That should be Reichstattheilter.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 11 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 11 for identification.

DIRECTION BY PROSECUTION:

Q I hand you a piece of paper and ask you to tell me what it is.

A That is a map of Germany with a plan of the Gauleiters and the Gaus.

Q Looking at the map, what do the red boundary lines indicate?

A The red lines indicate the Reichskreise.

Q What do the green lines indicate?

A The green lines indicate the Gaus.

PROSECUTION: I offer this map in evidence and ask that it be made Prosecution Exhibit No. 11 and be made part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

PRESIDENT: It will be accepted in evidence.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that in the courtroom is a large copy of this map which has been received as Exhibit 11. Does the court desire that that be put in as evidence and withdrawn at a later date, or remain here as a copy of that map?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We have no objection for the court to use it as the court deems best.

PRESIDENT: The court desires that that remain in the courtroom and be admitted and withdrawn at the end. The copy will be put in the record.

(Gunther-Direct)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution then offers in evidence, to be marked Prosecution Exhibit 12, a large wall map, which is an exact copy of Prosecution Exhibit 11 and requests permission of the court to withdraw the same at the end of the trial.

(The map referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 12 for identification.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection

PRESIDENT: Request granted.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Looking again at that map now in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 11, what do the black lines indicate with respect to Wehrkreise XII?

A The black line indicates the entire command of General Stroop.

Q Did General Stroop command one or more Wehrkreise?

A General Stroop was in charge of the Wehrkreise XII with the exception of the part which belonged to the Gau Baden and he was also in charge of this part of Wehrkreise IX which was part of the Gau Hessen-Nassau.

Q Go over to the large wall map and point out General Stroop's command.

A The entire area shown on this map shown by the black lines.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is pointing to the area surrounded by a black line covering part of Wehrkreise XII and part of Wehrkreise IX.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What does the shadowed part indicate?

A The shadowed part indicates this part of the Wehrkreise IX which was part of the Gau Hessen-Nassau and was under the command of General Stroop.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I hand you a piece of paper which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 13 for identification and will ask you to tell the Court what that is.

A This is a general organization map.

Q A general organization map of what?

A A general organization plan for the regular police and the security police.

Q Did you discuss the contents of this plan and chart with me in my office or not?

A Yes.

Q Does this chart actually portray in schematic form the general organization and chain of command of the regular police and the security police, and particularly the command of General Stroop from November, 1943 to April, 1945?

A Yes, this plan shows exactly the organization as it existed in the command of General Stroop.

Q Does General Stroop's name appear on that chart?

A Yes.

Q Do you see the name Otto Schmann on that chart?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A Otto Schmann was an inspector of the security police in the Command Stroop.

Q Do you see the name Hans Traumler?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A Trummler was the commander of the security police in the Command troop.

Q Would you recognize Otto Somann if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, point him out.

A Number 3.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the accused Somann, Number 3.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Hans Trummler if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, point him out.

A Number 2.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the accused Trummler, Number 2.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Do you see the name Fritz Girke on the chart?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was commander of the state police office at Darmstadt.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, point him out.

A Number 19.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the accused Girke, Number 19.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Do you see the name Heinz Hellenbroich?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, point him out.

A Number 20.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the accused Heinz Hellenbroich, Number 20.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Who was Hellenbroich?

A I can't give any information about Hellenbroich's position in detail, because I am not well enough informed about internal organization of the Gestapo.

INTERPRETER: Pardon me, not Gestapo, Security Police.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution offers in evidence chart which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 13 for identification and to be made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: On the ground, may it please the Court, that the witness hasn't been qualified as an expert on the political and criminal setup of the jurisdiction to qualify him to identify this as being accurate and not the best evidence.

PROSECUTION: This chart is offered as an organization chart and was offered through a witness who was a member of the General Command Staff, who was familiar with the personnel and chain of command; and the main purpose is for the guidance of the court as to the terminology of the olice and the members of the staffs of the various organizations under General Stroop. It has its added purpose of showing the extent of command under General Stroop and various other officers whose names appear on the chart.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. It will be admitted as evidence.

PROSECUTION: I ask the reporter to mark the chart on the wall Prosecution's Exhibit 14 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 14 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution now offers in evidence to be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 14, the map wall chart which is an exact copy of Prosecution's Exhibit 13 and request that the Court permit the Prosecution to withdraw Number 14 at the conclusion of the trial.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We object to that part of the offer which would be applicable to Exhibit 13.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence and permission to withdraw it at the end of the trial is granted.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution has no further questions, but will recall this witness. Prior to cross examination, Prosecution desires to state for the record that the accused Koller, Number 9, withdraw from the court room on Friday for the purpose of being examined by a psychiatrist. That was done, I have been reliably informed.

(Gunther-direct)

The accused Moller, from the beginning of today's session, has been in the dock. The psychiatrist is in the 98th General Hospital in Munich. Arrangements are being made by the Chief of the Dachau Detachment to have him back tomorrow to testify. You may cross examine.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q When did you first begin your study of the organizational structure of the police system in Germany?

A June, 1944, yes.

Q Did you, in the course of your duties, ever have occasion to visit any of the Headquarters to which General Stroop was subservient?

PROSECUTION: I don't believe that question is clear. I believe you should rephrase it.

WITNESS: I don't understand the question.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q During the course of your duties, did you ever have occasion to visit Headquarters of the Security Police?

A No.

Q Did you ever have occasion to talk to any of the officers in the Headquarters of the Security Police?

A At Headquarters? No. Berlin? No.

Q I don't know--wherever they were. Where were the Headquarters of the Security Police?

A Headquarters of the Security Police was at Berlin--the Reich Security main office.

(Gunther-Cross)

Q What was the distinction and the functions between the Security Police and the Ordnance Police?

INTERPRETER: Ordnance?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Regular police.

WITNESS: The Ordnance Police was for the purpose of keeping up public order and security. There was the Security Police which was for the purpose of protecting the inner security of the Reich.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What is the distinction between the ordinary security and the inner security?

A The gene al security will take measures to the effect that public security is given. That means in the behavior of people toward the state.

Q And what was the function of the Security Police? What do you mean by "inner security"?

A To the field of inner security first of all belongs a secret state police, Gestapo, the Criminal Police, and the SD Security Service as information organization.

Q Calling your attention to this map, this line here "Commander of Security Police" and "SD". (Indicating) Isn't it true that the SD was a part of the Security Police?

A It was not part of the Security Police, but there was union in personnel through Kaltenbrunner, who also was in charge of the Security Service, SD.

Q What is this Security Service shown on the diagram?

A The Security Service was an information organization of the party which was not made through the State, through the Reich.

Q And what was the difference between the group called the Security Service and the group called the SD? Between this group here, and the SD (indicating). If you can't see, come closer. What is the difference between the Security Service and this SD?

A That was the same.

Q In other words, the Security Service shown here as one of the subdivisions under Kaltenbrunner is the same as the words "SD" just below?

A The main office of the Security Service was in Berlin under the command of Kaltenbrunner.

Q My question was whether or not the group called Security Service and the group called SD were one and the same thing.

A No, a subdivision.

Q What was the SD a subdivision of?

A The SD Security Service, Weisbaden, was a subdivision of the General Security Service, which was in Berlin--which had its Headquarters in Berlin.

Q My question is directed to the map by which the witness speaks as an expert. Now, up here the map shows under Kaltenbrunner, Gestapo, Criminal Police, Security Service, and underneath that in a line coming from General Stroop it shows Commander of the Security Police and the SD. Now what is the difference between Security Service and the SD?

A Security service and SD express the same thing and refer to the same information organization.

Q In other words, the term Security Police and SD are synonymous in their meaning, is that correct?

A Yes, it is only an abbreviation.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for 15 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1020 hours the court recessed.)

End Ta 13

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1035 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all members of the court, all members of the prosecution, all members of the defense, all the accused, and the reporter and interpreter are present.

HANS GUNTHER, called as a witness by the prosecution, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

QUESTION: BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You stated that you became a member of the staff of General Stroop sometime in June, 1943. Can you place the exact date?

A During June, 1943, on the date Captain Kassmann was relieved from his duties.

Q What day was that?

A I cannot state the exact date.

Q Do you remember whether it was the last half of the month or the first half?

A I assume it was the second half.

Q Who was the commander of the Security Police at the time you first assumed the duties of your office?

A SS Colonel Sammet.

Q Was Colonel Sammet relieved of his command and transferred elsewhere after you assumed the duties of your office?

A Yes.

Q How long after you became a member of General Stroop's staff?

A Approximately two to two and a half months afterward.

Q Will you please state the name of the month during which Colonel Sammet was relieved or transferred?

A The end of August or beginning of September.

Q When did Trumpler assume Somann's place?

A In the month of September.

Q Was there any lapse of time between the transfer of Somann and the assumption of command by Trumpler?

A Yes.

Q How long?

A Perhaps fourteen days to three weeks.

Q Coming back to the Security Police, the chart here shows it to be divided into three sections, the Gestapo, the Criminal Police, and the SD. Is that a correct statement of the composition of the Security Police?

A Yes.

Q So that coming down on the map, and reading "Commander of Security Police and SD," the words "and SD" are unnecessary, are they not, because Security Police includes the SD?

A No, it is not superfluous, because the Security Police was an apparatus of the state, including the Gestapo and the Criminal Police, while the SD was an apparatus for information for the Party.

Q If the SD was not a state institution, what kind of an institution was it?

A It was an organisation of the Party.

Q Who was the responsible head of the SD?

A The chief of the Security Police, General Kaltenbrunner. The same person was also in charge of the SD.

Q What were the duties and functions of the Gestapo?

A I am not familiar with the individual missions of the Gestapo, because I had officially no connection with the Gestapo.

Q Are you familiar with the internal structure of the Gestapo?

A No, not the internal structure.

Q What was the function of the criminal police?

(GUNTHER-Cross)

A To investigate crimes.

Q What was the distinction between the functions of the Gestapo and the functions of the regular police?

A The regular police was there to keep public order and security, while the Security Police was there to guarantee the internal security of the Reich.

Q My question was, what was the difference between the functions of the regular police and the Gestapo, if you know?

A These are the differences that I just mentioned.

Q What was the function of the Criminal Police?

A To investigate crimes.

Q What duties did the regular police have with respect to crime?

A In connection with crimes, it was the mission of the regular police to assist the Criminal Police.

Q In what ways?

A That is not known to me.

Q It is true, is it not, that you do not know the difference between the functions of the regular police and the Criminal Police?

A Yes, I know the difference.

Q What is the difference?

A It was the mission of the Order Police to guarantee public order and security, while it was the mission of the Criminal Police to investigate crimes.

Q Let us assume that a crime had been committed. Will you explain to this court just how the regular police and the Criminal Police would function with respect to that crime?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question. The premise is badly laid. We do not know whether it is a crime against the state, individual crimes, political crimes, or what the nature of the crime is he is talking about. I think the premise should be restated.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained. Make your question more specific as to the type of crime.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the fact that there is such a difference is one of the fundamental things I am trying to use to probe this witness' actual knowledge. If he really knew, he would know there was such a difference, but we are warning him against the very thing I am trying to uncover or discover. In this particular case, I will start over.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What functions did the Criminal Police have to do with political crime, as distinguished from violations of criminal statutes?

A Details are not known to me, because my duties consisted of military tactical matters.

Q What was the general function of the Criminal Police with respect to the suppression of political crime?

PROSECUTION: I interpose an objection. The witness was put on the stand for the purpose of authenticating a chart which is very general in nature, showing the personnel and general over all structure. It is not the purpose of the prosecution to break down the various detailed functions and inner workings of the various subdivisions and subheads and subdepartments. The only purpose of this chart was a guide to the court, to show that on one side of the picture we have the Security Police, on the other side the Order Police, and what General Stroop had under him in general and what his personnel consisted of. That was the only purpose of the chart. This witness authenticated it because he was a member of Stroop's staff, and was, in the over all sense, aware of the personnel and general structure only.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, if the purpose of this chart is merely to show titles and the names of individuals who occupied particular offices, the defense has no further need to cross examine on the chart. However — now, this is fundamental with us — if that is supposed to be a chart showing the chain of command, then it is vital to us, and my purpose ——— and I understand that that is the thing for which it was introduced, to show the chain of command from Streep down, directly and left and right, and also upwards, directly and left and right. If that is the case, and that is our understanding, I am cross examining the witness for the purpose of showing that his knowledge is such that he could not be sufficiently expert to testify that that is an accurate representation of the chain of command. On that statement is the purpose of my cross examination. I ask the ruling of the court.

PROSECUTION: Just for the record, I will refer the court back to my question of the witness, which he answered in the affirmative, "Does this chart accurately portray in schematic form the general organization and chain of command of the regular police and Security Police, particularly the command of General Streep, from November, 1943, to April, 1945?" and that was the purpose for which the chart was offered. However, counsel is questioning the witness in detail as to the individual setup in the Criminal Police, and the inner workings thereof.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Would you be good enough to read my question?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the reporter as follows:
"Q What was the general function of the Criminal Police with respect to the suppression of political crime?")

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

THE WITNESS: Of political crimes?

Q Q That is what I said.

A It was the mission of the Criminal Police to discover crimes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Some of this may be my fault, may it please the court. Some of it, I think, is the witness'. He does not listen to my question. I may be wrong, but I would like the assistance of the court if I happen to be wrong.

(DEFENSE-Cross)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q My question was, what was the function of the Criminal Police with respect to the investigation and suppression of political crimes?

A I cannot give any information about that.

Q Do you know the difference between a political crime and a violation of the ordinary criminal statutes of a non-political nature?

PROSECUTION: I object on two grounds. Defense is going beyond the scope of my direct examination, and defense is arguing with the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

PROSECUTION: Furthermore, the witness, on several occasions, has answered the question concerning the duties of the Criminal Police. I believe that at least four times that question has been asked and answered.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Sir, the answer had to do with the suppression of crime, but my question is important to us. I don't want to be contentious -- I hope I am not. I want him to answer with respect to political crimes, may it please the court, not crime in general, political crime. I would like permission to ask him what the function of the Criminal Police was with respect to the investigation and suppression of political crime.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted to ask the question.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What was the function of the Criminal Police with respect to the investigation and suppression of political crime?

A The Criminal Police must have had the mission to investigate and uncover political crimes in cooperation with the State Police.

Q Were the regular police State Police?

A The Protective, or Order Police, was an integral part of the structure of the state, but was not called State Police.

Q Into how many subdivisions were the regular police divided?

A The regular police was under General Wunnenberg, who was in charge of main office, police headquarters, in Berlin.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Would you be good enough to read my question?

(Thereupon the last question was read by the reporter.)

THE WITNESS: From the time I know the regular police, from June, 1934, the regular police was under command of General Wunnenberg, and under General Wunnenberg was the commander of regular civil police.

Q The security police were divided into three groups, the Gestapo, criminal police, and security service. Was the regular civil police subdivided into groups, and if so, into what groups?

A I don't know the organization of the headquarters of General Wunnenberg, but one of the important offices I know was the order office.

Q What office?

A Order office.

Q How do you spell that?

A O-r-d-e-r; order office. This was under General Flade and Bogalski.

Q Did you ever hear of a Schutzpolizei?

A Yes.

Q Where do they belong in that chart?

A The protective police belongs to the order police.

Q Did you ever hear of the Gendarmerie?

A Yes.

Q And where do they belong on the chart?

A Also to the order police.

Q Did you ever hear of the fire police?

A Yes. Fire security police.

Q Where do they belong on the chart?

A Also to the main office, police headquarters.

Q Did you ever hear of the air protection police?

A Yes.

Q And where do they belong?

A Also to the order police.

(Gunther - Cross)

Q Did you ever hear of the Gemeinde police--local police?

A Yes.

Q And where do they belong?

A They also belong to the main office, police headquarters.

Q Were all these subdivisions that we have recently mentioned important organizations in the police system of Germany?

A Yes.

Q And do they show on that chart anywhere at all?

A They are included in the term "order police".

Q Otherwise than by definition of the term "regular police", do they appear on the chart?

A No.

Q Coming down to the chart where it shows the word "Gauleiter" -- according to this chart the three gauleiters of Westmark, Hessen-Nassau, and Moselland are all under the command jurisdiction of General Stroop. Is that true?

A The gauleiters--the three gauleiters were not under the jurisdiction of General Stroop solely. The area of these three gauleiters were identical with the jurisdictional area of General Stroop.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Would you read the question as I asked it, please?

PROSECUTION: I object to any further argument. That question was specifically answered.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am trying to find out. I don't remember how I asked the question. If I am being too long I would be glad to be told.

PRESIDENT: The court desires that you cut it down considerably, as much as possible.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Does the court consider that answer as responsive to my question? I do not think it is.

LAW MEMBER: Will you read the question, please?

(Thereupon the question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q Coming down to the chart where it shows the word 'Gauleiter' -- according to this chart the three gauleiters of Westmark, Hessen-Nassau, and Moselland are all under the command jurisdiction of General Stroop. Is that true?

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did General Stroop have any command jurisdiction over gauleiters to any extent whatsoever?

LAW MEMBER: Read the answer back there, please.

(Thereupon the answer was read by the reporter as follows:

"A The gauleiters--the three gauleiters were not under the jurisdiction of General Stroop solely. The area of these three gauleiters were identical with the jurisdictional area of General Stroop.")

THE WITNESS: No command jurisdiction over the gauleiters.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q On the other hand, did the gauleiters themselves, by virtue of their position as Reich defense minister, have command jurisdiction over the police?

A The gauleiters had the possibility to give instructions to the police.

Q By the word "possibility" you mean authority?

A No.

Q What do you mean by the word "possibility"?

(Gunther - Cross)

A The gauleiters had the possibility to inform General Stroop of matters and ask that conditions be changed--request that conditions be changed.

Q Could the gauleiter, under any circumstance, in his capacity as defense minister issue direct orders to the police in his gau?

A No.

Q When were you relieved of your duties as a member of General Stroop's staff?

A I was with the staff of General Stroop to the end.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: What is that exhibit number, please?

PROSECUTION: You mean the large map?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: And the smaller representation.

PROSECUTION: The large map is 14.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q One other question: Did you know Cirke personally?

A No.

Q Did you ever see him while he was in the exercise of his duty or while he held office?

A I became acquainted with Cirke during a lecture where the various high police officers were present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense at this time moves to strike from the record Prosecution Exhibits 13 and 14, on the ground that from the testimony of the witnesses themselves it is obviously incomplete and very important on essential matters and does not accurately represent the entire chain of command with respect to the police system of Germany.

(Gunther - Cross)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution asks that the court accept it for the purpose for which it was offered and give it whatever probative value it deems fit.

PRESIDENT: The motion of the defense is overruled.

PROSECUTION: Any further questions?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No.

PROSECUTION: No further questions by the prosecution, although the witness will be recalled. Any questions by members of the court?

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court.

PROSECUTION: We request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PRESIDENT: The prosecution will proceed with the trial.

(Prosecution Exhibit 15 was marked for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution offers in evidence, to be marked Prosecution Exhibit 15, a true and certified copy of document No. 062-PS, which was introduced in evidence as Exhibit No. USA 696 in the trial by the International Military Tribunal of Hermann Goering and others, commencing on 20 November 1945.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

PROSECUTION: This document has been previously marked P-15 for identification.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I enter a blanket objection to these on the grounds that they are not relative or germane to the issues in this case.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested of the court to read the same.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit No. 15 will be read.

PROSECUTION: It is also requested that this document be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: It will be made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution is about to offer in evidence a statement of Hans Trummler, marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibits 31 and 31-A. It has been stipulated by and between the defense and the prosecution that if the witness Gerald Coates, U. S. Civilian examiner, War Crimes Headquarters, was present, he would testify that it is the signature of the accused Hans Trummler at the bottom of the exhibit.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense subscribes to that stipulation.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is accepted.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution offers in evidence the statement of Hans Trummler, to be marked Prosecution Exhibit 31 and to be made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 31-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 31-A for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 31-A, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution requests the court's permission to read exhibit P-31-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 31-A, the English translation of the statement of Hans Trummler, followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 31, the statement of Hans Trummler, by the interpreter.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, I have a motion I would like to make at this time before Gunther takes the stand. It deals with Prosecution Exhibits 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31, and raises a question, which so far as defense counsel knows, has not been raised before, at least so far as we are concerned. These five exhibits are evidence introduced by the prosecution from the very mouths of the accused, all under oath. This evidence introduced by the prosecution has all been under oath. It has gone far beyond the limits of confession; it includes exposition, explanation and descriptive matter relating to this case. And yet, may it please the court, these very same accused who have testified through these statements, when their own defense comes to be put on, will be denied the opportunity of testifying under oath. We believe, to permit the prosecution to introduce the evidence under oath which goes far beyond the limits of confession, and at the same time deny these same individuals a right to testify on their own behalf under oath, is a substantial violation of the rights of the accused and is tantamount to a denial of due process of law. Therefore, the defense moves that Prosecution Exhibits 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31 be stricken from the record. I should further add that the motion includes 27-A, 28-A, 29-A, 30-A and 31-A, which are the English translations.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the very question now brought up by counsel for defense was urged upon the court in the Malmedy case. It was urged in that case that sworn confessions cannot be introduced and received in evidence because they can only be rebutted by unsworn testimony. The court ruled adversely to that objection. We cite that case as a precedent along with other War Crimes cases in which that point has been brought up and decided.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I make just one more statement? These statements are far beyond confessions; they are explanatory and descriptive. And one more sentence -- the Malmedy case has not been reviewed and is not a legal precedent binding on this court as perhaps the Nuernberg decision might be said to be.

LAW MEMBER: When all of these exhibits were offered there was no objection raised by the defense.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: It was the idea of the accused to take a couple of the exhibits and raise the issue on a couple of them rather than raise them on a single isolated statement. If the defense's contention is sound that it is a violation of due process of law, failure to object immediately would not deprive them of their right. Besides, I raised the issue reasonably soon.

PROSECUTION: These statements contained matters relative to the issues in this case. The rules provide that this court may accept and receive sworn statements of that nature. It is true that the accused may not take the stand and be sworn, but the rule further states that written statements, sworn or unsworn, may be received for whatever probative value the court sees fit to give them.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

(Thereupon the court reconvened.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

Court will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 0900 hours.

(Whereupon at 1645 hours the court adjourned until 0900 hours Tuesday, 14 January 1947.)

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the Court, all the members of the Prosecution, all the members of the Defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present. At the close of the last session I believe there was a motion pending before the Court.

PRESIDENT: The motion of the Defense to strike Prosecution Exhibits 27 through 31, both inclusive, is overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: In as much as towards the end of the session something was said by the Court about the fact that the motion might have been to some extent diligent or have been improperly made, in view of the fact that when the Exhibits first went in no objection was made, I would like a ruling from the Court as to whether or not the time the motion was made played a part in the decision of the Court.

PRESIDENT: The time of making the motion played no part in the decision of the Court.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution has been informed that the psychiatrist has completed his examination of the accused Moller, Number 9, the Prosecution calls as its next witness Captain Harris who made the examination.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM M. HARRIS, U.S. Army, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Will you please state your full name?

A William M. Harris.

9A 24 LEK 2
1.14 SU

Q What is your rank?

A Captain.

Q What is your branch of service?

A Medical Corps.

Q Medical Corps of the Army of the United States?

A That is correct.

Q What is your present assignment to duty?

A Chief of the Neuro-psychiatric section of the 98th General Hospital.

Q Where?

A Munich.

Q On Friday, 10 January 1947, at the request of this Court, did you make an examination of one Hermann Moller an accused in this case?

A I did.

Q Did you make that examination here at Dachau?

A I did.

Q Will you tell the Court, how you conducted that examination and what your findings were?

A The examination was by interview. The findings of the examination essentially were that the accused has a chronic, moderate tension state; he is of average intelligence and the chronic tension has been present all his life. There was no history that would indicate that this man was at any time insane. It is my opinion that this man can understand the proceedings of the trial and is fully capable, at this time, of understanding the trial.

Q Captain, how long have you been in the medical department of the Army?

A Two years.

Q Prior to entering the service, will you tell the Court your experience as a medical man?

A I graduated from the University of Maryland Medical School in 1943. Following graduation I took a nine months internship and following that I entered the U.S. Army.

Q What type of work have you been doing as a medical officer in the Army?

A I have been in psychiatric work since my entrance into the Army.

Q The accused Hermann Moller, in this case, is alleged to have committed a crime on 22 February 1945, was he, in your opinion, sane on that date?

A It is my opinion that he was.

Q In your opinion, on that date, was he able to tell the difference between right and wrong?

A He could tell the difference between right and wrong.

Q Thank you.

PROSECUTION: That is all. You may cross examine.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q During the period of your medical studies did you specialize to any extent in psychiatric work or was your student career the normal medical studies?

A In medical school students take a rather rigidly prescribed course and there is little opportunity for specializing in any one particular field.

Q During your term in the medical school, how much work did you have, under instruction, in psychiatrics?

A In the University of Maryland we take work in psychiatry for approximately two hours a week throughout our four years of school.

Q Was your internship in a psychiatric ward or was that a general internship?

A It was a rotating internship.

Q That meant that during the nine months you might be for one period in surgical, for one period in medical and so on and so on, is that correct?

A That is true.

Q During the rest of your medical history, which has been in the Army, your knowledge of psychiatry has been picked up through the inperical method, is that correct?

A I attended a three months course at Columbia University when I officially entered the Army and since that time I have worked under Board men and have learned considerably from them.

Q I would like to ask you very frankly, Captain, in normal, civilian life, with your background and experience, would you be considered an expert in psychiatry? As a medical man, would you consider yourself as such? I realize that that is a hard question to answer but I am asking it of you frankly.

A It is my opinion that I would be qualified to give expert testimony on psychiatric cases.

Q My question was: As a medical man would you consider yourself an expert in psychiatry? You can answer that yes or no.

A I do not consider my training complete but neither do many doctors consider their training complete.

Q Yes or no, Captain, would you consider yourself an expert? Please answer yes or no.

A Well-

PRESIDENT: That question has been answered satisfactorily as far as the Court is concerned.

(Harris-cross)

tm 24 IJH 5

DEFENSE COUNSEL: My exception, if it please the Court.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q How long did you interview this man?

A Approximately three quarters of an hour.

Q Of what did that examination consist?

A The examination consisted of an interview and mainly questions on my part and answers by the accused.

Q What was the basis of your opinion that back in 1945 this man was sane?

A It is my opinion that the man was sane at that time because at no time in his history did he give me any information that would indicate that even possibly a condition of insanity might exist.

Q In other words, that opinion is purely objective and is based entirely on medical information given to you by the subject?

A It is not a purely objective opinion in that some force is lent by evaluating and observing the patient in the time I had with him, noting that there was no insanity present at this time and the nature of the condition, which is a moderate anxiety and then again, the lack of any objective evidence that would indicate that he was insane at that time.

Q Will you please state in lay language just what you mean by "chronic moderate tension state"?

A By that I mean that this man has a moderate degree of nervousness which has been present since childhood.

Q Does that cause nerve deterioration?

A No. That has nothing to do with deterioration, that is a functional thing.

Q Take a man like the subject of our discussion here who has this condition, would that man be more inclined to do as he was told by his superiors than a normal individual who did not suffer from this condition?

(Morris-cross) 113

1. 14 80

PROSECUTION: I object to that question. I believe that we are going far afield from the purpose of the direct testimony. The purpose of this testimony is to determine whetheror not the man knew the nature and quality of his acts and whether or not he knew the difference between right and wrong, whether or not he was insane and whether or not he was under compulsion to obey orders or less likely to obey orders under certain conditions.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then may I ask the Court that the witness be held available for use by the defense?

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court (reading):

"The Government is not required to prove the insanity of the accused by positive and direct evidence. Presumptions often stand for proof until rebutted. The presumption of law that everyone is sane, which holds good, is the full equivalent of expressed proof and stands until it is rebutted and will be sufficient to sustain the burden of proving the prisoner's sanity, where the evidence of the Government suggests nothing to the contrary. If the Government shall prove, even prima facie, that the accused committed an act which is criminal by law and no other evidence is given, his sanity will be presumed and if the prisoner in the defense made by him offers no evidence or offers unconvincing or unsatisfactory evidence on this point his sanity may be regarded as proved."

The Defense has offered no evidence of insanity and the presumption still exists. We had him examined at the requestof the Court. The expert here was obtained from the 98th General Hospital with permission from the commanding officer of the hospital to have the officer stay here for this period of time only. It would be inconvenient to the Government to retain this witness for any length of time further than the testimony this morning. I might suggest to the Defense that if the witness is desired to be brought back to court, arrangements be made with the hospital by the Defense. The Prosecution therefore, at this time, moves that the Court make a decision as to whether or not the accused, Hermann Moller, Number 9, under the nature of the charges against him and the proceedings of this court -- whether or not at the time of the commission of the alleged offense he was sane.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have two things in mind in addressing the Court. One is that the purpose of my examination, I think, has been misunderstood. Once the Court stopped me in my questioning as to the qualifications of the witness, I assumed the Court was satisfied in its mind one way or the other as to the qualifications of the witness as an expert. However, I am certain, in my mind, that this Court in ajudicating sentence, assuming there is a finding of guilty, will unquestionably give some weight to a man's mental condition and responsiveness to pressure from the outside. I thought that as long as the witness is here and was introduced as an expert, I would put that evidence in now, as to what this witness thought would be the reaction of this particular accused to outside pressure and thus avoid the necessity of bringing him in again. That is all I had in mind when I went with my question and the motion was made that it was premature, has no place, is not called for by the procedure; whether the Court thinks the man is liable and knows right from wrong will be determined by the Court's findings at the end of the case and is not to be made at this time.

Spare

PROSECUTION: The reason the motion was made at this time is that if the accused is insane he should be removed from the dock and not be allowed to continue in the case. Has the Defense any further questions of the witness?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That depends on the ruling of the Court to my first suggestion that I be allowed to continue with the witness rather than bring him back. If the Court says no, I have no further questions.

PRESIDENT: You may continue with the witness, providing you keep your questions on the subject at hand.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: On the question of sanity or insanity, I have no further questions; on his response to outside pressure, I have.

PRESIDENT: You may ask the questions.

PROSECUTION: I object to that, may it please the Court, this is no time for the Defense to raise any questions in defense of superior orders, this is the Prosecution's case.

PRESIDENT: The ruling of the Court is that you may ask the questions, Colonel Berman.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will the reporter please read the last questions put to this witness by me?

(Thereupon the reporter read the questions as follows:

"Q Take a man like the subject of our discussion here, who has this condition; would that man be more inclined to do as he was told by his superiors than a normal individual who did not suffer from that condition?")

PROSECUTION: I object to the question, on the grounds previously stated.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: In order to avoid any confusion I would first like to restate my first opinion that this man is sane and can distinguish right from wrong. Now, the question was, I believe, is the man more apt to be influenced by a direct order from a superior.

Q My question was: Was an individual suffering from this sort of condition more likely to lean on superiors and follow instructions.

A In this man's history there are findings that he is a rather weak, nervous, dependent individual and in this type of individual he is more easily influenced and suggestible than a man free of any tension or other personality inadequacies such as this man presents.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have nothing further, thank you, sir.

PROSECUTION: Nothing further by the prosecution. Any questions by any members of the court?

PRESIDENT: The court would like to have the answer that the witness just gave read.

(Whereupon the reporter read the last answer.)

PRESIDENT: No further questions by the court.

PROSECUTION: Request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution renews its application for a finding with respect to the accused, Moller.

PRESIDENT: The court is satisfied that the accused, Hermann Moller, is not insane, that he is able to understand the nature of the charges against him and the proceedings of the court, and the court so rules.

PROSECUTION: Will the court also rule as to whether or not the accused was sane or insane at the time of the offense, 22 February 1945?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense objects to the request, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

The court further rules that in the absence of evidence of insanity at the time the alleged crime was committed, the accused, Moller, was sane at the time of the alleged offense.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution recalls Hans Gunther.

PRESIDENT: You are reminded you are still under oath.

HANS GUNTHER, recalled as a witness by the prosecution, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Are you the same Hans Gunther who previously testified in this case?

A Yes.

Q What was your rank in May 1944?

A First of May 1945?

Q 1944.

A I was First Lieutenant of the Army.

Q At that time were you in the Wehrmacht or the Waffen SS?

A I was a member of the Wehrmacht, of the Army.

Q Were you later transferred to the Waffen SS and if so, when?

A Yes. On paper I was transferred only in September, October 1944 but actually I reported to Wiesbaden already the end of May, beginning of June 1944, with the higher SS and police leader.

Q What was your rank in September, 1944?

A Captain of the Waffen SS.

Q Now, in September 1944, what was your assignment to duty in General Stroop's command?

A My duties were to keep the already existing Security Plan up to date in regard to the forces, their weapons and munitions. Furthermore,

Ta 25 3 : ple/3

It was my duty to organize two railroad anti-aircraft batteries and one river anti-aircraft battery.

Q Did your organization have liaison with the Air Force?

A Yes.

Q Did you have liaison with the Twelfth Army Command within [illegible] AAA?

A Yes, the very closest liaison.

Q After your assignment as I-A on the staff of Gen. Stroop, were you given any special duties or missions?

A Yes. Furthermore was my duty to organize in the beginning the Undertaking "Balduin" and the Undertaking "A".

Q What do you mean by the Undertaking "A"?

A General Stroop had the intention, after discussion with General Fruetzmann and the Gauleiters, to organize the Undertaking which was similar to the Maquis in France.

Q Did you complete the organization of Undertaking "A"?

A No.

Q Why not?

A General Stroop relieved me of my duties with the Undertaking "A" because he was not satisfied with my performance.

Q Did he tell you why?

A Yes. I brought to the attention of General Stroop at the beginning of the Undertaking "A" that, in view of the unclear conditions for the purpose of the Undertaking and the unclear question of leadership in which the various government offices try to mix in, would have serious difficulties in regard to Geneva Convention, and that the only remaining possibility would be this one -- to organize a battalion of engineers in

Q At the time you were relieved from duty to organize the Undertaking "W", did General Stroop say anything about your moral principles?

A Yes. General Stroop said at that time with my fatuul, technical legal objections, with my weak, lax attitude, he couldn't do anything. He He would look for another man who would continue this Undertaking.

Q Just what purpose did General Stroop have in mind in the organization of this so-called enterprize "W"?

A General Stroop intended to organize Undertaking "W" in such a way that the men trained in the Undertaking "W" would let themselves fall behind the enemy's lines and then would start the fight against the enemy's supply lines [illegible]

Q If you know, was it the intention of General Stroop, as expressed to you in the preparation of plans for this Enterprise "W" to bring about violations of the Geneva Convention?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object.

DR. RAU: I object. First, this question is not important for our case, and secondly this question is a leading question--a suggestive question.

PROSECUTION: This question deals with a matter that is relative to the issue, the general, all around, combined conspiracy and plan to bring about violations of rules of warfare. It has probative value and will help the court discover the facts; and, although it is leading in some respect, the Prosecution requests the Court to permit the question.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

PROSECUTION: Do you remember the question?

WITNESS: I answer the question yes. The possibility was taken into account.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q How long were you engaged in preparing the plans for the Enterprise "W"?

A From the beginning of the organizing work, approximately three weeks.

Q Had the plans been fully completed when you were relieved from that assignment?

A No.

Q Who completed the plan?

A Captain Keller and Major Best.

Q Would you recognize Major Best if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, identify him.

A Yes, Number 14.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Best, Number 14.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Who relieved you from that assignment to complete the Enterprise "W"?

A General Stroop relieved me of this duty.

Q At the time he relieved you, did you have any conversation with him about it?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what that conversation was.

A I brought to the attention of General Stroop that all members of the Wehrwolf first of all had to be uniformed. Furthermore, they had to get pay books and a clear leadership, and that all other organizations which played around with this organization like the party and the Hitler Youths had to be excluded.

Q Did he say anything to you about your moral attitude?

A Yes.

Q What did he say?

A With your technical, legal attitude and objections, and your weak, your lax attitude, you are no man for me. With your legal, formal objections, and your weak, soft, lax attitude, you are not the right man for me. I will have to seek for some other man.

Q After you were relieved from the assignment to organize the Enterprise "W", what duties were you assigned?

A Then I had to take care only of the security plan, and the coordination and subordination of all units under the command of the General of the General Command 12th.

Q You mentioned the word "Wehrwolf". Is that the word for which the letter "W" stood for when you said "Enterprise 'W'"?

A Later on we found out that "W" was an abbreviation for "Wehrwolf".

Q Was that word a code word?

A Yes, it was a code word.

Q Now, you speak about the formulation of so-called security plans. When were those plans first drawn up?

A First, these plans were worked out through my predecessors in February, March, 1944.

Q In preparation for the making of the plans, were there any conferences held in General Stroop's Headquarters in Wiesbaden?

A I can't say that because at that time I wasn't in Wiesbaden as yet.

Q Were there any conferences held in General Stroop's office when you were there on duty?

A Yes.

Q Were they concerned with the preparation of these so-called security plans?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall any conferences in July or August, 1944?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the Court, I not only object, but I would like to have a ruling by the Court as to whether my objection should be passed on before translated into German. It is leading, it puts the dates of alleged conferences in the man's mouth. That's my objection to the question, and I should like a ruling as to whether or not I should object prior to the translation into German.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Your objection should be made prior to the translation into German.

DR. RAU: May I ask that an exception be made for the German attorneys. I think the question should, as far as the German counsel are concerned--should first be translated into German before they can decide whether an objection has to be raised or not.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: A division of authority here. That vitiates the purpose of my asking the question. The question is asked and the value of my question is gone. I am sorry, I will have to speak to the defense counsels as to when it's to be made.

PROSECUTION: I will restate the question. Do you recall any conferences in General Stroop's Headquarters in July or August, 1944?

WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Do you recall who was present at that conference?

A Yes.

Q Who?

A The Commander of the Security Police; the Commander of the Regular Police; the Chief of Staff with the Commander of the Order or Regular Police; Colonel of the SS Schluma; and the Secretary of General Stroop, Miss Hoecker, and myself.

Q Did you ever hear of a Colonel Niemann?

A Yes.

Q Is he present?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's attention. He is not an accused. I do not see what he has to do with the case.

PROSECUTION: I think it is relevant to name the people who were present at any conference about which testimony is going to be offered against the accused--especially if the accused was present also.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Was the accused Trummler there?

A Yes.

Q In preparation for the so-called security plans, approximately how many conferences did you attend in General Stroop's Headquarters?

A On discussions on meetings about the Security plan itself, I participated appreximately 15 times in so-called chief meetings.

Q At the conferences you attended, were the people you have mentioned before always present?

A Yes. Sometimes, one or the other of the gentlemen was absent. Furthermore, there were individual conferences

Ta 20. 1/4/47, ...m?

between the commanders and General Stroop directly--sometimes on the same day--sometimes on other dates.

Q Now, directing your attention to the middle or latter part of October, 1944, was there any conference held at that time in General Stroop's Headquarters?

A Yes.

Q Did General Stroop preside over that conference?

A Yes.

Q Did that also take place in his Headquarters at Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court exactly what transpired and what took place at that conference.

A At this conference first the security plan and the cooperation of the General Command was up for discussion. Furthermore, the organization of a cavalry unit of the SS Motorized Unit 12th; then, General Stroop brought up the question of the fliers; and he complained very much to Colonel Niemann about the attitude of the regular police. Contradictory to existing orders, the regular police would help very actively in the protection of fliers. It would make impression that the regular police is already weak and tired of the war. In the future, he would see to the most severe punishment of all members of the regular police who would aid in the protection of fliers. Furthermore, he was of the opinion that in principle the fliers should be handed over to the Security Police. Colonel Niemann objected to this very vehemently and brought to the attention that it would be impossible for a member of the regular police to watch that fliers who had parachuted would be lynched and the assignment of the regular police to see for peace and order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all members of the court, all members of the prosecution, all members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and the interpreter are present.

HANS GUNTHER, recalled as a witness by the prosecution, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

PROSECUTION: I believe the defense counsel has an application.

PRESIDENT: The ruling of the court that the objections be made before the translation of the question is rescinded and the court rules that an objection can be made at any time, but all of the proceedings will be translated.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think that anticipates what I was going to ask, may it please the court. I was going to suggest that the American counsel be allowed to make them before the translation, the German counsel subsequent to the translation, but I think the ruling of the court covers that. Thank you.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I believe you said that General Stroop gave instructions that captured fliers would be turned over to the police, is that correct?

A That the captured fliers should be handed over to the Security Police.

Q Did General Stroop say anything else in this connection?

A Yes. He said, "In the future, I will take the strongest steps against these ideas of humanity. These drivers in the air who are shooting at women and children do not deserve any pity. The enemy does not live up to the Geneva Convention any more. For this reason, there is no necessity for me to obey, to follow, the rules of the Convention."

Q Did you know at that time a Captain Kaleske?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was adjutant of General Stroop.

Q Directing your attention to the month of November, 1944, did you have any conversations with Kaleske?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment as to what conversations with an adjutant, not in the presence of the accused.

PROSECUTION: I believe this question will be made relevant, if the court will permit me to connect it.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Where did you have these conversations with Kaleske?

A In the anteroom to General Stroop.

Q Did these conversations concern the instructions given by General Stroop?

A Yes.

Q What did Kaleske say to you and what did you say to him?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

THE WITNESS: Captain Kaleske told me that a police officer in Altenkirchen had taken part in the saving of a dropped flier and had transferred this flier in his car to an office of the Wehrmacht. General Stroop then requested a most severe punishment of this officer. I told Captain Kaleske the police officer behaved entirely right. A flier who came down is definitely a prisoner of war, and has to be treated as such, as this could be read from the Geneva Convention, which was made the preamble of the security plan. I had made this preamble myself and had made it part of the security plan.

Q Directing your attention to September, 1944, do you recall any reports made to General Stroop by Gauleiter Sprenger concerning captured fliers?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court about that.

A I had a letter from Gauleiter Sprenger in my hands, a letter in which Gauleiter Sprenger first discussed the question of transfer of the auxiliary police of the Ukraine and countries into the People's Guard. In the second paragraph of this letter, Gauleiter Sprenger mentioned that on several occasions, German police officers had taken part in the protection of fliers against existing orders, and he requested immediate steps against this behavior.

Q Do you know what, if anything, Stroop did in connection with that report from Sprenger?

A I discussed this letter with General Stroop.

Q What did you say to General Stroop and what did he say to you?

A I told General Stroop that from now on, the Party would try to take great influence on military matters as well as police matters, and that we should resist such efforts as much as possible. Furthermore, we are bound by the Geneva Convention. General Stroop then told me, "All these are formal legal objections, and, furthermore, this is none of your business. You take care of your security plan."

Q Directing your attention to the month of January, 1945, do you recall seeing a report concerning five American soldiers found dead in Trier on the Moselle?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court about that.

A Through the chain of command, from the general command, we received

Ta 27-pg-50-1/1b-k

a report from the Army high command No. 1, in which this gave the following facts: five American fliers who had last been seen accompanied by members of the Security Police had been found dead by members of this Army. The Army high command asked for what reason these soldiers had been shot, and requested a detailed report. [illegible] in that paper by Goebbels concerning [illegible]

Q Did you see the report yourself?

A Yes.

Q What did you do with it? [illegible]

A I gave this report immediately to General Stroop, and suggested to Colonel Trummler that we should request immediately exact information in [illegible]

Q To make it clear to the court, when I referred to your seeing the report, I meant the original inquiry made from the high command, [illegible] all [illegible]

A Yes. [illegible]

Q Did you so understand it? [illegible]

A Yes.

Q You say you forwarded it to General Stroop? What did General Stroop say to you about it? [illegible] the article in the paper [illegible]

A General Stroop didn't make any reply, but he let the inquiry be forwarded to Colonel Trummler. [illegible]

Q After that, did you have any conversations with Trummler about that matter? [illegible] from Obersturmbannführer Strenger.

A Yes. [illegible] Stroop say to you about it?

Q When and where? [illegible]

A In the anteroom of General Stroop, about the end of February, 1945.

Q Tell the court what that conversation was.

A Since this matter was of interest to me, and was also considered extraordinary in our business affairs, I asked Colonel Trummler why is this report had not been completed yet, since the Army high command was waiting for this report. [illegible] the end of May.

Q What did Trummler say? [illegible]

Ta 27-ps-80-1/1k-6

a 27-ps-80-1/1k-5

A Colonel Trumler told me not to bother about such petty matters, probably a few tried to escape. "Furthermore, that is none of your business."

Q Were you familiar with the German publication known as Das Reich?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever see any articles in that paper by Goebbels concerning American fliers?

A Yes.

Q What were these articles, if you recall?

A This article intended to send the German people to acts which to would have meant violation of international law. I discussed this article in connection with the letter of Gauleiter Sprenger with General Stroop, and brought to his attention that now the political leadership is trying by all means, with disregard whether the means were allowed or not, or men would have to be sacrificed without any use, finally to take over the military leadership.

Q I show you a document which is Prosecution Exhibit P-21, and is a newspaper article, and direct your attention to the article in the paper by Dr. Goebbels, and ask you whether you have ever seen that before.

A Yes, in the publication Das Reich.

Q Did you and General Stroop have any conversation about that article?

A Yes, in connection with the letter from Gauleiter Sprenger in July.

Q What, exactly, did General Stroop say to you about it?

A "You can't win a war with humanitarian feelings. These are formal legal objections. All of you are already tired of the war. It is high time that I take exemplary steps."

Q Gunther, when were you first apprehended by the American forces?

A May, 1946.

Q When did you see Stroop for the first time after that?

A In the prison at Wiesbaden about the end of May.

Q At that time, did you have any conversation with him about this case?

Q When did you first report to General Stroop for duty?

A End of May, beginning of June.

Q In that conversation, did you speak to him about the instrument you have testified to, with respect to the report from the Gauleiter made to Stroop in September?

A Yes.

Q What did Stroop say to you about that?

A Stroop told me, "Gunther, you are right. I should have better listened to you. I have done you wrong with your activities in Wiesbaden. It would have been better for me if I would have rode on my horses than to bother with these matters."

PROSECUTION: No further questions. You may cross examine.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Yesterday I asked you when Somann was relieved from his office as inspector, and I believe you said sometime in September, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And this morning, you were testifying to a conference held in Stroop's office in July or August, at which Trummler was present, is that correct?

A No. This was referring to the conference in October.

Q Who was present at this conference which you said took place in July or August?

A Not July or August, I didn't mention any particular conference. I mentioned only that starting July, I participated on conference.

Q You testified that about three weeks after you reported for duty with General Stroop, you were relieved of participation in Plan W?

A Yes.

Q About what time would that be that you were relieved?

A End of September, beginning of October.

Ta 27-ps-30-1/14-7

Q When did you first report to General Stroop for duty?

A End of May, beginning of June.

Q When were you first assigned to work on Plan W?

A The order for the undertaking W was given approximately July or August. I first left this matter on my desk and specially did not do anything about the plans, since I couldn't see clear yet. In this connection, General Stroop admonished me severely at the end of the preparations for the undertaking W, and mentioned that in the section west of General Guttenberger, already great progress had been made, and he wouldn't like for me, a little captain of the SS, to get a bad name with Himmler.

[illegible] you discussed the security plan?

[illegible] end of June; beginning of July, I guess.

[illegible] Trumler present at that meeting?

[illegible] No.

[illegible] that was the first meeting at which Trumler was present?

[illegible] one of the meetings at which Trumler was present.

[illegible] this Werwolf organization you discussed in your evidence, was that a headquarters proposition or was that troop's proposition?

(Witness examines)

Q You testified under examination of a meeting in October at which the question of fliers first came up, and, you also testified to a general meeting which took place, prior to the October meeting. At the time the paper was presented to the witness and objected to it entered by the court Q You testified that there were about fifteen meetings at which you were present at which the security plan was discussed. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q What was the date of the first conference in which you discussed the security plan?

A End of June; beginning of July, I guess.

Q Was Trummler present at that meeting?

A No.

Q What was the first meeting at which Trummler was present?

A End of September; beginning of October.

Q This Wehrwolf organization you discussed in your evidence, was that a headquarters proposition or was that Stroop's proposition?

A First it was a proposition of Headquarters at Berlin, but like in all measures Stroop made this matter his personal matter.

Q Were his actions as you have described them in conformance with orders received from higher authority?

A At my time no orders from higher authority were existing.

Q I show you this thing I have in my hand and ask you to examine it and tell me if you have ever seen it before.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

(Argument)

PRESIDENT: The motion to strike from the record, concurred in by both prosecution and defense is sustained, and all that has been said from the time the paper was presented to the witness and objected to is ordered by the court to be physically stricken from the record as being immaterial to all issues.

[illegible] Upon examination of this instrument it turns out that this was a statement made to the accused in pre-trial preparation by the prosecution. The prosecution turned it over to the translator and it accidentally got into the hands of the defense. The defense has no right to have [illegible] and if they do use instruments, which in this case happens to be in question-and-answer form, they are in effect violating the rule that has been laid down that they cannot interrogate our witnesses.

[illegible] I cannot just very big but the witness has testified; he has been turned over for cross examination. Now, the prosecution has in its possession something in writing from this witness, which is a completion interview which he has said was direct examination. It seems to me, in the interest of simple justice, our procedure was such a document which would be of assistance to the defense in bringing out the issues, we have a right to see for it and I [illegible].

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will now ask for that paper which I had, since it seems to have been a copy of an interrogation made by the prosecution in preparation for its case. Rather than run the risk of violating the rule, I have returned it to Colonel Dwinell and I will now ask him to return it to me for the purpose of cross examining the witness in question. Do you remember to identify?

PROSECUTION: Upon examination of this instrument it turns out that these are statements made by the accused in pre-trial preparation by the prosecution. The prosecution turned it over to the Translation Section and it accidentally got into the hands of the defense. The defense has no right to take instruments from us to be used in evidence, and if they do take instruments, which in this case happens to be in question-and-answer form, they are in effect violating the rule that has been laid down that they cannot interrogate our witnesses [illegible] orders.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I comment just very briefly? The witness has testified; he has been turned over for cross examination. Now, the prosecution has in its possession something in writing from this witness, which in our opinion impeaches that which he has said upon direct examination. It seems to us, in the interest of simple justice, if the prosecution has such a document which could be of assistance to the defense in bringing out the issues, we have a right to ask for it and I so do. PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.) [illegible]

(Whereupon the court reconvened.) [illegible].

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order. [illegible] for your life and death [illegible]

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will now ask the court to order Colonel Dwinell to let me have for examination a paper which contains statements impeaching the testimony of this witness given in open court.

PRESIDENT: The request of the defense is denied.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You have testified that General Stroop on occasion threatened the strongest punishment to any person subject to his command who failed to carry out the orders with respect to treatment given captured allied air personnel. Do you remember so testifying?

A Yes.

Q What powers of punishment did General Stroop possess to punish those under his command whom he considered violators of his orders or orders of higher authority with respect to treatment to be given to captured allied air personnel?

A On one occasion General Stroop threatened me with imprisonment or execution and I assume that the same punishment would have been applicable against any other officer who acted against Stroop's orders.

Q Had General Stroop power of life and death over those who were subject to his command jurisdiction?

A Yes, he was the higher appointing and reviewing judicial authority.

Q Did each and every member subject to General Stroop's command know of General Stroop's power of life and death over him?

PROSECUTION: I object on the ground that the witness would not be able to know all these things. He is in no position to know what everyone knows.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: -- so far as you know?

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: General Stroop was the master over life and death but it is possible that in the Security Police the matters were organized in a different manner. I don't know about that.

Q We are talking now about these people who were subject to General Stroop's command jurisdiction. It is over these people, is it not -- those who were members of his command and subject to his command jurisdiction -- that he had the power of life and death, is that not correct? In your opinion or so far as you know, did these unlimited powers [illegible]?

A That's right. I for myself was present at the execution of an SS man who was sentenced to death and I was forced to look at it in order to get strong nerves when the attempt was made to assassinate Hitler. Did General Stroop have the power of life and death over Semmum for failing to obey orders?

Q I don't know that's [illegible] office at that time?

A Did he have it over Frummler?

A This too is unknown to me. Did Stroop have the power of life and death over -- when did he have the power of life and death among these defendants whose names you have mentioned?

A Over all members of the regular police and the SS, who was a [illegible]. Now, assuming that Semmum was a member or the Ordinance Police or a member of the SS, would Stroop have the power of life and death over Semmum? Would he have the power of life and death over Giss, who was a lieutenant? Since this would have concerned a higher SS rank I assume the consent of the Reichsfuehrer SS would have been necessary.

Q How about Girth? Would he have the power of life and death over Girth? Sir?

A No, I don't think so.

Q Where, in the chain of command of people over whom Stroop had command jurisdiction did this power of life and death begin, -- at what level of command? Um, yes.

A Here you have to consider the entire situation as it existed around the middle and end of 1944.

A Yes.

Q Was Seyss still in office at that time?

A Yes.

Q Beginning with July 1944, did Stroop have the power of life and death over Michely, who was a private?

A Yes, no doubt.

Q Would he have the power of life and death over Fuehr, who was a chauffeur in the SS?

A I don't know that because Fuehr was a member of the Gestapo.

Q Would he have the power of life and death over Goss, who was a lieutenant in the SS?

A No doubt.

Q Would he have the power of life and death over Best, who was a major in the SS?

A Yes.

Q And the power of making decisions involving life and death was absolutely uncontrolled, is that correct?

A At that time, yes.

Q That time begins with July 1944 and continues until the end of the war, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Suppose Stroop had refused to obey Himmler's orders about the treatment of allied air personnel. What, so far as you know, would have happened to Stroop? [illegible] Court, [illegible] know

A I did not see one but I assume that one existed.

Q Have you ever seen any SS publications?

A Please ask me more specifically what publications are meant?

Q Have you ever seen any publications which were commonly distributed periodically among the SS personnel?

A No.

Q Do you know whether or not there was a special code of discipline which existed for members of the SS?

A Yes.

Q Was there anything about the discipline among the personnel of the SS which was peculiar to the SS itself?

A PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, I object on the grounds that the question goes beyond the scope of direct examination.

A PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

A DEFENSE COUNSEL: It really is not cross examination of direct testimony. I thought that so long as the witness was on the stand I would elicit as much information as I could. If that is objectionable and the Court says so, I will have to stop.

A PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, you have testified to various differences of opinion between General Stroop and yourself, have you any prejudices against him?

A No. General Stroop was not known at all to me when I came to Wiesbaden, the differences began only in the course of our work together.

Q You testified to hearing Streep talk about the alleged murder by Allied air personnel of women and children in the fields. You remember giving such testimony, do you not?

A About the murder of women and children in the fields, no. Only about air attacks on women and children.

Q During these conversations in which the subject was air attacks upon women and children in the fields and on the roads, what specific incidents were mentioned as to where such an event took place?

A General Streep talked about it only in general.

Q Do you personally know of any cases of low flying strafing by Allied airmen or personnel of German nationals working in the field or walking peacefully on the roads?

A I myself did not see it but it was general talk.

Q By whom?

A Travelers who had experienced it themselves.

Q Did you hear any of these travelers?

A Yes.

Q How many times?

A Only when I rode to Heidelberg into the hospital. It happened possibly twice.

Q Did these people tell you just exactly what had happened to them?

A I cannot remember the details anymore.

Q Will you tell the Court just what you do remember?

A Among the civilian population of travelers it was talked in general about the fact that strafing attacks on trains had taken place whereby some women and children had been injured.

Q So that, according to what was talked about by the general public, what was said by Goebbels in his newspaper was true, was it not?

A I was not present at any killing of any man.
[illegible]

Q Did you not testify this morning that you were compelled to witness the shooting of an SS man?
A [illegible]
[illegible]

A The shooting of an SS man and not of a flyer. The question here is about flyers.
[illegible]
A [illegible]

Q For what reason was the SS man shot?
[illegible]

A Because of desertion and cowardice before the enemy.

[illegible]
QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:
[illegible]

Q Was this SS man shot because of a sentence pronounced by the accused Stroop or on whose sentence was he shot?
[illegible]
[illegible]

A As far as I remember the sentence was pronounced by General Stroop.
[illegible]

Q Have you ever heard that there was such a thing as SS police courts?
A [illegible]

A Yes.
[illegible]

Q What was the mission of these courts? I am supposing that because
[illegible]
you were the operations officer of a high SS leader that you will know the [illegible]
answer.
[illegible]

PROSECUTION: I object to that, May it please the Court, as going beyond the scope of direct examination.
[illegible]

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

DR. RAU: I believe it is in connection with the testimony of the witness that he has stated that General Stroop had power over life and death.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q On the basis of what regulations did General Stroop have the power over life and death of his people, in your opinion?

A General Stroop continuously let it be known that he was under Himmler and that he had received all including powers from Himmler himself.

Q What do you understand by "all including powers"?

A By the manner in which General Stroop talked about it, it was perfectly clear to everyone that he included everything in it.

Q Were there no courts-martial provided for the SS?

A Yes, there were such.

Q How do you believe it possible then that General Stroop could make these decisions without recourse to these Courts?

A I had the intention to complain about having been ordered to witness the shooting of an SS man and I therefore talked to the SS judge Dr. Neuberger. Dr. Neuberger answered me, "It is no sense to do anything at all you cannot prevail against General Stroop".

Q Was it not only a disciplinary matter or, in your opinion, was it not a court matter?

A I considered it an affront to my soldierly honor to be ordered to witness the shooting of an SS man to harden my nerves after I had done my duty as a soldier at the front.

Q But apparently you did not feel under such great pressure so that you could not complain about the directives of your superior, is that correct?

PROSECUTION: I object to the question as being argumentative.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

A Yes.

Q Is it not correct that for this undertaking a special person-in-charge was appointed?

A Another person was appointed to the post because great differences had appeared between us.

Q How do you know that this other person was appointed only because there were differences between you?

A Because General Stroop himself told me that I was too weak and too slack in my opinions and he had to look for a new man for the post.

Q Who was the man that after you was in charge of the Undertaking Wehrwolf?

A For a short time, Captain Keller, and later, Major Best.

Q On what matters did you work during your time besides the Undertaking Wehrwolf?

A On the establishment of two anti-aircraft batteries, an anti-aircraft boat group, and the Undertaking Baldwin.

Q Did Major Best work on anything else besides the Underteking Wehrwolf?

A No.

Q So his entire time was taken up to work on the Operation Wehrwolf, is that right?

A Yes.

Q But since you were working on several other missions, you could not have worked effectively on the Operation Wehrwolf, is that correct or is it not?

A The Operation Wehrwolf would have come into effect as it was planned, it would have been built into the Security Plan and a normal pioneer battalion could have come into existence.

Q I believe you did not answer my question. I asked you whether, besides your other work, you could have worked on Operation Wehrwolf or not?

A It would have been possible.

Q How do you explain, then, that after you the Operation Wehrwolf took up all the time and working ability of an officer?

A Because the training course of the SS pursuit groups had prior under different formations as came later on under Major Best.

Q If I understand you correctly then, your successor on the Operation Wehrwolf had other missions to work on besides the Operation Wehrwolf, is that correct?

A No. Major Best came originally to Wiesbaden to inspect the trained men and was put into this office against his will by General Stroop. That means, against the will of Major Best.

Q Were you, too, transferred into this office against your will?

A Yes.

Q Were you a member of the SS before 1944?

A Yes.

Q In what period?

A I was in the General SS from 1934 'till 1939.

Q When you were transferred from the Army to the SS, to which part of the SS were you first transferred?

A To the SS Personnel Main Office in Berlin.

Q And from there?

A And from there I was detailed to General Stroop.

Q Is it not correct that you volunteered for this post?

(Gunther-recross)

A No. I was supposed to be a welfare officer first because I was a severely injured officer. In spite of my continued interventions, General Stroop left me in Wiesbaden, and the entire staff can bear witness to that.

Q Do you know whether or not General Stroop was a reviewing authority?

A Yes.

Q Do you know also what his duties were in this connection?

A In detail I cannot say that.

PROSECUTION: I object.

PRESIDENT: Just a minute, did you object?

PROSECUTION: The question has been answered. My objection was entered in the record too late.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q While you worked on the Operation Wehrwolf, you got the impression that the Geneva Convention was to be disregarded?

A Yes.

Q In what details did you see a disregard of the Geneva Convention?

A General Stroop was of the opinion that the men of Operation "W" could begin undertaking also in civilian clothes.

Q In that you saw a disregard of the Geneva Convention, if I understand you correctly?

A It is clear that if men in civilian clothes without any insignia of any kind operate, that that is a disregard of the Geneva Convention.

Q Did you ever read the Geneva Convention?

A Yes, I even made it a part of the Security Plan.

Q And you are of the opinion that rules are provided in the Geneva Convention about that, is that correct?

A Yes, in the Geneva Convention the usages of war are detailed.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Gunther, you said that in your opinion Stroop had all-exclusive power, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Was it also your opinion that in the use of those powers Stroop was excessive?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment.

PROSECUTION: Opinion evidence has been permitted the defense, it should be permitted the prosecution.

PRESIDENT: Just a minute. We are not getting some of these things up here. Will you repeat that.

(whereupon the reporter read the objection of the Defense Counsel and reply of the prosecution.)

THE INTERPRETER: Pardon me. The accused specifically requested the arguments be translated for him. Is that agreeable with the court or should I dispense with translating the arguments?

PRESIDENT: It is agreeable. Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes. Stroop was very hard and he insisted that his measures were carried out.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have just a few more that have occurred to me.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You say here, Gunther, that Stroop was very hard in his decisions. Are you able to give this court any information as to the extent to which Stroop's character and opinions on these matters were known to those under his command?

PROSECUTION: I would like to ask the court to warn the defense that character evidence is now being produced.

PRESIDENT: The question is now bordering upon the question of showing character of the accused.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should like to comment to the court that in my examination I very carefully used, throughout, the word "power" and avoided carefully any questions about the exercise of the power. It was the prosecution who asked, over my objection which was overruled by the court, whether Stroop abused his power, so that field was opened, not by us but by the prosecution over my objection. Now, I am merely asking whether or not the underlings under Stroop knew of Stroop's power and his attitude. That is all I am asking. Rather than run the risk that the defense may open this line of questioning, I request permission to withdraw my last question.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I believe I asked you here, Gunther, before, but I have forgotten your answer -- was there a special discipline invoked among members of the SS which was particularly rigorous?

PROSECUTION: I object on the ground it goes beyond the scope of direct and redirect examination.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

(Gunther-recross)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have just one more question which I think will also be objected to along the same grounds.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Was it not a cardinal principle in the SS to instill into all its members that strict obedience to orders was the first principle?

PROSECUTION: I object on the grounds previously stated.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: My associate wants to ask one more question. I personally am through.

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Mr. Gunther, you have been testifying to opinion, let me ask you this -- Is it your opinion that punishment by death for a military person who disobeys an order of his superior officer during time of war, is excessive?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question on the grounds previously stated.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Defense has nothing further.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution has nothing further. Does the court desire to ask the witness any questions?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness is excused.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution calls as its next witness, Reinhard Breder on behalf of the prosecution. Captain Vance will conduct the direct examination.

REINHARD BREDER, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q State your full name.

A Reinhard Breder.

Q What is your present status?

A I am a prisoner here in camp.

Q What is your home address?

A Winkel in Rheingau, Hindenburgstrasse.

Q How old are you?

A 35 years.

Q Before the war what was your civilian occupation?

A I was first a student and then I took my first and second law examinations.

Q Were you a lawyer?

A No, I was a court assistant, I was a judge.

Q Were you a member of the Allgemein SS after the war began?

A Yes, since 1933.

Q What were your duties from September 1943 until March 1945?

A I was drafted the end of August 1939 and came to the SD. I first was in Cologne and then in Hamburg, then in Dusseldorf. Since 1943 in Frankfurt-Main.

(Breder-direct/
end Ta 31 idb fols

Q What was your position in Frankfurt since September, 1943?

A I was the leader of the State Police for the Government District Wiesbaden.

Q Is that commonly known as the Gestapo?

A Yes.

Q So you were the Chief of the Gestapo in Frankfurt, is that correct?

A That's correct.

Q Now, in September, 1943, when you became Chief of the Gestapo in Frankfurt, who was your next superior?

A The local immediate superior was the Inspector of the Security Police Somann.

Q Do you know Somann's first name?

A Otto.

Q How long did Otto Somann remain to be your next superior officer?

A Until August, 1944.

Q After that date who was your next superior officer?

A Trummler.

Q Do you know his first name?

A Hans.

Q If you were to see Otto Somann at this time, would you recognize him?

A Yes, of course.

Q Will you look around the court room and see if he is present in court? If so, point him out.

(Breder-Direct)

A It's number 3.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, let the record show that the witness has indicated the accused Otto Somann wearing placard number 3.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Would you recognize Hans Trummler if you were to see him at this time?

A Yes.

Q If he is present in Court, will you indicate which man is Hans Trummler?

A He wears the number 2.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has indicated the accused Hans Trummler, wearing placard number 2.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q During this period of time, where was Somann's office located?

A In Wiesbaden in Paulinen Strasse.

Q After Somann left and Trummler took over, did he occupy the same office?

A Yes.

Q During the period of time that you were Chief of the Gestapo in Frankfurt, were you ever called to the Headquarters in Wiesbaden for any conferences?

A Yes, several times.

Q What were these conferences about, and who held them?

A Continuous matters of the Security Police were being debated. The conferences were held by the Inspector--first by Somann and later on by Trummler.

Q Did you ever attend any conferences held by Somann where the treatment to be given allied fliers was discussed?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That's certainly a leading queation, the Defense submits, may it please the Court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: In June, or possibly the beginning of July, 1944, in the Kurhaus in Wiesbaden, a conference of all leaders of offices of the Gestapo, Criminal Police and SD in the District Rhein-Westmark was held. In the course of this conference, an order was read by Somann which he had gotten from Himmler over Kaltenbrunner. In this order it said the following: It is not the mission of the police to protect allied fliers who had jumped when they were attacked by the German civilian population. The police should keep themselves back. This order was to be made known to all members of the Security Police and SD hourly.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Do you recall who was present at this conference you are talking about?

A Yes, for example, Berger, the Chief of the Criminal Police in Frankfurt; also Dr. Jaskulsky, the Chief of the SD in Frankfurt; further the Chief of the State Police in Koblenz; Dr. Christmann; who was there from the police in Darmstadt I am not sure anymore, but I believe it was Girke; also the Chief of the SD in Koblenz, Wiebens was present, and several other office leaders of the Criminal Police whose names I do not remember.

Q Was General Stroop present at this conference?

A He came later in the course of the debate with several members of his staff.

Q Did General Stroop have anything to say at this conference?

A In the main he was here as a guest only--only later he voiced his opinion to some of the lectures given.

Q Do you know General Stroop and would you recognize him if you were to see him today?

A Yes.

Q If he is present in Court, will you indicate which man is General Stroop?

A He wears the number 1.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has indicated the accused Jurgen Stroop, wearing placard number 1.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Can you recall any other conferences that you attended in Wiesbaden?

A Yes, there were several conferences that took place approximately every six or eight weeks. Sometimes they were in different places, for example in Muedesheim.

Q Now, Ireder, did you ever receive any written orders telling you what should be done with allied fliers that bailed out in your district?

A The general orders from the time when the war started existed which said that the police was to deliver prisoners to the air force. Later I remember an order that arrived in about September, 1944. This order came from Berlin--from the Security Main Office in Berlin--and was said that allied fliers had been found that had weapons secretly hidden on them, and our officers should be careful and have a weapon in readiness. In the spring of 1945, after the incidents in Eltvielle, an order arrived from Trummler, who stated the same thing.

Q Breder, have you ever talked to Hans Trummler about this matter of treatment to be given to allied fliers?

A Yes.

Q What did he say should be done with allied fliers?

A He said that he thought it right that allied fliers who were taken prisoners should be shot.

Q Now, I believe you said that your office was located in Frankfurt, is that correct?

A Yes, my main office, but I also had sub-offices in Wiesbaden, Limburg and Wetzlar.

Q Who was your subordinate in charge of your Wiesbaden branch office?

A From the fall of 1944 until February, 1945, it was Criminal Officer Luckard. From February until the arrival of the Americans, it was Commissioner Bueth.

Q Did you ever have a discussion with Bueth about the treatment to be given captured, allied fliers?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object, may it please the Court. He is not an accused; he is not even shown to be associated with the accused.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, I propose to show a conversation that took place between Breder and Dr. Trummler, and under the procedure of this Court hearsay is admissible if it has probative value, and we say that it has.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: In march, 1945, Bueth reported to me, during an official conversation, the following: He had gotten the order from Trummler that he was to shoot allied fliers that were sent to him by Trummler or the police. He asked me whether this order was justified and how he should conduct himself. I answered him that he did not have to carry out that order, but should deliver prisoners to the nearest Army installation. Bueth told me that that wasn't possible because the Army refused acceptance of such prisoners, and returned them to the police. Thereupon, I instructed him to deliver prisoners to the main office in Frankfurt so that we could send them to the camp in Oberursel. I added to that that he should carry out these instructions without talking about them, because at that time I did not want to have any clash with Trummler, but if any serious questions arise that I would cover him.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Breder, earlier in your testimony, you mentioned that Fritz Girke may have been present at this conference in Wiesbaden. If you were to see this Fritz Girke at this time, would you recognize him?

A Yes.

Q If he is present in Court, will you indicate which man is Fritz Girke?

A He wears the number 19.

(Breder-Direct)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness indicates the accused Fritz Girke, wearing placard number 19. That's all for the Prosecution. Would the Defense care to examine this witness?

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You stated that Somann was your immediate superior until some time in August, 1944. Can you give the Court a closer date than that?

A I believe it was in the beginning of August.

Q If you were told, Mr. Breder, that Somann was relieved from office on the 28th of July, would you accept that as the date he gave up his office as Inspector?

A Of course, I do not remember the exact day. I recall to my memory that it was in the beginning of August, but it is possible that it was in the last few days of July.

Q Certainly the latest day in 1944 upon which he was released was some time in the early part of August, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And was there some intermediate person who took command between Somann and Trummler?

A Yes, there was for a short time, temporarily, SS Lt. Colonel Wiebens from Koblenz.

Q How long did he exercise command?

to all the members of the police, is that correct?

A Until Trummler arrived.

Q And when was that? After the order was read

A It may have been on the 18th or 20th of September, 1944.

Q So that this command was held by this Wiebens for something like six weeks?

A Yes.

Q This meeting that took place in the Kurhaus in which the order was delivered that you testified to--how long before Schmann was relieved was that meeting held?

A It may have been four weeks perhaps or more or less. So well I cannot remember that.

Q Now that order was in writing, was it not?

A Yes, he read it. He held it in his hand. It had come by way of Kaltenbrunner from Himmler.

Q Was it signed?

A I did not see the order. It was only read to me.

Q And that order was the so-called "non-interference" order, is that correct?

A Yes, that's correct.

Q And at that meeting Schmann read the order which told the police not to interfere with the civilian population, is that correct?

A Yes, it was the general order.

Q After reading the order, you then said that Schmann directed that the contents of that order be made known orally of in command with the SD?

(Broder-Cross)

to all the members of the police, is that correct?

A [illegible] Inspector of the Customs Service Division.

A Yes, that's correct.

Q And outside of the fact that the order was read and the additional fact that Somann said everybody should be told about the order, that was all that was said during that meeting about treatment of allied air personnel, is that correct?

A Yes, it was supposed to be made known to everyone all over.

Q But those were the only two things that were done, is that correct? About fliers? I will withdraw the question and start over. During that meeting, the only thing that happened which dealt with captured allied personnel was first the reading of the order and second Somann's order that everybody should be informed about that. Was that all that was done at that meeting or said at that meeting about captured allied personnel, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Then any other orders which you received or which you heard about which were published after this meeting, you heard after Somann had been relieved, is that correct?

A Yes, that's correct.

Q And the only order which dealt with captured allied air personnel that you know about--that you heard about--from Somann was the one order you talked about--the so-called "non-interference" order, is that correct?

A That is correct. More, I did not hear from Somann.

(Breder-Cross)

Q Do you know where Somann went after he was relieved

Te [illegible]-1/ah-1 of his command with the SD?

A Yes, he went to Berlin as General Inspector of the Custom Border Protection.

Q And so far as you know, how long did he remain in that capacity?

A As far as I know until the end of the war.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I can think of nothing further now, may it please the court, but before committing ourselves, may we have the recess to think it over?

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for 20 minutes.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Franz Traeger.

Q Where do you live?

A Frankfurt/Main.

Q How old are you?

Q In 1944, where were you employed?

A I was sent to forced service from the university in Frankfurt, during the winter 1944, to the SD, Frankfurt, please the court.

Q What did you do there?

A I did general office work as a forced service student.

Q As a student in what headquarters?

A In the office of the SD Sector, Frankfurt/Main.

Q Were you employed in the regional office of the security service in Frankfurt?

A Yes, in the district building.

Q What was your next superior headquarters, and where was that?

A The superior headquarters of the SD Sector, Frankfurt, was the commander of the Security Police and SD, Wiesbaden. Later, to that was added the commander of the Security Police and SD, but that was to be used only in a given case. It was not used in practice.

Q At that time, who was the commander of the security service of the Rhein-Westmark area?

A That was one of the usual official conferences. Matters of discipline and office matters were talked about.

Q Was anything else talked about?

A Yes. SS Captain Knorger made known an order whereafter all Allied fliers had come down were to be rendered harmless on the spot.

Q Anything else?

A Because they do not deserve human protection because of their deeds as gangsters and pirates in that sense..

Q Did Knorger mention from whom the order came?

A Not specifically, but his superior was Wiesbaden.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that be stricken from the record as completely non-responsive to the question.

(TRABUER-Direct)

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did you have any conversations with anybody concerning the source of that order?

A All members of the office talked about it afterward in a general way, but I am of the belief that it came from the office of Trummler himself, because one of the members of the office, whose name I do not remember now any more, mentioned that during air attacks, Trummler himself was lying on the roof or somewhere in the field with a weapon ready to shoot.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that that be stricken from the record as completely non-responsive.

PROSECUTION: That is entirely relevant. The man accused, Trummler, is on trial for those very things.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He simply assumes it came from Trummler. You asked him if he talked with anybody about the source of the order, and he said he assumed it came from Trummler because once Trummler was lying in the field ready to shoot.

Q Who was he?

A He was a member of the Kreisleitung labor front and secret state police in Frankfurt.

Q After the conference in Frankfurt that you have testified about, did you have any conversations with this man Karl Stoll?

Ta 33-ps-80-1/11-7

A Often, yes.

Q When?

A I really knew the man permanently until he was later on arrested.

Q Did you have any conversations with him in January, 1945?

A Yes.

Q What about?

A It was about all sorts of things, also about the shootings there. He mentioned in a large circle that he had to get vengeance for seven family members, and that he had taken care of that already to the extent of four; that is, that he had finished off four enemies.

Q You say you were a student at the security service headquarters; is that correct?

A No, I was not a student at the SD. I was a student at the University of Frankfurt, but I, having studied law, was forced to serve with the SD in Frankfurt.

Q Do you know of any cases brought to the attention of the security service in which members of the Wehrmacht were reported for protecting fliers?

A Yes. That is, not the cases of members of the Wehrmacht but incidents where the Wehrmacht was considered to have been too humane during the transport and custody taking of Allied pilots.

Q How do you know about these cases?

A They were reported by V-men--agents of the SD--and were worked on in the SD.

Q Were these official reports which you read?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court what some of these reports contained.

A Am I to mention one?

Q Yes.

A For example, several shot down pilots were transported in the Frankfurt main railroad station. A captured pilot requested a light for a cigarette from the escorting sergeant, and thereupon the crowd wanted to go against him because that was no behavior to an enemy, but it could be prevented because the sergeant pointed out his duties and retreated behind the station barriers.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution has no further questions. You may cross examine.

(Traeger - Direct)

PROSECUTION: May I say one thing before the defense begins cross-examination? I would like to ask the court permission to conclude the testimony of this witness at this session, inasmuch as he is suffering from a bad stomach wound, has been taken to the hospital several times, and we would like to excuse him permanently at the conclusion of his testimony.

Q PRESIDENT: Any objection to excusing him permanently?

A DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would much prefer, if it please the court, to postpone that decision for the next few minutes until I have a chance to consult with my associates. I would like, first of all, to make a motion to strike from the record the testimony of this witness with respect to conversations he had with a man by the name of Stoll. In that conversation, as I remember, it only stated that Stoll claimed that seven members of his family got liquidated and he had gotten even on to the extent of four. That is not tied up in any way at all with the case of the accused, and we ask that that portion of his testimony be stricken from the record on, the prosecution has no ob

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q This man Stoll that you say was employed at the Kreisleitung: In what capacity was he employed?

A As far as I know within the framework of the German Labor Front.

Q In other words, would you say he was a civilian?

A He wore a brown uniform.

Q A member of the labor front, though?

A Yes, but that was in connection with the use of the political units for the security service. He had the identity card of a Gestapo agent that he used to show.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: In order for us to agree to the permanent discharge of the witness I will have to touch on some matters that were not touched upon on direct examination.

LAW MEMBER: Does the prosecution agree to that?

PROSECUTION: I agree to this extent: If the defense wants to go beyond direct examination, the prosecution has no objection to the defense calling this witness at this time and making him its own witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: It does not make any difference to me, may it please the court, but I was just going to examine him on the one point that had to do with low-flying strafing. That is all I wanted to touch upon. If the court so desires I will do it.

PROSECUTION: The only difference is as a defense witness he is bound by whatever the witness says.

PRESIDENT: The court so orders.

(Traeger - Cross)

FRANZ TRAEGER, called as a witness by the defense, having been previously duly sworn, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q While in the course of your duties in this sector were cases of low-flying strafing by Allied air personnel of workers in the fields and people walking on the country roads brought to your attention?

A Yes.

Q Will you tell the court in just what way instances of this kind came to your attention?

A Reports of that kind came through official channels. from V-men, that is, agents from the field.

Q What would these reports contain?

A Individual incidents. The same channels through which messages were passed.

Q Describe the contents of one of these reports.

A Of what kind do you mean now?

Q We are talking about reports of low-flying strafing by Allied air personnel of German civilian workers in the fields and walking on the country roads.

A More I can't say. That is already the content of these reports.

Q Would these reports say where these things happened?

A Yes.

Q Would they give a date?

A Yes.

Q Would they say who was involved?

A Yes.

FRANZ TRAEGER, called as a witness by the defense, having been previously duly sworn, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

Q Would it mention the names of people concerned?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution has nothing further. Questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: I request that this witness be permanently excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness may be permanently excused.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Call Captain Smith as a witness.

CAPTAIN Donald C. Smith, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

(Whereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION

Questions by Captain VANCE:

Q Will you please state your name, rank, and organization.

A Captain Donald C. Smith, Air Corps, Headquarters War Crimes Group, Augsburg.

Q Captain Smith, have you been assigned to duties in connection with the trial of this case to try to locate and bring to court witnesses both for the prosecution and the defense?

A I have.

Q Have you tried to locate one Gregor Hradetsky and bring him to court here as a witness for the prosecution?

A I have.

Q Is he present here today in court?

A He is not.

Q Will you tell the court what efforts you have made to obtain this witness?

A C-2 reports have been put out for this man from that branch, and one of the reports has been entered in the Rogues Gallery list. He was detained at Camp Marcus Orr in Austria. We have been negotiating with USFET to get him back. So far they have not given us that permission.

Q Have you been trying to obtain a witness at the request of the prosecution by the name of Dr. Kurt Christmann?

A I have.

Q Will you tell the court what efforts have been made to locate Dr. Christmann?

A Dr. Christmann was at one time detained here at Dachau. He escaped on the 4th of November. Wanted reports were again issued. The provost marshal was contacted. The team in the area that he was last known to be in has interrogated his friends and relatives--everyone who might have knowledge of his whereabouts--in an effort to reapprehend him, to date with no results.

Q Captain Smith, have you made an effort to obtain one August Schaper as a witness for the prosecution in this case?

A I have.

Q Is he present here to testify before the court?

A He is not.

Q Will you tell the court what efforts have been made to obtain the presence of this witness?

A The same methods have been used--wanted reports issued and his last known location ascertained, which was in the French Zone. A request for extradition to the French has been made. A team in that area has been notified to help locate him when the French clear him to be brought up, as yet without any result.

Q Were you requested to obtain a witness by the name of Jakob Boesen to appear before this court?

A I was.

Q Is he present?

A No, he is not.

Q Will you tell the court what efforts have been made to obtain the presence of this witness?

A The same methods used, that is, last location ascertained, request for extradition made on the French. However, they will not release him to us for trial.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions by the prosecution. Does the defense desire to cross examine this witness?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have no questions of the witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

(Prosecution Exhibits 33 and 33-A were marked for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution offers in evidence, to be marked Prosecution Exhibit 35, a written sworn statement of Dr. Kurt Christmann. I ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record. This statement is dated 15 July 1946, and was taken in Wiesbaden, Germany.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If I remember rightly, that is the requested witness that the witness testified had escaped and could not be found. He is not in the French Zone. We have no objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 33 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution offers in evidence, to be marked Prosecution Exhibit 33-A, a true and correct translation of Exhibit 33, and asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection, but I would like to have a copy of the German so my stenographers can follow it.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 33-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 33-A for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 33-A, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: The prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 33-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 33-A, statement of Dr. Kurt Christmann, followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 33, statement of Dr. Kurt Christmann, by the interpreter in the German language.)

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the Court, all the members of the Prosecution, all the members of the Defense, all the accused, the reporter and the interpreter are present.

Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence documents which have been previously marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibits 34 and 34-A which are statements of Kurt Christmann, dated 12 September 1946 and the German translation thereof. I ask that they be received in evidence and marked Prosecution Exhibits 34 and 34-A and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Before announcing the position of the Defense and accused may I ask the Prosecution to refresh my recollection as to whether this man is one of those incarcerated in some zone.

PROSECUTION: This man is the witness who escaped from Dachau and who has not been located as yet.

PRESIDENT: Is there any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That raises just one other question, may it please the Court, these are all sworn statements and I take it for granted that the objection previously made to the admission of sworn statements, in view of the fact that the accused are not permitted to be sworn, will apply to all the sworn statements offered without taking the time of the Court to voice them. In other words we will object to them on the same ground without voicing the objection.

PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled and the exhibits will be admitted. Prosecution Exhibits 34 and 34-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 34 and 34-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 34 and 34-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 34-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 34-A, the English translation of the statement of Kurt Christmann followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 34 by the interpreter.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The Defense, at this time, would like to ask the Prosecution, through the Court, if the Prosecution has in its possession or knows of the existance of any additional statements made by this man Christmann. If it has in its possession any such additional statements we would like to get them and if there are any in existance any that the Prosecution knows about we would like to get them.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution does not have in its possession any other statements of Kurt Christmann and does not know of any other such statements. The Prosecution calls as the next witness, Karl Kaleske.

KARL KALESKE, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name?

A Karl Kaleske.

Q Where do you live?

A Wiesbaden.

Q How old are you?

A Forty four years.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Jurgen Stroop?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom point him out?

A Number 1.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Stroop wearing number 1.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know a man by the name of Trumpler?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him?

A Yes.

Q What is his first name?

A The first name is not known to me.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom point him out?

A Number 2.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Trumpler, number 2.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know a man by the name of Somann?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom point him out?

A Number 3.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Somann, number 3.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Were you ever a member of the Schutzpolizei?

A Yes.

Q From when to when?

A From March 6, 1940 until the collapse.

Q Were you an officer?

A Yes.

Q What rank did you hold?

A Captain of the reserve of the Schutzpolizei, Captain of the Schutzpolizei.

Q What were your duties from April 1943 until the end of the war?

A In 1943 I was the adjutant of General Stroop.

Q Is he the same Stroop that you identified as an accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q I hand you Prosecution Exhibit 21 and direct your attention to an article of Dr. Goebbel's and ask you to tell the Court whether you have ever seen that before?

A These -- yes, that is an article I have read in the newspaper "Das Reich". I don't know whether this article is every word the same but in substance it is the same article.

Q Did you hear of that article from any other source?

A Yes, over the radio.

Q Do you know what radio station broadcast that story?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment, I think this is going far afield as evidence to bind the defendants on the charges of which they stand here accused. They cannot be held responsible for what is done by agencies beyond their control.

(Kaleske-direct)

PROSECUTION: Will the Court permit me to connect it up? I believe I will be able to show the Court that it is part of the conspiracy.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: I personally heard this report from Station Berlin. It was so that every Friday the article appearing in "Das Reich" would be made known by the speaker of the Station Berlin.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Was that Station Berlin connected in any way with the Propaganda Ministry?

A As far as I know, the radio was under the Propaganda Ministry. The entire radio was under the supervision of the Propaganda Ministry.

Q After the publication of the newspaper articles you referred to and after the radio report on the subject, what if anything happened in connection with your duties under General Stroop?

A I remember a mission that was given to me by General Stroop in October 1944 according to which I had to order the leaders to a conference at the office.

Q Did you summon the leaders to that conference?

A Yes. I called the various offices, BDO, BDM but whether or not I spoke with the respective leaders, I do not know. I possibly talked to their adjutants.

Q Was Stroops's office, at that time, located in Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q Did that conference take place?

A Yes. That was at the end of October 1944.

Q Were you present at that conference?

A No. I sat in the ante room.

Q Did you know Colonel Niemann?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was in charge of the Order Police.

Q Was Colonel Niemann at that conference?

A Yes.

Q Was Trummler there?

A Yes.

Q Do you know Hans Gunther?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was the operations officer of General Stroop.

Q What happened then the conference was over?

A The gentlemen came out of the office of General Stroop and I asked Hans Gunther, "Well, what happened in this conference?"

Q What did he say to you?

A The treatment of shot down enemy fliers was talked about.

Q What else did he say?

A In the course of the conversation he expressed the fact that he was not in agreement with the measures that were spoken about in the course of the conference. That a severe argument had taken place between General Stroop and Colonel Niemann and that he especially had pointed to the keeping of the articles of the Geneva Convention.

Q Immediately after the conference did you have a talk with Colonel Niemann?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what that conference was?

A Colonel Niemann too expressed that he disagreed with the instructions that were given by General Stroop concerning the treatment of Allied fliers because it was his opinion that it was the specific mission of the Order Police to maintain and protect the public order and security. Colonel Wiersum did not have a thought to carry out the orders in that form.

Q Were you permitted to go into that conference?

A No.

Q At a later date, did you have any other conversations with Gunther about this conference?

A It was quite natural that even at a later time we were talking about the problem of the treatment of shot down enemy fliers.

Q What was said about that?

A Gunther, time and again, stated that General Seyss insisted on the carrying out of the alleged orders. I myself did not see those orders.

Q Did you ever have a conversation with Gunther concerning a report made by Gauleiter Sprenger to Seyss?

A Yes. There was a letter in which Sprenger wrote about Volksturm matters and in the last part of the letter he complained about the fact that Order Police took a helping hand in the securing of Allied fliers.

pla/1 SO

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did Gunther tell you what Stroop did about that report?

A No, that is not known to me. He did talk to Gunther about the matter again and Gunther again let General Stropp know that in his opinion it was the duty of the Order Police to protect these shot down fliers.

Q Do you know what General Stroop said to Gunther about that?

A Yes, I remember that very well because Gunther came out of the room very excited. Gunther came out of the room and told me that he had a clash with General Stroop and that he was especially angered by Stroop's remark that he is a soft SS man, since he had been on the front and had been decorated with the iron cross, first class and had been severely wounded. He felt insulted about this remark.

Q Now, directing your attention to sometime in October or November of '44, do you recall Colonel Niemann being ordered to Stroop's headquarters in connection with a flier incident in Altenkirchen?

A Yes.

Q What was that about?

A Colonel Niemann told me, after he came out of the office of General Stroop, that he had been called to explain his behavior concerning an incident in Altenkirchen. The matter was concerned with the fact that a gendarmerie First Lieutenant whose name I do not remember, had secured an allied flier and had taken him in his service car away and protected him from the population. The behavior of this First Lieutenant was remimanded by General Stroop and Colonel Niemann told me General Stroop demanded a punishment of this Lieutenant.

Q Do you know a lady by the name of Else Hoecker?

A Yes.

Kalenke-direct)

Q Who was she?

A She was the secretary of General Stroop.

Q From when to when?

A Miss Hoecker was taken over by General Stroop when he took office in October 1943, from his predecessor, from General Berkermann.

PROSECUTION: No further questions, you may cross examine.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you remember what date Somann was relieved as inspector?

A I can't name the exact date since I had nothing to do with the Office of the Security Police.

Q What is your best judgment?

A To that I can only say that Colonel Trummler took over the office of the commander of the Security Police, and that prior to him that Colonel Wiebens had this office before him. He held this office temporarily after Somann left.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Did he say that Trummler took over in September?

MR. RACHAEL: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Can you tell what part of September, whether it was the first or second half of the month?

A I cannot put myself down.

Q How long did Wiebens act as commander?

A According to my recollection fourteen days to three weeks, I believe, three weeks.

Q Do you remember when the order was first received at your headquarters that the Security Police would take charge of all captured allied personnel?

A I never saw orders or incoming mail. The mail came into the hands of the Chief of Staff, or if it was addressed to General Stroop personally, it was put on his desk in the envelope. For a while his secretary opened his mail and put it opened on his desk and later on General Stroop opened his own mail as far as it concerned secret or top secret matter.

Q When did you first hear about that order?

A What order?

Q That all captured allied personnel would be turned over to the Security Police?

A That could have been the beginning of '44, in the Spring of '44.

Q Was that before the order was issued that the police should not interfere with the civilian population?

A What police, the Schutzpolizei, the Order Police?

Q Did you ever hear of the so-called Bormann order?

PROSECUTION: I object to that. On direct examination this witness did not identify this order. He talked about a conference, what happened at the conclusion of the conference, Stroop's attitude concerning the Geneva Convention.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: As I remember, he did talk about certain conferences that were held on matters that dealt with allied fliers. I am trying to place, through him, the dates of the orders which were the subject of the orders handed down.

PROSECUTION: But the witness testified he was not present at conferences; he only testified as to what Gunther and Niemann said after the conferences were over.

PRESIDENT: Objection is sustained. There will be no further argument on that point.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense moves that the testimony of this witness with respect to the control of the radio and the Goebbel's article be stricken from the record on the ground they have not been connected with these accused; it has not been shown that these accused had any control over these items; nor is it shown that they had anything to do with the control of these articles.

PROSECUTION: I will state the reason I previously stated -- this is all relevant to the criminal conspiracy and has probative value along these lines.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I make just one more statement. These accused have been charged with conspiring with certain prescribed individuals. Now, if the court is going to allow this radio business to come in, then every bit of evidence that went into the Nuremberg trial is competent in this case, all of it, there is no limit.

PRESIDENT: The motion to strike is overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Just one or two other questions, may it please the court.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q This Goebbel's article dealt with strafing by low flying allied aircraft of German civilians working in the field or working along country roads, is that true?

A As far as the article is concerned it generally talked about the air terror. Whether specific, detail cases were mentioned, I do not know.

Q In the course of your duties as Adjutant, did you hear of cases where it is charged that German civilians working in the field or walking along the road or engaged in civilian pursuits were strafed by low flying allied aircraft?

PROSECUTION: Objection to the question as going beyond the scope of direct examination.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will make him my witness for the purpose of that question.

PROSECUTION: This is not the time for the defense to call this witness. This is the prosecution's case.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then I will save it. I thought to save time but if the court --

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: Through official channels, no, however in conversations with comrades in the office or outside of the office.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q In these conversations with your comrades were specific cases mentioned where this sort of thing was alleged to have happened?

A Specific cases? No.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I want the rest of what he said.

THE INTERPRETER: It was generally said by low flying airplanes.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What was said, were names mentioned, were places mentioned, were dates mentioned, were other things mentioned?

A No.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: One of my associates would like to ask a question.

QUESTIONS BY DR. TROST:

Q In your testimony, what you know from your own knowledge, personally, about the directives which were given concerning the treatment of captured allied personnel, or the other directives which you spoke about --

PROSECUTION: I object to that question. The witness definitely stated he knew from Gunther and Niemann.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think, may it please the court, we are entitled to emphasize the fact by one question at least, that all his testimony is hearsay.

PRESIDENT: Will you read the question again, please.

(Thereupon the reporter read the question as follows:

"Q In your testimony, what you know from your own knowledge, personally, about the directives which were given concerning the treatment of captured allied personnel, or the other directives which you spoke about —")

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think I will withdraw that question which is complicated in English and rephrase it.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Is it not true that all the testimony that you have given to the court so far has all been based upon hearsay, what you have learned from others, and none of it based upon personal knowledge?

A When Gunther leaves the Operations Office of General Stroop immediately after the conference and tells me about what went on and tells me of his own position to it, then is that for me a statement that is absolutely to be believed.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive and I will have the question repeated.

(Thereupon the reporter read the last question.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think the question may properly be answered yes or no, may it please the court.

PROSECUTION: I respectively submit that the answer was responsive.

PRESIDENT: Motion to strike is overruled.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you personally hear any of these conversations between Niemann and Stroop, Gunther and Stroop, Gunther and Niemann, or any of the names you mentioned? Did you personally, with your own ears hear any of that?

(Kaleske-cross)

Vla/7 80

PROSECUTION: I object to the question. I believe the Court should be reminded that any conversation had immediately after the happening of an event which is a criminal act, to wit, a conference where illegal orders were given, is part of the res gestae, part of the thing itself, and is admissible on these grounds.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. He will answer the question.

THE WITNESS: I personally heard the conversation between Gunther and Niemann in my ante room, while of course, I could not hear the conversations between General Stroop and Colonel Niemann and General Stroop and Captain Gunther, because they took place in the office of General Stroop where I wasn't present.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q And the conversation you heard between Niemann and Gunther was a conversation of something that was supposed to have happened in Stroop's office which you yourself did not hear, is that correct?

A Yes.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q What did you hear, what directions General Stroop had given concerning the treatment of allied fliers.

PROSECUTION: I object to that. That has been testified to on direct examination.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will withdraw the question, the defense withdraws the question.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q Do you know whether this First Lieutenant of the gendarmes who, apparently, was guilty of disobedience, has been punished by General Stroop?

A Whether or not General Stroop personally punished this Lieutenant

(Kaleske-cross)

I do not know. All I know is that Colonel Niemann told me that he, as Co mander of the Order Police, was supposed to punish this Lieutenant.

PRESIDENT: Will you repeat that answer please.

(Thereupon the reporter read the last answer.)

QUESTIONS BY Dd. RAB:

Q Do you know whether or not General Stroop had the authority to punish this Lieutenant of the gendarmes, with the exception of disciplinary punishment?

A In my opinion General Stroop could make out disciplinary punishment against this Lieutenant in his capacity as higher police and SS leader.

Q What extent did the power for disciplinary punishment have?

A That is not known to me.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q The defense asked you whether or not you recalled whether this article of Dr. Goebbel's talked about strafing women and children, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You also recall that this article stated that the superior orders is not a defense?

A I do not remember the exact wordings.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

DEFENSE: Nothing further, no.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by any members of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness will be excused. Court will take a 15 minute recess. (Whereupon at 1000 hours the court recessed until 1015 hours.)

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 1035 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all members of the Court, and all members of the Prosecution, all members of the Defense, all of the accused, the reporter and the interpreter are present.

The Prosecution calls as its next witness Else Hoecker.

ELSE HOECKER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Else, will you please tell the Court your full name?

A Else Hoecker.

Q And where do you live?

A In Wiesbaden.

Q Are you presently employed in Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q In what are you employed?

A I am at present secretary in the firm of Lisberg, Export-Import.

Q Else, what is your education?

A Nine years high school, one year high occupational school and one year language school.

Q Now were you employed in the year 1945?

A Yes.

Q By whom?

A SS Higher Sector Rhein-Westmark.

Q During that year were you ever employed by General Stroop?

A Yes.

Q From when to when?

A November, 1943 until 25, 26 March 1945.

Q Were you employed as his secretary during that time?

A Yes.

Q Is he the same General Stroop who is an accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you please point him out?

A One.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the accused Jurgen Stroop, wearing number 1.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Now, during that period of time, where was General Stroop's Office?

A Wiesbaden, Uhlend Strasse 5.

Q Tell the Court what your duties as secretary to Stroop consisted of.

A I had to write letters for General Stroop.

Q Did you open his correspondence?

A Yes.

Q Did you open his personal mail?

A I opened the letters that came to the Higher SS and Police Commander Jurgen Stroop.

Q Did you ever hear of Lieutenant Colonel Moller?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was the Chief of Staff of the BDO, the Commander of the Order Police.

Q Was that in Wiesbaden?

A Yes, in Wiesbaden.

Q From when to when?

A When I took on the post as secretary, Moller was there already and remained there until the end.

Q Do you know Hans Trummler?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A I believe, yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Two.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness indicated the accused Hans Trummler wearing number 2.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Now, Else, were you ever present at any conferences held between Stroop and Trummler; and, if so, when and where?

A I was often present during meetings. These meetings took place several times during the week.

Q Were any conferences held between Stroop and Trummler in 1944 at which you were present?

A Yes.

Q How many conferences do you recall being held in 1944 between Stroop and Trummler, and if so when and where?

A I was often present during meetings. These meetings took place several times during the week.

Q Were any conferences held between Stroop and Trummler in 1944 at which you were present?

A Yes.

Q How many conferences do you recall being held in 1944 between Stroop and Trummler?

A Meetings took place often during the week.

Q Do you remember any conferences late in the year 1944?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember when Trummler was transferred to Wehrkreise 12?

A It can have been September.

Q That is of 1944?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember anything unusual happening to Trummler in June of 1944?

A I know that Trummler was one of the main agents who raided the Bernburger Street.

Q Now what was that about?

A Those were the offices who had prepared the attack on Adolf Hitler.

Q Was it after that that Trummler was transferred to Wehrkreis XII?

A Yes.

Q Now, at any time during 1944 did Stroop tell you anything about any conversations he had with Himmler?

INTERPRETER: During what time, sir?

PROSECUTION: 1944.

WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q What did he say?

A That the Reichsfuehrer SS wishes that in the future he remains as hard as he is used of him.

Q Do you know whether Himmler and Stroop had a conference together in 1944?

A Yes.

Q How many?

A I cannot say exactly.

Q Were there more than one?

A Yes.

Q Where were they held, if you know?

A I remember one taking place in the train Steiermark.

Q From whom did Stroop receive his orders directly, if you know?

A From the Reichsfuehrer SS, Kaltenbrunner, Wunnenberg, and the three Gauleiters.

Q In 1944 did you ever see General Wunnenberg together with General Stroop?

A I did not see them together, but I do know that General Wunnenberg was with General Stroop.

Q When was that?

A That may have been in September, 1944.

Q Now, at any time in 1944, did Stroop say anything to you about the treatment of bailed out fliers?

A Yes.

Q What did he say?

A That they would be shot.

Q Did he say that he had received an order to that effect from anyone?

A As far as I remember it was after the order from Kaltenbrunner.

Q Did he tell you that?

A Yes.

Q Did you see the order?

A Yes.

Q What did you do with it?

A I gave a copy of that order to the Commander of the Security Police, to the Commander of the Order Police, and to the SS Standarten.

Q Was the order signed by Kaltenbrunner?

A As far as I remember, yes.

Q Now I read to you from Prosecution's Exhibit 26, as follows:

"Probably in July or August of 1944 the commanders and inspectors of the Sipo and SD. received an order by R.F. SS Himmler through the Chef of Sipo and SD. Dr. KALTENBRUNNER with the contents that the members of all English-American commando groups should be turned over to the Sipo by the Armed forces. The Sipo was to interrogate these men and then shoot them after the questioning. The shooting was to be made known to the armed forces in the communique; saying that the commando force had been annihilated in battle."

Was that the order you were referring to?

A As far as I am able to remember, yes.

Q Do you know what happened to the original order?

A I gave the original order to the registry.

Q Do you know what happened to it afterwards?

A The orders were destroyed before leaving Wiesbaden.

Q Do you know who destroyed them?

A Colonel Schlums.

Q Who was Colonel Schlums?

A He was the Chief of Staff of the SS Sector.

Q Now I hand you Prosecution's Exhibit 19 and ask you if you have ever seen this before, and if so when?

A I saw this order in the year 1944.

Q Where?

A General Stroop had visitors and I had to get this order from the registry.

Q What was this order about, if you recall?

A It concerned the parachuted fliers.

Q I hand you Prosecution's Exhibit 22, and ask you whether you have seen this before, and if so when and where?

A I saw this order in the office of General Stroop.

Q Who signed that order?

A Bormann.

(Hoecker-Direct)

Q Tell the Court, if you know, who Bormann was?

A As far as I know, Bormann had the office of the Fuehrer.

Q Do you remember when that order arrived in Stroop's office?

A The last one here?

Q Yes.

A In the year 1944.

Q And after you first saw that order, did Stroop speak to you about it?

No.

Q Do you know whether he spoke about this order to the members of his staff?

A The principal orders were always debated in conferences.

Q Did you ever see this last order that I have shown you on Stroop's desk?

A Yes, I saw it in a file.

Q Do you remember a conference in October or November of 1944 at which Niemann, Koller, Gunther and Trummler were present?

A Yes.

Q Now, referring to the order that you said was sent to Stroop from Kaltenbrunner, was there ever any conferences in Stroop's office concerning that order?

A I do remember one such conference.

Q Was Trummler present?

A Yes.

Q Were you present?

A Yes.

Q What, if anything, did Stroop say at that conference?

A That the orders were carried out strictly.

Q Now, during the year 1944, do you know whether or not Stroop ever personally interrogated shot down fliers?

A Yes.

Q How often?

A It may have been three or four times that I know of.

Q Who was with him?

A Colonel Trummler.

Q Now, after he had interrogated these fliers, and after he returned from the interrogations, did he say anything to you?

A He brought along little things that had belonged to the fliers.

Q Are you familiar with any orders concerning shot-down fliers issued by the Gauleiters?

A Yes.

Q When were these orders issued, if you recall?

A As far as I am able to remember, they came after the Kaltenbrunner decree.

Q Were they issued in writing or orally?

A In writing.

Q Did you ever see any of them?

A Yes.

Q Where?

A I made copies of these orders for the Standarten.

Q What, in general, did those orders say, in general terms, if you can recall?

A They spoke about people's justice, about lynch justice.

Q What happened to the original orders?

A I put them into the registry.

Q Do you know what, if anything, happened to them?

A The orders were destroyed.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Can you state just about when in September, 1944, Trummler first became the commander of the SD in Rhein-Westmark?

A No.

Q Can you remember whether it was in the early part of the month or the latter part of the month?

A I do not remember that.

Q How long after you heard of the Kaltenbrunner order was it that Trummler first became the commander?

A I do not know that.

Q Do you know when Somann ceased to occupy the office of inspector?

A As well as I am able to remember, it must have been in June, 1944.

Q Who was his successor, if you remember?

A As well as I am able to remember, it was Wiebens.

Q Which order came down first, the Bormann order or the order from Kaltenbrunner?

A I first saw the Bormann order.

Q How long a time was it between the time you saw the Bormann order and the time you saw the Kaltenbrunner order, as well as you remember?

A It may have been a few months.

Q When, as near as you can remember, did you first hear of the Bormann order?

A It may have been August, 1944.

Q So that as nearly as you can remember, you first heard of the Kaltenbrunner order sometime in October or November of 1944, is that correct?

A As far as I am able to remember, yes.

Q And if your memory of the time you first heard about the Bormann order and first heard about the Kaltenbrunner order is correct, then both of these orders came down after Somann had ceased to be inspector, is that correct?

A As well as I am able to remember, yes.

Q You said that Stroop got his orders from Himmler, Kaltenbrunner, Wunnenberg and the three gauleiters. By that, did you mean that each of the persons named had authority to issue orders to Stroop which he was compelled to obey?

A I know that he received orders from those persons. Whether he had to carry them out, I do not know.

Q We will leave out of consideration now orders from Himmler, but we will take up Wunnenberg. Did you ever see orders directed to Stroop from General Wunnenberg?

A Yes. General Stroop received often letters from Wunnenberg.

Q Will you give the court, if you remember, one or two illustrations of the orders Stroop received from Kaltenbrunner?

A I cannot remember very well except the one.

Q Will you please give the one illustration of an order that Stroop received from Wunnenberg?

A That I can't do today any more.

Q Have you any memory at all of what that order referred to, what it dealt with?

A What order?

Q The one order that Wunnenberg sent to Stroop, that Stroop got from Wunnenberg. Just a moment, please.

LAW MEMBER: Read the last two questions.

(Whereupon the last two questions and answers were read by the court reporter.)

LAW MEMBER: Read the two questions before that.

(Whereupon the questions and answers referred to were read by the court reporter as follows:

"Q Will you give the court, if you remember, one or two illustrations of the orders Stroop received from Kaltenbrunner?

A I cannot remember very well except the one.

Q Will you please give the one illustration of an order that Stroop received from Wunnenberg?

A That I can't do today any more.")

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think perhaps I am the one who is mixed up in this.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you say that you saw copies of an order received by Stroop from General Wunnenberg?

A Yes.

Q Will you give the court, as nearly as you can remember, the substance of the contents of one of the orders Stroop received from Wunnenberg?

A I do remember one order by Wunnenberg that concerned that the police was not to interfere in these flier matters, in this flier justice, the treatment of the parachuted fliers.

Q Was that order from Wunnenberg directed to the Ordnungs police under his jurisdiction, or was that directed to General Stroop?

A I am no longer able to remember exactly.

Q Are you certain, however, that you saw orders from General Wunnenberg directed to General Stroop?

A As far as I am able to remember, these orders were not directed to General Stroop alone, but to several places.

Q But the order, in addition to being directed to several places, was also directed to General Stroop, is that correct?

A Yes, the envelope was directed to him personally, to his address.

Q Now, in addition to orders received by General Stroop from Wunnenberg, he also received orders, I think you said, from Kaltenbrunner, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And you also said that you saw orders addressed to General Stroop from the three gauleiters, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Were these three gauleiters the gauleiters of the gaus Westmark,

Hessen-Nassau and Moselland?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell the court the substance of any one order which General Stroop received from the gauleiter, say, of Westmark?

A General Stroop received orders often from the gauleiter of Westmark.

Q Do you remember any one of the orders which Stroop received from the gauleiter of Gau Westmark?

A I do not remember an individual gau.

Q Will you tell the court the substance of any order received by General Stroop from any one of the three gauleiters?

A I remember the substance of a decree concerning the treatment of parachuted fliers.

Q Were these decrees issued by the gauleiters, so far as you know, binding on General Stroop?

A I cannot judge that.

Q Do you know whether or not General Stroop had authority to issue orders to the Ordnungs police, the Schupo?

A I believe yes, because he was the highest police commander.

Q Did Kaltenbrunner have authority to issue orders to the regular police?

A I do not believe so.

Q Did Kaltenbrunner have authority to give orders to Stroop?

A I cannot judge that.

Q Do you know whether or not the gauleiters had any authority over the members of the police in their gaus?

A That I do not know.

Q This registry which you mentioned -- is that the place where all important orders were kept?

A All correspondence was kept there.

Q Now, you say that you made copies of orders issued by the gauleiters, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And did you distribute copies of these orders received from the gauleiters to your subordinate commanders, or to those who were subordinate to General Stroop?

A As far as I remember, only to the SS Standarten.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like a translation of that word, standarten.

INTERPRETER: I believe it is regiment, but I am not certain about this. It is used only for the SS.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Were these orders or decrees issued by the gauleiters, copies of which you made and distributed to the standarten, for the information of the standarten or was it an order to the standarten, if you know?

PROSECUTION: I object to that on the ground it calls for a conclusion of this witness. This witness was merely a secretary, performed no administrative acts, and was not an expert on that subject.

PRESIDENT: Read the question.

(Whereupon the last question was read by the court reporter.)

PRESIDENT: The witness will answer the question, if she knows.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

THE WITNESS: As far as I remember, the orders of the gauleiters were passed on only for information.

Q Now, you say that these orders which you distributed spoke about lynch justice. By that, do you mean they referred to alleged cases of low strafing of the civilian population?

A I remember only the lynch justice of the population.

Q Do you know whether or not reports came to Stroop's office in which it was claimed that members of the German civilian population working in the fields, or walking along country roads, or engaged in civilian pursuits, were strafed by low-flying Allied aircraft?

A Yes.

Q Did you have occasion to see some of these reports?

A Yes.

Q From whom did these reports come?

A One I remember which came from Bormann.

Q I am not talking about general orders issued from higher authority. I have in mind whether you saw reports which came in from the countryside which said that such a thing happened.

A No.

Q Did you ever hear stories of where it is said that in such and such a place people were shot at by low-flying aircraft?

PROSECUTION: I object to that. That is entirely without the scope of the direct examination. It is an improper question.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will make her my witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I was not heard. I said I would make the witness my witness for the purpose of that question.

PROSECUTION: I strenuously object to the defense putting their case in at the wrong time.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: All right, I will stop it.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I assume the witness will be held until the defense is through with her.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Referring to the order by Himmler which I showed you on direct examination, and the order by Kaltenbrunner about which you testified, is it not possible that the Himmler order and the Kaltenbrunner could have been in Stroop's office a long time before you personally saw them?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think that is strictly a hypothesis, and I object.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: It is possible.

PROSECUTION: No further questions. Any questions further by the defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further. Yes, I am sorry.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q Was a diary kept about the incoming orders?

A Yes.

Q Who kept this diary?

A Aichbauer.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you have access to that diary?

A No.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by members of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused. Recess in place.

(whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution calls Gunther Niemann.

GUNTHER NIEMANN, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Gunther Niemann. N-i-e-m-a-n-n.

Q How old are you?

A Forty-six years.

Q Where is your home address?

A Essen.

Q During World War II were you a member of the order police?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court your entire career in the police?

A In 1920 I went from the army into the then protective police. That was in Breslau in Silesia. I was taken over as a sergeant. I interrupted my duties for a short period to make my examination. In 1921 I was promoted to staff sergeant, and after I had taken part in a few courses I was promoted to lieutenant in 1924.

I was a short while in Breslau yet, and then in 1925 was transferred to Gleiwitz. I remained in Gleiwitz until 1927. I was promoted to first lieutenant. In 1930 I transferred to the then Prussian Gendarmerie. From 1930 until 1933 I was a first lieutenant of the gendarmerie in Prenzlau-Uckermark. In 1933 I was promoted to captain and at the same time transferred to Freienwalde-Oder. In the middle of 1933 I was detailed to the air protection school in Berlin. I remained there until the end of 1934. In 1935 and 1936 I was a captain in the gendarmerie school in Hildesheim. In the middle of 1936 I was sent as a captain to Berlin. In November 1937 I was promoted to major. In the middle of 1942 I was assigned as a commander of the order police in France. In November 1942 I was promoted to lieutenant colonel. I remained with the commander of the order police in France until October 1944. On the 10th of November, 1944, I was ordered to take over the duties of the commander of the order police in Wiesbaden. The 14th of October, 1944, I was promoted to colonel. I remained in Wiesbaden until we were ordered to retreat in the middle of March 1945.

Q Do you know Jurgen Stroop?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was the higher SS and police commander, my superior.

Q Would you recognise him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court will you point him out?

A He is No. 1.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Jurgen Stroop, wearing No. 1.

Q Do you know Hans Trummler?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was the commander of the security police.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom will you point him out?

A Number 2.

Q I hand you Prosecution Exhibit 21 and direct your attention to an article appearing in that paper and ask you to tell me whether you have ever seen it before (handing paper to witness)?

A Apparently it concerns the article by Dr. Goebbels. Whether or not I saw the paper I do not know, because at that time I did not stay in Germany, but the contents of the article are known to me.

Q At any time in the summer or fall of 1944 did you have a conference with General Stroop?

A Well, many conferences were ordered. Not in the summer, but after I took over my duties in the fall.

Q I am directing your attention to the early part of November 1944. Did you attend a conference in Stroop's office in Wiesbaden?

A Yes. In the first days of November.

Q Was Trummler present?

A Yes.

Q Was Stroop present?

A Yes.

Q Was Captain Gunther present?

A Yes.

Q Who was Gunther?

A SS Captain Gunther was the one aide, the operations officer, in the staff of General Stroop.

Q Tell the court what happened at that conference you spoke about that took place in November 1944.

A In that conference several matters were talked about which I do not remember, and then it w as talked about the so-called noninterference decree.

Q What was said about that?

A General Stroop blamed the order police that it did not carry out the noninterference decree strictly enough.

Q Did you say anything to him about that?

A I told him that this noninterference decree was made known by my predecessor, General Fille, and through regular command channels, and that therefore all the members of the order police must be aware of this order.

Q Did you talk to him or say anything to him about the nature of that order?

A In this conference I said approximately the following: That is dangerous. I was supposed to make this order known once again. And I said thereupon that I considered it a dangerous procedure, because I, as the commander of the order police, was responsible for security and order, and we could not let the population do things today which would be punished tomorrow. I also stated that the men under my command were mostly from the reserve forces, and that these were people whom you could give clear and unquestionable service orders, but you could not tell them to let things go today and then enforce them tomorrow.

Q What did Stroop say about that?

A General Stroop did not consider my remarks valid, and said it had to be carried out.

Q Did Stroop say anything to you about making any inspections in the area and the results of those inspections?

A I do not understand the question.

Q I will rephrase the question. Did Stroop ever comment to you about his having traveled around the area and making notes of what the police were doing concerning the Himmler order?

A Yes. That was the reason for the reprimand given me by General Stroop, because on his travels he had noted that the personnel under my command of the gendarmerie did not carry out the order as it was desired.

Q At that conference did Stroop say what was to be done to fliers that had been captured?

A This question was mentioned too. The regulations that were valid for us said that these prisoners had to be delivered. We of the order police were not allowed to interrogate this personnel or make any inquiries. We were solely allowed to search them for weapons, take their papers off them, and deliver them to the nearest air force or army installation. Most of the fliers came down in the country areas. The gendarme who had no transportation was, of course, glad to get rid of them. Either the air force or the army or the state police, whoever came first, got them.

Q Did Stroop change that and direct that they be turned over to the security police?

A Yes. In this conference it was said that the fliers were to be handed over to the security police.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess until 1:30.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1200 hours until 1330 hours.)

(Niemann - Direct)

(Thereupon court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and the interpreter are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I address myself to the court for a minute or two? It is with respect to the question of discipline in the courtroom so far as the accused are concerned. There seems to be a difference of opinion between the security elements in the courtroom and myself as to whether or not the accused should be allowed to hold discreet whispered conversations as to matters concerning their defense. I should like the court to guarantee them that right. I want to make it plain that I mean very discreet, quietly spoken, very brief words between one of the accused and another on matters which involve their defense, conducted in such a way as not to interfere with the decorum of the court. I am relying upon the power and my knowledge of the willingness and readiness of the court to enforce proper decorum in the court. It seems, so far as this question is concerned, some of the accused tell me when they want to say a word to one another the guards do not permit that. That, of course, is aside from writing out brief notes, which is not involved in my request at all.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution joins with the defense in making that application to the court.

PRESIDENT: Request is granted.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I trust, of course, that the people in charge of the security understand the position of the court.

PROSECUTION: I believe there is a sergeant in charge back there.

PRESIDENT: Recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

HERMANN GUNTHER, called as a witness by the prosecution, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Just before the recess ended you were testifying about a conference that took place in Wiesbaden in General Streep's office in November 1944.

A Yes.

Q At the conclusion of that conference was there any conference held in the anteroom outside of Streep's office between you and Trummler?

A It wasn't a real official conference like usually. After a conference you leave the room of the chief and then in the end room you discuss the matters which were discussed during the conference.

Q Did you have any discussions then with Trummler?

A Yes, Trummler was there, Kaleske, his adjutant, Gunther, and Lieutenant Colonel Mueller.

Q Did you say anything to Trummler at that time concerning the matters that had been taken up at the conference?

A Yes, we discussed once more the matter which was discussed in the conference and we members of the regular police or order police, Lieutenant Colonel Mueller and myself again represented in a friendly way the attitude which we had taken during the conference.

Q What did you say?

A I cannot say correctly any more, only what we meant. I told them that as an old policeman who had served his country in the police for more than twenty years I had a certain feeling how to take care of certain matters. I was of the opinion, and Trummler as well as Gunther agreed with me that this non-interference order would create rather unrest among the population and since I was responsible for peace I was of the opinion that this order was wrong. All my comrades out there in the end room agreed with me.

Q Did Trummler then tell you to go ahead and force the order nevertheless?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object. That is definitely a very leading and dangerous question.

PROSECUTION: I will withdraw the question, although the question is permissible because it has probative value.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What did Trummler say to you in reply to what you said to him and concerning the enforcement of the order?

A He told me, "This is right. We will take care of this matter the way we think it is right and the way we can take the responsibility for it."

Q Were you ever a member of the SS?

A No.

Q What organizations did you belong to?

A I was a member of the Nazi Party from the 1st of April 1933, of the National Socialistic Welfare Organization from 1933 and the Reichs organization of the German Civil Service employees through my membership in the organization of the German policeman.

Q Were any allied personnel captured while you were a colonel in the police in the Wiesbaden district?

A I knew of one case in Alsey.

Q Tell us about that incident.

A I don't know exactly the time any more but it must have been the beginning of January 1945. There I got through channels from General Stroop a report of the Security Service. The report of the Security Service was as follows: One of my first lieutenants of the Rural Police, and this means kreisleader of the Rural Police of the County Alzey, had with his rural policemen taken prisoner an American airman who had parachuted. He was taken into custody on some open field at night. As far as I can recall, the flyer had been hurt while parachuting to earth. As far as I can recall, he got injured on his foot. The first lieutenant took this flyer into a car and took him to the next city to be medically attended to. Then the report of the Security Service continued that this act of the first lieutenant was considered wrong. I got orders in this letter from General Stroop to relieve this first lieutenant from his duties, to imprison him, to investigate the matter and to report on it. According to the regulations of my office I was not entitled to any of these steps. I investigated the matter and then cleared the facts as I had told them before. I made a report to General Stroop in which I declared that I could not admonish the first lieutenant since he had acted in accordance with his instructions. General Stroop was not satisfied with my attitude. I received the report back to investigate this matter once more. I did not change my opinion and in my reply I put down in writing that it would not be in accordance with my idea of my duties to let this man down. This first lieutenant was a man of about 56- to 58 years, who had worked himself up from sergeant. Already, in the first world war he had received for heroism before the enemy the Iron Cross First Class. Furthermore, he had been advanced during the first world war for heroism faster than he was supposed to. He had two sons who were fighting at the front and I could not treat a man like this in such a manner. I requested this matter should be considered as closed.

Q What reply did you receive from General Stroop?

A General Stroop replied a few days later that in view of my report and the personal history of this man it would be satisfactory only to admonish the man.

Q Did he say anything about what instructions should be given about the future?

A No, orders of a general nature were included therein.

Q Referring again to the conference in Wiesbaden in Stroop's office, was there anything said about an order issued by Himmler?

A Yes, non-interference order came from Himmler.

Q Did Stroop make any further comment about that order?

A That it should be executed.

PROSECUTION: No further questions. You may cross examine.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No questions.

PROSECUTION: Are there any questions by any members of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution calls as its next witness Friedrich Schlums.

FRIEDRICH SCHLUMS, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Friedrich Schlums.

Q How old are you?

A I was born on the 26th of January 1892.

Q Are you a civilian internee in Dachau?

A I came here as a prisoner of war. Then I was discharged as a prisoner of war and now I am here as a civilian internee.

Q Were you a member of the German armed forces during World War II?

A I was a member of the Waffen SS since the 22nd of March 1945.

Q Were you chief of staff to General Stroop from November 1943 to the end of the war?

A I was staff leader of the Allgemeine SS and I was in fact, but not legally I was chief of staff.

Q What rank did you hold?

A SS colonel.

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit D-19 and ask you if you have ever seen that before and tell the court what it is.

A I know this order from the publication "Das Reich" and already during my interrogation on the 15th of January 1946 I made the following statement: It was said in this order that it isn't the job of the German police and the German armed forces, parachuted enemy fliers to protect before the well justified furor of the people and in view of this article I assumed that with hundred percent certainty an order either from the Reichsfuehrer SS or from the chief of the regular police or from the chief of the Security Police or from all three of them came with the instructions that the lower government department should be instructed accordingly.

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit D-22 and ask you if you have seen that before?

A This last sentence I know well, -- this last sentence which says, "No police or criminal action was taken against the citizens which participated in the above actions."

tm 42 LJH 1
1/15 80

Q Colonel Schlume where did General Stroop keep all secret documents?

A During my interrogation I was not exact when I said I had three, I really had four safe vaults; one in the room of the adjutant, two safes in the filing department and one safe in my office in which I kept the daily incoming mail before I gave it to General Stroop in case it was not take care of yet.

Q Did you personally have access to any of these secret documents?

A Yes. I had the keyes to all four safes. The key to the safe in the adjutant's room I gave to the adjutant approximately in the fall of 1944.

Q Were there any secret documents received by Stroop, if you know, to which you did not have access?

A No. In these safes there were only secret documents which had gone through the filing department.

Q Did Stroop keep secret documents in any other place except the safes?

A That is quite probable and for the following reasons: The secret letters arrived with the following address "Higher SS"and "Police Leader" these letters were opened by me. But when the letters were addressed "Jurgen Stroop" then these letters were put on General Stroop's desk sealed and his secretary opened them. Most of these letters I received back later on because the address was given only by mistake. Certainly there were letters among them, the contents of which, I did not hear about. Just the same as letters were sent out the contents of which I did not know.

Q Is it a usual thing for the Chief of Staff not to be permitted to see all secret documents? The secret documents of headquarters.

A These must have been letters which referred to matters of which the Fuehrer said nobody who had nothing to do with this matter should know anything about it.

Q Did you attend any conferences in 1944 with General Stroop at his office in Wiesbaden?

A I participated in practically all conferences but sometimes I entered the conferences only at the end when the great policy was laid down. I would like to add something. Meetings which General Stroop had with the commanders of the Security Police also took place without witnesses just the same as when he acted in his capacity as the appointing and reviewing authority or court authority. Then sentences were signed and passed on only with the court.

Q I believe you said something about a meeting at which the great policy was laid down, is that a meeting that took place in Stroop's office in October or November of 1944?

A I have participated in so many conferences since August 1943, that I cannot recall any particular conference.

Q Do you recall any conference at which the so called non-intervention order was discussed?

A In many conferences we discussed matters concerning fliers because in the final analysis our entire public, civilian and private life was under the influence of these terrific air attacks and for that reason I cannot say whether on any one particular conference this non-interference order was discussed or not.

Q Was anything said at any of these conferences about the treatment of Allied fliers?

A Already during my interrogation I mentioned two cases where the treatment of Allied fliers was the basis.

Q Tell the Court about those two cases?

A The first case: A corporal had treated a parachuted enemy flier too friendly and had been severely admonished by the commander of the regular police.

Q What was the second instance?

A In this case, on orders of General Stroop, the decision was changed so that the admonishment was retracted and the policeman was handed over to the higher SS Police Court.

Q If I told you that there was in evidence in this case a document which was a G-2 document of the Supreme Allied Headquarters and that in that document this statement was made --- I want you to tell me whether or not you agree with it. Answer yes or no and only yes or no. Remember confine your answer to yes or no.

A Yes.

Q Can you agree with this statement: "Stroop was a little Himmler and Krumbler was his field commander"?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment, that is practically character testimony in fact we submit it is character testimony.

PROSECUTION: The question has been ruled upon before. The term "Little Himmler" is a term indicating the extent of power and has nothing to do with character.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: You cannot limit definitions of something that is currently understood to be a characterization.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: I can answer it with only one condition: "Little Himmler" is said too little.

PROSECUTION: No further questions. Just one or two more please.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Stroop if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court will you point him out?

A Here (indicating), number 1.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Jurgen Stroop, number 1.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Hans Krumbler if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom point him out?

A He is number 2.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Hans Traumler, number 2. No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit 19.

A It was shown to me before. That is the same article in the publication "Das Reich".

Q When you were shown that Exhibit 19 before, you testified that when you saw it you knew that it had been issued from the headquarters of the regular police, the security police, or by Himmler himself. Do you remember saying that?

A Yes.

Q By coming from the regular police, do you mean directly from the office of General Wannenberg and by coming from the office of the security police did you mean directly from the office of General Kaltenbrunner?

A Yes.

Q All right.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We have nothing further.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by any member of the Court?

PRESIDENT: No. The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibits 36 and 36-A for identification?

(Whereupon the documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits 36 and 36-A for identification.)

tn 42 LM 5

PROSECUTION: I now offer in evidence documents which have been marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibits 35 and 35-a and ask that they be attached to the record and made a part thereof. They are statements of August Schaper, dated 21 September 1945 and are sworn.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I ask to have my memory refreshed as to whether this man is one of those incarcerated in Allied hands?

PROSECUTION: I am not quite certain of that. Regardless of that fact, Captain Smith testified that the witness was not available and that efforts were made to secure him. I would like to call the Court's attention to the rule appearing on page 110 of the Manual for Trial of War Crimes and Related Cases. Does the Court desire that I read the rule?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I had asked to have my memory refreshed. Frankly I had forgotten what was said about the availability of this man.

LAW MEMBER: "French Zone, not yet located."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Isn't that the case that was in the custody of the French and there was some trouble getting him out?

PROSECUTION: This man is also in the French Zone and efforts have been made but were not successful.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If he has not been located then that is a different category and I raise no question then.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits 35 and 35-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested to read the exhibits.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 35-A the English translation of a statement of August Schaper followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 35 by the interpreter in the German language.)

PRESIDENT: Court will take a half hour's recess.

(Whereupon the court at 1500 hours recessed until 1530 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show all the members of the prosecution and defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter, and all the members of the court are present.

I hand you two documents and ask that they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 36 and 36A for identification.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence documents which have been marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibits 36 and 36A, which are sworn statements of Gregor Hradetsky, and bearing no date, but which were taken at Camp Markus in Salzburg, Austria and ask that they be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits No. 36 and 36A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 36 and 36A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits No 36 and 36A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: For the record, Exhibit 36A is a true and correct translation of Exhibit 36. Prosecution requests permission to read Prosecution Exhibits 36 and 36A

Ta 43 1-15-47

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 36A, the English translation of a statement of Gregor Hradetsky, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 36 by the interpreter in the German language.)

PROSECUTION: I hand you two documents and ask that they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 37 and 37A for identification.

Prosecution offers in evidence documents which have been marked for identification as P-37 and P-37A and ask that they be made a part of the record. These are sworn statements of Jakob Boesen dated September, 1945, taken at Koblenz. Document P-37A is a true and correct copy of document 37.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That, if I remember correctly, is the witness who is in the custody of the French.

PROSECUTION: That is correct.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense rests on its right to have oral testimony produced unless it is physically impossible so to do or can be accomplished only under extra ordinary difficulty. As far as we know, it should be perfectly possible to obtain witnesses from the French zone. I'd like to add one thing more, may it please the court, to support that contention. Normally, on the basis of my experience, statements produced under these circumstances have been obtained by War Crimes teams which are made up of one man who examines and one man who is charged with the obligation of cross examining the witness so there is at least a semblance of an attempt made to get a statement by examination and by cross examination. Here we have nothing but an examination made someone without any cross examination made by anybody and we cannot make any cross examination either. In view of the hardship that imposes, I think no oral statement should be received by the court unless it is just impossible to get the witness.

PROSECUTION: The witness, Captain Smith, testified that Gregor Hradetsky was requested from Camp Markus in Austria but so far permission was not received. So far as Bo sen is concerned, permission was requested of the French and so far not received. I again call the court's attention to the rule appearing on Page 110 of War Crimes Trial Manual that is referred to as Section 280 in the Trial Guide.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should like to add one more brief statement. We do not know when this witness was requested. It might be that a reasonable time to get him has not elapsed yet. We are entitled to have the benefit of all doubt on these matters.

PRESIDENT: Objection is overruled.

PROSECUTION: I would like to offer P-37 and P-37A in evidence.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits No. 37 and 37A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 37 and 37A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits No 37 and 37A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission of the court is requested to read Prosecution Exhibits 37 and 37A.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 37A, the English translation of a statement by Jakob Boesen, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 37 by the interpreter in the German language.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, up to this point proof offered to the Court has been principally in support of Charge Number 1. It is the intention of the Prosecution at this time to begin to offer evidence principally in support of Charge Number 2. We would like to call the Court's attention, however, that throughout this entire case, right up to the end, we will continually, from time to time, offer evidence in support of Charges 1 and 2.

At this time the Prosecution asks the Court to take judicial notice of Control Council Law Number 10; and, for the convenience of the Court, I have copies of Control Council Law Number 10 from the official gazette of the official Control Council for Germany.

PRESIDENT: The Court will take judicial notice of Law Number 10.

PROSECUTION: I call the Court's attention to Charge Number 2, which, among other things, is based upon violations of paragraph 1, subparagraph D of Article 2 of Control Council Law Number 10. Is it the desire of the Court that the German translation of German Control Council Law Number 10 in whole or in part be read to the accused? The Prosecution particularly desires that paragraph 1, sub-paragraph D of Article 2 be read to the accused.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: It merely appears to us, may it please the Court, that so long as it is taken judicial notice of, and then if it becomes a part of the evidence, for the sake of the record since everything else is read to the accused, that perhaps that better be read to the accused, particularly if part of it is going to be read. I have no strong feeling on it--that is merely a suggestion to the Court. I wish I could be sure, I think we had it read to them as a part of our general defense, but I am not sure.

MAJOR SAXON: I am pretty sure, Colonel.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think we had that Nuernberg extract read to them--that is quite lengthier than this.

PRESIDENT: The Court orders that the entire paper be read in German.

(Whereupon the Interpreter read to the accused in German Control Council Law Number 10.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 38 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 38 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution now offers in evidence a document which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 38 for identification, which is an extract from the official transcript of the judgment of the International Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, the French Republic, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, against Hermann Wilhelm Goering, et al, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 31 August 1946, Lord Justice Lawrence, presiding, and ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That's that four-power organization, isn't it?

PROSECUTION: That's right.

PRESIDENT: Any objections?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, sir.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 38 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 38 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 38, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Does the Court desire this evidence to be read? This discusses the charter provisions under which the military tribunal proceeded.

PRESIDENT: The Court desires the evidence read.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I suggest that so far as the Defense is concerned, we will waive the reading of it in English.

PROSECUTION: I believe if the Court would like to hear it, it will help in the matter of Charge Number 2.

PRESIDENT: Proceed with it.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 38.)

PROSECUTION: I am going to offer another extract, and the translation of both these extracts is contained in one book, and I would like to have the court's permission to have them both translated at the same time. It will be more convenient, because the translation is contained in an officially translated booklet.

PRESIDENT: Are there any objections to that?

MAJOR SAXON: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

LAW MEMBER: Are you offering a translation of this?

PROSECUTION: I will if the Court desires.

MAJOR SAXON: The books are going in evidence, aren't they?

PROSECUTION: I will put them in after I offer this next exhibit, because they are contained in one book. I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 39 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 39 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution now offers in evidence a document which has been marked Prosedution's Exhibit 39 for identification to be received in evidence as Exhibit 39; and being a second extract from the official judgment of the International Military Tribunal and ask that it be admitted in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the Defense?

MAJOR SAXON: No, sir.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 39 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 40 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 40 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution offers in evidence a document which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 40 for identification, which is a true, correct and official translation of the extracts of the judgment of the International Military Tribunal which were received in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibits 38 and 39, and ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE: The Defense has no objections except that I might suggest that the record indicate the pages on which the translation began. It begins at page 97, I think, and goes to 114.

PROSECUTION: The translation of Prosecution's Exhibits 38 and 39 begins on page 11 and ends on page 14 and begins on page 95 and ends on page 114 of the translation document.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 40 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 40 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 40, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

LAW MEMBER: Have you waived the reading of this in German?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes, sir, I thought I had.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the Defense has agreed to waive the reading of the German translation of Exhibits 38 and 39. Will the Defense indicate whether or not the translation has been previously read to the accused in German?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That portion of the book from page 95 to page 114 has, to my knowledge, been read.

PRESIDENT: The Court will adjourn until tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

(Whereupon at 1645 hours the Court adjourned until 0900 hours, 16 January 1947.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0925 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

At this time, the prosecution requests the court to take judicial notice of the judgment of the International Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, the French Republic, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics against Hermann Wilhelm Goering, et al, defendants, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 31 August 1946, Lord Justice Lawrence presiding, and in particular, that part of the judgment that declared the following organizations criminal: the Leadership Corps of the former German Reich, the Gestapo, the SS, the SD.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May the defense at the same time request the court's attention to certain portions of that decision which state that those who had technical membership in one of those organizations, but who occupied only clerical, administrative, janitorial or menial labors, were not to be considered members of criminal organizations purely because of the nature of the work they did, unless they assisted and furthered the criminal purposes of the organization itself. There is another provision in that judgment which states that enforced membership was not to be considered as membership unless also the person whose membership was enforced actually furthered the work of the organization.

PRESIDENT: The court will take judicial notice of the judgment at Nuernberg as requested by the prosecution and defense.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter 26 documents and request that they be marked for identification Prosecution Exhibits 41 to and including 53-A.

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits 41 through 53-A for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution now offers in evidence thirteen affidavits and translations which have been marked for identification beginning with Prosecution Exhibit 41 to and including 53-A, which are affidavits of the accused Stroop, Trummler, Sommer, Fuchs, Moehler, Best, Goss, Michaly, Lassak, Girke, Hellenbroich, Stattmann and Raaf, and asks that they be received in evidence, given those numbers, and be made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

PROSECUTION: These are affidavits dated 9 December 1946, in which the accused state the organizations to which they belonged.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense objects to all of them, may it please the court, on the ground previously urged and overruled, namely, to wit, that this is the introduction by the prosecution of sworn testimony by the accused, from the accused, by material matters, wherein they themselves are denied the privilege of testifying under oath. That is a blanket objection to all of them.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: On this ground, too, that if this offered to prove membership in some organization or another — the reason I ask, may it please the court, is this: there are at least one I have in mind which shows membership in an organization of a man who was a janitor, and under the Nuernberg decision, that membership in that capacity would not make him a member of a criminal organization within the purview of the decision itself. I therefore ask a ruling from the court at this time whether or not the burden is not on the prosecution to show, in each of these cases, that the membership was of the kind of membership which the decisions stamped as criminal in its nature, and not the kind of membership which the Tribunal

PROSECUTION: Prosecution now offers in evidence thirteen affidavits and translations which have been marked for identification beginning with Prosecution Exhibit 41 to and including 53-A, which are affidavits of the accused Stroop, Trummler, Seemann, Fuchs, Koehler, Best, Geos, Michaly, Lasnak, Girke, Hellenbreich, Stattmann and Rauf, and asks that they be received in evidence, given those numbers, and be made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

excluded as being criminal.

PROSECUTION: It is, of course, the intention of the prosecution to prove the particular part they played.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

Let the record show that Prosecution Exhibits Nos. 41 through 53-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Does the court desire these exhibits read? The prosecution waives the reading of them. I have extra copies for the court.

PRESIDENT: The exhibits will be read.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We waive the reading, too, may it please the court.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibits 41-A, 42-A, 43-A, 44-A, 45-A, 46-A, 47-A, 48-A, 49-A, 50-A, 51-A, 52-A, and 53-A, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibits 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, and 53 by the court interpreter in the German language.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense understands that these exhibits which have been read into the record--so-called exhibits showing membership in organizations--were introduced to show membership in organizations declared criminal by the Nuernberg decision. Under that assumption, I move to strike out from the record at this time the statement of membership by one Heinrich Micholy--I am sorry I cannot give you the exact exhibit number--on the ground that the exhibit does not show membership in any criminal organization whatsoever, but is confined solely to organizations not declared criminal, and on the ground that the evidence is immaterial and irrelevant. It is Exhibit 48, I am told.

The two organizations mentioned are the Hitler Youth, which of course is completely outside the scope of the Nuernberg decision, and the second organization mentioned is the Waffen SS, which is a strictly military organization and not mentioned in the Nuernberg decision either. The Nuernberg decision refers entirely to the Allgemeine SS, a political organization, and not to the Waffen SS or the Cavalry SS, which was strictly military and completely separate and apart from the Allgemeine SS.

PROSECUTION: The only answer I can give to that is that if the court reads that extract of the judgment the contrary appears. The SS is mentioned. The Allgemeine SS is treated as a separate organization and called the SA, but the SS is definitely declared as one of the criminal organizations, and the Waffen SS is nothing but the SS.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I invite the court's attention to page 15 of the extract from the Nuernberg decision, which has been introduced as an exhibit. I am sorry that I cannot give you the exhibit number, but it is on page 15 and is a long extract which deals with the composition of the four organizations declared criminal, and the word used is "Schutzstaffeln". It is the German word for the Allgemeine SS, and there is just no question about that. There is no word about the SA at all. In fact, there is some reference to the SA in an entirely different place. It shows it as something entirely separate and apart. And, finally, the SA is specifically found not to be criminal.

PROSECUTION: Page 20 of the extract reads:

> "Conclusions: The SS was utilized for purposes which were criminal under the Charter involving the persecution and extermination of the Jews, brutalities and killings in concentration camps, excesses in the administration of occupied territories, the administration of the slave labor program and the mistreatment and murder of prisoners of war. The defendant Kaltenbrunner was a member of the SS implicated in these activities. In dealing with the SS the Tribunal includes all persons who have been officially accepted as members of the SS including the members of the Allgemeine SS, members of the Waffen SS, members of the SS Totenkopf Verbaende and the members of any of the different police forces who were members of the SS."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That was limited, may it please the court, to those members who were working at these particular camps, and not to the general membership.

PROSECUTION: Of course, it will be part of the prosecution's proof to show what part each of the accused played in these organizations.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I ask the reporter to read back the last statement of Colonel Dwinell.

(Whereupon the reporter read the last statement of the prosecution.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: By that you mean these criminal organizations?

PROSECUTION: That is correct.

PRESIDENT: The motion is denied.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the prosecution has concluded the presentation of its proof directed principally to the support of Charge II. We repeat that all during this trial we will continually offer evidence to support the charges I and II.

We now begin to present the principal evidence in support of Charge III. Captain Vance will conduct the direct examination. Is it the desire of the court, in view of the fact that it is about one minute to ten, to recess now, or will we begin with the proof?

PRESIDENT: Continue.

ERNST MUENK, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Please state your full name.

A Ernst Muenk. M-u-e-n-k.

Q What is your address?

A Bad Nauheim, Ries Street.

Q What is your civilian occupation?

A Police master.

Q In which city?

A In Bad Nauheim.

Q How old are you?

A Forty-nine years.

Q Where were you living in the month of October 1944?

A In Giessen.

Q I direct your attention to on or about the third day of October, 1944, and ask you where you were at that time.

A At the police main office at Giessen.

Q Did anything unusual happen in Giessen on that day?

A Over Giessen and Wieseck several two-motor airplanes fell down.

Q Did you have occasion to see any American fliers on that date?

A Yes.

Q Where did you see them?

A In the neighborhood of my home. I was called because in the neighborhood of my home there were several buildings on fire. I ran home first to see whether anything had happened there. There somebody called me and said--called me while I was in the air raid shelter--that they were going to take fliers out of the city. I ran over there immediately. It was about 100 meters from my home. There was an excited crowd of twelve men and women, and they walked around the flier. I said immediately, "The flyer is under my protection and will be brought to police headquarters."

Q How many fliers were there?

A One flyer.

Q What was your business at that time, Mr. Muenk?

A I was on duty.

Q As what?

A Police master.

Q Continue.

A Since the crowd was very excited, a man who lived in my house, Mahr, offered to help me. I took the shortest route to my police headquarters, since the air raid alarm was still on. Everybody was in the air raid shelters. In front of the entrance was a police director Lassak. Lassak told me to take the flier down in the cellar.

Q This man Lassak that you are talking about, if you were to see him today would you recognize him?

A Yes.

Q If he is present in the court here will you point out which man is Lassak?

A No. 18 (indicating).

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Lassak, wearing placard No. 18.

Q What was Mr. Lassak's position there in Giessen?

A He was police director, SS colonel.

Q What occurred after you got to the police station?

A I went with the flyer to the basement. In the hallway it was half dark, and we moved only slowly. Lassak followed us, and since we moved slowly he pushed the flyer to the side and opened the door so that we could enter the orderly room.

Q What do you mean by "he pushed the flyer to the side"? Be more definite.

A The hall is very narrow, and he wanted to pass between us, so he pushed him to the side so that he could pass us.

Q Then what happened?

A So I entered the room and the entire staff was waiting there. I intended to report to the commander that I had taken the flyer at Marburger Street from the people, but I was told immediately to leave the room again. At this moment something flew against the table. I turned around and saw that the flyer had been pushed by Lassak, who wanted to pass by. I left the room immediately then with the flyer and waited outside with the flyer. A short while later Mr. Lassak came out again and said, "He comes, the flyer comes to the Gestapo for interrogation." Since we were still standing in the narrow hallway, he told the flyer, "Get out of my way", and went up the stairs. Approximately six, seven, minutes later he called into the cellar the flyer should come upstairs. I went upstairs with the flyer, and there was an employee of the Gestapo, and Lassak said, "This is the man." And the man had walked already a few steps--the flyer had walked already a few steps--and since he was alone and turned around once, so I thought maybe the crowd was still excited, so I thought it is better I accompany him to the Gestapo. At the Gestapo I went with him up to the stairs, and there I saw they were already waiting for him, and they said, "He will be brought to Branner. I stayed at the stairs and Branner asked me whether he was searched already for arms. I said, "No." They put him against the wall and immediately started to search him. Since with me on the stairs were a few other men, and through the open door we could look into the room, they now closed the door so that we couldn't see anything anymore.

(Muenk - Direct)

Q Mr. Muenk, this man Branner you are talking about: Do you know his first name?

A No, I don't know the first name.

Q What was his position, or who was this man Branner?

A Branner was criminal secretary at the Gestapo office in Giessen.

Q If you were to see this man Branner at this time, would you recognize him?

A Yes.

Q Is he present in the courtroom? If so, indicate him to the court.

A No. I can't see him.

Q How long did you remain at the Gestapo headquarters after you delivered this American flyer?

A As soon as they closed the door I returned to my own office.

Q Approximately what length of time were you with this American flyer from the time you first took him until you left him at the Gestapo headquarters?

A Approximately half an hour it might have been.

Q Did this flyer have any weapons on his person?

A I didn't search him. I didn't notice anything.

Q Did this flyer try to escape or make any attempt to escape while in your custody?

A No. I didn't even think of it, because he had very heavy boots. He had this combination jacket and he had the parachute under his arm.

Q You have talked about an American flyer. How do you know he was an American?

A Because later on it was found out that these were American planes which had come down.

Q Do you know the name of this flyer?

A No.

Q Have you seen this flyer since the date you left him at Branner's office?

A No.

Q Do you know what happened to this flyer?

A A few weeks later I heard that he had been shot by Branner.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions. Does the defense desire to cross examine?

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the court, I would like to object to and ask that the last answer given by this witness be stricken as purely hearsay.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q This place that you referred to as the cellar: Will you just tell the court what that actually was?

A That was the orderly room of police headquarters during air raid alarms.

Q It was an air raid shelter then; is that correct?

A It was an air raid shelter with rooms completely built up.

Q Did you have a telephone in this shelter?

A Several telephones.

Q You mentioned that Mr. Lassak pushed this flyer as he walked by him. Can you tell us where Mr. Lassak was headed at that time?

A He went to the central telephone office.

Q Was there a telephone booth right in this same room that you have referred to?

A Yes.

Q Did you wait there while he went and used the telephone?

A No, I immediately left the room.

Q Do you know whom he called at that time?

A No.

Q Did Mr. Lassak tell you whom he was going to call?

A No.

Q You have mentioned on three different occasions here that Mr. Lassak pushed this flyer. Do you mean to tell the court here that he did it with the idea of hurting the flyer?

A No.

Q It was merely to get by to perform his duties there, is that correct?

A Yes, because there were narrow hallways.

Q Who instructed you to take the flyer over to the Gestapo headquarters?

A Mr. Lassak said he will be brought over to the Gestapo, and then he called from upstairs when the man was to be picked up.

Q You mean he called on the telephone?

A No, no, not on the phone. He called from upstairs down the staircase.

Q Did Mr. Lassak tell you why he was to be taken to the Gestapo headquarters?

A He said, "He comes to the Gestapo for interrogation."

Q Did I understand that you did not search the flyer at all in your headquarters?

A No.

Q The flyer suffered no personal injury or threat in your headquarters, did he?

A No.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for fifteen minutes.

(Whereupon at 1015 hours the court recessed until 1030 hours.)

(Muenk - Cross)

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the Court, all the members of the Prosecution, all the members of the Defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

MAJOR SAXON: I have no further questions.

CAPT. VANCE: Request the witness be excused if there are no questions by the Court.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPT. VANCE: Call the witness Ernst Kohn.

ERNST KOHN, called as a witness for the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q Please state your full name?

A KOHN, Ernste, Herman, Friedrich. Ernst, Herman, Friedrich, Kohn.

Q What is your address?

A In Giessen.

Q What was your civilian occupation?

A I was a criminal policeman. A member of the criminal police.

Q For how long a time?

A I was with the police from 1920 to 1945.

Q How old are you?

A Fifty four years.

Q What is your status at the present time?

A I am in the special camp here, cage one, as a prisoner right now.

Q Where were you living in October 1946?

A In Giessen.

(Kohn-direct)

Q Where were you working at that time?

A I worked with the outer office of the Gestapo headquarters at Giessen.

Q Were you present in the Gestapo office on or about 8 October 1944 when an American flyer was brought there?

A Yes.

Q Who brought the flyer there?

A A policeman Ernst Muenk from the police headquarters at Giessen.

Q Who was with Muenk when he delivered the American flyer?

A There was a Criminal Official Wintzer, Criminal Secretary Schneider, Criminal Secretary Brenner and myself.

Q What happened when Muenk brought the flyer there?

A He was searched by the Criminal Secretary Brenner for weapons but he had none with him.

Q Did any conversation take place with regard to this flyer by anyone present?

A Yes. I said, "This isn't our business. I will call. We have to give him to the armed forces. I will call the airfield and they will send two men to pick him up."

Q Who did you say that to?

A I said it to all who were present.

Q Did anybody else say anything?

A Yes. Mr. Brenner said, "He will be picked up, I take him away".

Q After Brenner said this did he take the flyer away?

A Yes.

Q Did Brenner say anything when he left with the flyer?

A Yes. He said something but I do not recall exactly anymore. I don't know every word that he said. Something about "To pay a bill" but I don't remember exactly anymore.

(Kohn-direct)

Q The best you can remember, what was said by Brenner?

A I don't know it word for word exactly how he said it and in which connection he used the words and how he meant it and the words I cannot recall anymore.

Q After Brenner left with this flyer, when is the next time you saw Brenner?

A It was approximately 15 to 20 minutes, I guess.

Q Did Brenner come back?

A Yes.

Q When Brenner returned did he have the flyer with him?

A No.

Q Have you seen the flyer since that time?

A No.

Q What did Brenner do or say when he came back?

A He went up to the second floor where he had his room and I went up with him, when he came to the end room, Criminal Official Wintzer came out of his room and asked, "How, how is it?" Brenner said, "Everything is taken care of, he is --" and then he made a move like this (indicating).

CAPT. VANCE: Let the record show that the witness made a sign by taking his right hand and sweeping it in a circle to the right of his body.

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q Was anything else said?

A No.

Q Do you know what Brenner meant by that remark he made to Wintzer?

A Yes. It was a little bit funny to me and therefore I went downstairs to the first floor and there I heard Brenner was calling on the phone the cemetery administration at the Philosophen Forest there would be a dead flyer and they should go over there and pick him up.

Q Do you know the first name of this man Branner you have been talking about?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A We called him "Leo" but whether his name was Leo or Leonard, I do not know.

Q If you were to see this man Branner today would you recognize him?

A Yes.

Q Look around the courtroom and state whether or not he is present in court?

A No.

Q When this pilot was brought to the Gestapo Headquarters, did he have any weapons?

A No.

Q When Branner left with the pilot did the pilot have any weapons?

A No, he couldn't.

Q About how long was the pilot kept there in Gestapo Headquarters?

A Only a few minutes.

Q Did the pilot try to escape during the period of time he was at Gestapo Headquarters?

A No.

Q When Branner left with the pilot, did Branner have any weapons?

A Yes. He had a pistol.

Q Do you know the name of this pilot?

A No.

Q Do you know where the Philosophen Forest is?

A Yes.

Q About how far is it from Gestapo Headquarters?

A There are two paths leading to the forest; one through the meadow and one passed along the ice field and that is the shortest way. It takes you about eight to ten minutes to walk it this way.

Q You mean eight to ten minutes to walk itone way?

A Yes, only one way.

Q It would then take about 15 to 20 minutes to walk it both ways, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You said that Leonard Brammer was gone about 15 to 20 minutes, is that correct?

A Yes, approximately. I did not look at my watch.

CAPT. VANCE: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q What position did this man Mintzer have, that you mentioned?

A He was in charge of the outer office Giessen and he was Criminal counselor.

Q Were you a member of the Gestapo and serving under Mintzer there at that time?

A Yes.

Q Were you there in Mintzer's office when he received the phone call regarding the flyer?

A No.

Q Regarding Brammer taking the flyer away, were the orders given to Brammer by Mintzer or what orders were given?

A I don't know that.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

CAPT. VANCE: Are there any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPT. VANCE: Request that the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

(Kohn-cross)

CAPT. VANCE: Call August Wagner.

AUGUST WAGNER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q State your full name?

A August Wagner.

Q What is your address?

A Eder Street 2, Giessen.

Q What is your occupation?

A I was traveling salesman and at the end I was drafted into the Auxiliary Police.

Q What is your present occupation?

A I rent a parking lot for cars.

Q How old are you?

A Fifty two.

Q Whatwas your occupation in October 1944?

A I was a Sergeant of the Police.

Q Where?

A Giessen.

Q Calling your attention to about the 3rd of October 1944, I will ask you to state whether or not you had occasion to see an American flyer in Giessen?

A Yes.

Q Under what circumstances did you see this American flyer?

A He was taken by a comrade of mine, Munk, to headquarters.

Q Where did you see him with Mr. Munk?

A I came along the street one way and Munk came along the street at an angle of 90 degrees.

Q Do you remember the date that you are talking about?

A It was on the 3rd of October 1944.

Q Have you ever seen this American pilot since that date?

A The next day I went to Wiesack on duty there and I met three women up near the forest and they told me there was a dead soldier in the forest.

Q Did you go to the forest to see the dead soldier?

A I took the three women along to show me the place.

Q Then did you see the dead soldier?

A Yes.

Q Had you ever seen that dead soldier before?

A Yes. I think, with 90% certainty, that it was the same soldier that I saw with Muenk.

Q You saw him with Muenk the day before, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q After y u saw the body, what did you then do?

A Then I went to my duty at Wiesack.

CAPT. VANCE: I have no further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q You stated you were 90% sure this was the same person you saw with Muenk the day before, what causes you to have some doubt in your mind as to whether it is or not?

A Since I had never seen the soldier before in my life and I saw him only from a distance of 20 to 25 meters.

Q What I want to know is whether there was something different about the man when you saw him in the forest then when you saw the man with Muenk?

A He was a tall, slender fellow and it was the same man Muenk had brought down.

Q What did he wear when you saw him in the forest?

A The uniform - I didn't look at it so closely.

Q Did you notice whether he had on a flyer's coat or not?

A I can't say that anymore.

Q Do you know whether he had flyer's boots on?

A I think he had no more boots.

Q Was he lying face down or face up?

A Face up.

Q What time of day was it that you saw the body in the forest?

A It was around noon time- one o'clock or one thirty, I cannot say.

Q After you saw the body what did you do then regarding the body, if anything?

A I went to Wiesaek and as soon as the man who was on duty returned I made a report to him.

Q Did you arrange to have the body moved?

A No. I only reported this to my superior officers.

Q Do you know what was done with the body, yourself?

A No.

Q When you first saw this flier with Muenk, the day before, what time of day was it?

A That might have been eleven or eleven thirty, I cannot say exactly.

Q How far away was Muenk from you when you saw them?

A I already said before about 20 to 25 meters.

Q How much time did you have to observe the flyer?

A They came from one direction and I passed them at an angle of 90 degrees and there we met on the street and I could look at him.

(Wagner-cross)

Q When you saw the flyer on the first day, with Muenk, what was the man wearing then?

A This I cannot tell you exactly either but he had his parachute under his arm.

Q You cannot tell us what kind of clothing he was wearing?

A I cannot say that exactly because I saw him just while passing by.

Q But it is possible that it was not the same man that you saw in the forest that you saw walking with Muenk the day before, is that right?

A I claim it was the same man I saw the day before with Muenk.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

CAPT. VANCE: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No. The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPT. VANCE: Call Heinrich Momberger.

HEINRICH MOMBERGER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q What is your name?

A Heinrich Momberger.

Q What is your address?

A Giessen-Wieseck.

Q What is your occupation?

A Retired policeman.

Q How old are you?

A Sixty two.

Q What was your occupation in October 1944?

A I was in charge of the police station at Wieseck.

ta 47 LJH
1/17

Q Directing your attention to about the 4th day of October 1944 I will ask you if you had occasion to see an American soldier's body on that day near Giessen?

A Yes. Near the Philosophen Forest.

Q How did you learn that the American's body was in the Philosophen Forest?

A This day I came from my home in Giessen where I had lived before and was on my way to my office at Wisseck and my way took me through the forest; close to the former labor service camp I met a group of policemen under the leadership of 1st Lt. Flum, who came from Giessen. The entire group was on bicycle.

Q Did you go to look at the body?

A I followed this group and went with them.

Q Did you look at the body?

A Yes. The body was lying face up.

Q Did you notice any wounds on the body?

A Yes. The corpse had blood near the nose to the mouth.

Q After you looked at the body what did you do then?

A Then I returned to my office at Wisseck.

Q Had you ever seen this American prior to the time you saw the body in the forest?

A No.

Q Do you know the name of this dead American flyer?

A No.

Q After the American soldiers arrived in Giessen did you go with anyone to the scene where you found this body?

A Yes. I went by car there with an investigating officer and a picture was taken of me at the same spot where the flyer had been found.

CAPT. VANCE: Will you mark this as Prosecution Exhibit 84 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 54 for identification.)

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q You say a picture was taken where the body was found?

A Yes, in the forest.

Q I show you a picture which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 54 for identification and ask you to state if this is the picture that was taken?

A Yes.

Q Do you appear in the picture?

A Me?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q What are you pointing to with your hand?

A Where the corpse was laying.

CAPT. VANCE: If it please the Court I offer in evidence a photograph which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 54 for identification.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 54 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 54 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 54, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

Questions BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q Do you know what disposition was made of this body?

A The body was picked up by Trenkner on October 4. He has a funeral home.

Q Was that in the year 1944?

A Yes. 4 October 1944.

Q Do you know where the flyer was buried?

A No. I heard only that this man took him to the cemetery.

Q At the time that you saw the body of the dead American were there any weapons on it?

A No, nothing anymore.

Q All right.

CAPT. VANCE: I have no further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q When did you see this body, was it the 3rd or the 4th?

A The 4th.

Q What time of day was it?

A Approximately 1500 o'clock.

Q That is all.

CAPT. VANCE: Are there any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No. The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPT. VANCE: Call Arthur Trenkner.

ARTHUR TRENKNER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q Please state your full name?

A Arthur Trenkner.

Q What is your address?

A Giessen.

Q What is your occupation?

A I am the owner of a funeral home.

Q How old are you?

A Fifty two.

Q What was your occupation in 1944?

A I had a funeral home.

I/Ir

Q In what city?

A In Giessen.

Q Did you have occasion on the 4th day of October 1944 to go to the Philosophen Forest near Giessen?

A Yes. I was ordered there.

Q Who ordered you there?

A The Airfield at Giessen.

Q After you received the orders did you go to the forest?

A Yes.

Q What did you find there?

A An American soldier.

Q Was the American soldier alive or dead at that time.

A Dead.

Q Did you look at the body?

A Yes. I put the body into the coffin.

Q Then what did you do?

A Then we loaded the coffin onto a cart and took it to the cemetery at Giessen.

Q I show you a photograph which is in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 54 and ask you if you can recognize that photograph?

A Yes.

Q What is that?

A That is the Philosophen Forest.

Q Is that where you found the body?

A Yes.

Q What disposition was made of this body?

A The body was brought to the cemetery and there I delivered it to the cemetery administration.

Q Which cemetery?

A The new cemetery in Giessen.

Q Did you see any papers or any identification on this dead body?

A Yes

Q Do you know the name of this dead flyer?

A No.

Q Were you paid for your services to bury the body?

A Yes.

Q Who paid you?

A The airfield.

Q How long have you been engaged in the undertaking business?

A Let's say forty years.

Q Have you had lots of experience in examining and seeing dead bodies?

A Yes.

Q Could you express an opinion as to how long the body was lying there or had been dead at the time you removed it from the forest?

A Well --

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment, that is purely a medical question.

CAPT. VANCE: May it please the Court, I asked him if he can. I do not know whether he is qualified or not. He has been an undertaker for forty years.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If he is going to express an opinion, my objection is that he is not qualified to express an opinion.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled and the witness will answer the question.

THE WITNESS: It might have been 8, 10 or 12 hours.

CAPT. VANCE: Will you mark these as Prosecution Exhibits 55 and 55-A for identification.

CAPT. VANCE: May it please the Court, I have in my hand a burial order which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 55 and the English Translation which has been marked 55-A for identification. This witness has testified that he was paid by the airport in Giessen. We offer the airports order of burial in evidence and ask it be received and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits 55 and 55-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(hereupon the documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 55 and 55-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 55 and 55-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPT. VANCE: Permission is requested of the Court to read this Exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 55-A the English translation of the order for burial followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 55 by the interpreter in the German language.)

CAPT. VANCE: I have no further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q What day was it that you received the phone call to bury this flyer?

A On the 4th of October.

Q What time of day was it?

A It was in the afternoon.

Q Do you know what time in the afternoon?

A This day we had fourteen flyers and I cannot give you the exact hour.

Q You had occasion to bury 14 flyers that day?

)Trenkner-cross) 264

A Yes.

Q Did you get the order to bury all 14 of them from the airport?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what time you went out to get the body of this particular flyer?

A It might have been between four and five.

Q As I understand it, you testified here that you are satisfied that this flyer had been dead from eight to twelve hours, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Did the air attack that took place on Giessen take place the day before, 3 October?

A Yes.

Q There was no air attack on the 4th October?

A No.

Q Do you know how many planes came down to earth on the 3rd October?

A According to hearsay, two.

Q You were out there sometime between four and five oclock to get the body of this man, he would then have to have been killed sometime that day according to your judgment of the length of time he had been dead, is that correct?

A It is possible. I guess, I figure it that way.

Q Would it be your opinion that this flyer we are now referring to was killed sometime around six or seven o'clock that morning of 4 October?

A That is possible, yes.

Q What is your opinion about that, is that correct or not?

A It might be right. I cannot say it exactly.

Q Did you examine the body of this flyer before you buried him?

A No.

Q Then you do not know in what manner he died?

A No.

Q Was the burial fee for all the bodies that you buried paid for by the airport?

A Yes. Not the expenses for the burial. Only the expenses for the coffins. I had nothing to do with the burial itself.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

CAPT. VANCE: Are there any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No. The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPT. VANCE: Will the reporter please mark these documents Prosecution Exhibits 56 and 56-A for identification.

(Whereupon the documents referred to were marked prosecution exhibits 56 and 56-A for identification.)

CAPT. VANCE: I have in my hand documents which have been marked Prosecution Exhibit 56 and 56-A for identification. Exhibit 56 is a statement written by the accused Julius Lassak in his own handwriting at Giessen 11 July 1946. The other, Exhibit 56-A is a true and correct translation from German into English. I offer these documents in evidence, ask they be received and made a part of this record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Major Saxon.

MAJOR SAXON: This is objected to for the reasons heretofor given by the Chief Defense Counsel, Colonel Berman, namely that the sworn statement of this accused has no right to come in and not be refuted by sworn testimony from the witness stand.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 56 and 56-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofor marked Prosecution Exhibits 56 and 56-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 56 and 56-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPT. VANCE: Permission is requested to read these exhibits?

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Trenkner-cross)

(Thereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 56A, the English translation of a statement by Julius Laesak, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 56 by the interpreter in the German language.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand you a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 57 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 57 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, the prosecution offers in evidence the document which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 57 for identification, which is the testimony of Julius Laesak, taken at Wiesbaden, Germany, 5 August 1946, by Civilian Joseph B. Zinn, Investigator-Examiner, War Crimes Group, US Army, and ask that this be accepted and marked Prosecution Exhibit 57 and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit No. 57 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I might ask the defense counsel if he wants the first page read showing the qualifications of the interpreter, etc.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, we do not.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I will commence with the testimony.

(Thereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 57, a statement by Julius Laesak.)

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until 1:30.

(Thereupon at 1230 hours the court recessed until 1330 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all members of the Court, all members of the Prosecution, all members of the Defense, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

(Whereupon the Interpreter translated Prosecution's Exhibit 57 into the German language.)

CAPTAIN FANCE: I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibits 58 and 58A for identification.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, I have a document in my hand which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 58 for identification, and another document marked Prosecution's Exhibit 58A for identification. This is a statement written on the 17th of June 1946 by the accused Leonhard Braner by himself on a typewriter. We offer this statement in evidence and ask that it be accepted as Prosecution's Exhibit 58, and we have an English translation which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 58A for identification, and ask that it be received in evidence and both be made a part of this record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections by the Defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I was just asking my associate, may it please the Court. We have no way of knowing whether or not that is Braner's signature. Do you know that it is? I have no way of checking it.

CAPTAIN VANCE: The statement is signed in front of a witness--the witnessing officer here.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Who is it signed in front of?

CAPTAIN VANCE: Signed and sworn to before First Lieutenant James T. Hatcher, Investigating Officer.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: As a matter of record, I will object to it because it hasn't been identified.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution's Exhibit 58 and 58A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 58 and 58A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 58 and 58A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 58A, the English translation of the statement of Leonhard Braner, followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 58, the statement of Leonhard Braner, by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, at this time the prosecution will begin presenting evidence in support of charges IV and V. Since some of the accused are named in both charges, and the witnesses are the same, they will be presented at one time. Of course, it will still be evidence introduced in support of charges I and II.

FRAU PRESS, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Will you please state your full name?

A Frau Press.

Q What is your present address?

A Langenhain, Taunus.

Q What is your occupation?

A Housewife.

Q What is your age?

A 47 years.

Q Miss Press, where were you living in the year 1944?

A Until March, I lived in Frankfurt, and after March, in Langenhain.

Q Do you speak and understand the English language?

A Yes.

Q Would you prefer that I question you in English, or in German?

A I would rather testify in German, because I may not understand one of the other terms.

Q Where did you learn your English?

A In America.

Q How long did you live in America?

A From 1926 to 1938.

Q Miss Press, do you recall an occasion when an American flier parachuted in the neighborhood of Langenhain?

A Yes.

Q When was that?

A It was in December, on the 28th or 29th of December, 1944.

Q Where did you first see this American flier?

A On the way to the mayor's office.

Q Who was with the flier when you first saw him?

A There was the son of the ortsgruppenleiter and a sergeant of the wehrmacht.

Q After you saw this flier, where did you go?

A I went with him to the mayor's office.

Q What was the occasion, or the reason, for your going to the burgomeister's office?

A I was supposed to act as an interpreter there.

Q Do you recall who was present at the burgomeister's office when you arrived?

A There was the mayor, the ortsgruppenleiter, the son of the ortsgruppenleiter, a police helper, a secretary, the flier and I.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Johann Wagner?

A Yes.

Q Who is Mr. Wagner?

A He is the police helper.

Q Was he present there on this occasion?

A Yes.

Q Did you act as the interpreter in the interrogation of the flier?

A Yes.

Q Did you ask the flier his name?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember his name?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A Robert Garrison.

Q Did he state what his Army rank was?

A No.

Q Did you notice any insignia that would signify his rank?

A Yes.

Q What did you see in the way of insignia?

A I saw on his left sleeve three stripes.

Q Did this man Robert Garrison tell you where he came from, where his home was?

A No.

Q Tell the court, if you will, anything that you and this Robert Garrison talked about or discussed during that interrogation.

A He said that he wanted to be interrogated by a German officer, or he would say nothing. Then I talked to him privately, and he asked me where I had learned to speak English, and I told him that I had lived in South Bend, Indiana, for thirteen years, and he told me that he knows the University of Notre Dame there. After I asked him whether he knows Notre Dame, he told me that he knew practically all of America.

Q Did Robert Garrison show you or anyone else his identifications?

A Yes, he showed them to me.

Q What did he show you?

A He showed me a disc which he carried on a chain around his neck.

Q Did his name and number appear on that disk?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall how Robert Garrison was dressed?

A Yes. He wore a fliers' uniform and heatable -- felt boots that could be heated.

Q Did he carry any weapons?

A No.

Q About what length of time were you in the presence of Robert Garrison?

A One and a half hours, possibly two hours.

Q During this period of time, did he attempt to escape?

A No.

Q Who left the burgomeister's office first, you or Robert Garrison?

A I left first.

Q Did you see Robert Garrison any more afterwards?

A Yes.

Q What was the occasion of your seeing him the second time?

A I had been called back to tell him that he should not make an attempt to escape, because he is under guard, which was standing outside.

Q Who was that guard?

A The police helper.

Q Is that Wagner?

A Yes.

Q Did you tell Robert Garrison not to attempt to escape?

A Yes.

Q What did he say?

A Nothing. He just laughed; he just smiled.

Q Where was this Robert Garrison the last time you saw him?

A In the mayor's office.

Q On what date was that?

A The 28th or 29th of December. I am not sure what, but I believe it was the 29th.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

PRESIDENT: Any questions by the defense?

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Were you present when he was searched?

A No, I was only supposed to ask him whether he had a a watch yet with him. Everything else had been taken away from him already.

Q How do you know?

A It was laying on the desk.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, it has been stipulated by and between the prosecution and the defense and the accused that if the witness Captain Smith -- who has previously testified as to why certain witnesses were not here -- if he were present in court, he would testify that he has made efforts to obtain the witness Johann Wagner to appear and testify before this court. He would further testify that this man Johann Wagner is a very old man, that he is sick at this time, and that it is not practicable to bring him a distance of about 200 miles to this court. Is that stipulation joined in by the defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We so stipulate that the witness would so testify.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is accepted.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 59 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 59 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, in view of the testimony of Captain Smith that the witness Johann Wagner is not present in court for the reasons stated, we offer a sworn statement of the witness Johann Wagner, dated the 21st of November, 1945, which sworn testimony is sworn to before Edward B. Lee, 1st Lt. CMP. This document has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 59 for identification, and we ask it be accepted in evidence and made a part of the record.

Ta 50-ps-50-1/16-6

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense objects to the receipt of this proffered exhibit on the ground that there is no single reference in it to any one of the accused, the reference to place is not the place mentioned in either of charges IV or V, none of the names mentioned are parties to this case, and it appears to be in its entirety completely divorced from anything that has to do with any of the ten charges or particulars. To receive it would just pile still more picture into this case, which is enough of a picture, we submit, already.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, if the prosecution didn't think this testimony was relevant to this case, we wouldn't offer it. We submit this is a witness vital to the chaining of this testimony. The witness who just left the stand testified this witness was present at this interrogation. We would like to bring out what part he played in this chain of events.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 59 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPTAIN VANCE: We ask permission to read Prosecution Exhibit 59.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Is it agreeable if I dispense with the reading of the formalities contained on the first sheet?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 59, followed by a translation of the same into the German language by the court interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, the witness Johann Wagner, who just testified through Prosecution Exhibit 59, was shown a document marked Exhibit A, which he identified as being a list made by the Burgomeister Capelle as to articles taken from this flyer. This document has now been marked Prosecution Exhibit 60 for identification, and a translation into the English language has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 60-A for identification. We offer both of these documents into evidence and ask that they be accepted and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, sir.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits 60 and 60-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 60 and 60-A were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 60 and 60-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 60-A, statement of Burgomeister Capelle, followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 60 by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: The prosecution calls as its next witness Fritz Feix.

FRITZ FELIX, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q State your full name.

A Fritz Felix. F-e-l-x.

Q What is your present address?

A Eppstein-Taunus.

Q What is your present occupation?

A Administration employee.

Q How old are you?

A Forty-nine years.

Q Where were you living in the year 1944?

A In Eppstein-Taunus.

Q And what was your business at that time?

A The same.

Q Do you know a man named Johann Wagner?

A Yes.

Q Who is he?

A He is the police helper of Langenhain.

Q Do you remember the occasion when Johann Wagner brought an American flyer into Eppstein?

A Yes.

Q When was that?

A End of December, 1944.

Q Where did Mr. Wagner bring the American flyer to?

A Into my office, and at that time the gendarme Goeppel happened to be there and he handed him over to this man.

(Felix - Direct)

Q How long was the flyer kept there?

A That was from the evening at 6 o'clock until the next morning about 8 o'clock.

Q What happened to the flyer the next morning at 8 o'clock?

A Goeppel took him in the car to Wiesbaden.

Q Have you seen the flyer since that time?

A No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No questions.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Call the witness Heinrich Sparwasser.

HEINRICH SPARWASSER, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q What is your name?

A Heinrich Sparwasser.

Q Where do you live?

A In Eppstein-Taunus.

Q How old are you?

A Fifty-five years.

Q Where were you living in the year 1944?

A In Eppstein-Taunus.

Q Where did you work at that time?

A In the tinfoil factory.

Q Did the tinfoil factory have an automobile?

A Yes.

Q Who was the driver?

A Until the war started in 1939 we had a chauffeur. After that I drove the car.

Q Did you know the official Goeppel in Eppstein?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever have occasion to drive Mr. Goeppel from Eppstein to Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q When was that?

A It was in December 1944.

Q Who else made the trip beside you and Mr. Goeppel?

A An American soldier.

Q Do you know the approximate time you left Eppstein?

A It was in the forenoon shortly after 9 o'clock.

Q About what time did you arrive in Wiesbaden?

A It may have been about 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

Q Was this American soldier armed?

A No.

Q Was Mr. Goeppel armed?

A I did not pay attention whether or not he carried a pistol, but it is to be taken for granted.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that the last part be stricken from the record--the part that says "it is to be taken for granted".

(Sparwasser - Direct)

CAPTAIN VANCE: We will agree to that.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Were you carrying any pistol or any weapon?

A No.

Q During this trip from Eppstein to Wiesbaden did the soldier try to escape?

A No.

Q When you arrived in Wiesbaden where did you go with the soldier?

A First we stopped twice in the Wilhelmstrasse in Wiesbaden. Goeppel did not know where to deliver this soldier, so he asked a policeman. The first policeman could not give him exact information, so we drove to the second policeman and stopped and asked him. When Goeppel came back he said, "We have to go into the Frankfurterstrasse and then left into Paulinen Street.

Q Did you go into Paulinenstrasse?

A Yes.

Q Did you stop the car in Paulinenstrasse?

A Yes.

Q Did anyone get out of the automobile?

A Yes. We drove a ways into Paulinen Street, and then Goeppel got out of the car without the soldier.

Q Where did Goeppel go?

A Goeppel went back into the direction from which I had come, and returned only after a time of about 10-15 minutes.

(Sparwasser - Direct)

Q What was the number of the building on Paulinenstrasse near where you stopped?

A I did not pay any attention to that. I did not get out of the car.

Q Do you know if No. 9 Paulinenstrasse is in that block where you stopped?

A No.

Q When Mr. Goeppel left the car who guarded the flyer?

A There was nobody else there beside me.

Q Did the flyer try to get away from you?

A No.

Q How long was Mr. Goeppel gone until he returned?

A Approximately 10 to 15 minutes.

Q What did he say when he came back?

A When he came back he got the soldier.

Q Did he say anything?

A No.

Q Did he take the soldier from the car?

A He opened the door and the soldier came out.

Q Do you know where he took the soldier?

A He went back the same way again.

Q How long was Mr. Goeppel gone on this occasion?

A It may have been 15 to 20 minutes.

Q Then did he come back to the car?

A Then he came back alone.

Q Have you seen that American soldier since that time?

A No.

Q You are sure that you left him somewhere on Paulinenstrasse; is that correct?

A He remained in Paulinenstrasse, because Goeppel couldn't go in that short time anyplace else, in my opinion.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No questions.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request this witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for 30 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1500 hours the court recessed until 1530 hours.)

(Whereupon court reconvened at 1340 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Mr. Rachael, who is absent on business of the defense, all of the accused, the court reporter and interpreter are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, with the knowledge of the prosecution I would like to ask the court now when it adjourns tonight that it adjourn until Monday morning, which means cancelling a half day of business. The reason is the fact that we have been progressing so fast with this case, much faster than either the prosecution or the defense anticipated, that the defense just cannot keep up with its preparation and could use that extra day with Saturday to do some work with its witness and with the accused. I think that the prosecution has no objection.

PROSECUTION: No objection by the prosecution.

PRESIDENT: The request that the court be adjourned this evening until Monday morning is approved. Inasmuch as the court members and members of the prosecution and defense are ordered to the hospital for a physical examination tomorrow afternoon, only one-half day will be lost.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, it is stipulated between the prosecution, the defense and the accused that if the witness Captain Donald C. Smith were present in court he would testify as follows: That a witness by the name of Liesselotte Pfiel has been requested by the prosecution. That this witness at the present time resides somewhere unknown in the British Zone. That approximately six weeks ago a request was made from the British authorities that they locate this woman and approve her removal from the British Zone to Dachau to testify in this case. In addition, he would testify that an American team has gone to her last known address in the American Zone and that this lady has moved and they could not locate her. That the British authorities have been unable to locate her at this time. He would testify that they are still continuing and will continue until the end of this trial to try to locate this woman but that she is not available at the present time.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We will so agree.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is acceptable.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Will you mark this document Prosecution Exhibit Number 61, please?

(Whereupon the document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit No. P-61 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, at this time prosecution offers in evidence a statement made under oath by the witness Lieselotte Pfiel, which was made at Mulheim, Germany on the 21st day of January 1946, and sworn to before Captain Edward V. Lee, investigating officer. This statement has previously been marked Prosecution Exhibit Number 61 for identification. We ask that it be received in evidence and be made a part of this record. I am not offering this document in full. There are certain portions of this document which talk about matters that are not relevant to the case being tried. I am offering that portion which is not bordered by a red mark on the lefthand margin of the document. That part is not offered in evidence.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We have agreed that if the document is received in evidence that the parts to marked out should be excluded.

I am not objecting to the receipt of this exhibit because the defense realizes it is absolutely futile to do so in view of the stipulation. However, may it please the court, this particular document brings to a head a problem which may become increasingly acute for the defense.

We have had cases of witnesses who were ill, one, at least, and one in the custody of the French police, and here is one in the British Zone, who cannot be found. This frankly hurts, and for that reason we are just as anxious as the prosecution can be to get a hold of this witness so that we might cross examine her. It is possible that she may be apprehended or found at a time too late to have her brought into court for this trial. My thought was this: If in this case or in any similar cases a witness whose statement has been introduced because a witness could not be produced, I could arrange for a member of the defense staff to go up there with the attendance of a member of the prosecution staff and we might cross examine by deposition in the presence of the accused.

I am presenting this problem to the court so that if such a situation will arise the court will okay such an arrangement. I am going to try to do that.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, we have no objection to what defense counsel has to say. We have used every effort to obtain this witness because she is important. At this time I would like leave of the court if this woman can be produced at any time before the end of this trial, to be permitted to place her on the stand.

PRESIDENT: I have no objection.

PRESIDENT: Both the requests made by the defense and the prosecution are acceptable to the court.

Only that part of the exhibit directly pertaining to this case is admitted in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit No.61 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit P-61, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission of the court to read this document.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May I skip the formalities of the first page?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We agree.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit No. P-61, followed by a reading of the German translation by the interpreter in the German language.)

CAPT. VANCE: Call the witness Julia Eisenmann.

JULIA EISENMANN, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

Q Will you please state to your name?

A Julia Eisenmann.

Q Where do you live?

A In Pallau.

Q What is your occupation?

A Housewife.

Q How old are you?

A Forty seven.

Q Are you the wife of Eugene Michael Eisenmann?

A Yes.

Q Were you living with your husband in the year 1944?

A Yes.

Q What was his business in 1944?

A He was a sergeant of the gendarmes.

Q In what place?

A In Pallau.

Q I call your attention to October 1944 and will ask you if you had occasion to have some visitors to call at your house one night hunting for your husband?

A Yes.

Q Who came to your house?

A The men from the Gestapo.

Q Do you know their names?

A No, I do not know their names.

Q You say two men from the Gestapo - did they tell you that?

A Yes.

Q Did they say from which Gestapo they came?

A From Wiesbaden.

Q Do you remember the approximate date these men came to your house?

A No. I only know that it was in October.

Q Do you remember about what time of day or night these men came?

A In the evening between seven and seven thirty.

Q Tell the Court as best you can remember what the two Gestapo men said and what you said when they came to your house?

A They--

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think, may it please the Court, that these two men should be identified with the accused before an alleged conversation with two Gestapo is brought into this case.

CAPT. VANCE: I will withdrew the question.

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q If you were to see either of these two Gestapo men who came to your house on that night again, would you recognize them?

A Approximately. I don't know so well because I saw them only for a short while.

Q Will you look around the courtroom and see if you can identify anyone as having come to your house on that night?

A I believe this man (indicating).

Q What number is he wearing?

A Number four.

CAPT. VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Fuehr wearing placard number 4.

QUESTIONS BY CAPT. VANCE:

Q Do you recognize the other man that came to your house that night?

A No, I do not see him.

Q Will you relate the conversation which you said took place, what you said and what the Gestapo said that night in October when they came to your house?

A Two men came into our house and they asked if a policeman was living here and thereupon I said, "Yes". They asked me for my husband and I told them that my husband was on a duty trip. They asked me where he had gone to and I told them that he had gone to Breckenheim. They asked me then whether they can make a call and I said, "Yes" and they went ahead and made a call to the mayor in Breckenheim. They couldn't reach my husband there and one of them then said, "We absolutely have to get ahold of your husband because the matter has to be finished tonight". Then they left.

Q After these two men left did they return to your house anytime that night?

A No. On that day not.

Q Did your husband return home that night?

A No. He came back at one o'clock at night.

Q Do you mean one o'clock the following morning?

A Yes.

Q Did you tell your husband that these two Gestapo men had been hunting him?

A Yes. When he came home I told him so and he said, "I know already".

Q Did your husband tell you what the two Gestapo men wanted?

A Yes. I asked him but he told me that's none of my affair, I should tend to my kitchen.

Q I will ask you whether or not at a later date you had occasion to see these two Gestapo men again?

A Yes. Again in the month of December of the year 1944 they came to us again.

Q Was it the same two men?

A Yes, the same came again.

Q About what time of day or night did they come to your home?

A They came between 7:30 and 8:00 o'clock.

Q Tell the Court what happened when those two men came to your house that night in December?

A They knocked on the door and my husband said, "Come in" and they opened the door and stepped inside and then my husband said, "Oh, you are here again already". There was an air alert. They came in and remained approximately one half hour with us. Mr. Sandmann and Mr. Fuhrmann, Auxiliary Gendarmes were also with us. I left the room and took the children to bed and later I went into the room again.

Q The conversation that you have related which transpired between your husband and the two Gestapo men -- did you hear any more of that conversation?

A No I didn't hear.

Q About how long did these two Gestapo men stay in your house?

A I said already about one half hour to three quarters of an hour.

Q At the end of that time did the two Gestapo men leave your house?

A Yes. They went away alone.

Q At any time that night did your husband leave the house?

A Ten minutes later my husband together with the other two, left the house also.

Q About how long was your husband gone from the time he left until he returned that night?

A He returned during the night about 3:30 in the morning, he returned to the house.

Q Did he tell you where he had been and what he had been doing?

A No. He did not tell me anything and I did not ask any questions.

Q You have mentioned a man by the name of Sendmann, who is Mr. Sendmann?

A He is also here.

Q That was his job?

A He was also with the police, with the gendarmes.

Q You mentioned a Mr. Fuhrmann, who is he?

A He was also a gendarme but he is dead now.

CAPT. VANCE: I have no further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Are you certain that the two men who came back in December were the same two men who were there in October?

A Yes. My husband said, "You are coming back again, already?"

Q I am not asking you what your husband said, I am asking you of your own knowledge are you personally, yourself sure that the two men who came in December were the same men who were there in October?

A Yes. They were the same.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have nothing further.

CAPT. VANCE: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPT. VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will adjourn until 0900 hours tomorrow morning.

(Thereupon at 1645 hours the Court adjourned.)

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

CAPTAIN VARGA: Call the witness Major Eisenmann.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, before the witness is sworn, I should like to call the court's attention to exhibits 43 and 43 A with respect to a matter I called to the attention of the prosecution last Saturday. 43 is a signed statement by the accused, Otto Bosmann, No. 3, and 43 A is an English translation thereof. The original Item 4 in the handwriting of the accused says he was the man with the Zollgrenzschutz, olizei. The English omits the word "custom". It is a matter of vital importance to us because the Nuernberg decision excludes from the criminal organization the custom border police and includes the border police. The custom border police, as I understand it, were interested solely in customs were really an agency of the Finance Department, and the Border Police were something entirely different and I request the change be made on Exhibit 43 A so that the translation will conform to the original German. I do not know whether this 43 A could be written upon, but if it could, I would request the word "custom" be inserted on the exhibit before the words "Border Police".

PROSECUTION: The defense is correct in its contention. We agree on the correction.

T Sa 1-2.-47

PRESIDENT: The record will be so corrected. The exhibit will also be corrected.

MICHAEL EUGEN EISENMANN, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Will you please state your full name?

A Michael Eugen Eisenmann.

Q What is your present address?

A Mallau-Taunus.

Q What is your present occupation?

A I am working on the clearance work in Wiesbaden.

Q How old are you?

A 50 years.

Q Mr. Eisenmann, where were you living in the year 1944?

A I lived in Mallau in 1944.

Q And in the year 1944 what was your occupation?

A I was an official in the gendarmerie in 1944.

Q Mr. Eisenmann, are you the husband of the witness, Julie Eisenmann, who testified before this court on last Thursday?

A Since November I am divorced.

Q Well, in October 1944 were you married and living with your wife at that time?

A Yes.

Q Mr. Eisenmann, I direct your attention to about the 19th of October 1944 and ask you if you recall any incident to your house burning for you about that time?

A Yes.

(Eisenmann-direct)

Q ...n the night they called at your home were you at home?

A No.

Q Did you see these men at any time on that night?

A These men met me while I was on the duty way between Wallau and Breckerhelm.

Q What was your mode of transportation at that time?

A We had a regular duty trip. The Gendarme Kleinhans and I, we went on a bicycle.

Q Where did you meet these men you are talking about?

A A car came along from the direction of Wallau and this car had headlights on. There was a clear alert and there had already been an attack on Mainz. This car was travelling at that fact. Apparently they recognized me in the lights of the headlights because I wore a uniform. The vehicle came close, stopped, and somebody called to me, "Mr. Eisermann" or something like that. I stepped close and it was said to me, "We have to talk to you urgently."

Q Now, when the car stopped, did you talk to anyone in the car?

A Yes, a man talked out of the car.

Q Did you see that man?

A I saw him but I did not recognize him because it was dark.

Q Could you see him at all?

A Yes, when I stood close to the car I saw somebody talked out of the car.

Q If you were to see that man at this time, would you be able to recognize him?

A I don't believe that I could recognize him now.

Ta 5A 1-20-47
pln 29

How many shots were in this burst?

A Well, when they have a rifle out under the bridge, as far as I remember I saw only two.

Tell the conversation that took place between you and the two men.

[illegible] I object, [illegible] conversation with two unidentified men -- [illegible]

[illegible] which if it looks like sound, will connect it up. I expect to show these people said, 'We have been [illegible] looking for you and your wife telling us would meet you on this road', and that will connect the [illegible] being the ones that were there previously.

[illegible] Objection overruled.

By [illegible] I followed the car under the bridge, the car had driven under the bridge because there was [illegible] anti-aircraft artillery. A little official, a little man said, 'We are from the State Police'. He told us that they had had a transport from Wiesbaden to Hessencael. They told us that they had had a conflict at the underpass, that is on the street from Wiesbaden, that is, mountain of the street from Wiesbaden to Frankfurt.

[illegible] that not a monument instead of a mountain.

[illegible] A stone, a stone monument.

[illegible] and the prisoner had escaped and we had made use of our weapon and he was killed.

[illegible]

Q Did they want you to do about it?

A The Western man gave the order to arrange with the mayor that the body was to be brought in and buried and I told these officials, 'You have to show me where it is, else I cannot find it.'

Q Did they show you where the body was?

(Direct-cross)

A Yes, when the danger from the air had somewhat diminished, I told them to drive back to Mallau and wait at my house and I would come after them. To split the work I told the Wendsmo Kleinhans to go to the mayor and tell him of the order by these men and that I rode in that automobile to the spot where the body was lying and there were two men in the car.

Q Now, you have been talking about the Gestapo men. How did you know they were Gestapo men?

A They told me they are Gestapo men.

Q Did they tell you where they had come from?

A Yes.

Q From where?

A From Wiesbaden.

Q What disposition was made of the body?

A After they had shown where the body was, I rode back with them to the inn, Wandersmann, and here I waited for a vehicle on which the dead could be transported away.

Q Was the body buried?

A It was taken away and buried in the cemetery of Mallau.

Q Now, I want to direct your attention to about the 30th of December 1944 and ask you if you saw these two men again about that time?

A It was in December, I could not state the date exactly but it must have been in the beginning or middle of December. I was sitting at home one evening and with me was another gendarme. Somebody knocked on the door, I heard that somebody came. After I said, "Come in", the door opened and two men came in. I immediately recognized these two men again as the two from October.

Q What was the occasion of these men visiting your house?

(Biermann-direct)

A When they came in I said, "Well you are coming again, what are you bringing at such a late hour?" The official told me again "One got away from us on the transport, we need our weapon and the man is dead." I asked the official, "where did that take place?" He gave me an exact description. He told me that where the stone monument is on the Sandersmann, across there is a sign "detour" and that's where the dead is lying. The official ordered me to get in contact with the mayor and see to it that the body was brought in and immediately buried and that I was to make a report the next morning about the incident.

Q Did you go to where this body was supposed to be?

A After the officials came away I got the other gendarme by the name of Seemann and together we went to the competent mayor, that is, the mayor of Dalkenheim, and we brought the order of the Gestapo to the mayor.

Q Did you go where the dead body was?

A Yes, we searched with the flashlight and found him.

Q Was it an American soldier?

A I could not ascertain because it was dark.

Q Was the body wearing a uniform?

A He had something like a uniform?

Q He had something like a uniform on, something like a combination.

Q Was this second body that you found in December, was it buried?

A It was taken to the cemetery in Dalkenheim and there buried.

Q Who did you say was at your house in December when the two men came, I have forgotten?

A The Gendarme Fuhrmann was there and my wife and afterward I had the Gendarme Seemann called.

(Siemann-direct)

Q Where is Mr. Fuhrmann now?

A Mr. Fuhrmann was killed in combat during the night of 8th to 9th of May on the date Armistice took place with Russia.

Q Now, Mr. Eisenmann, you have testified that you were with two Gestapo men in October and with the same two Gestapo men in December. I want you to look around the courtroom and see if you can recognize either of these two men you have been talking about. You can get out of your chair if you want to.

A Here, No. 4.

Q Do you recognize the other man?

A The man is not in my memory.

CAPTAIN VANCE: It it please the court, let the record show that the witness identified the accused, Fuehr, wearing placard No. 4. No further questions by the prosecution.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You told the court, in answer, to questions by the prosecution, that you had no recollection of what the two men looked like when first they called at your house in October, is that correct?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object. He did not testify he saw the men in October, his wife saw them and he was not at home. I think the question is misleading.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am sorry, I did not mean it to be.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You testified you could not recognize the two men you met on the road or talked with on the night of October 19th, is that correct?

A But then I recognized the man because I was sitting next to him in the car. I thought, that is the man I sat next to, he was a chauffeur.

Q How does it happen you could not identify him the first time?

A Because it was dark.

Q I means my my question to ask how does it happen that when you were asked by the prosecution if you could identify the man you saw on the night of October 19th, you said, no.

A But because he sat next to me I recognized him.

Q Were you riding in the front seat?

A Next to the chauffeur, directly next to him?

Q Where did the second man ride?

A He sat in the back.

Q What seat do you mean?

A In the rear.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have n thing further.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request the witness be excused.

THE PRESIDENT: Witness will be excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

JAKOB KLEINHANS, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Will you state your name?

A Jakob Kleinhans.

(Kleinhans-direct)

Q What is your address?

A Frankfurt-Main, Heddenheim.

What is your present occupation?

A Stationery dealer.

How old are you?

A 47 years.

Q Where were you living in the year 1944?

A In Mallau-Taunus.

Q In 1944 what was your business?

A I was auxiliary policeman.

Do you know the policeman, Mr. Biermann?

A He was my superior.

Q You were working for him in October 1944?

A Yes.

Q I will ask you if you were with Mr. Biermann on the night that he met two men from Wiesbaden during an air raid?

A Yes.

Where did you meet these two men?

A On the road from Breckenheim to Mallau.

Q Tell what transpired between Mr. Biermann and these two men.

A On this day in question we rode from Nordenstadt to Breckenheim. We were on blackout patrol. There was a air alert and we hurried to get to our place of duty. We had taken shelter on the way and as we were on the street from Breckenheim to Mallau we encountered a car coming in the opposite direction. We were on bicycles and the car passed us and a man in the car opened the door and shouted, "Biermann". Biermann turned around and rode to the car. I drove slowly on to Mallau but the anti-aircraft artillery started to shoot again and I went back and there I found the car, Eisenmann and two men under the overpass. Because the anti-aircraft was shooting, I went up and watched the defense against air attack while Eisenmann was talking to these two men.

Q Did you see the two men that Eisenmann was talking with?

A Yes, I saw them from a distance of five meters and it was already dark.

Q Would you be able to recognize these two men if you were to see them today?

A I don't think so. I only saw the difference in height, one tall and one small man.

Q Did you hear the conversation that Mr. Eisenmann had with these two men?

A No.

Q After Mr. Eisenmann finished his conversation with the two men, what did you do and what did Mr. Eisenmann do?

A After the two men left, Eisenmann came up to me and he said the following words, "Those are two Gestapo men and I am supposed to remove their dirt."

end ta 54
Butler fols

Q What else did he say?

A He said that these two Gestapo men had had a transport and on this transport an American soldier was shot who was supposed to be lying on the Wandersmann, and he should have him taken away and buried.

Q Did you obtain a cart or a wagon to transport the dead body in?

A Yes, on order of Kleinmann.

Q And did you go where the dead body was?

A With the vehicle at 12 o'clock at night.

Q Did you see the body?

A Yes.

Q What did you do with the body?

A I only rode along. The body was already lying on the vehicle when I got there.

Q Well, what was done with the body?

A It was taken to the cemetery in Wallau and there buried.

Q Were there any weapons on this dead body?

A No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No questions.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: The Prosecution calls as its next witness Georg Eckard.

GEORG ECKARD, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Will you please state your name?

A Georg Eckard.

Q Your address?

A Nieder-Saulheim.

Q What is your occupation?

A Barber.

Q How old are you?

A 34 years.

Q What was your occupation in October, 1944?

A I was a medical non-commissioned officer in the Engineer Replacement and Training Battalion 33.

Q Where were you stationed in October, 1944?

A In Wallau.

Q I call your attention to about the 19th of October, 1944, and ask you if you assisted in the burial of an American soldier at that time?

A Yes.

Q Who instructed you to bury this soldier?

A My former chief, Captain Doctor Koerber.

Q Did he tell you where to go get the body?

A No, he didn't say that.

Q Well, how did you know where to go get the body?

A I was told I should wait--that the police sergeant would take me along.

Q Did the policeman take you along?

A Yes, the auxiliary policeman Keinhans.

Q Where did you go?

A As we came out of the house there was an engineer's vehicle--a horse-drawn vehicle--there, and we rode to the place of the accident.

Q What did you find there?

A We found on the Frankfurter Strasse about one to one and a half kilometers distant from Wallau, approximately five meters off the road, a dead American flier soldier.

Q Was Mr. Eisenmann with you on this occasion?

A Yes, while we were on the way to the place of the accident, Mr. Eisenmann joined us on the vehicle.

Q What disposition was made of this American soldier's body?

A We lifted the body on the vehicle and buried it down in the cemetery in Wallau.

Q About what time did you bury this body?

A Approximately 12 or 12:30 at night.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions. Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like permission to ask one more question, if I might, may it please the Court.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Do you know whether or not at a later date this body was removed from the Wallau cemetery by the American authorities?

WITNESS: That is not known to me.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: The Prosecution calls as its next witness Heinrich Sandmann.

HEINRICH SANDMANN, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpeter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q State your name.

A Heinrich Sandmann.

Your address.

A Wallau-Taunus.

Q What is your occupation?

A Mason.

Q How old are you?

A 46 years.

Q What was your occupation on 30 December 1944?

A At that time I was with the air protection.

Q Do you know a man named Eugen Eisenmann?

A Yes.

Q Did you work for him or under him?

A I worked under him as a gendarme, beginning first of December, 1944.

Q Now, Mr. Sandmann, I direct your attention to 30 December 1944 and ask you if you received any instructions from Mr. Eisenmann on that date in regards to the burial of an American flier?

A Yes.

Q What did he tell you?

A We will now drive to Dalkenheim to bury an American soldier.

Q What did you do then?

A We rode to Dalkenheim, and there Eisenmann informed the mayor.

Q Now on that occasion did you see any man with Mr. Eisenmann?

A Yes, at Wallau in the apartment of Eisenmann.

Q Do you know where these men had come from?

A From Wiesbaden.

Q Do you know where these two men worked or were employed?

A They were employedwith the Gestapo--that is what they said.

Q Did you hear a conversation that took place between these two men and Mr. Eisenmann?

A No, I didn't hear the conversation--I hadn't been there yet.

Q Now, if you were to see these two men at this time, would you be able to recognize them?

A Yes.

Q If they are present in court, will you point them out to the Court?

A Here.

CAPTAIN VANCE: What's the answer?

INTERPRETER: "Here, the number 4."

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Fuehr, wearing placard number 4.

(Sandmann-Direct)

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Are you able to recognize the second man that you saw at Eisenmann's house on that occasion?

A The second man did not face men when he sat, and I only saw him for about 10 minutes.

Q Who left Mr. Eisenmann's house first--you or the two Gestapo men?

A I left first, and the Gestapo man followed.

Q Where did you go?

A We, that is, Eisenmann and I, rode on our bicycles to Delkenheim.

Q What did you do in Delkenheim?

A Eisenmann went to the mayor in Delkenheim and reported the incident. Of course, what he said I don't know, because I was not present.

Q All right, after you left the mayor's house, where did you go?

We left the village, and he ordered a driver, and we went to get the dead.

Q Did you go get the dead body that night?

A Yes.

Q Where was that body buried?

A In the cemetery of Delkenheim.

Q Now, Mr. Sandmann, do you know whether or not that body is still in the Delkenheim cemetery or was it been removed to some other cemetery?

A The body was exhumed in December, 1945, or January, 1946.

(Sandmann-Direct)

Q Was that by the American authorities?

A Yes.

Q Now there was a body buried in Wallau cemetery on 19 October 1944. Do you know whether or not that body was removed?

A Yes, at the same time the body from Wallau was removed.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No questions by the Defense.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 62 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 62 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, it is stipulated by and between the Prosecution, Defense and the Accused that if the witness Captain Smith who has testified previously in regard to obtaining witnesses were present in Court that he would testify that Major Max Berg was an officer in the Medical Corps serving with the Army here in Europe, but at this time he has returned to America and has been discharged from the Army. For that reason he is not in Court. Is that stipulated and agreed to?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We will accept that statement.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is accepted by the Court.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, I hold a document which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 62 for identification, which is a pathologist's report prepared by Major Max C. Berg; and we offer this report in evidence and ask that it be accepted and made a part of this record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the Defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 62 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution's Exhibit 62 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit 62, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission of the Court to read Prosecution's Exhibit 62.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution's Exhibit 62, the pathologist's report, followed by a translation into the German language by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 63 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 63 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, the Prosecution offers the second pathologist's report, which was made by the same officer, Major Max Berg, which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 63 for identification, and we ask that this evidence be accepted by the Court and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections by the Defense?

[illegible] Counsel: The one point, if it please the Court, to which I have been unable to find anything in here that ties this up is the pathologist's report on the soldier who reportedly killed around 19 October. That is the objection I have, and only such objection. The only thing I find in the reference to the cemetery Pelkenheim--there has been a mistake about that.

CAPTAIN [illegible]: This shows the date that an American soldier was buried and where he was buried and what he says connects with that this last witness has testified to--the place and date of burial.

[illegible]: Objection overruled. Prosecution's Exhibit 63 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

Counsel for Defense: May it please the Court, if it meets with the approval of the Defense Counsel, much of this report is the same as the other report--about the qualifications of this medical officer--and I would like to dispense with the reading of the exhibit except as to what his findings were.

[illegible]: So agreed.

[illegible]: The reading of the exhibit will be dispensed with, with the exception noted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read that portion of prosecution's exhibit 63 as noted, followed by a translation by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 64 and 64A for identification.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, I have a document here which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 64 for identification, and its translation into the English language as Prosecution's Exhibit 64A for identification. This is a statement written in the handwriting of the accused Arthur Fuehr, at Wiesbaden, Germany, on 4 February 1946. I offer this document into evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit 64, and Prosecution's Exhibit 64-A, which is the English translation of this document.

MAJOR SAXON: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibits 64 and 64A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 64 and 64A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 64 and 64A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the Court, Number 10 here feels ill and would like to leave the court room.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the accused Goehrendt was excused and left the Court room.)

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution's Exhibit 64A, the English translation of the statement of the accused Arthur Fuehr, followed by the reading of Prosecution's Exhibit 64 by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, let the record show that the accused Goehrendt, Number 10, has returned to the Court room. I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibits 65 and 65A for identification.

CAPTAIN VANCE: The Prosecution now offers an additional statement written in the handwriting of the accused Arthur Fuehr, 4 February 1946, which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 65 for identification, and a document marked Prosecution's Exhibit 65A for identification, which is the English translation, and ask that both these documents be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibits 65 and 65A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 65 and 65A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 65 and 65A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess until one o'clock.

(Whereupon at 1040 hours the Court recessed.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1320 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent on business of the defense, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, at this time I read Prosecution Exhibit 65-A.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 65-A, the English translation of the statement of Arthur Fuehr, followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 65, the statement of Arthur Fuehr, by the interpreter.)

Ta 57-ps-80-1/20-1

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter two documents, and request that they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 66 and 66-A for identification.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, prosecution offers an undated statement, written in the handwriting of the accused Wilhelm Koehler, which was made by this accused. This document has been identified as Prosecution Exhibit 66. We ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record, and also an English translation, which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 66-A for identification.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits 66 and 66-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 66 and 66-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 66 and 66-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 66-A, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 66 by the court interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, that is all the testimony the prosecution will introduce at this time as to Charges IV and V.

COLONEL DWINELL: May it please the court, the prosecution will offer further proof in connection with Charge I. We will call a witness who was sick last week. We had intended to call her at that time. Mr. Friske will conduct the direct examination.

MARTHA GELBRECH, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. FRISKE:

Q What is your name?

A Martha Gelbrech.

Q Where do you live?

A Gross-Umstadt, in Hesse.

Q Were you employed by the police from 1938 to 1945, and, if so, in what capacity?

A Yes. From 1938 until 1935 I was employed by the Gestapo at Darmstadt.

Q During that period of time who was your immediate superior?

A From 1938 until 1939, police counselor Schwinn, and then following, in 1940, government counselor Herbst, and following, government counselor Fenst, and further following them, government counselor Dr. Schamer-Fiefrada, and following him government counselor Kohr, and since June 1944, government counselor Girke.

(Gelbrech - Direct)

Q What were your official duties in these offices?

A I was stenographer-typist and did general office work.

Q You have mentioned the name of Girke. What was Girke's first name?

A Fritz.

Q Would you recognize Girke if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q Will you take a look at the prisoners in the dock and see if he is among them?

A Number 19.

Q You also say that your superior was Girke from 1944 until March of 1945?

A Yes.

Q What office did Girke hold in the police at that time?

A He was in charge of the office.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, I ask the court to caution the prosecutor's assistant not to lead the witness so much. When he asked her to look at the prisoners and see if she could find him, I kept quiet, but when he asks her "What was his official police duty?" I think it is going too far.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, I instructed the assistant to do that. During the whole two and a half months of the Malmedy trial it was conducted that way. That was the method that was used with the approval of the court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The question was: "What position did he occupy with the police?" There is no testimony from the witness that he was with the police. I think that is very definitely a leading question, and as I commented to the court, when he asked the witness to look at the accused to see if she could pick him out among the prisoners, I did not object, though I think that is definitely wrong too. But I thought the second question was going too far.

MR. FRISKE: May it please the court, I think there has been reference to the fact that she was a stenographer-typist in this police department.

PRESIDENT: Proceed with your questions.

LAW MEMBER: Did you put that in the form of an objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, sir. I just asked the court to instruct him not to do so much leading with his questions.

MR. FRISKE: Will you read the last question and answer, please?

(Whereupon the reporter read the last question and answer as follows:

"Q What office did Girke hold in the police at that time?

"A He was in charge of the office.")

QUESTIONS BY MR. FRISKE:

Q. Did he have an assistant during that time?

A Yes.

Q Who was that?

A Criminal counselor Hellenbroich.

Q What was his first name?

A Heinz.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

(Gelbrech - Direct)

Q Will you look around the courtroom and see if you can recognize that person?

A Number 20.

Q In connection with your duties as stenotypist-secretary, did you have access to any correspondence or orders that passed through Girke's hands?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. I think that is definitely a leading question, and strongly leading.

PRESIDENT: Will you read that question, please?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the reporter.)

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY MR. FRISKE:

Q In 1944, do you know of any secret decree or secret state matter in Girke's office in Darmstadt pertaining to shot-down fliers?

A During this time I once registered one secret state matter. It was marked regarding enemy parachute agents.

Q Did you actually register this decree yourself?

A Yes. I entered it in a special book.

Q What would you name this special book?

A Diary GRST--secret state matters.

Q Who gave you this book to write in?

A I always was in possession of this book.

Q Who gave you the order to register this document?

A The criminal counselor Hellenbroich.

Q Did you note on the secret order or decree who the sender was?

A As far as I can recall it came from the chief of security police at Berlin.

Q Who was the chief of the security police?

A Kaltenbrunner.

MR. FRISKE: You may cross examine.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you read the order to which you just referred as the one you yourself entered in the register?

A No.

Q Did you at any time learn the contents of that order?

A I heard about parachute agents, but I don't know whether this was the content of this order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

MR. FRISKE: Any questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

MR. FRISKE: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to ask again if that just means excused from being present in court at the present time. I ask because this particular witness is one of the witness on the defense list, too.

(Gelbrech - Excused)

PROSECUTION: Do you desire that she be kept here in the witness barracks?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think so, because the way the prosecution's case is going they are going to be finished pretty soon. I cannot speak for them, but that is my estimate.

PROSECUTION: We have no objection, but we would like to have the defense make some arrangement for hospitalization or treatment.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If she goes home and comes within that general agreement we made the other day, that the prosecution produce all their witnesses for us on 48 hours' notice, then under that arrangement I am willing that she go home, if that is what they intend to do here.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Any witness that the defense desires and is not here at Dachau, we will notify the apprehension section of the War Crimes Group at Augsburg and they will immediately send out and get the witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We had a definite arrangement, if I remember rightly--and in view of the fact that I was not allowed to cross examine them--that the prosecution would produce all their witnesses for us.

PROSECUTION: That is correct, but I am not going out and get them personally.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I take that for granted. I am sorry.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Prosecution Exhibit 67 was marked for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, at this time I will start introducing evidence primarily directed at Charges VI and X. These two charges will be tried at the same time because the accused are the same. I have quite a large chart here to set up before the court. I ask the court if it would take about a five-minute recess in place or in the chambers, whichever is convenient, so that I can set up this chart.

PRESIDENT: Recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, Mr. Rachael of defense counsel will conduct the defense with respect to these two charges.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, it has been stipulated by and between the prosecution, the defense and the accused that if Captain Smith, the witness who has been responsible for obtaining the witnesses, were present in court, he would testify that Mr. Elizabeth Gantner is sick at this time and not able to come to Dachau to court. Is that stipulation agreed to by the defense?

MR. RACHAEL: If it please the court, I would like to state at this time that I have in my possession a brief summary of what that witness would have testified to had she been present. Her testimony is not consistent with the facts as I know them.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, this document has not been offered. We are talking about a stipulation between Captain Smith and you.

MR. RACHAEL: I was coming to that, and for that reason I will not stipulate.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That stipulation was made by the defense counsel in good faith, and we will have to keep it.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I can produce in time a certificate from her doctor. I do not have it physically here in the courtroom, but if the defense calls on us we will produce it.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: What happened was that Major Eason agreed that that was how Captain Smith would so testify, and of course I feel bound by the arrangement he made.

MR. RACHAEL: I would like to make a statement for the record. I believe the prosecution is laying a foundation for the introduction of a statement by a witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: That is right.

MR. RACHAEL: It is my belief that I will be deprived of my right to cross examine that witness if the prosecution is permitted to introduce her statement into evidence over my objection. Therefore, I would like to advise the court and the record that it is my opinion that the testimony of this witness is not consistent with the facts, and that I will be deprived of my right to cross examine her by the introduction of such statement into evidence.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Of course, Mr. Rachael makes a good point, may it please the court, and in justice I must say it. We do not know as to what date Captain Smith would testify that she was sick. Perhaps she is recovered now. I do not know. And while I feel bound and will be bound by the stipulation, I feel obliged to bring that point to the attention of the court.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, it is not clear to me whether they have agreed to the stipulation or not. That is the only thing before the court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The stipulation was made by Major Saxon. The defense accepts the stipulation and subscribes to it. I thought I made that plain. If I have not, I state it categorically now, but at the same time, as long as the issue is raised, I think the court definitely ought to have it in mind, and that the prosecution, when it presents a certificate from a witness who is sick, ought to be prepared to say that she is ill as of the present time. The testimony might go back a week or ten days or perhaps longer. I don't know. I am not trying to renege on a thing.

PRESIDENT: Recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

CAPT. VANCE: If it please the Court, the Prosecution offers in evidence a sworn statement of Mrs. Anna Elisabeth Gantner, taken at Darmstadt, Germany on the 18th of April 1946. This has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 67 for identification. We offer this statement except those portions which are bordered on the lefthand margin in red, which portions of the statement are not material to the issues in this case. I would like to state that continued efforts are still being made to obtain this witness. If she should arrive here before the conclusion of this case we ask leave of the Court to withdraw the statement and place the witness on the stand. With that statement we ask the Court to accept this document in evidence and make it a part of the record.

MR. MACHALS: Defense objects to the statement on the ground that it contains evidence as to the character of certain of the accused which evidence has not been put in issue by the Defense as yet. Furthermore it contains evidence concerning matters extraneous to the issues in this case which might prejudice the Court and is therefore against the substantial rights of the accused to a fair and just trial.

CAPT. VANCE: I do not remember anything in the statement that touches the character of any of the accused. If so, the Court would be proper in excluding it after hearing what is in it upon the motion of the Defense.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 67 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPT. VANCE: Permission is requested to read Exhibit 67.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon the prosecution read prosecution exhibit 67, an extract of Anna Elisabeth Gantner, followed by a translation into the German language of prosecution exhibit 67 by the interpreter.)

PRESIDENT: Court will take a half hour recess.

(Thereupon at 1500 hours the court recessed until 1530 hours.)

* * * *

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost who is absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the interpreter and reporter, are present.

CAPTAIN WALSH: Call the witness, Mrs. Vater.

MR. MACHAN: Before the witness is called to the stand I would like to state the grounds for the objection I made will be found on page 15. At this time I move to strike from the record on the grounds stated on my original motion in objection to the statement.

CAPTAIN WALSH: I would like for counsel to point out where on page 15 he is talking about.

MR. MACHAN: The whole page.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Thereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order. Motion to strike is overruled.

A No.

(Peter-direct)

Q Do you know what happened to that American?

A No.

Q Do you know the name of that American?

A No.

CAPTAIN TAYLOR: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHMAN:

Q Do you know if he was an American?

A I thought so.

Q Do you think he might have been an Englishman?

A It might have been the way the interrogation was evaluated, because he had a white handkerchief and twenty English pounds with him.

Q Would that lead you to believe he was an Englishman?

A I was wondering because I thought if he were an American he should have dollars in his pocket.

Q How many Gestapo people were employed in that headquarters?

A Thirty to forty people.

Q Did they all wear uniforms?

A Five or six in civilian clothes.

Q And about how many would you say did wear uniforms?

A Thirty-five.

Q Would you say it could have been anybody of those thirty-five people whom you saw walk out with this flier?

A Yes.

Q You didn't search the flier yourself, did you?

A Me personally, no.

Q The prosecutor asked you when you saw the flier in the room, whether he was armed, and you said he was not armed, is that right?

A I said no, yes.

Q Did you search the flier?

A Yes. No.

Q How do you know he wasn't armed?

A He had nothing around his hip.

MR. RACHAEL: No further questions. If it please the court, Mr. Yan, the Korean defense counsel, would like to ask a question.

QUESTIONS BY MR. YAN:

Q If I remember right, you said that the prisoner was one eighty-two to one eighty-five tall, is that right?

A That's right.

Q How tall were the Koreans who escorted him?

A One sixty-five.

Q Both of them?

A One was smaller, one was taller.

Q How tall was the smaller one?

A One sixty-five.

Q And the taller one?

A One seventy.

Q Do you know whether Asaf was wearing a uniform that day?

A I don't know whether I saw Asaf on this day.

Q Wasn't he there every day?

A I can't say that. My office room was somewhere else.

QUESTIONS BY MR. ALBRIGHT:

Q You said you were approximately four minutes in the room, is that right?

A Yes.

(Cross-cross)

Q Furthermore, you said the interrogation of Hellenbroich took approximately a minute and a half, is that right?

A It was the period of time in which Hellenbroich asked a short question and the flier answered it.

Q Was Hellenbroich already in the room when you entered the room?

A Yes.

Q The other person you mentioned, too?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether the flier had been interrogated before?

A I don't know that.

Q When you entered the room the interrogation of the flier was just going on?

A Yes.

Q What was the flier being asked?

A I don't know that, it was done in English.

MR. RACHAEL: That is all.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mrs. Meier, the two men that you saw accompanying the American you have stated you could not recognize. Do you mean by that answer the two men were strangers to you or do you mean you were not in a position to observe their faces?

A I saw only their backs.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions. Questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness is excused.

A In Loch, too.

Q Is Loch near Bensheim, Germany?

A Yes.

Q Where were you employed in 1945?

A I was at the Gestapo office at Darmstadt which was at that time in Bensheim.

Q For what period of time did you work for the Gestapo in Bensheim?

A I have worked for the Gestapo office at Darmstadt from the 1st of July 1940 until the end.

Q Now, you speak of the Gestapo office at Darmstadt. Do you mean you were first at Darmstadt and later in Bensheim, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Was it the same office in Darmstadt that you had in Bensheim or were they two separate organizations?

A That was the same office only after we were bombed out at Darmstadt the office was taken to Bensheim.

Ta 6C 1-20-47

. When did the office move to Bensheim?

A September 1944.

. Do you know a man named Fritz Girke?

A Yes.

. Do you know what position or what occupation Fritz Girke followed in 1945?

A He was in charge of the Gestapo office Darmstadt and he was Major of the SS and Government Counselor.

. After the office moved to Bensheim, was he still the chief?

A Yes.

. If you were to see Fritz Girke today would you recognize him?

A Yes.

. If he is present here in the courtroom, will you point him out to the court?

A In the second row, the fourth last man, No. 19.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show the witness identifies the accused, Fritz Girke, wearing No. 19.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

. Do you know a man named Heinz Hellenbroich?

A Yes.

. Back in 1945 what was his business?

A He was the assistant to Mr. Girke. He was SS Major and Government Counselor, too. I was mistaken, he was Criminal Counselor, not Government Counselor.

. If you were to see Heinz Hellenbroich today would you be able to recognize him?

A Yes.

If you see him present in the courtroom, point him out.

A In the second row, the accused, No. 20.

A Yes.

Q What was his business in 1943?

A He was working in the department of Dr. Demler.

Q Who was Dr. Demler?

A He was Criminal Secretary.

Was that in the Gestapo in Bensheim?

A Yes.

If you were to see him today would you recognize him?

A Yes.

Q If Stattmann is present in court, will you point him out?

A In the second row, the second last gentleman.

Q What number is he wearing?

A No. 21.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show the witness identifies the accused, Karl Stattmann wearing No. 21.

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Do you know a man named Michael Haas?

A Yes.

Q Whom did he work for in 1943?

A I don't know that right now. I think Criminal First Secretary, Schmelzer.

Q What business or organization was he employed by?

A For the Gestapo, Darmstadt.

Q And was he with the Gestapo when it moved to Bensheim?

A Yes.

(Buedinger-direct)

Q If you were to see him today would you recognize him?

A Yes, the accused No. 22.

CAPTAIN WANCH: Let the record show the witness has identified Michael Graf, the accused wearing No. 22.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN WANCH:

Q What was the address of the headquarters of the Gestapo in Bensheim?

A Adolf Hitler Street. I don't know the number anymore.

Q Do you know a lady named Franziska Peter?

A Yes.

Q Did she work for the Gestapo during the time you did?

A Yes.

Q Do you know a woman, Katerina Seiler?

A Yes.

Q Did she work there?

A She was cleaning woman there.

Do you know a man, Marion Kaminski?

A Yes.

Q Who is Marion Kaminski?

A He is a Pole and at the time we were at Bensheim he worked around the house there.

Q Were you present for work at Gestapo Headquarters on the 15th of February 1945?

A Yes.

(Redirect-direct)

Q Did anything unusual take place on that day?

A Yes, an American was at the office.

Q Where did you see this American?

A I saw him in my office when I entered the room.

Q What was the American doing?

A Several other members of the office were there and he was supposed to be interrogated about his personal data and his unit.

Q Was he interrogated?

A Yes.

Q Who interrogated him?

A The leading man was Ciuirel Counselor, Hellenbroich.

Q Was Hellenbroich talking to the American in English or in German?

A German, and English as good as he could.

Q Do you know what they were talking about?

A Yes. I said before he was interrogated about his personal data -- whether he had any orders and from which unit, rather, to which unit he belonged.

Q Who was present during the interrogation besides Hellenbroich?

A Mr. Dengler, Stattman, Reisinger, Freudenberger who worked as an interpreter, and a few others which I can't mention by name anymore.

Q Now, when the interrogation was finished did Hellenbroich leave?

A Yes.

Q Do you know why he left or where he went to?

A I don't know that.

Q How long were you in the presence of the pilot?

A The entire time the flier was in the room, perhaps one hour or an hour and a half.

Q At any time during this interrogation, while you were in the presence of the American, was there a telephone call received in your office?

A Yes, a telephone call I came which called Mr. Raaf and Mr. Stattman upstairs.

Q About how long were Stattman and Raaf gone?

A Approximately fifteen minutes or a little bit longer, I don't know exactly.

Q Did Stattman and Raaf come back to where the American was?

A Yes, they came and right afterwards they took the flier out of the room.

Q During the hour or so time that you were with the American, did he at any time attempt to escape?

A No.

Q Did the American have any weapons?

A No, I didn't see any weapons.

Q When Stattman and Raaf came back and left with the American were they armed?

A Yes, they took their cap and their belt and on the belt, of course, there was a pistol.

Q Was Stattman and Raaf both wearing uniforms on that day?

A Yes.

Q Where did Stattman and Raaf take the American?

A I don't know that.

Q Have you ever seen that American since that time?

A No.

Q Where were the American and Stattman and Raaf the last time you saw them?

A When they left our office at the office building.

Q Did you see Stattman and Raaf anymore that day?

A Yes.

Q About how long after you saw them leave with the American?

A Approximately thirty minutes later or a little bit more.

(Questioning continued)

- at that time did they have the American with them?

A No.

- were they still armed with their pistols at this time?

A Yes, the pistol was part of their uniform.

Did you see either Stettbacher or Graf where they had taken the flier?

A Yes, I asked later on Mr. Stettbacher and he told me he had transferred him to the Reichsmarschall to the Army.

- I have no further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. RICHARDS:

You mentioned that a Dr. Gundermann was present at the interrogation, is that correct?

A Yes, as a fellow who had just finished High School he was called for this interrogation because they thought he could speak English better.

Q And you testified that both German and English were used in the interrogation?

A Yes, it was very difficult for them to understand each other.

Q And you testified that the interrogation lasted between an hour and an hour and a half?

A No.

How long did the interrogation last?

A I for instance only, don't interpret the room.

During the time that you were present, did Vollenbroich leave the room?

A Yes.

How long was he gone?

A Then as far as I can recall he didn't enter the room anymore.

(Proceedings continued)

Yes.

If I were to tell you that witnesses testified that there was [illegible] interruption, [illegible] by Hollenbrook of the prisoner and that while the [illegible] Hollenbrook left to see his boss and then returned, would that be the same interruption to which you are referring?

MR. [illegible]: I object, may it please the court, that is not proper cross examination.

THE COURT: Objection sustained.

BY MR. [illegible]:

How many times was this prisoner interrupted, if you know?

He was interrogated once, just a few minutes after I had entered the room.

How long were you on duty on that day?

A I came a little bit later to the office because my train was late, [illegible] I stayed until twelve o'clock, until the reporting records, and then, of course, the prisoner wasn't there anymore.

Is it possible that there might have been another person interrogated by the detectives that day?

A Yes, possibly but not in my presence.

But they did report to the office?

A [illegible] at one o'clock.

Is this the person who was being interrogated?

A No.

Do you understand Yiddish?

A Yes, the prisoner was asked about his personal data, his unit, whether he had an order, as I said before. The prisoner was very reticent.

Q You seem to have a good memory about what happened there, do you not? Do you remember anybody asking the prisoner what his name was?

A Very probably, I can't state definitely.

Q Your memory is still good. What was the name of the prisoner?

A I don't know that.

Q Do you remember whether or not they asked the prisoner what his serial number was?

A I can't recall that.

Q If your memory is still good, what was his serial number?

CAPTAIN WANCA: If it please the court, I object. He is arguing with the witness. She said she didn't know.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Did you notice whether Stathaar and Raaf carried machine pistols?

A I can't recall that.

Q You say the pistols they carried were part of their uniforms, is that right?

A Yes, the little pistol was hanging on the belt.

Q Do you think you might mistake a machine pistol for a little pistol that might be hanging on the belt?

A No.

MR. RACHAEL: No further questions. If the court please, Dr. Ruerger would like to interrogate.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RUERGER:

Q Where was the office of Raaf?

A In the second next office.

Q Was Gaaf present in your room during the interrogation?

A I don't know.

Q When the telephone call came in was Gaaf in your room or did he have to be called from his office?

A He was not in my room and I assume that Stattman took him along in his way.

Q Do you still remember who made the telephone call?

A No, I don't know that.

Q If I remember right, you said before that Gaaf and Stattman after a short while, approximately fifteen minutes, returned to your office, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Did these two men say anything about an order they had received?

A No, they only got dressed, took their caps and belts and left the room.

Q Can you still remember the American prisoner?

A Very badly, only that he was a very tall, still young man.

Q How tall did you estimate him?

A I can't do it, perhaps one eighty or one ninety.

DR. [illegible]: Thank you.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY MR. AMEDMAN:

Q This morning when you came to the office building, did you enter your office for the first time this day?

A Yes.

Q If I understood you right, you said before the American was in your room already?

A Yes.

Q The other men you mentioned before, Hellenbroich, Stattman, Essinger, Freudenberger, were they in your room already?

A Yes.

Ts 60 1- 6-47

Q You said under cross examination that the interrogation in your presence took about five minutes, is that right?

A Yes, it might have been a little bit more.

Q Did you hear this interrogation going on when you entered the room?

A Yes.

Q In addition to Hellenbrach and Freudenberger did anybody else participate in the interrogation while you were present

A I don't know exactly, it might have been Dengler.

Q Do you know whether Mrs. Oster was in the room during this interrogation?

A I don't know exactly.

MR. BURGER: That is all.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by the court?

THE COURT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

PROSECUTION: No objections by the Prosecution.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will the guard take the accused Hoehler?

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that the accused Hoehler, Number 5, has left the court room. The Prosecution will continue with the proof in connection with Charges 6 and 10.

CAPTAIN VANCE: The Prosecution calls as its next witness Katherina Seitz.

KATERINA SEITZ, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Will you please state your full name?

A Katerina Seitz.

Q What is your address?

A Mensheim.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q What is your present occupation, Mrs. Seitz?

A Housewife.

Q How old are you, please?

A 45.

Q Where were you living during the year 1945?

A In Bensheim.

Q At what place in Bensheim?

A Adolf Hitler Street, 58.

Q Was that the building where the Headquarters of the Gestapo in Bensheim was located?

A Yes.

Q And who were you working for at that time?

A For the Gestapo.

Q And what kind of work were you doing?

A I was a cleaning woman--scrub woman.

Q Did you live and work with the Gestapo for the entire time that the Gestapo was located in Bensheim?

A Yes, I worked from the end of September, 1944, until the end of February, 1945.

Q Were you at the Gestapo Headquarters on the evening of March 24, 1945?

A Yes.

Q Did anything unusual occur at the Gestapo Headquarters on that evening?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what happened that evening.

A Late in the evening, I went along the hallway, and in the first room there was a so-called orderly room, and in there were two men standing, both in uniform; both men had their hands up. Hellenbroich was standing close to one of the men and looked at his wrist band.

Q What do you mean by a wrist band?

A It was a broad band which looked like silver.

Q Did it have any writing or engraving on the band?

A I can't say that. I was standing outside in the hallway and just looked into the room.

Q Was there anyone else present there besides Hellenbroich?

A No.

Q What did Hellenbroich do?

A I saw only when he looked at that.

Q How long did Hellenbroich stay there with the two men in uniform?

A I can't say that--it was just a moment.

Q Did Hellenbroich go away any place, or did he remain there, or what happened?

A He went back in the hallway and called for Haaf and Stattman.

Q When he called for Haaf and Stattman, did Haaf and Stattman come in?

A Yes, then they came.

Q Now, after Haaf and Stattman came, what did you do?

A I went to the cellar then.

(Seitz-Direct)

Q Now this man Kaaf that you have just spoken about, would you know him if you were to see him today?

A Yes.

Q If he is present in the court room, will you point him out to the Court?

A Yes, that's the one--at the corner he is sitting, number 22.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Kaaf, wearing number 22.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Now the man Stattman that you have referred to, would you recognize him if you were to see him?

A Yes.

Q If he is present in Court, will you point him out?

A Yes, over there, number 21.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Stattman, wearing number 21.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Now you testified you saw a man named Hellenbroich on this occasion. Would you recognize him if you were to see him?

A Yes.

Q Will you point him out to the Court?

A Number 20.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Hellenbroich wearing number 20.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Do you know who was the Chief of the Gestapo at this time?

A Yes.

Q Who was it?

A Girke.

Q Would you recognize him if you were to see him now?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room will you point him out?

A Yes, number 19.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let the record show that the witness has identified the accused Girke wearing number 19.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Now, at this time, Mrs. Seitz, did you hear the conversation between Hellenbroich and Stattman and Raaf?

A No.

Q When you saw these two men in uniform, state whether or not they were carrying any weapons.

A Yes, they had belts with pistols on them.

Q Which men are you talking about?

A I mean the employees of the Gestapo.

Q Is that Stattman and Raaf?

A Yes.

Q Now what about the other two men in uniform that you saw with their hands raised above their heads--did they have any weapons?

A No, I didn't see anything.

(Seitz-Direct)

Q I believe you testified that after Raaf and Stattman came that you went to the cellar or basement, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever see these two men in uniform again? Now I am referring to the men you saw with their hands above their heads.

A No.

Q Later, did you hear any strange noises around Gestapo Headquarters?

A Yes, when I came out of the cellar, it might have been 10 or 15 minutes, I went over to my apartment; I heard two shots.

Q Could you tell from the sound of the shots whether they were fired on the inside of the building or the outside of the building?

A They were not fired inside the building.

Q Now when was the next time you saw Stattman and Raaf?

A Approximately half an hour or three quarters of an hour or even more, later.

Q Did you talk to either Stattman or Raaf on this occasion?

A Yes, I spoke with Raaf.

Q What did Raaf tell you?

A I was standing outside the building. There were a few steps--I was standing on the second step, and Raaf said, "Mrs. Seitz, we just finished two fellows."

Q Did he tell you anything else?

A Yes, I asked them "where", and he said, "In the garden."

Q What else was said?

A I said then, "Did you bury them?" and he said, "Yes."

Q Did he say where he buried them?

A He said, "Back in the garden."

Q Mrs. Seitz, do you know a man named Marion Kominski?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was a prisoner.

Q A prisoner of whom?

A He was in the Gestapo building.

Q Do you mean he was a prisoner held by the Gestapo?

A I assume so.

Q What was his nationality, if you know.

A Polish.

CAPTAIN MARCH: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Mrs. Seitz, how do you happen to remember the date 24 March 1945?

A That's the day when the Gestapo moved from there.

Q And that is the day when all this transpired, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You are positive it was not the 15th of February?

A No.

MR. RACHAEL: No further questions.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by other Defense Counsels?

MR. MACHAEL: If the Court please, I believe the German counsel, Dr. Aschner, would like to interrogate the witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. ASCHNER:

Q You said before you saw the two soldiers only for a short time through the door, is that right?

A Yes, I saw them shortly.

Q How long was this, approximately?

A That wasn't long at all.

Q Can you say a minute, half a minute, two minutes?

A It might have been two minutes.

Q Do you know whether the prisoners were already for a long period of time in the Gestapo building when you saw them?

A I had never seen them before.

MR. MACHAEL: That's all.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: None.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, it has been stipulated by and between the Prosecution, the Defense and the Accused that if Captain Smith from Augsburg were present he would testify substantially as follows: That the Prosecution had requested the following witnesses:

Captain John A. Barnett, Marion Kaminski, Michael B. Simon, George A. LeFevre, Major Leo V. Bishop, and Major Charles P. Larson. He would testify that none of these witnesses are present for trial for the following reasons: That Captain Barnett, Michael B. Simon, a former CIC agent, and George A. LeFevre, a former CIC agent, have all left the theater and returned to the ZI, and some of these--I am not sure which ones, have been discharged from the Army. None of these witnesses are in the theater at this time. He would testify that the witness Marion Kaminski is a Polish citizen, and he has not been located--that the Liaison Detachment from the Polish Government was notified six or eight weeks ago that we wanted this witness. They have exhausted every effort and he has not been located. Is that stipulation agreed to by the Defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The Defense will so stipulate that Captain Smith would so testify.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 68 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 68 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: This is the testimony of Captain John A. Barnett of the War Crimes Investigating Team 6823 given by him at Darmstadt, Germany, on 19 April 1945. We ask that this document be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: No objections by the Defense.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 68 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 68, followed by a translation into the German language by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 69 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 69 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Now, if it please the Court, the Prosecution offers a plat designated "Exhibit B", which plat this witness has testified he prepared after pacing off the distance. For this trial, this map has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 69 for identification. We offer it in evidence and ask that it be accepted and made a part of this record.

MR. RACHMEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 69 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask the reporter to mark the wall chart Prosecution's Exhibit 70 for identification.

(The wall chart referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 70 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Now, if it please the Court, for the convenience of the Court, a large wall chart has been made of this exhibit which we offer in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit 70, to be used for the convenience of the Court. It is large enough to be seen by all, and we ask permission of the Court, due to the size of the chart, that we be permitted to withdraw it at the end of the trial.

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 70 will be admitted in evidence and permission is granted for the withdrawal of Prosecution's Exhibit 70 at the end of the trial.

(The wall chart heretofore marked Prosecution's Exhibit 70 for identification, was received in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit 70.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 71 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 71 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, the witness Barnett has testified to and identified an exhibit which was shown to him marked Exhibit "Larson 1". For the purpose of this trial, for identification this exhibit has been given the number Prosecution's Exhibit 71 for identification. We now offer this in evidence and ask that it be admitted in evidence.

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit Number 71 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 72 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 72 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Prosecution offers in evidence a photograph which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 72 for identification. This photograph was identified by the witness when he referred to the exhibit "Larson Number 2". We ask that it be accepted and made a part of this record.

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 72 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution's Exhibit 72 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution's Exhibit 72, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 73 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 73 for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, at this time the prosecution offers the written sworn testimony of the witness Marion Heinrich Kaminski, given at Darmstadt, Germany, on 17 April 1945. This document has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 73 for identification. We ask it be accepted by the court and made a part of this record.

MR. FACHAKL: If the court please, the defense objects to this statement, this exhibit, on the ground that it contains material which is not the best evidence; on the further ground that it contains material not at all related to the charges in the case which might prejudice the minds of the court against the accused and injuriously affect their right to a fair, just and impartial trial.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I might add, may it please the court — I meant to in the beginning — I do not offer this statement in its entirety. There are certain portions that are immaterial to this trial, and those portions have been marked on the left border by a red pencil, and these portions of the statement are not offered in evidence.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 73 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit to the court.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 73, followed by a translation of the same into the German language by the court interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, let the record show that the accused Hoehler, wearing Placard No. 5, is now returning to the courtroom.

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution and the defense, all of the accused, the reporter, and the interpreter are present.

(Whereupon Captain Vance continued the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 73, the statement of Marion Kaminski.)

(Prosecution Exhibits 74 through 89 were marked for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Before the reading of this in German, I would like an opportunity to introduce the exhibits which have been identified by this witness. If it please the court, the prosecution has exhibits which were identified by the witness Kaminski. These exhibits were described and identified by the witness as being Exhibits A, B, C, G, H, I, J, F, N, O, LeFevre 1, LeFevre 2, Kaminski 1, Kaminski 2, Kaminski 3, and Kaminski 4. These exhibits have been marked for identification purposes as Prosecution Exhibits 74 for identification through 89 for identification, inclusive. We now offer these documents in evidence and ask that they be given their respective numbers, received in evidence, and made a part of this record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

MR. RACHAEL: If it please the court, I object to the introduction of these exhibits into evidence, and, furthermore, I wish to call the attention of the court to the fact that the prosecution has read to the court approximately three pages of matter out of a statement made by Marion Kaminski, which statement has not been received in evidence by this court.

The prosecution did offer in evidence, which was received by the court over the objection of the defense, a statement made by Marion Kaminski, started the 17th of April, 1945, signed by Kaminski and concluded. In view of the fact that the court has received evidence which has not been offered to the court and which has not been given to the defense for an opportunity to object to same, I respectfully submit that the matter should be entirely stricken from the record, on the further ground that the rights of the accused have been prejudiced by the receipt of the court of such matter from the prosecution.

CAPT. VANCE: I offered all of Kaminski's testimony, if it please the Court, except that testimony bordered in red. This statement was so thick that one of those metal stickers would not go through the whole thing. That testimony was taken on various dates that were announced when the recesses occurred. It is all one interrogation. The part that is not stapled is part of the same statement. It is merely unattached because the stapling machine was not big enough to bind it all. It was all offered in evidence and all accepted by the Court.

MR. RACHAEL: The reason just now given by the Prosecution seems to me to be ridiculous because not only does this one set of papers bear two holes but the other set also bears two holes on top and if they were one and the same statement they could have very easily been tied together. The second statement containing three thin pages could very easily have been put on the original with the same staples. I am most certain now that the second statement is not a part of the first statement and notice that the first statement I am referring to is signed separately from the second statement. They bear two separate and distinct attestation clauses.

CAPT. VANCE: As far as the staples are concerned, I received these papers in two big folders of about 12 inches and I stapled the papers myself. They are all one interrogation that occurred between certain dates. I intended to offer them all and if I did not, at this time, I wish to state to the Court that I intended to offer them all, the entire testimony of Marion Kaminski except those parts bordered in red pencil which were eliminated.

MR. RACHAEL: I have a motion addressed to the Court.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled and the motion to strike is overruled. Prosecution Exhibits numbered 74 to 89 inclusive will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 74 to 89, both inclusive for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 74 to 89, both inclusive, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will take a short recess in place.

(Thereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

CAPT. VANCE: By agreement between the Prosecution and the Defense it has been agreed that the reading of this long statement of the witness Marion Kazuski will not be read in the Korean language until tomorrow morning. Is that correct?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is correct.

PRESIDENT: That will be satisfactory to the Court.

CAPT. VANCE: Will the reporter please mark this document Prosecution Exhibit 90 for identification?

(Thereupon the document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 90 for identification.)

CAPT. VANCE: If it please the Court, Prosecution offers in evidence a document which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 90 for identification and is the testimony of the witness Michael S. Simmon, Special Agent, 7th Army, C.I.C., made at Augsburg, Germany, on the 27th of May 1945. We ask that this exhibit be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. MACHAL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 90 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

CAPT. VANCE: Permission is requested to read Exhibit 90.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

CAPT. VANCE: If it please the Court, the rest of this case is going to be reading matter, do you wish to read them all in English and then have them all read in the Korean language at one time?

PRESIDENT: The interpreter will read this exhibit after you read it in English.

CAPT. VANCE: Will the reporter please mark this document Prosecution Exhibit 91 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 91 for identification.)

CAPT. VANCE: If it please the Court, the Prosecution offers in evidence the testimony of Special Agent George A. Le Fevre, which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 91 for identification. So that there cannot be any misunderstanding this interrogation appears to have been taken from the 23rd of May 1945 until the 27th of May 1945. We offer every bit of this testimony in evidence and ask that it be made a part of the record.

DR. KAUFMANN: In view of the fact that there is no misunderstanding now the Defense has no objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 91 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(Thereupon the document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 91 for identification, was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 91, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPT. VANCE: Permission is requested to read the exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 92 for identification.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Now, if it please the court, the prosecution offers in evidence a Report of Burial by the 46th Quartermaster Grave Registration Company of the body of Ray F. MAJOR SAXON: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit No. 92 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: If the Court please, on the question of probative value I wish the Court would give to the statement of George A. LeFevre, the Defense would like to advise the Court that the statement is not signed by the person making the statement.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to call the Court's attention to these exhibits that we have eliminated the formal part of them. They were all sworn before the testimony was given.

LAW MEMBER: It is not signed?

CAPTAIN VANCE: No, sir, none of them are signed--not just this one.

PRESIDENT: The court will take cognisance of that fact.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, the Prosecution has had marked for identification as Prosecution's Exhibit 93 the testimony of Major Leo V. Bishop of the 45th Division Headquarters, G-2, APO 45, U. S. Army, which testimony is sworn to. We ask that this document be given number P-93 , be received in evidence and made a part of this record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections by the Defense?

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 93 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 93 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 93, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this document.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 93, followed by a translation into the German language by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Now, if it please the Court, the documents which Major Bishop identified have now been marked for identification in this case as Prosecution's Exhibits 94 through 99. Prosecution's Exhibit 94 for identification was marked Exhibit "Birschner 6". This is a registration certificate where William Howard Forman registered for the draft on 21 October, but I can't read the year. The exhibit which was marked exhibit "Wimmer 2" is now marked Prosecution's Exhibit 95 for identification, which is the immunization register of Robert MacDonald. The exhibit which was marked exhibit "Wimmer 1" is now marked Prosecution's Exhibit 96 for identification. This is a pay data status book of Robert T. MacDonald, serial number 32 773 939. The exhibit which was exhibit "Birschner 8" has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 97 for identification, which is an officer's pay data card of Second Lieutenant William H. Forman. The instrument which was marked originally exhibit "Birschner Number 4" has now been given the number Prosecution's Exhibit 98 for identification. This document is an immunization register of William H. Forman. The photograph which was originally marked as "Birschner 1" has now been given the number Prosecution's Exhibit 99 for identification. This is a photograph of the two bodies that were exhumed in the yard of the Gestapo building. We now offer these exhibits bearing identification numbers from 94 through 99, inclusive, in evidence and ask that they be accepted and made a part of this record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections by the Defense?

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibits 94 through 99 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 94 through 99, inclusive, were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 94 through 99, inclusive, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter three documents and request that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibits 100, 101 and 102, respectively, for identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits 100, 101 and 102, respectively, for identification.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, the Prosecution has a document here which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 100 for identification. This is the sworn testimony of Major Charles P. Larson taken at Darmstadt, Germany on 19 April 1945. We offer this document in evidence and ask that it be accepted and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections by the Defense?

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 100 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 100 was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 100, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Shall I read the document at this time?

PRESIDENT: How long will it take?

CAPTAIN VANCE: Twenty minutes, probably.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for 30 minutes.

(Whereupon the Court recessed at 1455 hours.)

End ta 65, ps fols

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Colonel Berman and Dr. Rau, who are absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

CAPTAIN VANCE: At this time, we would like to read Prosecution Exhibit 100.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 100.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: If the court please, prosecution offers in evidence an exhibit which has formerly been marked Exhibit K, which has now been given the number P-101 for identification. This exhibit is a piece of cloth taken from the shirt collar of one of the victims, as described by Major Larson. We ask that it be received in evidence and attached to the record of trial.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

MR. MACHAEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 101 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The article heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 101 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 101, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Prosecution has in its hand an instrument which has been called heretofore Exhibit L, which Major Larson testified about, and which has now been given Prosecution Exhibit 102 for identification. This exhibit is the bullet which Dr. Charles P. Larson testified that he extracted from the body of one of these victims, and which he testified he wrapped in cotton and placed in an envelope bearing the mark Exhibit L. We offer this object in evidence and ask that it be accepted and attached to the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, we haven't seen it.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I haven't seen it either. I have no objection to the defense looking at it, if he would like to.

May it please the court, I would like for the record to show that this exhibit, Prosecution Exhibit 102 for identification, is being opened in open court by the defense counsel.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, the defense objects to the introduction of this into evidence on two grounds: one, it is not in the container which the Prosecution Exhibit P-100 says it was put into; and secondly, it is not as described in Prosecution Exhibit P-100.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I challenge the remark of the defense counsel and ask him to show the court on what he bases that statement.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, the bullet was supposed to have some lands and grooves. I don't see any on it.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Are you an expert?

MR. RACHAEL: I don't see any. If the court please, I was in the army myself, and I am familiar with lands and grooves on a bullet. I fail to see any on that.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I have no objection to defense counsel being sworn and taking the stand and testifying about this, but I object to him talking about it. He made the remark that it was not in the package which the doctor said he had put it in, which would insinuate that someone had removed it and put it in another package. I ask him for the basis of that statement.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, Prosecution Exhibit P-100 says, "The bullet is a metal jacketed lead type bullet, approximately 7.65 mm in diameter. It has six lands and six grooves and a right hand twist. The lands measure approximately 1.2 mm in width. The depth of this cannot be measured without a micrometer." Prosecution Exhibit P-100 also says that the bullet had been placed in cotton wadding, inserted in a Kodak film container on which appear the words "Exhibit I." That is not a Kodak film container. That is an envelope.

PRESIDENT: Will you pass the wrappings, all of them, to the court?

Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

The court finds that the bullet is as described. However, the wrapping is not as described. Objection sustained.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, the ruling is not clear to me. Was the document refused or received?

MAJOR SAXON: The objection was only directed, you know, to the exhibit in question; that is, the bullet. That is what I understand the court is sustaining.

CAPTAIN VANCE: That is, the bullet will not be accepted in evidence?

PRESIDENT: The bullet will not be accepted in evidence.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, at this time the defense moves to strike from the record Prosecution Exhibit P-100, on the ground that it is incomplete.

PRESIDENT: Motion overruled.

(Whereupon Prosecution Exhibit 100 was translated into the German language by the court interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I hand the reporter two documents, and request they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 103 and 103-A for identification.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, I have a document which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 103 for identification. This is a signed sworn statement of the accused Franz Karl Stattmann, made at Wiesbaden, Germany, on the 17th of October, 1946. I have a document which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 103-A for identification, which is a true and correct translation of the German into the English language. I offer both of these documents in evidence, and ask that they be accepted and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

MR. PACHAEL: The only objection we have, if the court please, is the objection on the ground that this accused's statement was sworn to, which right he will not have if and when he will take his place on the witness stand; on the ground that the statement itself would have more probative value than the witness himself would have if he takes the stand, due to the fact that it is sworn.

PRESIDENT: Anything further?

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, I would like to state that at the time this statement was made by the accused and these other accused, they were not accused. At that time they were witnesses in an interrogation which was going on, and all witnesses were sworn.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 103 and 103-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 103 and 103-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 103 and 103-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read this exhibit to the court.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 103-A.)

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, before the translation, I would like to move to strike the statement from the record on the ground the stated Military Government Regulations, Title No. V, Legal and Penal Administration, Section 5-332, says that no witness shall be required to incriminate himself. There is no evidence whatsoever that the accused Stattman was advised of his rights not to make any statement that might incriminate himself, in view of the fact that the prosecution has stated that he was interrogated here as a witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to call the court's attention to the last paragraph here which I have just read. That is all I care to say about the matter.

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1655 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court except Colonel Bechtold, Colonel Pierce, and Colonel Robertson, who are excused by the appointing authority for this morning's session, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense except Dr. Rau, who is absent on business of the defense, all of the accused, the reporter, and the interpreter, are present.

I believe that at the close of the session last evening there was an application by the defense pending before the court. The prosecution would like to be heard.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, Prosecution Exhibit 103, which was a confession made by Franz Karl Stattman, was received in evidence. It was read in the English language, whereupon the defense made a motion to strike it on the ground that the accused was sworn at the time he made this statement and that at the present trial he will not be permitted to swear to his testimony and refute what is in there.

Now, back in October 1946, the court could determine that Stattman was a witness at that time during a regular investigation or else that he was an accused at that time. Either one is immaterial. I will not take the court's time to argue the question, but I will just call the court's attention to the Manual for Trial of War Crimes and Related Cases, page 109, which goes into the rights of a witness. It discusses the privilege of a witness not to incriminate himself, and then it says this: "These privileges are personal to a witness, and except when claimed by the witness are not allowed." If this man was a witness at that time he did not claim any privileges against self-incrimination, but, on the contrary, he said that the statement made was the whole truth, "confirmed under oath by my signature. I have made these statements without duress or any promises of favors. They represent the most complete and whole truth." It was a voluntary statement on his part.

He definitely was not an accused at that time, but suppose the court says that he was a prospective accused at that time. Then the guide says that an accused has no privilege against self-incrimination and will not be warned of his rights.

PRESIDENT: The motion before the court is apparently based on the theory that the accused is being required to testify if his sworn statement made previous to his being accused is received in evidence. The court does not regard the receiving in evidence of the accused's statement as requiring the accused to testify, and section 5-332, Title 5, Military Government Regulations, cited by the defense, is not applicable. The written statement placed in evidence by the prosecution is regarded by the court as an admission against interest, and the contents of the statement itself show the statement was voluntarily made and accused need not have been cautioned that his statement might be used against him. Even if the statement were regarded as a confession, it would be extra-judicial and admissible under the rule.

Motion of the defendant is overruled.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, at yesterday's session Prosecution Exhibit 73, which was the testimony of Marion Kaminski, was introduced in evidence, received by the court, and read in English. It was not read in German at that time, and we ask that it be read in German at this time.

PRESIDENT: Proceed with the reading.

(Whereupon Prosecution Exhibit 73, statement of Marion Kaminski, was read in the German language by the interpreter.)

PRESIDENT: The court will recess for 15 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1015 hours the court recessed until 1030 hours.)

(Whereupon court reconvened at 1050 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, except the three officers who were excused this morning, are present, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Rau, who is absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

CAPTAIN WARDE: If it please the court, at yesterday's session prosecution exhibits 103 and 103-A were received in evidence. They are the statement of Franz Karl Stattman and the English translation. The English was read but the German was not read at that time. We ask that it be read.

PRESIDENT: The German translation will be read.

(Whereupon the interpreter read Prosecution Exhibit 103, the statement of Franz Karl Stattman, in the German language.)

CAPTAIN WARDE: Will you mark these Prosecution Exhibits 101 and 104-A, please?

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that Colonel Wechtold, Colonel Pierce and Colonel Robertson, who were excused from the morning session have resumed their places with the court. I would also like the record to show and note that during the absence of these court members the only matters that transpired were the reading of two German statements that were previously received in evidence.

MR. RACHAEL: At this time the defense moves to strike prosecution exhibit P-103 from the record. The statement of Stattman, which is prosecution exhibit P-103, offered and received in evidence, is not the complete statement of Stattman. I have here a supplement to that statement signed by Stattman which was not offered by the prosecution. It is the contention of the defense that these statements must be offered in their entirety and not in part.

CAPTAIN VANCE: In answer to the defense, the prosecution is holding that supplemental statement in his hand and is offering it right at this time.

PRESIDENT: The motion to strike is overruled.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Prosecution offers in evidence a document which purports to be a statement written by the accused Franz Karl Stattman in his own handwriting in longhand, made in Wiesbaden on the 25th day of October, 1946, which statement is also written in German on a typewriter and signed by this accused Franz Karl Stattman. This document has been marked prosecution exhibit 104 for identification. Prosecution also offers in evidence a correct English translation which has been marked prosecution exhibit 104-A for identification. We offer both of these documents in evidence and ask that they be received and made a part of this record.

MR. RACHAEL: The defense objects to this on the ground that the statement which the prosecution is now offering is part and parcel and cannot be separated from prosecution exhibit P-103 and it is respectively submitted to the court that the record will show cumulative exhibits which do not exist in fact against the defendants.

PRESIDENT: Objection is overruled. Prosecution exhibits numbers 104 and 104-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits P-104 and P-104-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits P-104 and P-104-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Prosecution asks permission to read this document.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit No. 104-A, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit No. 104 in the German language by the interpreter.)

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, the defense would like to move the court to strike Prosecution Exhibit P-104 from the record on the ground that it refers to the execution of a "Worms flier", a crime which is not part and parcel of either Charge 6 or Charge 10 and will prejudice the minds of the court against the accused in that it brings into effect an additional, or rather, a crime which is not part of this case.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, that is the most ridiculous motion I have ever heard made before a court. If defense counsel has been listening to the prosecution witness on the stand he has heard them testify that this flier was brought from Worms.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court would listen to the prosecution's exhibit made by Kaminski the court would have known that Kaminski referred to six fliers.

PRESIDENT: The argument will stop. The objection to strike Prosecution Exhibit P-104 is overruled.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibits 105 and 105-A for identification?

CAPTAIN VANCE: If the court please, the prosecution offers in evidence a statement by the accused Michael Raaf made in Wiesbaden on 1 November 1945. This statement is written in the handwriting of the accused and signed by him and has been marked Prosecution Exhibit P-105 for identification. Prosecution also offers in evidence the English translation of this statement, which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit P-105-A. We ask that both of these exhibits be accepted and made a part of the record.

MR. PACHAR: The defense objects for the same reason as that stated to Prosecution Exhibit P-103, the statement of Franz Karl Stattman.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibits Numbers P-105 and P-105-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 105 and 105-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 105 and 105-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Prosecution asks permission to read this document.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 105-A, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 105 in the German language by the interpreter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibits P-106 and P-106-A for identification?

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, prosecution offers a statement dated 30 August 1946, Dachau. This statement is signed by both the accused Michael Maaf and the accused Heinz Hellenbroich. It is written in the German language and signed by these people. This exhibit has been marked Prosecution Exhibit P-106 for identification, which we offer in evidence. Prosecution also offers in evidence a document which is a correct English translation of this document, which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit P-106-A for identification. We ask the court to receive these documents in evidence and that they be made a part of the record.

MR. BACHAM: The defense objects for the same reasons as stated for Prosecution Exhibit P-103, the statement of Stattman.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 106 and 106-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 106 and 106-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 106 and 106-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.).

CAPTAIN VANCE: Prosecution asks permission to read this document.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon Captain Vance read Prosecution Exhibit 106-A.)

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until one-thirty.

(Whereupon at 1150 hours the court recessed until 1330 hours.)

(Whereupon court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

(Whereupon the interpreter read Prosecution Exhibit 106 in the German language.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibits 107 and 107-A for identification?

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, the prosecution now offers a sworn statement of the accused Richard Fritz Oirke, which is written in the German language and is signed by this accused, which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 107 for identification. Prosecution also offers another document which is a true and correct translation from German into the English language, which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 107-A for identification. We ask that both of these documents be received in evidence and be made a part of the record.

MR. MACFAIL: Defense objects to the statement, if the court please, on the ground that this statement was made on 12 December 1946, subsequent to 3 December 1946, the date of the charges in this case, when it was very well known that Fritz Oirke was a defendant. The statement is sworn to and I respectfully submit that under the rules of evidence, sworn statements of an accused may not be received by this court.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to call the court's attention to the fact that the charges were served on the accused on the 11th day of December 1946. The original charge sheets are in evidence.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, at the time the statement of Stattman was introduced into evidence the prosecution put forth the argument that in October Stattman was a witness and was examined as such. They are now blowing hot and cold that on the 3rd of December 1946 Girke was named as a defendant, he was not a witness.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Thereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

CAPTAIN WINCE: If it please the court, it is an elementary principle of law that a man becomes an accused, I haven't the authorities here with me but I think the defense counsel will bear me out, when he is served with process. These charges, as shown by the charge sheet, were served the 14th day of December. This statement of confession was obtained on the 12th. We will go farther than that to state that even if this statement had been obtained since the beginning of this trial, no error was committed. Suppose one accused wanted to take the stand and confess. Would you say the court would not take his confession? Even if any of these accused decide to make a confession at this time it would become a judicial confession which would be stronger than extra judicial confession made prior to the date of service or prior to the date trial commenced. In either case, this document is admissible because in the document the accused says he made it himself, voluntarily, without any coercion or any force. We say it is admissible.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should like to add just a brief word. What an accused does in open court, having been warned by the court as to the consequences of taking the stand, is a totally different matter. Frankly, I am surprised it was advanced as an argument for the admission of this particular statement. If an arbitrary date upon which papers are served is the controlling issue, then the prosecution could extend at its will, the power to continually examine prospective, using the word advisedly, accused, and continue to get statements from them ad infinitum. It seems to us that the decisive date is when the government has determined that certain people will go to trial on certain specified charges. In support of the motion made by my associate, I will ascertain to the court and will prove it by evidence, if the court deems it advisable, that on the 12th of December and for some time prior thereto, the personnel of the prosecution in this case knew who the defendants were going to be in this case and what the charges were, and we ask the judgment of the court.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the prosecution has one more statement. The defense cannot read into the mind of the government or the prosecution their intentions until those intentions are carried out by the indictment. Conceivably it has been done many times -- the district attorney or prosecutor for the government, the very moment before the charges were served, withdrew the name of an accused from the charge sheet. If I, as prosecutor, sit in my office and draw up a list of defendants, that does not make them accused. Only when the government carries that act out by service of the process does that event take place.

PRESIDENT: Objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibits No. 107 and 107A will be accepted in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 107 and 107A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits No. 107 and 107A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: I ask permission to read Prosecution Exhibit 107.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Thereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 107A followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 107 by the interpreter in the German language.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: That concludes the evidence to be presented in support of Charges VI and X.

BRIGADIER GENERAL: May it please the court, the rapid approach of the main part of the prosecution's case as evidenced by the fact that there remain only three charges, brings to the fore two questions, both of which are known to the prosecution, concerning which the defense now requests the judgment of the court. I should like permission to bring them now to the court's attention.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: One of these has to do with the witnesses the defense desires. The court may remember, and I shan't take the time now to refer to the recess in the record, that when the first witnesses for the prosecution appeared, the defense attempted to cross examine them on matters outside the scope of direct examination and was stopped from so doing by objection of the prosecution which was sustained by the court. The defense then made the point that if we were allowed to cross examine them while they were here on the witness stand, that much time and effort would be saved if that procedure were adopted rather than bring them back and put them on the stand. However, since that procedure was overruled in one or two cases, the defense adopted the witness as a defense witness and proceeded to examine him. This was also stopped on objection by the prosecution as an interference with the orderly presentation of their case and that objection was sustained by the court.

As a result, an agreement was entered into between the prosecution and defense and approved by the court, whereby the prosecution undertook to produce for the defense, prosecution witnesses on forty-eight hours notice by the defense. This morning, actions showing that the prosecution's main case was coming to an end, I gave or caused to be given to Colonel Darnall, a list of witnesses, prosecution witnesses, which the defense wanted for the conduct of the case by the defense. That list was not an accurate list, not a good list, because it included names of personnel who had been excused from appearing before this court. For instance, those who were in America. However, I now have a revised list, consisting of twenty-nine names of people who have actually appeared in court testifying for the prosecution. I think perhaps from that list must be stricken one or two names of people whom I was allowed to cross examine at the very early stages of the trial. For instance, the man who was excused because he had severe abdominal complaints of some kind. However, this is the point, I am not going to attempt to quote the prosecution except to state the problem on my mind and I prefer Colonel Dwinell to speak for himself.

It appears that the prosecution does not feel it is bound in any way by the agreement which we made in court to produce these witnesses. Apparently, administrative procedure requires that a formal requisition be made for these witnesses which I have completed and I am perfectly willing to sign and put into the Office of the Administration and have these witnesses processed in that way. However, there is another question beyond the question of administrative procedure. I don't quite understand it so I prefer to have Colonel Dwinell, as I have said, speak for himself. There has been some talk made to me about Colonel Dwinell's position, either by himself or a position which he states the prosecution is taking, and that is in connection with the list. Assuming the defense assumes the burden of getting these witnesses, with the list of witnesses I am required to furnish a brief statement as to what I expect to prove by these witnesses. In other words, there seems to be some kind of burden thrust upon the defense to show it is not engaging upon a fishing expedition in bringing these witnesses. I am simply stating this to the court and ask the court to define the right of the witnesses with respect to those who have testified, when they asked to be excused and were told "no" and who were held here. All these people have been here and gone home. I'd like to add this -- that I can say definitely, upon inquiry by the court, or anybody else, that the sum total of the type of evidence I hope to get from these witnesses is the legal basis of the defense which we are going to put in, but I can't tell, for instance, if John Doe is going to give me the evidence to substantiate that defense because I haven't had a chance to ask him. And so to that extent it might be said that if you are going to deny it thirty people in the hope that ten or fifteen might help you, there is nothing else we can do about it.

One further point and I am through. It will be obvious to the court that when a man testifies on the stand certain things are elicited to counsel by way of defense or possible defense, which I couldn't ask him because it was outside the direct examination and if I had to sit here and tell somebody now what those things are now, I couldn't do so to save my soul. In order to be more particular we have to go through the entire record in order to refresh my own recollection as to what I had in my own mind. I pray the indulgence of the court and I'd like to have Colonel Purnell state the position of the prosecution's side on that.

rd Tr 71

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution has no objection to whatever this present application might be. I am bound by my stipulations, as far as it's possible to carry them out. It is my intention to use the apprehension team of the Prosecution's section to recall to Dachau the witnesses that the Defense desires, and I discover now; and I have been told by the Chief of the Dachau Detachment that I went beyond the scope of my authority in making that stipulation. I was reminded that that was the function of the Counsel Section here and certain security rules had been made requiring the Defense as well as the Prosecution to fill out certain forms in quadruplicate and submit them through the Chief Counsel's Investigations Office, and then the matter will be processed in the normal way. I certainly will do everything I can to expedite that; and, as a matter of fact, I took the Defense list and furnished him with the addresses of the witnesses that I knew, and will stand ready to do anything else that can be done to expedite the matter. Apparently it is the policy of the Counsel Section to ask the Defense whether or not he is going on a fishing expedition or whether he has some affirmative defense of some kind or other for which he needs those witnesses. It was not the intention, I am sure, of the Counsel Section, to ask the Defense to disclose their case. The Defense says that "we have an affirmative defense of reprisal"--that is apparently all they need to know.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If, may it please the Court, all we need to do is to submit this list which is prepared and sign it by myself with a statement that these people are wanted by the Defense in preparation of their case, I make no further issue of the matter at this time, but my impression was that I had to particularize what I wanted each witness for, and that I couldn't do.

PROSECUTION: May I suggest to the Court that it might solve the problem if the Defense will submit this list saying this witness is needed for an affirmative defense in connection with certain charges--one, two or three, or whatever it may be.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should like to add as a final statement, may it please the Court, that the Defense has no wish, if it can avoid it, to take advantage of the position the Prosecution finds itself in; and, in the attempt to cooperate with the Prosecution in carrying out the stipulation which was made in open Court, the Defense will present a formal request for the 29 witnesses we want, signed by the Defense Counsel, and will accompany that request with a signed statement, which I will quote: "These witnesses are needed in the affirmative defense of one or more of the accused in one or more of the charges." We will do that with the understanding that if any question should arise we will come back to the Court and ask the Court to exercise the power inherent in the Court, that these witnesses be ordered here by the Court itself.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for 30 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1455 hours the court recessed.)

End Ta 72,
ps fols

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The court appreciates that both the prosecution and the defense have acted in good faith in this entire matter, and the stipulations were made for the purpose of expediting the trial, which was approved of by the court. The court desires that every effort be made to secure the necessary witnesses in order that the accused will have ample opportunity to make their defense.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, now I would like to bring up the second matter. It is one that normally we would make at the end of the prosecution's case. It has to do with a continuance by the defense for the preparation of the defense. I am making it now at the suggestion of the Executive Officer of the Dachau Detachment.

In preparing our case, we have, for instance, a witness known to the prosecution who is ill in Nuernberg, and whose appearance here cannot be expected for a number of weeks, so if the mountain won't come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain. We have asked for orders to cover that and other cases, including a trip by Major Saxon to Berlin. It appears for some reason unknown to me that in making the necessary request for Major Saxon to visit Berlin, it is a matter of importance for the executive side of the detachment to know how long a continuance, if any, will be granted by the court, and that is the reason I am making it now instead of waiting for the normal time. When the prosecution's main case is over, the defense intended at that time to ask for a continuance of two weeks. It asks for that continuance now, in anticipation of the time when the prosecution's main case will be over.

I suppose it is unnecessary for the defense to assure the court, and will let its actions speak for itself, or for themselves, that they have tried in every way to expedite the trial of this case. But I will give the court our assurance that in asking for two weeks we did not follow the usual practice of lawyers in trying to settle an accident case by putting up two weeks as an asking figure. We talked it over very seriously among ourselves, and two weeks is the figure we think we need as the minimum. I should like to take just a few moments to indicate to the court the problems we face, to substantiate our request.

In mentioning dates and times, we have no desire to make a comparison between the time the prosecution has had to prepare its case and the time the defense has had to prepare its defense, because normally prosecution always has more time than defense. The charges in this case were served on the accused on Saturday, December 14th, which was the first time that any member of the defense knew whom the accused were going to be or the nature of the charges. We went to trial January 10th, not because we thought we were ready at that time, because the defense stated it was not, but because we were told that that was the day set and the date upon which the trial would have to start. I do not say that by way of criticism, or for any reason whatsoever except by way of clarification of our position. We thought that we could prepare our case in part, at least, from day to day as the prosecution case went in, and that we have tried to do. Unfortunately, from that objective, the prosecution's case has gone much faster, I think, than either side anticipated.

I think I may properly remind the court that the defense is not permitted to interrogate witnesses who are prosecution witnesses, even though some of them are likewise defense witnesses. It so happens that some of the most important defense witnesses are also prosecution witnesses, and they have not even been called yet, so that our opportunity to examine the prosecution witnesses who have already appeared here whom we want to investigate presents a problem with which, of course, the court is familiar, since we have just been talking about these things. One of the first things we did, of course, was to ask the accused in the very first days that we had the case whom they desired as witnesses. They gave us a list of witnesses whom we asked for, and many of whom we have already interviewed. However, the court will understand that as the case goes on, other witnesses, important witnesses, suggest themselves directly to the accused or to counsel themselves, not the names of the witnesses, but certain categories of witnesses. These, as they have suggested themselves, or as they have come to the minds of the accused, have already been requested. However, very few of them have been examined or interrogated by counsel.

We also ran into the problem of the fact that the Christmas season came in during the period we had for defense, and we found it practically impossible to procure the help of any German counsel, since none of them wanted to work during the Christmas season, which is quite lengthy with them, so that the assistance which we got from the German counsel became effective by their presence in Dachau the third or fourth, even the fifth or sixth of January.

There is just one other matter that would normally consume perhaps a day, which we would have to do anyway, and that is to present to the court at the end of the prosecution's case certain motions which we had in mind to present at that time. My first plan was to ask for a day in which to prepare these motions for presentation, and then to ask for the continuance after the motions had been presented. My present plan is to take advantage of such continuance as the court may give us to give a more adequate preparation to these motions which we have in mind to present, and to present them the first thing at the end of the continuance as may be granted to us. That, also, is a time-consuming proposition. Some of these motions will be quite lengthy, since it will involve a reference to certain types of evidence which has come into the case from time to time. These we had planned, of course, and intended to reduce to writing so that they may be presented to the prosecution and to the Law Member of the court prior to the reconvening of the court.

There is also -- and this is final -- the fact that we have to re-examine all these accused now in the light of these statements and the evidence which has come in, which will take us a couple of days to do. I want to thank the court for listening to me, and I think I have presented our situation sufficiently fully to warrant a decision by the court.

Now, it occurred to me, and I so indicated to Colonel Doherty, that the court might be reluctant to commit itself at this time as to what it might do when the prosecution's case is over tomorrow, or the day after, or the day after that, and he suggested that if the court were unwilling to commit itself or to consider and make a final decision now and wanted to wait until prosecution's case was over, that perhaps the court might be willing to give some indication of what it might be willing to do, for his benefit in processing Major Saxon's request to go to Berlin.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution desires to inform the court that it is definitely desirous of being fair to the accused, but to help the court in making a decision in this matter, we would like to point out the following: We have given, and promptly gave, to the defense counsel a synopsis of the expected testimony of all of our prosecution witnesses. That was done in a timely manner. We received the case analysis from War Crimes headquarters on or about the sixth of December. We studied the case, and then served the accused on the fourteenth of December. Thereafter, we made photostatic copies of all confessions and other pertinent documents and served two copies of each of those that were to be offered in evidence on the 17th, 20th, 23rd and 27th of December, comprising the bulk of those documents.

Furthermore, we would like to remind the court that the rule works both ways, that we have also been restricted, and will be restricted, from interrogating any of the defense witnesses until their case is completed. I think that the prosecution, in having from the sixth of December to the tenth of January, shortly over one month, has had very little more than has been made available to the defense. We therefore ask the court to take these matters into consideration, and believe it would still be fair to the accused if no more than seven days be permitted for an adjournment. If the motions papers will be prepared in writing, and I assume they will be by the defense, for movement of the defense to dismiss, or whatever other motions they have, we ask the court to direct that they give us a reasonable time to study their motion papers and give us copies at least two days in advance.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I add just one statement? The defense takes no exception to any statement of fact just made by the prosecution as to timely giving us the papers, etc. I have no doubt they gave them to us as fast as they could, and it was done reasonably and seasonably by them. However, I think the comparison of the time they had to prepare their case with the time we had to prepare ours is slightly out of line. I said that they were entitled to have more time than we had, and I meant that, but gossip says that higher authority was working on this case for one solid year before they sent it down here for trial. It is one thing for us to build a defense ab initio, from the very rock bottom than to present a case where statements are prepared by people in the field and lawyers, etc., etc.

PRESIDENT: Court will be closed.

(Whereupon the court was closed at 1550 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter, and the interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: On the application of the defense, the court will grant a continuance at the conclusion of the prosecution's case of eight days, exclusive of Sunday.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the prosecution will now offer evidence principally in support of Charge VII. The court is again reminded that throughout the balance of the case there will be evidence submitted from time to time in support of Charges I and II. Call the witness Peter Schrod.

PETER SCHROD, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Peter Schrod.

Q Where do you live?

A Offenbach-Bieber, Maurerfeld Street 13.

Q How old are you?

A Thirty-four.

Q During World War II were you a member of the German Army?

A Yes.

Q Were you ever a member of the SS?

A No.

Q Directing your attention to the month of February 1945, what rank did you hold in the army?

A I was corporal.

Q In February 1945, what were your duties and where were you stationed?

A I was on furlough in Bieber.

Q To what organization in the army did you belong?

A I was a member of the mountain riflemen--driver.

Q Directing your attention again to the month of February 1945, do you remember anything unusual happening in Bieber concerning an American flyer?

A End of February 1945 an American pilot was brought to the police station at Bieber.

Q I show you a photograph which has been marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibit 108 and ask you to look at it and tell me what that is a picture of?

A That is the police station in Bieber.

Q Is that the police station that you were talking about?

A Yes.

Q How far from this police station do you live?

A I live across the street.

PROSECUTION: I offer in evidence a photograph which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 108 for identification, and ask that it be received in evidence and marked Exhibit 108 and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 108 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 108 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 108, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q You say a flyer was brought to the police station. Continue and tell the court what happened.

A There were many children--a great crowd. Afterwards a passenger car arrived.

Q When you say there were many children and a great crowd, where did this take place?

A On the street.

Q Was that anywhere near the police station?

A Yes.

Q How near the police station?

A On the street in front of the police station. On the other side is the pharmacy.

Q What is the name of the street on which the police station is located?

A That is the Maurerfeld Street.

Q Now, you say that referring to some day in February 1945. Was it the beginning or the end of February?

A End of February.

Q About what time of the day?

A I can't say that. In the afternoon.

Q Continue with the story.

A Out of this passenger car I saw come out a tall man in a brown overcoat. Somebody else was with him. I don't know who it was.

Q What did you do?

A I saw all this from my window. Then the car disappeared. It drove away. Then a short while later you heard a noise and calls "the flier will be shot."

Q Where did that take place?

A On the street.

Q Then what happened?

A Then the pilot was taken away. I don't know where. I was in my apartment. My conscience bothered me, because we didn't know any orders like this on the front.

Q Whom are you referring to as "we"?

A No, I mean the front soldiers.

Q Then what happened?

A I went on my bicycle and looked where they went. First I went in the wrong direction. Then children informed me through the field to the woods.

Q Before that had you had an opportunity to observe the flyer?

A No. I saw him only when he was brought to the police station.

Q When he was brought to the police station did you have an opportunity to observe him?

A No. He was inside of the police station.

Q Continue with your story.

A When I arrived at the forest, at a pass which led through the forest where formerly a little railroad was running from a gravel pit. There I saw on this pass, inside the forest, the pilot, two policemen, and one first lieutenant.

I came up to the first lieutenant. I asked him where he wanted to go with this man. He told me to a prisoner camp. Then I told him, approximately with these words, "You can't tell me that. You can't fool me. He is going to be shot." Then I heard a shot was fired which came out of a heavy machine. I threw my bicycle on the ground and ran approximately 30-40 meters into the woods. There I saw only that the pilot was dead. He didn't move anymore. I left the woods again, took my bicycle, went on my bicycle and rode away. Then the first lieutenant called me, "Come here", or something like that. I couldn't understand him very clearly. I called back, "We don't have to say anything to each other." Whether he heard it or understood me, I can't tell you.

Q At any time did you notice whether or not the pilot was armed?

A I didn't bother with the whole matter anymore. I couldn't do anything about it. The man was dead, and I, as a member of the armed forces, if Albrecht would have reported me it could have caused my head.

Q The two policemen and the first lieutenant that you referred to, would you recognize that first lieutenant if you saw him again?

A The first lieutenant? Yes.

Q Take a look around the courtroom and see if he is here.

A Yes.

Q If so, point him out.

A Yes (indicating).

(Cross - Direct)

Q What number?

A Number 8.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Albrecht, No. 8.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize either of the two policemen that you referred to if you saw them again?

A One of them had a steel helmet. I didn't recognize it. A steel helmet. One just looked like the other. I don't know them.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q How big a community is Bieber? As well as you know?

A Approximately 7,000.

Q How many people would you estimate were in the crowd in front of the police station?

A You can say approximately 100. Including children.

Q I call your attention to Prosecution Exhibit 108. Is that police station on a corner or is it in the middle of a block?

A That is a corner.

Q Is there a street in the back of it?

A There you can see the street (indicating). In this direction and in the direction where the car was standing.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record show that he is pointing in the first instance to a street which appears in the picture itself, and to a street which can be seen on the right-hand side of the picture with an automobile shown in it.

Q Which is the front of the police station--the entrance?

A The entrance was right on the corner.

Q Does that police station border yet on still a third street?

A From one--from two sides this street is running through.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record show he is still pointing to the street in front of the police station.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q My question is: Is there also a third street which borders on the police station or the grounds belonging to the police station?

A Up here another street is ending here (indicating). Goes up to the garden. But this is not here. This is on the adjoining grounds of another property.

Q Does that garden belong to the police station or does it belong to another piece of property?

A This garden belongs to the police station.

Q So that the police station is bordered on three sides by a street; is that correct? Counting the garden as a part of the police station?

A Another one is running in there.

Q This crowd that you say was gathered near the police station, was that crowd on one street or was the crowd on more than one street?

A I didn't count them. After two years I can't say it exactly anymore. I was in my apartment, in the tavern, respectively.

PROSECUTION: May I interrupt for a moment?

[illegible]: I did not intend to put this chart up so soon but did so only for the convenience of the people working around here today. That chart is not for charge number seven, that chart is for charge number eight which will follow charge number seven.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Was the crowd there when the pilot was brought to the police station?

A Many children were already following when the pilot was brought out of the forest by the civilian.

Q Were there any adults among the children?

A Yes. You saw also a few adults.

Q How soon after the pilot reached the station did more adults arrive?

A I cannot, after such a long time, recall by the hour anymore.

Q At the time the pilot left the police station, were there any adults in front of it?

A Yes. You saw adults but after two years it is impossible to give you the exact number.

Q Could you hear what the crowd was saying?

A While I was in the tavern I could not hear the words but once I left the tavern and came out into the street I heard, "He will be shot".

Q Who did you hear say that?

A No. That is, I don't know anymore about what happened at the police station.

Q I will ask you again, did you hear what the crowd was saying about the pilot?

A As I said just now, you could hear, "He will be shot".

Q What that said by the crowd and by the people who were gathered in front of the police station?

A By the children and some adults there.

Q Did you hear any of the adults threaten the pilot?

A No.

Q Do you know how to reach Offenbach or what roads go to Offenbach from the police station?

A The direct road is over Bieberer Street -- the direct route is Aschaffenburg to Offenbach direct.

Q Is there an indirect way of going from Bieber to Offenbach?

A You can go to Offenbach over Heisenstamm and then over the village Tempelsee.

Q Is there not a way of going from Bieber to Offenbach by following the road through the woods where you saw the pilot?

A Yes, that is through the community Tempelsee.

QDo you know what happened to the man that you say came out of the automobile that wore the brown overcoat?

A He went into the station.

Q And the man that was with him, where did he go?

A I cannot recall that anymore today. He was walking next to him and in all probability he went into the police station too.

Q You said a short while ago that a short while later a passenger car drove away, you heard a noise, what kind of noise?

A Noises? I heard only that the pilot was taken away.

Q Did you say that a short while after the car drove away you heard noises and they called out that the flyer would be shot, is that correct?

A I did not say anything about noises, I said "voices".

Q As a matter of fact you heard several people make the statement, did you not, that the flyer would be shot?

A Yes. You heard it from the children. I said so repeatedly and that is all I can say.

Q Did you not also say that you heard some adults on the street make the same statement?

A I did not talk about adults, there were only a few adults in the crowd. You just heard voices and whether they came from children, I don't know. After two years I cannot remember so exactly anymore.

Q Are you hostile to any of these accused?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. The witness will answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you feel any hostility, for example, towards Albrecht because Albrecht violated what you call your conscience as a soldier?

A Well--

PROSECUTION: Object to that question as improper cross examination.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment.

LAW MEMBER: Will the reporter read the question?

(Whereupon the question was read by the reporter.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution submits that the witness has said that he had no hostility to any of the accused.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am going from the general to the particular and pray the Court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. The witness will answer.

THE WITNESS: No. I said already before Albrecht was very decent because he could have reported me.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q When you came to the woods on your bicycle you saw the pilot and two policemen and a first lieutenant with the pilot, is that correct?

A I was with Albrecht and Albrecht was behind the pilot and the two policemen.

Q Where did -- first, were there two policemen with the pilot?

A Yes, they were part of it, a little ahead of us.

Q How far behind the pilot were the two policemen?

A Right behind them but I cannot give you any figures on the steps but they were right behind them.

Q How far behind the two policemen was Albrecht?

A During the time I was speaking to Albrecht, it must have been ten to fifteen meters.

Q Did you see the shot fired?

A No, I was just talking with him and I heard only the shot - I heard only the shot.

Q Were you actually engaged in conversation with Albrecht at the time the shot was fired?

A Yes.

Q Can you give the Court an estimate of about how long Albrecht was in your sight before the shot was fired?

A It might have been two minutes.

Q During the entire two minutes that Albrecht was in your sight was he also within hearing distance of you?

A I was standing right next to him.

Q During that two minutes that you were standing next to Albrecht, before the shot was fired, did Albrecht say anything to the two policemen who were marching behind the pilot?

A No. Only we two. I respectfully objected there.

Q Were you and Albrecht walking behind the prisoner during those two minutes?

A No, we were standing.

Q Can you give the Court an estimate of how far in front of you and Albrecht the prisoner was at the time the shot was fired?

A The distance grew during the time while I was standing there with Albrecht and objected to the thing.

Q What was the first thing you did when you heard the shot fired?

A I put my bicycle on the ground and went into the woods to the spot.

Q What did Albrecht do?

A Albrecht? In all probability he must have turned around and started already to walk into the direction of Bieber because I caught up with him later on my bicycle.

Q Did you hear Albrecht yell anything at Mueller with words to this effect, "Where are you going with the flyer?"?

PROSECUTION: Object to that. There has been no testimony about anybody by the name of Mueller.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will rephrase the question.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you hear Albrecht yell at either of the two policemen who were with the flyer, "Where are you going with the flyer" or words to that effect?

A No.

Q Where was Albrecht when he called after you to "Come here"?

A On his way to Bieber, on the path there.

Q Did Albrecht have a heavy weapon with him?

A Like any first lieutenant he had a belt with his pistol.

Q Did he have a heavy weapon such as the carbine you estimated was the weapon that fired the shot?

A No. Nothing like that.

Q At the time the pilot was brought to the police station were you standing by your window looking out the window?

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, the accused, reporter and interpreter are present.

Call Peter Schrod.

PRESIDENT: You are reminded you are still under oath.

PETER SCHROD, called as a witness by the prosecution, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION (continued)

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q Are you the same Schrod who testified before this court yesterday?

A Yes.

Q If I remember right, you said yesterday that in the tavern you didn't hear what the crowd on the street was talking, is that right?

A In the tavern I didn't hear anything but I went outside once.

Q Why did you go outside?

A Because I heard the crowd and there was a pilot, and for this reason I went outside.

Q How long did you stay on the street?

A A short while only.

Can you estimate the approximate time?

A Perhaps two minutes.

(Schrod-cross)

DR. RAU: That is just what I want to clarify because the witness said yesterday that he heard when the flier was being taken away from the police station. But did he mean?

THE WITNESS: When he was brought. I didn't know when he was brought away. The way he was taken I didn't know. I went on my bicycle and I had to ask children to find out where they went.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q That means when he was taken away you didn't notice that, is that right?

A No.

Q Why did you follow the pilot later on on your bicycle?

A I said already yesterday that my conscience bothered me when I heard a voice that a pilot would be shot.

Q At that time was there an air raid taking place on Dieber?

A No.

Q A few days before that?

A No.

Q You were on leave at that time?

A Yes.

Q How long before that did you come back on furlough?

A I came at the beginning of February.

Q I was told that ten days before this incident an air raid had taken place in the immediate vicinity of the police station.

PROSECUTION: I object to that question.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q Did you drink anything in the tavern on this day?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court, that is a proper question.

PROSECUTION: Improper cross examination.

(Schrod-cross)

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

DR. RAU: Please answer my question.

THE WITNESS: There wasn't so much alcohol there at all. When you were on furlough and drank a beer or two that doesn't mean you were drunk at all.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q What had you drunk?

A I didn't mark it down.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. I think the witness is insolent and I ask the court to caution him about it. He is in an American court and I ask he be so informed.

PRESIDENT: The witness will answer the question.

THE WITNESS: On that day, it was in the afternoon, I hadn't drunk at all yet.

DR. RAU: Thank you.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I believe you said yesterday you saw when the pilot was brought into the police station, is that correct?

A Yes, that's right.

Q I now show you Prosecution Exhibit No. 106 and ask you to indicate the place where the prisoner was brought into the police station.

A I saw him here on this street.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He indicates the street in front of the police station, the street that is plainly shown.

A Whether he went through the back door or through the front entrance, I can't remember anymore.

(Schroe-cross)

Q What did you say yesterday as to which entrance he went into?

A Presumably, I said the same.

Q I ask you now to repeat what you said, whether it was presumably, but what you actually said yesterday as to the entrance through which this prisoner went into the police station.

MR. GRIMES: May I point out to the court these questions are repetitious and argumentative, too?

MR. DUKES: That may be. He made a specific statement yesterday and he is definitely hedging on it now and I have a right to pin him down.

THE COURT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: As far as I can remember I said yesterday he came through the back door.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Into which entrance did he go, through what door did he go into the police station? I didn't ask you through what door he came out.

A I can't recall exactly anymore.

Q As a matter of fact, isn't it true that the front entrance to that police station, the entrance which appears on the corner and which shows on the right hand side of that picture, was blocked off so he couldn't go inside?

A I can't say that because I didn't go into the police station.

Q Isn't it true that the entire side of the building that shows on the main street, beginning at the point where the garage begins and going all the way along the side of the building across the door as that shows, was blocked off by rope and cord?

A No, there was no air raid precautions.

Q All, did that air raid protection extend around the front door, the door that shows in that picture?

Tu 76 1-23-47
SO ols

A No, as far as I know the door wasn't blocked.

Q As a matter of fact on that exhibit there is a line which shows just beneath the window and I call the witness' attention to a line which appears on the picture just beneath the front windows. Doesn't that line mark the height of that air raid protection?

A I can't say that exactly anymore. It has been taken away a long time. I remember exactly that this door over there where the car is standing was blocked up.

Q Now, your observation is very good isn't it and your memory excellent, also.

A What shall I say?

Q I'm asking you one question.

A I can't recall exactly all the small details at the police station but very exactly I can remember the facts about what happened in the forest.

Q You remember the number of people who were there in front of the police station at about the time the pilot was taken into the police station, don't you?

A I said so yesterday repeatedly, approximately 100, it might have been 150, mostly children.

MR. [illegible] COUNSEL: I am going to ask the court to warn the witness to answer the question.

MR. [illegible]: He answered that the way he did yesterday.

THE COURT: Will you repeat the question.

(Thereupon the reporter read the last question.)

MR. [illegible] COUNSEL: And the answer, too.

(Thereupon the reporter read the last answer.

MR. [illegible] COUNSEL: A question called for a yes or no answer, it didn't call for a number.

(Conrod-cross)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q But you do not remember whether the front door as shown on the Prosecution Exhibit was blocked or not, is that correct?

A I can't say that anymore.

Q And you don't remember whether he went in the front door or the back door?

A No, the whole incident occurred on this street. The question of the entrance — it's possible that he went through the back door. He came from the street, I can't say exactly through which entrance.

Q Can you tell the court exactly the time the pilot was in the police station?

A I can't say that.

Q Can you give the court an estimate about the time he went into the police station?

A The time by the clock? I don't know that. Afternoon.

Q Can you tell the court whether it was still the afternoon or whether it was twilight or whether it was evening when he was brought out of the police station?

A It was in the afternoon, after dinner time, it wasn't late.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have nothing more.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Yesterday you spoke about a First Lieutenant and two policemen in the forest and you said that the First Lieutenant had a pistol, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Were the two policemen armed and if so with what?

A Yes, one with a steel helmet had a carbine.

PROSECUTION: Nothing further.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

PROSECUTION: Questions by the court?

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

QUESTIONS BY COLONEL ROBERTS:

Q While you were talking to the Lieutenant in the woods, where were the two policemen?

A There was a distance of approximately ten or fifteen meters.

Q Where were the two policemen at the time the shot was fired?

A When was I sent over there it was thirty-five to forty meters.

Q You didn't answer the question.

A The policemen and the pilot were approximately fifteen meters away from Albrecht and me when the shot was fired.

Q Were they in sight?

A I saw the men.

Q Then why didn't you see who fired the shot?

A I was talking with Albrecht at that time.

Q But you looked up when you heard the shot fired?

A Yes, I heard the sound.

Q Who was firing the gun?

A I didn't see the pointing, I only heard the sound.

Q You looked up, didn't you?

A Yes, at that moment I was excited and looked up.

Q Who had the gun pointed?

A I didn't see the pointing, I only heard the gun.

PROSECUTION: No further questions. Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: Witness will be excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

(Schrod-court)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I understand from now on excusing them means only temporarily excusing them?

PROSECUTION: Yes. Call the witness George Heberer.

GEORGE HEBERER, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A George Heberer.

Q Where do you live?

A Dietzenbach, near Offenbach.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What is your business?

A Retired Sergeant of the police and now a farmer.

Q How old are you?

A 55 years.

Q Were you employed in 1944? If so, in what capacity?

A From November '44 on I was working as First Sergeant of the police at the police station in Dieber.

Q When you say from November '44 on, until about what date do you mean?

A Until the 19th of March 1945.

Q Were you on duty in the police station in Dieber in February 1945?

A Yes.

Q Now, directing your attention to the latter part of February 1945, do you remember anything unusual happening in Dieber with respect to an American flier?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court what that was.

A On the 22nd of February 1945 at approximately 1300, during an air raid alarm I was riding on my bicycle from Dietzenbach to Offenbach-Bieber, the police station.

Q Then what happened?

A Suddenly I saw a four-motored bomber coming in my direction from a northerly direction. Before that I noticed that eight to nine parachutes were in the air, open parachutes were in the air. Since the airplane came closer and closer to me I took cover in an air raid shelter nearby in a little settlement.

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit 108 and ask you to tell the court what that is a picture of?

A That is the police station at Bieber-Offenbach. In front is Wurzerfeld Street.

I show you a piece of paper marked for identification P-109, which is a map, and ask you to tell us what this is a map of?

A This is a city map of Offenbach, including Bieber.

PROSECUTION: I offer this map in evidence and ask that it be marked P-109 and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution exhibit No. 109 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 109 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 109, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Now, looking at that map, I direct your attention to the lower right hand corner, the place marked "Bieber" and ask you to point out the place which is the location of the police station and tell the court whether or not that is indicated by a red circle?

Yes.

You said you saw some fliers parachute down from a plane, is that correct?

Yes.

How far was that from the Bieber police station?

A From Bieber it might have been five, six, seven kilometers.

Q In what direction from the Bieber police station is that, north, east, south or west?

That was northwest.

Q What happened after that?

A Then I saw the airplane for the last time. It turned to the left while I was still standing at the air raid shelter.

Q Then what happened?

A Then, after a short distance, the airplane crashed to the ground and I saw a big black smoke flame going up into the air. For a short while I stayed near the air raid shelter and then with my bicycle I continued my ride to the police station, Bieber. When I arrived at Bieber I saw already a larger crowd of people standing in front of the police station and when I came to the station the flier was already present there.

Q Then what happened?

A The flier was sitting on the small side of the desk. He had been searched and his things were laying on the table.

Q Do you remember the date in February 1945 that this happened?

A On the 22nd of February.

Q Now, referring to your going into the police station and seeing the flier, what time of day was that?

A It might have been around 2:30.

Ja 78 1-23-47

Continue to tell the court what happened?

A I sat you for a while at the station and then I went into the cellar where the headquarters is located of the air raid protection and I relieved the police master sergeant, Keller of his duties there.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Hans Michel?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A No. 6.

PRESIDING: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused, Michel, No. 6.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did you see Michel that day?

A I didn't see Michel on this day.

Q Who was Michel?

A Michel was the director of the police at Offenbach-Main.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Josef Hoitz?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was Captain with the Commander of the rear police.

Q Where?

A At Offenbach-Main.

You said that Michel was police director or police chief. There was no police under?

A At Offenbach-Main.

Q Would you recognize Hoitz if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, point him out.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identifies the accused, Kiaitt, wearing No. 7.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did you see Kiwitt or Michel on that day?

A No, I didn't see them.

Q What happened after that?

A Then I heard pretty loud voices upstairs in the police station and then later on I went on the stairs which lead into the cellar. From there I saw the flier standing on the Laurerfold Street with his face turned towards the passenger car.

and Ta 76
Butler fols

Q Was the flier armed?

A No, the flier was not armed.

Q Did you see anyone else there?

A Before I heard that it was said, "Two men get ready."

Q And then what happened?

A Then the flier was taken away from the car through Master Sergeant of the Police Moller; then I heard already from the crowd call "these are the ones who are murdering your wives and children".

Q Now, you referred to a car, was that car there when the flier was first brought into the police station?

A No, when I came to the police station I didn't see the car yet.

Q Did you see the car come to the place in front of the police station?

A No.

Q Now did you see anyone in that car at any time that day?

A No.

Q Now you spoke of a man by the name of Moller. Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Number 9.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness indicated the accused Moller, wearing Number 9.

(Heberer-Direct)

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Who was Moller in February, 1945?

A He was Master Sergeant of the Police and at the same time he was Sergeant of the Guard of one department.

Q Where?

A At the police station of Bieber-Offenbach.

Q Did you ever hear of a man by the name of Como?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A Como, too, he was a Corporal of the police force, and he did duty on the outside.

Q Where?

A In Offenbach-Bieber, too.

Q Do you know his first name?

A Peter Como.

Q Did you see Peter Como on that day, the 22nd of February, 1945?

A Yes, I saw him in the police station, and then I heard later on that Como had brought the flier to the police station.

Q Now what happened to the flier, if you know?

A The flier was then taken away--that's all I saw.

Q Who took him away?

A Moller took him away, along the Street Rebstock.

Q Was anyone else with Moller?

A Goehrendt followed quite some distance behind them and then also Como.

(Meberer-Direct)

Q Was Moller armed at that time?

A Yes, Moller had his carbine, and he was wearing a steel helmet.

Q Was Goehrendt armed?

A As far as I can recall, Goehrendt had his pistol, but I can't remember exactly any more.

Q Who was Goehrendt?

A Goehrendt was First Sergeant of the police force at Bieber-Offenbach, and he was second in charge.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Number 10.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Goehrendt, number 10.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q When what happened?

A About half an hour or three-quarters of an hour later, Albrecht had already returned in the meantime and had gone to his office, Master Sergeant Goehrendt returned and reported to Albrecht, "shot while trying to escape."

Q Who was Albrecht?

A Albrecht was First Lieutenant of the police and in charge of the Police Station Bieber.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, point him out.

A Number 8.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Albrecht, number 8.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q What happened after that?

A After a while, it might have been around five o'clock, Goehrendt came with a paper and asked if there was somebody who could bring it over to Moller in order to be signed by Moller; since nobody else was present I said, "All right, I ride down on my bicycle and get the paper signed." I then rode over to the apartment, Bieber Street 114, the second floor, and I found Moller in his apartment lying on his couch.

Q Did you look at the paper?

A I looked shortly at the paper and noticed a name like "William Duke" or something like that, and that he was shot while trying to escape.

Q Now did you give this paper to Moller?

A I put it on the table and Moller signed it in his own handwriting in my presence.

Q Now, going back to the time when the flier was brought to the police station, did you hear anyone say anything about that flier in your presence?

A Yes, he couldn't speak German, and so he indicated through gestures whether he could get some water or something to drink.

Q And then what happened?

A He got it.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I show you Prosecution's Exhibit 108, the picture of the police station at Bieber, and ask you to tell the Court whether or not a protective wall of some kind was around certain sides of the building.

A Yes.

Q Around how many sides of the building was that wall?

A This protective wall went around two sides of the building, here and here (indicating). The entrance, too, was closed--blocked off.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The witness indicates the two streets, the streets showing in the picture, and a street on the right hand side of the picture where the automobile is standing.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Was that front door which appears on the edge of the picture used at that time?

A No.

Q Was it blocked off so that it could not be used?

A Yes, there was a closet inside here for our rifles and for our clothes.

Q Now when you first came there, you said there was a crowd in front of the station. Can you give an estimate to the Court as to how many people were in that crowd?

A When I came there, there might have been 40 to 50 people, but this crowd grew as time went on.

Q Can you give the Court an estimate as to the size of the crowd at about the time the flier was taken from the station?

A There were many children, a few women, men, too,

I would say over a hundred.

Q Do you know how long the air raid alarm lasted on the day in question?

A I can't say that exactly any more.

Q Do you know whether any bombing occurred that day in the vicinity of Bieber?

A No, I didn't hear anything about that.

Q Now, this crowd in front of the police station--you say you heard them make certain statements, such as "these are the men who murdered our children"--did you hear that statement more than one time?

A No, I heard only once.

Q Do you know whether that statement was made by more than one person?

A It can be only one person.

Q Now, when you came into the station, you say the flier was sitting, and during the time he was there he was served water. Was he also allowed to smoke cigarettes?

A Yes, he was also allowed to smoke.

Q Do you know by whose permission he was allowed to have the water and to smoke?

A As far as I can recall it was the First Sergeant of the police force, Lueck.

Q During the time the flier was in the station, was anything said to Albrecht about the considerate way the flier was being treated?

A I didn't hear anything. I couldn't recall any more, anyway.

(Lieberer-Cross)

Q Did you see the flier leave the vicinity of the police station?

A I saw it shortly from the window of the police station when he came out this way in a southerly direction.

A Yes, to the left.

Q That would be the side towards the garden, is that correct? That would be the side away from the automobile?

A Yes, that's right. Yes, the car would be in a northerly direction, and he went in a southerly direction.

Q Now you say you saw Moller with the pilot as they left the vicinity of the police station. How close was the pilot to Moller as they went away?

A He was very close--perhaps one meter.

Q You say you heard someone say "you two men get ready"--do you know who those two men were?

A No, I didn't hear that--I couldn't hear.

Q Did you say who left with the flier in addition to Moller?

A Later on, First Sergeant of the Police, Goehrendt, came, and Como quite some distance behind them.

Q In other words, as I understand you, the flier was in front accompanied by Moller. Behind Moller and the flier came Como, and behind Como came Gehrendt--is that correct?

A No, first Goehrendt, and then Como.

Q How far behind Moller was Goehrendt?

A It might have been 40 to 50 meters.

Q And how far behind Goehrendt came Como?

A Como came far behind Goehrendt, 200 to 250 meters.

Q At the time these people left the police station, where was Aqbrecht?

A Aqbrecht was not in the police station--he must have left the police station, too.

Q Do you know where he went?

A I don't know that.

How long was the flier in the police station altogether, in your opinion?

A I don't know--it might have been an hour. It might have been a little bit more, too.

Q Prior to the departure of the flier from the station, did you hear any conversation dealing with him other than the words "you two get ready"?

A No, I didn't hear anything.

Q The voices which you say you heard upstairs. Could you hear what was said?

A No, I couldn't hear that--no, nothing at all.

Q At the time you heard the words "two men get ready", was the pilot still in the station, or was he already in the street?

A I heard this while the flier was standing near the car.

Q Outside the station?

A Outside the station. I thought he was going to be taken away by car.

(Heberer-Cross)

Q Now you said that when the pilot was being taken away you heard the crowd call "these are the ones who murdered your children." This call that came from the crowd, did it not take place after the pilot left the police station and stood outside in the street in front of the police station?

PROSECUTION: I object, I believe it is stated on a false premise. It refers to some words coming from the crowd, but the testimony was not that it came from the crowd, but that it was said to the crowd.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I distinctly remember his testimony was that the crowd called "these are the ones who murdered our children"--besides, it's cross examination."

PRESIDENT: Will you read the statement?

("hereupon the reporter read the statement.)

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you repeat the last question?

("hereupon the reporter read the last question.)

WITNESS: No, this remark was made while he was being taken away.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Just exactly, as nearly as you can remember, where was the flier at the time the remark was made? Will you point out on Prosecution's Exhibit 108, if you can?

A The car was here in the back. You couldn't see it on this picture, anymore.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He is pointing to the extreme left of the picture where the car was supposed to be standing.

WITNESS: And he was standing here on the sidewalk, his face towards the car.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q From what entrance of the building was the flier taken?

A From the back entrance, like here.

Q Does that entrance come out on that gate that shows on the wall that shows on the extreme left of the picture?

A Yes, it comes out here.

Q And about how far was the flier from the exact point at the time that remark was made?

A It might have been approximately five meters--five meters in a westerly direction.

Q In your opinion, was that remark loud enough to be heard by the pilot and by Moller and the other people who went along with the pilot?

A Yes, another witness, Fritz Kiefer, heard it, too.

Q Do you know if any orders were issued to Moller as to where he was to take the pilot?

A No, I did not hear anything.

Q Do you know what road was taken by Moller and the pilot after they left the police station?

A Along the Rebstock.

Q Was that an auxiliary road to Offenbach?

A Yes, that's an auxiliary road which leads into Aschaffenburg Street. Before it had a different name.

Q By taking that road, the auxiliary road, with the pilot, was it possible in that way to avoid the crowds which were standing in front of the police station?

A Yes, the crowd--it was possible to avoid the crowd if you had enough men to post guards, but we didn't have enough guards.

Q Well, was it possible to go around the crowd ... by taking the auxiliary path that was taken?

A That's a crossing point on the Maurerfeld Street and on the Rebstock, but it was possible, of course, to squeeze through the crowd.

Q Did you have enough policemen available for duty to protect the pilot against the crowd?

A We were five, six, seven men. Of course it was possible to protect him.

Q Did any air raids ever take place on Bieber itself?

A Yes, on the 11th of December, 1944.

Q Were any people killed?

A Fifty to sixty people were killed, I think.

Q Now this paper which you brought to Moller--by whom were you asked to bring it to Moller?

A First Sergeant of the Police Force, Goehrendt, and he, himself, had written it on the typewriter, as far as I know.

Q Were you asked by anyone to ask Moller if that paper was the correct statement of what had actually transpired?

A No.

Q Was there any talk in the police station the next day about the method by which captured allied air personnel were to be handled?

A No, I didn't hear anything.

Q Did you hear anybody talk to Goehrendt about this report that you say Goehrendt wrote out in his own handwriting?

A No, I didn't hear anything.

Q So you cannot tell the Court whether or not Goehrendt wrote that report on his own initiative or as a result of instructions received from anyone else?

A No, I don't know that--he only came to the orderly room and asked me to deliver it.

Q I show you Prosecution's Exhibit 108 and ask you can you tell the Court how the crowd was distributed around the building?

A Most of the crowd was standing here on the Maurerfeld Street and here on the side in an easterly direction a few more people were standing on Maurerfeld Street.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record indicate that the witness points to the exit from which the pilot came us to where the largest part of the crowd was standing.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q ere any standing on the street where the automobile was standing?

A I can't recall exactly anymore.

Q Were you not asked whether you were present and personally saw Moller sign the report?

Yes, he signed it himself, and I brought it back to the station.

QUESTIONS BY DR. DUENGER:

Q Where did Goehrendt report to Albrecht that the flier had been shot while trying to escape?

A At the orderly room in front of the door to the office of First Lieutenant Albrecht.

Q You were present?

A Yes.

Q Was this immediately after Goehrendt returned?

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q How long a time elapsed from the time they took the flier from the police station and the time Goehrendt returned?

A It might have been an hour--I can't say exactly.

Q Now you said that someone said, "These are the men who killed your women and children"--do you know who said that?

A No, I didn't hear that.

Q Now where was Kiwitt and Eichel on that afternoon, if you know?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment--he said he didn't see either of them that day.

PROSECUTION: He said he didn't see them come out of the car.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He said he didn't see either of them that day.

PROSECUTION: Now I am asking if he knows were they were.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Proceed with the question.

WITNESS: They must have been on the street.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment--that's not a responsive answer, and I request that it be stricken from the record.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know whether or not they were on the street?

A I can't remember exactly.

Q Now you said you had enough of a police force to protect the flier. Why didn't the police protect the flier?

A Nothing happened to the flier. He was in the custody of Moller there.

Q And that's the Moller you have been referring to, one of the accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q Now, after they took the flier from the police station, did the crowd follow the flier, do you know?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

(Reberer-Redirect)

PROSECUTION: Any questions by any member of the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all members of the Court, all members of the Prosecution, all members of the Defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

I call the witness Peter Como.

PETAR COMO, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Peter Como.

Q Where do you live?

A Laemmerspiel.

Q Is that near Offenbach?

A Yes, the county of Offenbach.

Q What business are you in?

A I am foreman in a leather goods factory.

Q How old are you?

A Fifty.

Q Now, directing your attention to the month of February, 1945, were you employed by the German police?

A Yes, in 1943, I was drafted into the police force.

Q And were you in the police force in February, 1945?

A Yes.

Q What rank did you hold?

A I was corporal of the police.

Q Where is Bieber?

A Near Offenbach.

Q Were you in Bieber on the 22nd of February, 1945

A Yes.

Q Do you remember anything unusual happening on that day?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what happened.

A On this day I was on guard duty at the village--at the city--exit of Bieber.

Q Continue.

A From an easterly direction came an American plane--six pilots parachuted in the direction of Muehlheim, and three pilots landed in the township of Bieber.

Q Then what happened?

A After a while everybody was running into the woods. I saw Groh coming out of the woods with a pilot.

Q Who was Groh?

A He was a laborer in the forest.

Q Then what happened?

A On my bicycle then I rode from my guard post to the crossing at the railroad tracks.

Q And then what did you do?

A At the railroad crossing, the population of Bieber took a hostile attitude towards the flier. Then I took the flier into custody and went with him in the direction of the police station Bieber. On the way to the police station the flier asked me where he was being taken. I told the flier he would be taken to the camp at Bad Homburg.

(Conn-Direct)

Q Then what happened?

A Then I delivered the flier at the police station. Then at the police station Albrecht came and Master Sergeant of the Police Lueck and searched the flier for weapons.

Q Then what happened?

A After he had been searched, the flier sat down on the table in the orderly room. Then the flier asked whether he could smoke, and Lueck gave him this permission. After he had smoked the first cigarette, he asked whether he could smoke another cigarette, and he got this permission from Lueck, too; and after he had smoked the second cigarette, the Police Director Eichel came and another officer unknown to me by name. Then the Police Director Eichel tore the scarf off his neck and hit the cigarette out of his mouth.

Q You say "off of his neck"--to whom are you referring?

A I am speaking about the flier. He had a scarf about his neck.

Q Then what happened?

A Then Police Director Eichel and Albrecht went into Albrecht's office.

Q Then what happened?

A We didn't hear what they were talking inside there. A few minutes later they left the office again through the orderly room; and, while leaving through the orderly room, in the door Police Director Eichel said, "We will be done away with."

(Como-Direct)

Q Now, in addition to Albrecht, Lueck and Eichel, who else was in the police station at that time?

A Nearly the entire crew of the police--Heider, Eichel 1, Eichel 2, Dietrich, Ehmes and Lueck--these are the ones.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Goehrendt?

A Yes.

Q Was he there?

A Goehrendt was in the orderly room for a few minutes and then he left it again.

Q Who was Goehrendt?

A Goehrendt was First Sergeant of the police.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Kiwitt?

A No. I know him only by name--what his position was--but otherwise I don't know him.

Q Do you know whether or not he was in the police station?

A Only afterwards I heard that this was Captain of the police force, Kiwitt. I didn't know him before.

Q Would you recognize Albrecht if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, point him out.

A Number 8.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness indicates the accused Albrecht, Number 8.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Goehrendt if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Number 10.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Goehrendt, Number 10.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Michel if you saw him again?

A Number six, yes.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Michel, wearing number 6.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Now you said Michel said "this man will be killed." What happened after that?

A Afterwards Albrecht, Michel went into the yard.

Q Then what happened?

A After some time Koller came into the orderly room and took his carbine, loaded it and took the flier into the back yard.

Q Would you know Koller if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Number 9.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Koller, number 9.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Now did Koller go out of the police station with the flier after he had loaded his carbine?

(Como-Direct)

A Yes, he took him into the yard.

Q Then what happened?

A After a while then Moller went along the Rebstock with the flier.

Q Do you mean Rebstock Strasse?

A Yes, the street Rebstock.

Q Who else went with Moller and the flier?

A Later on Albrecht came into the room and said, "Como, you follow." Then Albrecht and Goehrendt left.

Q Did you go also?

A I waited for a while, and then I left, after Albrecht and Goehrendt.

Q And then what did you do?

A They walked in distances up to the forest.

Q Then what happened?

A Moller and the flier went up to the forest--the flier was walking right next to Moller, and then about 80 to a hundred meters behind them walked Albrecht and Goehrendt, and then another hundred to 150 meters behind Goehrendt and Albrecht I followed, and at the same time the distance between Moller and the flier and Albrecht and Goehrendt increased all the time.

Q Now were Albrecht and Goehrendt armed?

A They both had their pistols.

Q Now how far is the woods you are referring to from the police station?

A From the police station I would say a walk of 20 minutes--a 20-minute walk.

Q Now was the flier armed when they took him out of the police station?

A No, he had no weapon.

Q Did you go up to the woods?

A I hadn't reached the forest yet when two shots were fired.

Q Who did you see Moller at that time?

A At this moment when the shots were fired, I didn't see him.

Q Did you see Moller just before the shots were fired?

A Moller went into the forest with the flier, and he hadn't reached the end of the forest yet when two shots were fired.

Q Now, when you saw Moller walk into the woods, where was the flier--in front of him, back of him, or where?

A Up to the forest, as long as I could see them, they went side by side.

Q Were they walking or running?

A They walked fast.

Q How long after they entered the woods did you hear the shots fired?

A Let's say five minutes.

Q Now, after the flier and Moller entered the woods, did you see Albrecht and Cochrandt?

A Yes, I saw Albrecht and Cochrandt at the end of the woods.

Q And they were behind Moller and the flier, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q When what is ened?

A I went into the forest, up to the path, and there Albrecht came to me and said, "Moller has done one thing for us."

Q Did he say anything else?

INTERPRETER: Just a minute please. "Moller has done one thing for us."

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Did he say anything else?

A "And you stay here and don't let any civilians go to the body."

Q What happened after that.

A I was standing 20 meters away from the body. Twenty minutes later I was relieved by Michel L.

End Ta 78
Mac fols

Q How farwas the flyer's body from the edge of the woods when you saw it?

A That is a very narrow forest. The entire forest is only 500 meters wide.

Q How was the flyer dressed all during this time?

A He had felt shoes and this full one-piece uniform.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you carry a weaponwhile you were on guard?

A Yes.

Q All during the time when you were following the pilot, Moller, Albrecht, and Goehrendt, were you also armed?

A Yes.

Q You said when this man Groh came towards the railroad crossing with the pilot the population was hostile to the pilot. What do you mean by the words "hostile to the pilot"?

A They yelled, "Beat him to death."

Q How many people were there at about that time?

A It might have been 200, 300 people. All people were on the street.

Q Was the expression "beat him to death" or words to that effect repeated once or more than one time?

A They were used several times.

Q Did you feel it necessary in your capacity as a policeman to hurry the pilot to the station to protect him from the population?

A Yes. At the police station I said, "If I would have known that this would happen to the flyer, I would have taken him to the Waldhof--to the anti-aircraft detachment."

(Como - Cross)

Q At the time the pilot was in the station was there a crowd in front of the station?

A There were approximately 200 people standing in front of the police station.

Q Were there many adults in the crowd?

A Yes, mostly adults; children too.

Q Did you hear the crowd or anyone in the crowd repeat the same remarks you heard at the railroad crossing?

A No, because I was inside the police station and saw them only through the window.

Q When Michel came into the room and knocked the cigarette out of the flyer's mouth, was anything said there to the effect that Albrecht and Lueck were being too nice to the flyer?

A I didn't hear that.

Q All during the time, beginning with the time the flyer left the police station, do you tell this court that you were always behind Moller, the Pilot, Albrecht, and Goehrendt?

A Yes; behind them.

Q Was there ever a time when you were between the pilot and Albrecht?

A No. First came Moller and the pilot, then Goehrendt and Albrecht, and then I came about 100 meters or a little bit more behind them, because I came another way.

Q This road that was taken which led to the woods, was that one of the ways for going from Fieber to Offenbach?

(Como - Cross)

A The way they took, this too was a way to Offenbach. You can get to Offenbach this way, too, but that is the way to the forest.

Q As you walk along that road in the direction of the forest would you take a right-hand turn to go into the woods?

A From the police station you can walk pretty nearly straight ahead to get into the forest.

Q Was there a branch of that street which turned away from the forest?

A Before you enter the forest there is a Neusenstammer Road.

Q Were Moller and the pilot continuously in your view?

A Yes. I could observe them exactly which way they walked.

Q Did you see Moller and the pilot turn into that street--Neusenstammerstrasse?

A Up to the Neusenstammer Road I could observe Moller and the flyer. That is where the forest starts.

Q Did you see Moller at one time get off the road and hear Albrecht ask him where he was going?

A No.

Q I think you said that all during the time Albrecht and Goehrandt followed about 30 to 100 meters behind Moller and the pilot. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Were Albrecht and Goehrandt keeping together as they followed behind Moller and the pilot?

A Yes.

Q I believe you said that as Moller turned into the woods with the pilot the distance between Moller and the pilot and Albrecht and Goehrandt increased. Is that correct?

A Up to the forest. I didn't see what happened in the forest.

Q What was the distance between Moller and the pilot, on the one hand, and Albrecht and Goehrendt, on the other hand, at the time Moller and the pilot turned into the woods?

A I said so before. The flyer was walking next to Moller and the distance between Moller and the flyer on one side, and Goehrendt and Albrecht on the other side, was a distance I mentioned before.

Q At one time you mentioned a distance of 80 to 100 meters, and shortly after that you mentioned a distance of 100 to 150 meters. At what time did the distance between increase from 80 to 100 to 100 and 150 meters?

A Yes. I said the distance between me and them.

Q Was anyone with Moller, to your knowledge, at the time the shots were fired?

A What happened in the forest later on I didn't see.

Q Were Albrecht and Goehrendt in your sight at the time you heard the shots?

A I saw Albrecht and Goehrendt only up to the edge of the forest.

Q In your opinion were the shots you heard fired by the same weapon or the same type of weapon?

A It was two carbine shots.

Q Between Moller, Albrecht, and Goehrendt, who was armed with a carbine?

A Moller.

PROSECUTION: May I ask the reporter to read back that last question and answer?

(Thereupon the reporter read the last question and answer.)

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q When Moller disappeared in the woods with the flyer, how far behind were Albrecht and Goehrendt?

A I said up to the edge of the forest I could observe Moller, Albrecht, and Goehrendt. After they disappeared in the forest I couldn't.

Q I don't think you answered my question. Did Moller and the flyer disappear in the forest at the same time as Albrecht and Goehrendt?

A No.

Q That means first Moller and the flyer disappeared in the forest?

A Yes.

Q And how far away from the edge of the forest were Albrecht and Goehrendt at this time?

A As I said before, the distance between the flyer and Moller on one side, and Albrecht and Goehrendt on the other side, before they entered the woods, was 80 to 100 meters.

Q When you heard the shots fired did you look towards the spot?

A I couldn't see the spot from where I was standing.

Q Could you not see the edge of the forest from the place where you were standing?

A No.

Q You said before that Albrecht told you "Moller has done one thing for us." How is this supposed to be understood? It is difficult to understand the language.

(Como - Cross)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. As senior defense counsel I withdraw the question. I will not let you ask that question.

PRESIDENT: Question withdrawn.

DR. RAU: I have to object to this decision, as much as I appreciate the great experience of the chief defense counsel. It is very important for the court to know what is meant with this sentence.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am not going to argue with associate counsel, but I am not going to let him ask the witness what the witness thinks somebody else meant by what somebody else said.

PRESIDENT: The interpretation is a matter for the court to decide.

PROSECUTION: Any further questions by the defense?

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What were you supposed to be doing walking 100 to 150 meters behind Albrecht and Goehrendt? Did you have any orders as to what you were supposed to be doing?

PROSECUTION: I do not know what the answer to this question might be, but in cases of this kind I would like to ask the court, if there is a possibility of incrimination, that the witness be warned.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be warned that any statement he makes can be used against him, if it tends to incriminate him.

PROSECUTION: Also, I want the court to warn him that in that case he does not have to answer the question.

(Como - Cross)

THE INTERPRETER: I told him already.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you please read the question?

(Whereupon the reporter read the question, as follows:

"Q What were you supposed to be doing walking 100 to 150 meters behind Albrecht and Goehrendt? Did you have any orders as to what you were supposed to be doing?")

PROSECUTION: I object to that because there are two questions in one--did he have orders and what was he supposed to be doing. I ask the defense to please rephrase his question.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What was your mission that you were executing when you walked 100 to 150 meters behind Albrecht and Goehrendt?

A I was supposed to be a guard. I guess from what I saw afterwards that I was supposed to be a guard near the corpse.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Would you mind reading my question?

(Whereupon the reporter read the last question.)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did you receive any orders from anyone prior to the time you started out on this walking behind Albrecht and Goehrendt?

A No. I had received only the order from Albrecht "Come on. You follow us."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

PROSECUTION: No further questions by the prosecution. Any questions by any members of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

(Como - Cross)

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

PROSECUTION: Call Oskar Lueck.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

PROSECUTION: Call Oskar Lueck.

OSKAR LUECK, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name and give the court the correct spelling.

A Oskar Lueck, L-u-e-c-k.

Q Where do you live?

A In Offenbach-Main.

Q What is your business?

A Police first sergeant.

Q How old are you?

A 50.

Q In February 1945 were you employed by the German police?

A Yes.

Q In what capacity?

A First sergeant of the police.

Q Where were you on duty in 1945?

A In Offenbach-Bieber.

Q Directing your attention to the 22nd of February 1945, did anything unusual happen on that day in Bieber?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court what happened.

A On the 22nd of February 1945, around noontime, the crew of an American plane parachuted over Bieber. I can't give the exact number. Part of them was driven in the direction of Lulheim and three crew members came over Bieber in the direction of Obertshausen. Approximately half an hour later there was the first signal that the air raid would be over soon. Since during the air raid I was in the bunker at Bieber, at that time I intended to go to the police station.

(Lueck-Direct)

When I came to Aschaffenburg Street I saw a great crowd coming. In front of the crowd walked a policeman, an American flyer and a civilian named Groh. When I came to the corner of Aschaffenburg Street and Rebstock, I stopped and let the three pass me. After these three had passed me I kept the crowd back. These three, this group then went into the police station. I too went into the police station. There, First Lieutenant of the police Albrecht and I searched the flyer for weapons immediately.

Q Before you continue with your story I want to show you Prosecution Exhibit P-108 and ask you to tell the court what that is a photograph of.

A That is the police station Bieber.

Q Is that the police station that you have just been talking about?

A Yes.

Q Continue with your story.

A We didn't find any weapons on the flyer. He had only a neckerchief, a flyer's ration, two packages of cigarettes, a lighter, his identification papers, -- only these five things.

Q Then what happened?

A After we had searched the flyer we put these things on the table.

Q You said there was an identification card among the things on the flyer. Did you look at that card?

A Yes.

Q Was there any name on it?

A Yes.

Q What was the name?

A William Duke.

(Lueck-Direct)

Q Then what happened?

A The flyer sat down on a chair near the table. He asked for something but he spoke English. We didn't understand English but through gestures he indicated that he wanted some water. He got the water and was sitting on the table.

Q How was the flyer dressed at that time?

A He had a flyer's uniform on and had high field boots.

Q Did he have anything else on besides the uniform?

A No, nothing else.

Q How was he clothed around the neck?

A Around the neck he had a scarf.

Q Then what happened?

A After he was sitting there for awhile; in the meantime First Lieutenant Albrecht had gone into his office. He pointed at the cigarettes and made me understand that he wanted to smoke. I said, "Yes" and so he took his cigarettes and lighted one or his lighter.

Q Are you referring to the flyer?

A Yes, about the flyer.

Q Then what happened?

A At this time the First Lieutenant Albrecht came out of his room again, went over to the table, picked up the lighter, looked at it and said, "This one isn't any better than ours" and he put it back on the table and Albrecht went back again to his room.

Q Then what happened?

A Then the food was brought in and everybody went into the room to get the food. This moment I was alone in the room with the flyer and I called somebody else should come, so the Police Corporal Dietrich came and sat down there too. He put on his helmet and took the belt with his pistol.

(Lueck-Direct)

Q Before Deitrich came, did you say anything else to anyone in the ro m?

A No.

Q Then what happened?

A Then the police corporal Como came into the room and sat down near the telephone.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Eichel?

A Yes.

Q Did you know him at that time?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was the police director.

Q Where?

A Offenbach.

Q At the time that Dietrich came into the room or prior to that time, did you have any conversations about Eichel?

A No.

Q About what time of the day did all this happen?

A Around noontime.

Q Would you recognize Albrecht if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom will you please point him out?

A Yes, number 8 (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Albrecht wearing number 8.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Eichel if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom will you point him out?

Tk [illegible]

A Number 6 (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Eichel wearing number 6.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What happened after that?

A We were sitting there for a short while. Then we heard a call outside, "attention."

Q Then what happened?

A We all jumped up at attention, the flyer too, and the flyer was standing with his back to the wall, I was standing in the middle of the room, Dietrich at the window and Sand near the telephone.

Q Then what happened?

A In the meantime the flyer had taken another, a second cigarette and up to this moment he had smoked this about halfway. Obviously the police director had seen that he had been sitting and that he was smoking and he yelled at me immediately, "Who has given this man permission to sit down? Where did he get the cigarettes from? Who gave him the fire?" And at the same time he took the scarf off the flyer's neck and knocked the cigarette out of his hands. He had it in his left hand.

Q Did you know a man by the name of Kivitt?

A Yes.

Q Was he there in the room at that time?

A Yes, he came together with the police director.

Q Who was Kivitt?

A He was a captain of the police.

Q Did Kivitt say anything to you or anybody at that time?

A Yes, to me.

Q What did he say?

A After the police director Eichel had yelled at me in this way, Captain Kivitt looked me up from head to toe and said, "You are a fine man."

(Lueck-Ircot)

Q Did he say anything else?

A Then the police director and first lieutenant Albrecht went into Albrecht's office and then he said again to me a few times more, "You are a fine man." And then he said, "It seems you too haven't lost anything yet."

Q Look around the courtroom and see if Kiwitt is in the courtroom.

A Yes.

Q Will you point him out to the court?

A Number 7 (indicating).

Q Is that the same Kiwitt you have been talking about?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Kiwitt wearing number 7.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What happened after that?

A Then the first lieutenant Albrecht and the police director came out of Albrecht's office and went out into the yard. Kiwitt followed.

Q Before he went out in the yard did he say anything to you?

A No, nothing to me.

Q Then what happened?

A They were gone for a short while when Albrecht returned and I was standing next to the door and he said to me, "Get ready. He will be done away with."

Q Did you say anything in answer to that?

A I said, "I am not going to do that."

Q What did Albrecht say?

A Albrecht then repeated again and said, 'This is on orders of the police director."

(Lueck-Direct)

Q What did you say?

A I said, "No, I am not going to do it. I am not going with you."

Q Then what happened?

A Then all the men who were in the orderly room disappeared and then Albrecht said, "Two men have to get ready," but nobody made any start to get ready. Then Albrecht said to Voller to get ready. Voller walked over to his closet right away, put on his steel helmet, took a carbine, loaded it and gave the sign to the flyer like he should follow him out of the room.

Q Did you know a man at that time by the name of Goehrendt?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A He was assistant to Albrecht.

Q At the time Voller loaded his carbine, did you see Goehrendt?

A No.

Q Did you see him at any time after that?

A Yes, afterwards, because later on I was in the orderly room in the front. He had been on the road to look for parachuted fliers and I hadn't seen him when he had returned and when Voller and the flyer left the room Albrecht said to Goehrendt -- and only at that time I noticed that Goehrendt was back again -- "Come with me." And then these two went into the yard.

Q Would you recognize Goehrendt if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q Will you look around the courtroom and see if he is in the courtroom?

A Yes.

Q Will you point him out for the court?

A Number 10 (indicating).

(Lueck-Direct)

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Goehrendt wearing number 10.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Moller if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom will you please point him out?

A Yes, number 9.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Moller, number 9.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did you see Goehrendt after that?

A Yes.

Q What happened?

A Approximately a half hour later Goehrendt returned very excited and pale and said to me, "Moller has done one thing for us."

Q Did you have any conversation with Goehrendt about where that was supposed to have taken place?

A Yes, I said then, "Why? What happened?" He said, "Moller shot while half of Rieber was present."

Q Did he say where it took place?

A Yes, I asked him and he said back there at the settlement Tempelsee.

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit P-109 which is a map of Offenbach. Will you tell the court whether or not that Tempelsee is the place that you refer to is on this map?

A Yes, over here (indicating).

Q I direct your attention to a red cross at the place that you have just pointed out. Does that red cross indicate a forest next to the Tempelsee community?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q When were you first examined by any American authority with respect to your present testimony?

A In 1945, summer or fall; I can't say exactly.

Q Do you remember by whom?

A I don't know the gentleman.

Q Do you remember where?

A Yes, in Offenbach.

Q Did you at that time sign any statement about this case?

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Have you a copy of that statement?

PROSECUTION: No.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q When next, after the summer or fall of 1945 did you discuss this case with any American personnel?

A In January 1945.

Q Do you know by whom that was?

A Yes.

Q Will you tell me who?

A That was Military Government, Offenbach, an investigator named Zukunft.

Q Did you give a written statement at that time?

A Yes.

Q On either of these two occasions were you given a copy of your statement?

A No.

(Lucok-Cross)

hen was the third time?

A That was Easter, 1944.

o you know by whom?

That was an American too. It was an officer and one man without indication of his rank.

Do you know where they came from?

A No.

hen was the fourth time?

A No, afterwards nobody else was there. That was the last time -- and now here, when I came here.

Did you talk this over with Peter Como at any time?

A Only here now. Before, I didn't see Como at all any more.

hen was the last time that you saw Como before you saw him in court?

A The 21st of January 1947.

Was present when you were interrogated by the American officers?

A Yes, I was alone.

Who was present in the office when you had this talk with Albrecht about your going alone?

Como was running around, Dietrich, Pickel, -- two Pichels -- and a few others that were all running around and everybody tried to beat it.

In your opinion should the statement made by Albrecht to you have been heard by Como or some other witness?

[illegible] The same statement was going on and whether they heard it or not it would [illegible] you.

Well, when you said that they all disappeared, did you not mean to tell it to mean that they knew you were given the order or they disappeared in order to avoid being given the order themselves?

A It is possible, it is possible.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to suspend with this witness if the court does not mind. It is almost twelve o'clock.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until one-thirty.

(Whereupon at 1157 hours the court recessed until 1330 hours.)

(Thereupon the Court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the Court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and the interpreter are present.

SKAR Ivar, called as a witness by the Prosecution, resumed the stand and being reminded he was still under oath testified through an interpreter as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Mr. Lwok, you testified this morning that Lehrendt came back to the police station and said something to you, will you repeat the statement that Lehrendt made to you?

A Lehrendt did not say anything to me in the evening at noon, after the flyer had been thrown down and then he said so things.

Q What did he say to you on the occasion you have in mind?

INTERPRETER SCHWARZ: I am sorry I cannot translate the answer of the witness. It is an idiomatic expression and I would have to give the sense of it.

PROSECUTION: I think that perhaps in all fairness it requires a note and from that what was expressed to him by the Kriminalgericht and in one sense to which we took serious objection. I discussed this thing with Dr. Seibert as to when his translation would be and he has given the same or in open court.

INTERPRETER SCHWARZ: I can give only the answer that I believe to be right.

PROSECUTION: I ask the court to direct the interpreter to give the translation which he believes to be right, which is what the interpreter always does anyway.

PRESIDENT: Will you give us what you believe to be correct.

INTERPRETER SCHWARZ: "Keller put us in a mess".

(Cross-examination)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is diametrically opposite to what was translated by the other interpreter this morning. I have no further questions.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by the Court?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Pardon me, Dr. Trost has one question.

PRESIDENT: The Court would like to have that statement submitted in writing to them.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Perhaps we could have the interpreter dictate the German spelling into the record.

PRESIDENT: All right.

INTERPRETER SCHMIDT: Weller hat was eine Ausbildung.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by any member of the Court?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Dr. Trost has a question of this witness.

QUESTIONS BY DR. TROST:

Q You have stated that you saw Albrecht and Bichel when they came out of the room from Albrecht's, is that correct?

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I interrupt, may I ask the Court in its research as to the true meaning of that expression, just read into the record, to have in mind that it is an idiomatic expression commonly used around Wiesbaden, the district from which these people come?

QUESTIONS BY DR. TROST:

Q At that moment, how close was Conz to you?

A About one meter or one meter and fifty centimeters.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibits 110 and 110-A?

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence a handwritten, sworn statement of the accused Hermann Moller, taken before Harry Saenger, 1st Lieutenant, Air Corps, and sworn to at Dachau, Germany, 3 October 1945, which document has previously been marked Prosecution Exhibit 110 for identification and a true and correct translation which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 110-A. We ask they be received in evidence, and made a part of the record as Prosecution Exhibits 110 and 110-A.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The same objection to the introduction of sworn exhibits by any of the accused.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 110 and 110-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 110 and 110-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 110 and 110-A are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested to read Prosecution Exhibit 110-A the English translation.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 110-A, the English translation of Prosecution Exhibit 110, followed by a reading in the German language by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibit 111 and 111-A.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution now offers in evidence a handwritten sworn statement of the accused Hermann Moller, sworn to the 9th day of May 1946 before Walter M. Creek, Investigating Examiner. The original statement has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 111 and the true and correct translation has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 111-A. Prosecution requests they be received in evidence and marked Prosecution Exhibit 111 and 111-A and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Same objection as to the previous exhibits.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 111 and 111-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 111 and 111-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 111 and 111-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested to read these exhibits.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 111-A, the English translation of Prosecution 111, followed by a reading in German by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: Will you please mark these documents for identification as Prosecution Exhibits 112 and 112-A?

PROSECUTION: Prosecution now offers in evidence a handwritten, sworn statement of the accused Wilhelm Albrecht, sworn to on 17 October 1945 at Dachau, Germany before Werner Conn, 2nd Lt., Investigating Examiner; this document has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 112. The Prosecution also offers a true and correct translation which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 112-A for identification.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Same objection, may it please the Court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 112 and 112-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 112 and 112-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 112 and 112-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested to read the exhibits.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

PROSECUTION: I hand you a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 113 for identification and another document, the English translation, and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 113A for identification.

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits No. 113 and 113 A for identification.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution now offers in evidence a typewritten and also partially written in handwriting, sworn statement of the accused, Goehrendt, sworn to at Dachau, Germany, 28 December 1945. This document has previously been marked Prosecution Exhibit 113 for identification and a true and correct translation thereof marked Prosecution Exhibit 113A. I ask the court to admit these documents in evidence and that they be made part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection by the defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Same objection, may it please the court, as to the previous exhibit.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits No. 113 and 113 A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution now offers in evidence the sworn testimony of the accused Kiwitt taken at Zuffenhausen, German on 3 June 1946 by M. M. Crook, civilian investigator-examiner, War Crimes Branch, APO 633, sworn to the 4th of June 1946. This document has been marked Exhibit 114 for identification. Prosecution asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Some objection, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibit Number 11 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 114 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 114, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Before the reading of this document at this time I would like to call the court's attention to the fact that there will be some evidence from this point on submitted in connection with both Charges VII and VIII. There are some confessions, some pathologist's reports and photographs that necessarily combine the two charges.

Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 114.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

PROSECUTION: Has the defense any objection to my omitting the qualifications of the reporter and interpreter?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

(Thereupon prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit P-114, followed by a translation thereof in the German language by the interpreter.)

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Thereupon at 1500 hours the court recessed for thirty minutes.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all members of the court, all members of the prosecution, all members of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 115 and 115-A for identification.

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence a typewritten statement dated May 29, 1945, taken at Offenbach, of the accused Hermann Moller, which has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 115, and a true and correct translation thereof which has been marked for identification Exhibit 115-A, and ask that they be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Same objection, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 115 and 115-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 115 and 115-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 115 and 115-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Prosecution Exhibit 115-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 115-A, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 115 by the court interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 116 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 116 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence the sworn testimony of Hermann Moller, taken at Dachau, Germany, the 8th of May, 1946, by M. M. Crook, Civilian Investigator-Examiner, War Crimes Branch, APO 633; which has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 116 for identification, and askr that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Same objection, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 116 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested of the court to read Prosecution Exhibit 116.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

PROSECUTION: Does the defense have any objection to skipping the qualifications of the interpreter?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

PROSECUTION: Does the defense counsel have any objection to skipping the name and residence and all that?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 116, followed by a translation of the same into the German language by the court interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 117 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 117 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: It is stipulated by and between the defense and the accused and the prosecution that if the witness Captain Smith, who previously testified before this court, was present, he would testify that Captain Marvin Kuschner, Medical Corps, U. S. Army, is now in the United States of America. Does the defense agree to that stipulation?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We subscribe to it.

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence an affidavit of Captain Marvin Kuschner, Medical Corps, and accompanying true and correct translation thereof, and attached photograph to which reference is made in that affidavit. This document has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 117 for identification. Prosecution asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, thedefense objects — no objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 117 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 117.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 117, followed by a reading of the same in the German language by the court interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 118 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 118 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence an affidavit of Captain Marvin Kurchner and a true and correct translation attached thereto and a photograph attached thereto, to which reference is made in the affidavit. This document has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 118 for identification. Prosecution asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 118 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Prosecution Exhibit 118.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

PROSECUTION: Does the defense have any objection if I omit the qualifications of the medical officer, the same one in the preceding affidavit?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 118, followed by a reading of the same in the German language by the court interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 119 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 119 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence an affidavit of Marvin Kuschner, Captain, Medical Corps, with accompanying true and correct translation and photograph attached thereto, to which reference has been made in the affidavit. This has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 119 for identification. Prosecution asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense objects to the introduction of that photograph, which is a picture showing the point of entry into the abdomen of a bullet hole. Our objection is based on the fact that the picture itself is highly prejudicial to the rights of the accused in that it shows behind the body of the deceased named in this picture four other graves which have nothing whatever to do with this case.

There is no way to block them out of the picture.

PROSECUTION: We ask the court to recall the theory of the prosecution throughout this entire case as a criminal conspiracy to commit homicide and murder on a large scale, and any evidence along those lines which tends to prove a conspiracy has probative value and should be accepted by the court. The particular purpose, however, for introducing this document is the medical officer's report on the bullet wound in the stomach of the flier Dacke. If the court feels that the presence of the crosses in the back is not relevant, the court has the discretionary power to disregard it. This document has probative value and should be received.

DUKE

Duke

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have no objection to the report itself, may it please the court. The objection is to the picture, and I don't think the prosecution can prove a conspiracy to commit war crimes merely by the introduction of photographs which bear names above crosses. It is going to be hard for a court composed of human individuals to look at a picture and then block out of it the most significant part of the picture.

PROSECUTION: Will it be acceptable to the court if the crosses that appear in the back, bearing names we are not familiar with, if we put a paster across them and block them out?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That would meet my objection completely, as long as the graves were blocked out of the picture.

PRESIDENT: The court will disregard it either way.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If that is done, I withdraw my objection.

PRESIDENT: The defense having no objection to the photograph as it now exists, Prosecution Exhibit 119 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Prosecution Exhibit 119.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

PROSECUTION: If you have no objection, I will skip the preliminary qualifications.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: None at all.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 120 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 120 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence an affidavit of Captain Marvin Kaschner and accompanying true and correct translation thereof and photograph attached thereto, to which reference has been made in said affidavit. This has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 120 for identification. We ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: There is no objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 120 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 120 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 120, is attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Prosecution Exhibit 120.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 120, followed by a reading of the same in the German language by the court interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution Exhibits 121 and 121-A for identification.

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence a document which has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 121 for identification, and which is a pathologist's affidavit of Marvin Kuschner, Captain, Medical Corps, which was sworn to by him on the 29th of April, 1946, with accompanying exhibits. I ask that this exhibit be received in evidence and made part of the record.

I would like to call the court's attention to the fact that this is an instance where the piece of evidence is also in support of Charge VIII.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The only objection we have, may it please the court -- we have no objection to the exhibits -- is that the affidavit itself refers to three individuals, one named in Charge VII, to which there can be no objection, and one named in Charge VIII, to which we offer no objection. But it also refers to another individual who is not named in the case whatsoever, and I think it ought to be offered without that part of it which deals with the certain named person, or only such part of it as deals with named persons.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution also offers in evidence a document which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 121-A for identification, which is a true and correct translation of Prosecution Exhibit 121. We ask that that be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objection, except to such part of the translation of the record dealing with one Fraser, who is not a part of this case.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 121 and 121-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 121 and 121-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 121 and 121-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested of the court to read Prosecution Exhibit 121.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 121-A, affidavit of Captain Marvin Kuschner, followed by the reading of Prosecution Exhibit 121, affidavit of Marvin Kusconner, in the German language by the interpreter.)

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I would like to ask the court to reconsider its former ruling on Colonel Berman's motion to strike from this report any part that refers to the man Frazer. It has no purpose in this case whatsoever. The prosecution has not charged any of these people with the death of Frazer, and there is no evidence here as to how he died. It does not make any difference to this case, and I think it is possibly a reversible error. It has no purpose in the case, and I think that Colonel Berman's motion should be sustained.

PROSECUTION: During the course of this trial we expect to prove other murders. Charge I charges the accused with the commission of various murders at sundry places within the then German Reich, individually and collectively, as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators, and accomplices; did engage in, formulate and participate in a common plan or design to commit or cause to be committed violations of the laws of war, and pursuant thereto did wilfully, deliberately, and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet, order and participate in, or took a connecting part in the subjection of members of the armed forces of nations then at war with the then German Reich, who were then and there surrendered and under the prisoners of war, to cruelties and mistreatments, including killings.

MAJOR SAXON: Could I add one more word, if the court please? That would be like saying that every person who lost his life over here in the European Theater lost it by some act of these accused. Many fliers were shot down and were buried by the German populace. To charge these accused with the death of this one particular prisoner is certainly out of the realm of possibility in this case and should be stricken.

PROSECUTION: Yes, we intend to prove many murders, because this is a criminal conspiracy, and any murders committed in Wehrkreise 12 can be accepted by the court in support of a common design and criminal conspiracy.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess in place.

(Thereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

The motion to strike that portion of Prosecution Exhibit 121 as pertaining to Charles Frazer is sustained.

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence the sworn testimony of Wilhelm Albrecht, taken at Dachau on the 14th day, 1946. This document has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 122 for identification.

We ask that it be received in evidence and be made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The same objection made as to the receiving of a sworn confession.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 122 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: This is five pages of testimony. Does the court desire that I read it now?

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

(Whereupon the court adjourned at 1700 hours until 0900 hours, 24 January 1947.)

(Thereupon court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: If the court please, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Rau, who is absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

Prosecution requests permission of the court to read prosecution exhibit number 122.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit Number 122, followed by a translation thereof into the German language by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibit Numbers 123 and 123-A for identification, please?

PROSECUTION: Call John Stegner.

JOHN STEGNER, US Civilian, recalled as a witness by the Prosecution, having been previously sworn testified further as follows:

(Whereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language.)

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Are you the same John Stegner who has previously testified in this cause?

A I am.

Q Were you employed in connection with the pre-trial investigation of the case now on trial before this Court?

A I was.

Q What efforts have been made to secure the attendance before this Court of the French witnesses: Josef Hunter, William Jordy and Eugene Schneider?

A On December 6, 1946 the Apprehension Section of the War Crimes Group, Augsburg, made a request to the French liaison detachment, Augsburg, War Crimes Group, that these witnesses who are living in France, Strassbourg be extradited for the purpose of testifying in this cause.

Q Have these witnesses been obtained and are they here now available to testify?

A They have not been obtained and are not here to testify.

Q Were diligent efforts made by the Apprehension Section to obtain their presence here?

A Efforts ---

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment to that question.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know whether or not the three persons I have named are French citizens residing in France at this time?

A Yes. They are citizens of France and reside in France.

Q Has the French Government granted extradition of these people?

A To my knowledge the French Government has not as yet granted the extradition of these witnesses. I do know of my own knowledge that the request for apprehension has been forwarded by the French liaison but we have heard no more.

PROSECUTION: No further questions. Does the Defense wish to question?

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q May I see the paper you were looking at?

A Yes. (Witness handed paper to Defense Counsel).

Q Is the evidence that you gave to the Court about the date the extradition was asked for based on your own knowledge or was that information conveyed to you?

A Based upon my own knowledge, upon a conversation I had with Captain Smith in charge of apprehension of all witnesses in this case.

Q You say that on 6 December a request was made for these three witnesses and that to your personal knowledge that request was forwarded by the French liaison officer?

A It was forwarded to the French liaison officer.

Q By someone in Augsburg?

A That is correct.

Q What follow up had been made, to your knowledge, of the original request for these men dated December 6?

A I personally called Captain Smith from Dachau on Monday or Tuesday of this week and asked him what developments had taken place in our requests for these witnesses.

Q Did Captain Smith ---

A He replied that he had contacted the French liaison, Augsburg and they had informed him that his request for extradition had been forwarded to the French authorities.

Q Did Captain Smith tell you when he made that request by phone?

A I do not remember if he told me the exact date but I know the follow up call has been in the last week or ten days.

Q So that the diligent efforts you say were made to procure these witnesses consisted of a request for them to get the witnesses forwarded to them December 6 - to the French liaison officer and a phone call to Captain Smith to that same officer; as a result of which you learned that the request had been forwarded to someone higher up, is that correct -- plus your phone call to Captain Smith last Monday?

A That is correct.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No further examination.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did you make a phone call to Captain Smith yesterday?

A Yes.

Q Did he tell you that the witnesses had been secured?

A He said they had not been secured.

PROSECUTION: Any further examination by the Defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

QUESTION: Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness will be excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence a statement in French, signed by the Police Superintendent Steinmetz, Ministry of Interior, General Department of National Security, Strasbourg, France, referring to testimony taken by him of one Josef Kontor. This has been marked for identification as Exhibit 123. We also offer in evidence a true and correct translation thereof marked Prosecution Exhibit 123-A and ask these documents be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the Court, the Defense objects to the introduction of these exhibits on several grounds. First, on the ground that diligent efforts to procure these witnesses was not made. We submit that an effort was initiated on December 6th and followed through to the extent indicated here which in our opinion is not a diligent effort. Secondly, this is supposed to be a true and correct copy of a statement but the signature on the true copy is illegible so that there is no evidence before this Court to indicate that this is a true copy in as much as the Prosecution does not have the original signed copy. Furthermore I invite the Court's attention to the Manual for the Trial of War Crimes at Dachau, Section 280. That Section is the Bible for the introduction of statements in the absence of witnesses themselves. It discusses the introduction of statements when the witnesses cannot be procured and opens up with a statement to that effect. It goes on to say that "...such testimony may be introduced if it was procured by an officer officially appointed to investigate war crimes". That situation can be understood because the person so operating or acting under orders is subject to control by the military authorities and subject to disciplinary control. It provides for some sort of safeguard in the taking of these statements. Here we are offered a true copy by someone unknown, of a statement obtained by some Frenchman, given by some other Frenchman with no safeguards whatsoever. Furthermore, -- and I am anticipating the contents of this statement -- this particular one is so obviously false, if it were to have any probative value at all then the Court would have to disregard all the Prosecution witnesses with respect to charge number seven. It talks of events not connected with the charges and in a most roundabout fashion. I could go on further but I think I have indicated enough to the Court as to the basis of our objection to this particular exhibit.

PROSECUTION: As this question may come up again, I beg the Court's permission to be heard at this time. At the beginning I offered this document and the Court has not seen it. I will tell the Court that it bears the official stamp of the Police Commissioner Steinmetz from Strasbourg and his signature. He says it is a certified and true copy above his signature and therefore we establish the presumption of the regularity of acts of an official. Coming now to the War Crimes Trial Manual -- and I recall this to the Court -- "The Court will admit such evidence as in its opinion will be in assistance in proving or disproving the charge or such as in its opinion would have probative value in the mind of a reasonable man". That is on page 107 of the Manual. On page 108 of the Trial Guide we find the following: "This rule permits the admission of any evidence which in the opinion of the Court is of probative value". I will remind the Court again, as I have done throughout this entire case, that all though at present moment we are offering particular proof to support charge number seven, we are continually, throughout the trial, offering evidence, from time to time, in support of charges one and two and we are proving criminal conspiracy. At the moment we are trying to prove the particular murder in charge seven and conspiracy. I would like to quote from Underhill on Evidence:

> "In proving a conspiracy any fact, or circumstance either direct or circumstantial tending to prove a concurring agreement to carry into effect a common purpose to commit a crime, is admissible and the Court will permit the evidence to take a wide range. The acts and statements of conspirators, even though remotely relating to the crime which is the object of the conspiracy, may be relevant as a part of the res gestae although otherwise irrelevant."

I have just quoted from paragraph 774, page 1406 from a Treatise on Law of Criminal Evidence, H. B. Underhill of New York Bar. I further quote from page 1407 of the same book "Evidence is admissible to show the carrying into effect of a conspiracy to commit a crime and many facts of no consequence in isolation may be proved because of the persuasiveness of their united effect".

DEFENSE C OUNSEL: There is no doubting the statement that this Court is authorized to receive hearsay testimony within a very wide range, it is so stated but the rule limiting the admission of written evidence is also stated and that is a limitation to the general rule. The reason for that is obvious. When you have a man on the witness stand facing the Court, the Court is composed of men of experience and has as its aid its experience in dealing with men and it sees the witness. The second rule limits the first one, as a matter of elementary justice to the accused in any particular case because there you do not even see the man. May it please the Court, I have tried and defended a good many conspiracy cases and I know that anything that is material or that contributes in the slightest degree to the consumation of the conspiracy is admissible. We do not deny that. However, you cannot introduce in evidence against named conspirators the acts of people not named as conspirators. That is fundamental. This charge names twenty two specific people and says they conspired together and that excludes everyone else but these twenty two people. If it was intended to bind these accused by the acts of others then these others should have been named, at least in general terms. The ordinary procedure is to say that John Doe or Richard Roe and others, whose names are unknown, did conspire. That was not done in this case. Some of the men named in these statements are not named as defendants and there is no general inclusive catch-all phrase. Is it going to be possible to blame these accused for everything everyone did in the whole Rhine-Westmark area without some language to that effect in these charges? I submit not, may it please the Court.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Thereupon at 0955 hours the Court recessed.)

Ts 28 1-24-47

(Thereupon the court recessed at 1035 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense; all the accused; the reporter and interpreter, are present.

May it please the court, there is a new interpreter to be sworn, Mr. Herbert Rosenstock.

(Whereupon Herbert Rosenstock, U. S. Civilian, was sworn as interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, to aid the court in its decision in the matter now before the court, the prosecution makes two suggestions. One, that the document about which there has been an argument before the court be examined by the Law Member who may advise the Court. Secondly, the prosecution consents that that part of the document referring to any other conspirator than the accused in the dock be not received in evidence.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Without waiving our objection, I have no objection to the suggestion but I should like to add this — that we have an additional objection to one or the other of the other two. For instance, we object to one of them on the ground it contains definite defamatory matter, matter of character, talk about beasts for instance. I mean that because while only one has been offered in evidence, there are three and as long as the Law Member is going to examine one document, he might just as well examine the three of them. I object to the three on the common ground I have stated, plus the additional objection that some of them are definitely character testimony.

PROSECUTION: I would like for the court to understand the prosecution objects strenuously to the defense putting his interpretation on what the document contains. He has told the Court what, in his opinion, the document contains and I object to that.

PRESIDENT: Let the documents be submitted to the Law Member.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: One is officially in the Record and the other two the Law Member might just as well look at now.

PROSECUTION: If the Court rules that this document can not be received in evidence, then I do not intend to offer the other two. I suggest that they be taken up one at a time.

PRESIDENT: One only will be submitted. Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, the prosecution withdraws its offer of Exhibits 123 and 123-A and offers these documents again in evidence, eliminating the names of persons therein who are not accused.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense stands on the objection as it originally stated, of course, with the exception of the objection it referred to people who were not accused.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits No. 123 and 123-A will be received in evidence as offered and made a part of the record.

(Whereupon the documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits No. 123 and 123-A for identification, were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits No. 123 and 123-A, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested to read Prosecution Exhibit No. 123-A.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit No. 123-A the English translation of the statement of Erie Steinmetz.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, this document is in French. I have an interpreter to be sworn who will translate the exhibit from the French into German.

PRESIDENT: The Court has appointed Yolanda E. Keller as court interpreter. She will be sworn.

(Whereupon Yolanda E. Keller, Swiss National, was sworn as court interpreter, who translated Prosecution's Exhibit 123 from French into German.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter two documents and request that they be marked Prosecution's Exhibits 124 and 124A for identification.

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence an affidavit from the Police Superintendent Steinmetz, Strassbourg, concerning testimony given him by one Guillaume Jordy. This document has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 124 for identification, and the Prosecution offers a true and correct translation thereof, which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 124A for identification; and Prosecution asks that these documents be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Now the same objection, may it please the Court, as was made to Prosecution's Exhibits 123 and 123A. I would like to particularly ask if the record doesn't show the two names in Prosecution's Exhibits 123 and 123A excluded, because if you take the statement as it was read into the record, the man talks about four and says these Americans were "supposed to have been killed", giving the impression that these two killed the four of them, because that's not the sense of the statement; and I wanted to know how that could be guarded against--giving that impression. Of course, the mere fact that I say so may take care of that.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution's Exhibits 124 and 124A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 124 and 124A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 124 and 124A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Permission is requested of the Court to read Exhibit 124A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution's Exhibit 124A, an affidavit of Eric Steinmetz, followed by a translation of Prosecution's Exhibit 124 from French into German by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 125 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 125 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence a report of burial of William A. Duke, an official document signed by Clyde C. Collin, Major, Quartermaster Corps, Headquarters, First Quartermaster Group, and ask that it be made a part of the record. It has been marked for identification as Prosecution's Exhibit 125.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objections.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution asks the Court's permission to dispense with the reading of this document.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 125 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record, and the reading will be dispensed with.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, that concludes the Prosecution's main evidence directed in support of Charge Number 7. Prosecution now desires to begin submission of evidence in connection with Charge Number 8.

I call the witness Adam Jaeger.

ADAM JAEGER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Jaeger, Adam.

Q Where do you live?

A Offenbach-Bieber.

Q How old are you?

A 50.

Q Did you ever hear of a man by the name of Bernhard Fay?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A 13.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Fay, wearing number 13.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Did you ever hear of a man by the name of Paul Nahrgang?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A 10.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Philipp Hammann?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A I can't pick him out now, even though we spent years together.

Q Do you know Hans Eichel?

A Yes, six.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Eichel, wearing number 6.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Would you like to stand over near that table and see whether you can see whether Hammann is in the court room?

MR. MACHAEL: If the Court please, the Defense objects to the question and the form of identification of the accused. The Prosecution is limited. He has asked the witness to go to the Defense table and examine the accused. I respectfully submit that that is beyond the method to be used for the purpose of identification.

PROSECUTION: When the witness tried to make--

WITNESS: Number 12--I never saw him with glasses before.

PROSECUTION: When the witness tried to make his identification he looked in the direction of the dock, and I only asked him to go closer to aid his vision.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Hammann, wearing number 12.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Do you know a man by the name of Josef Kiwitt?

A I do know his name, and I did see him in uniform. He had been with us ever since February.

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 126 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 126 for identification.)

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q I hand you a piece of paper which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 126 for identification. Would you tell me whether or not you have ever seen this before?

A 126? What do you mean by that? What that's possible to mean?

Q That's the identification number for the benefit of the Court. Have you ever seen that piece of paper before?

A This here?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q Did you supply the information concerning which that was prepared?

A Yes.

Q To whom?

A To an American.

Q Where?

A On the Bierbrauer Weg.

Q When?

A In 1945.

Q What is that piece of paper you have there?

A That's a sketch.

Q Sketch of what?

A Of the place where the flier was shot.

PROSECUTION: Now the Prosecution offers in evidence a map which is entitled "Jaeger Exhibit A", signed by Burkhardt, dated 7 June 1946, showing the location and buildings on Bierbrauer Weg. This has been marked for identification Prosecution's Exhibit 126, and we ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record. This is offered to aid the court in determining the facts in this case.

MR. RACHEEL: The Defense objects to that on the ground that there is no evidence before the Court that that is a true and accurate sketch, and that the foundation for the admission of the sketch has not been laid, in view of the fact that the witness through whom the sketch is being introduced did not prepare it.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution's Exhibit 126 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: I ask the reporter to mark the chart on the wall Prosecution's Exhibit 127 for identification.)

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 127 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence a large wall charg which has been marked Prosecution's Exhibit 127 for identification, which is an exact duplicate of Prosecution's Exhibit 126, and is offering this to aid the Court in determining the facts in this case.

MR. RACHAEL: The Defense objects to it on the ground that it does not know whether or not it is a true and correct copy of that paper and for the further ground for the reasons stated for Prosecution's Exhibit 126.

PRESIDENT: Objection is overruled. Prosecution's Exhibit 127 will be received in evidence.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 127 for identification, was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 127.)

PROSECUTION: Because of the size of the exhibit, Prosecution's Exhibit 127, permission is requested to withdraw the same at the conclusion of the trial.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Jaeger, were you a member of the fire police in Offenbach in February, 1945?

A Yes.

Q What rank did you hold?

A Sergeant.

Q Do you remember anything unusual happening in February, 1945, while you were on duty in Offenbach?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what happened.

A The pilots of a four-motored plane came down in a parachute at about two P. M.

End Ta 89,
ps fols

Q What were you doing at that time?

A The main air raid alarm had been called, and I was on guard, and a police captain drove by on his bicycle, and he said, "All these fliers are going to be beaten to death."

Q Continue.

A And all the comrades said that this was Captain Kiwitt.

Q And?

A He was driving a bicycle with a big frame.

Q Continue.

A I didn't know him, but he was driving a bicycle and he was a captain.

Q About what time of the day did this happen?

A Two P. M.

Q Do you remember what date in February that was?

A 22nd.

Q Continue to tell us what happened.

A In the evening between 8:30 and 9 o'clock, there was another preliminary air raid alarm, and I and Zahn was standing guard, and two policemen came by with a flier.

Q What happened? Come over here to the chart.

(Whereupon the witness did as directed.)

A And as they were at the corner, we were in Place A and at B.

Q Are you referring to the place marked A and B on the wall chart? If so, point these places out.

A He was standing here, and as the police was in this place, they called us.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness indicated a point near A, and then a point marked B.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Continue.

A And they were calling the guards, so we went over there, and he said, "Where is the sergeant of the guard here?"

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, I don't believe the accused can hear what the witness is saying.

PROSECUTION: Tell him to talk a little louder so they can hear him.

(Whereupon the court interpreter did as directed.)

THE WITNESS: Yes, I will talk louder.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q And then what happened?

A And then Zahn said, "He is still in the Caserne."

Q Who was Zahn?

A We were both standing guard.

Q Was he a policeman also?

A He was wearing the uniform of the air raid police.

Q Then what happened?

A He said, "He is supposed to be bumped off." The police said that.

Q Who said that?

A One of these policemen.

Q Then what happened?

A He said they had been running around for an hour and a half already.

Q Continue.

A And one of them was a bad man, and we were supposed to do that with civilians.

Q Then what happened?

A Suddenly Nahrgang was here, and he called Hammann, and I didn't hear what they said, because I was standing in the house next to the flier.

Q Point out on the chart where Nahrgang and Hammann were at that time.

A Here where the shelter is, here. (indicating.)

Q PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is pointing out a place which is marked "bunker," and also with the letter "F."

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A And Hasmann said "No." Upon that, he called "Guard."

Q Then what happened?

A I didn't hear what they said, but Fay replied, "That is only a small matter. We will get it fixed up right away."

Q Then what happened?

A And one of the policemen said, "Have you got a pistol?"

Q And?

A And one of them, who didn't say anything, took his pistol off.

Q Where was the American flier when this was taking place?

A He was standing here at that time. Here is the bunker -- that is a shelter against shrapnel, really -- and I would say he was standing about here (indicating.)

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the place on the map marked "bunker."

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A Now, that is the flier here, and he pushed him, like this.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness demonstrated pushing of the flier by using the interpreter as an example.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A Then they went out down this way.

Q When you say "they went out," who are you referring to?

A Fay and the flier and the regular policeman.

Q Then what happened?

A And then went around here. There was a wooden shed here with a kitchen there, and there was a shot. That must have been about here.

Q Then what happened?

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, I would like to have the prosecution indicate for the record where the witness pointed to.

PROSECUTION: I am coming to that.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

THE WITNESS: I didn't see it, but it must have been somewhere back here. I was standing up here, and that is about where the shot came from, or where I seemed to hear it from.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to a square underneath another square on the map, which is marked "Guard Shack, Hammann, Fay, Mahrgang."

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Did the flier start his march with Fay from the place marked "bunker?"

A Here, yes, that is where they left.

Q You told the court you supplied the information for the making of this chart. What do these lines, dotted lines, indicate that and with an arrow near the point D?

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, I respectfully submit that the witness, upon being asked the question "where did they start from?" pointed to the guard room, and the record should indicate that such point was made.

PROSECUTION: Will you please read the last question back?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the court reporter.)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

A Well, this should be turned around. That is not clear to me at all. It should be twisted all around.

Q What does the point E indicate?

A This E, that is the staircase.

Q The staircase leading to what?

A That goes down this way. That was the big shelter for the air raid alarm.

Q Did anything happen at point E?

A Point A, here. Well, the flier must have gone down that way.

Q All right. When you say the flier must have gone down ------

PRESIDENT: I think we should switch that chart around so it is clear in his mind, the way he wants it.

PROSECUTION: May we have a recess in place?

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that Prosecution Exhibit 127, at the request of the witness, has been turned upside down.

QUESTION BY PROSECUTION:

Q Are you better able to describe what happened with the exhibit in the position it is in now?

A Yes, I understand it now.

Q You said the flier was standing in front of the place marked "bunker," is that correct?

A Well, he was standing over here, that is where he was.

Q When Fay and the flier went away -----

A (Interposing) I was standing here with the flier.

Q When Fay and the flier went away, trace on that chart their path, the route that they took.

A Here, up this way, over this way here, and that is down the stairs this way.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the dotted lines leading from the bunker and ending with an arrow at the place marked A, and also the vicinity of the place marked Stairway 25 steps.

Q Then what happened?

A When they had the shot?

Q What happened?

A Suddenly somebody called out, "A parachutist is escaping."

Ta 90-pa-10-1/24-6

Q Then what happened?

A I was standing here, that is where I was standing.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show the witness is pointing to the vicinity of the point marked F, the gate.

A I was standing facing half left this way, like this (indicating.) I had a carbine on my left shoulder, and Hammann came running out and he pulled the carbine away from me. Hammann was about -----

Q You say Hammann came running out? From where did he come?

A From here.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is pointing ----

A (Interposing) Here, he was standing here.

Q Did he come from the place marked Guard Room?

A I don't know where he came out.

Q But, at any rate, he came out to the point marked B?

A Yes, out the gate.

Q Then what happened?

A He was standing here, and he took the carbine, and I was looking that way, and the flier was about here by then.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is pointing to a place about half way distant from the point marked G and the point marked Hammann shot here.

Q Then what happened?

A He pulled my carbine down and he ran after him and shot this man and killed him at close range. Three shots were fired.

Q How far from the flier was Hammann when he fired the shots?

A Very close distance. I can't tell you how close it was.

Q Was it a dark night?

A The moon was shining. It wasn't quite dark.

Q What happened after that?

A Some people were carrying him. I don't know how many, it might have been four.

Q Carrying whom?

A The flier.

Q Then what happened?

A They carried him in here, around here, there where the trees stand here, and that is where they put him down.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witnesspointed out the place on the map marked "Garden Body Brought Here."

Q Continue. Then what happened?

A The first lieutenant came later.

Q And?

A And I was very depressed and I didn't hear the conversation that was going on there any more.

Q Going back to the time when the flier and Fay walked away from the bunker along the dotted line up to the point D, at that time was the flier running or walking, or how was he moving?

A Up this way? He was just walking in the usual pace. He wasn't escaping any.

Q Was the flier armed?

A No.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

(Whereupon the witness resumed the witness stand.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the prosecution would like to ask the witness once more to look around the courtroom to see whether he can recognize Mahrgang.

PRESIDENT: Go ahead.

PROSECUTION: Any objection?

MR. RACHAEL: Yes, if the court please. Defense objects to that on the ground that the witness has already testified.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Come out in the middle of the floor and look all around the courtroom, in any direction you wish.

A What am I supposed to be doing?

Q Can you recognize Nahrgang if you see him again?

A No. 11.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Nahrgang, No. 11.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Is anything wrong with your eyes?

A Yes.

Q What is the matter with your eyes?

A They have been bad ever since I was a child.

Q Do you have eyeglasses?

A No.

Q When was the last time you wore eyeglasses?

A I never did.

Q Are you farsighted or nearsighted?

A Nearsighted, I guess.

Q I show you this chart. Would you tell me whether you can read that word?

A No.

MR. RACHAEL: Let the record indicate that the defense has pointed to the German word "Darmstadtstrasse" indicated on Prosecution Exhibit P-70, which is approximately 20 feet from the accused, the letters of which are an inch and a half in length.

Q Did you speak to anybody concerning this case within the past two days?

A No.

Q Did you ever see that chart before today?

A No.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the question is directed to ——

THE WITNESS: I didn't see the big one.

PROSECUTION: —— Prosecution Exhibit 127, the large wall chart.

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q What chart did you see before today?

A What? What chart I saw?

Q How long have you been here at Dachau?

A Since the 22nd. We left on the 23rd or 24th and we came back again on January 3rd.

Q Since January 3rd, did you speak to anybody about this case?

A No.

Q Did you speak to any member of the prosecution staff about this case?

A Member of the prosecution staff? No.

Q Were you shown a small sketch before today?

PROSECUTION: If it will shorten this examination, prosecution will concede the fact that the chief prosecutor talked to this witness in the preparation of this case three or four times.

QUESTION BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q How do you know there was a moon shining on the 22nd of February, 1945?

A Because I know it.

Q You are positive about that now, aren't you?

A Yes.

Q Was it dark at 6:30 on the 22nd of February, 1945?

A It wasn't entirely dark.

Q Were there any artificial lights shining near your post at that time?

A Lamps? Artificial lights?

Q Yes.

A No.

Q As a matter of fact, there was a complete blackout, wasn't there?

A Yes.

Q I want you to tell me again what post you walked, showing the distances. Go to that chart and show me.

(Whereupon the witness did as directed.)

A The whole terrain?

Q What were your duties that night?

A I was standing here, and I was checking the whole territory.

Q Were there any other guards on duty?

A Yes, there were two men, and we were relieved every two hours.

Q Does your post constitute the entire area indicated by Prosecution Exhibit 127?

A Yes.

Q You say you noticed a captain coming up on a bicycle, did y u not?

A Yes.

Q About what time was that?

A That was 2 P. M..

Q I want you to look at the accused and tell me if any of those accused there was the man you saw on the bicycle.

A Well, he doesn't wear a uniform any more. How am I supposed to know him?

Q If each one of the accused would be wearing uniforms, would you select each one of them as the man riding on the bicycle?

PROSECUTION: I object to that as improper cross examination.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTION BY MR. HACHAEL:

Q Did you know Kiwitt personally?

A Only from seeing him I knew him.

Q Did you look at the man who was riding on the bicycle?

A Well, I had to salute him.

Q Who did you salute?

A This police captain.

Q Was it Kiwitt?

A All the comrades said it was Kiwitt.

Q Do you know whether or not it was Kiwitt?

A Well, after January or February, whenever there was an alarm, he was the man of the police who would come around and go down to the shelter.

Q How long after you saw the two policemen go by and the flier walk away did you hear someone yell, "The parachutist is escaping?"

A Oh, that was only two or three minutes.

Q Did you know Fay well?

A Yes.

Q Did you speak to him often?

A We had been together ever since '40.

Q Do you know his voice?

A Yes.

Q Was Fay the one who shouted, "The parachutist is escaping?"

A There must have been several doing that.

Q About how many people would you say called out that the parachutist is escaping?

A I wouldn't say that, because I was standing next to the gate all the time.

(Whereupon the witness resumed the witness stand.)

Q You say you heard several people shout, "The parachutist is escaping." About how many voices would you say that several constituted?

A Well, I can't say that, because, after all, it was a distance of about 40 meters.

Q But you are certain it was several voices that yelled?

A Yes.

Q And it was after those shouts that Hammann ran out from the guard room, is that right?

A Yes, that had been before; that is, the thing that happened first was the yells, "parachutist is escaping," and then the man came running out.

Q Where were you standing when Hammann first approached you after he had come from the guard room and after the voices had been heard yelling the parachutist had escaped?

A Same place, next to the gate.

Q Which is indicated on Prosecution Exhibit 1-127 with the letter B?

A B.

Q Was it there at that point that Hammann took your carbine?

A Yes, B.

Q And where did Hammann go after that?

A He went down that way.

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand.)

A Down that way (indicating.)

MR. MACHAEL: Indicating along Bierbrauer Weg towards the spot joined by the dirt road with Bierbrauer Weg.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until 1:30.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1210 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Rau, who is absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

Let the record show that Adam Jaeger has resumed the stand.

ADAM JAEGER, called as a witness by the prosecution, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

QUESTIONS BY MR. MACHAEL:

Q You said that shortly after the cries, "The parachutist is escaping," were heard, that Hammann came running out to you and took your carbine, is that right?

A He didn't escape.

Q At any rate, Hammann took your carbine?

A Yes.

Q And at that time, you were standing out on Hierbrauer Weg at approximately the position indicated by the letter B on Prosecution Exhibit 127?

A Yes.

Q Did Hammann ask you anything?

A No.

Q When Hammann took your carbine, what did he do?

A He ran over there.

Q Ran over where?

A To the flier.

Q You testified that the flier went through the courtyard, isn't that correct?

A Can I show you?

Q Yes.

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand.)

A The flier came up from there, and when he was approximately here, then Fawcett caught up with him when he was approximately there.

(Whereupon the witness resumed the witness stand.)

Q Did you not testify ——

PROSECUTION: Let me object. I would like the record to show that the witness pointed to the map Exhibit 127 and pointed to the dotted line that is marked "Flier Chased Along This Route. Dirt Road."

MR. RACHALL: And he started pointing from the stairway, 25 steps.

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHALL:

Q You did not answer my question. I asked you whether or not the flier had gone through the courtyard.

A Through the courtyard?

Q That is correct.

A Hey?

Q Yes, you.

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand.)

A He went down the stairs. This question comes from behind.

Q Will you resume your seat in the witness chair, please?

(Whereupon the witness did as directed.)

Q You testified that the policeman and Fay and the flier left from where you were and went somewhere?

A Yes.

Q Did they go through the courtyard?

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand.)

A Yes, they went this way. Yes, that is the way they went.

MR. RACHALL: Indicating the courtyard.

(Whereupon the witness resumed the witness stand.

Q You testified that they walked at an ordinary pace, is that right?

A He pushed him.

Q How long would it take to walk from Gate B to the stairway with the 25 steps?

A It is approximately 50 or 60 meters, it is not far, perhaps even less. It might be less.

Q After Hammann took your carbine, what did you do?

A I didn't know what to say. I was standing there.

Q You were standing there and Hammann ran away, is that right?

A Yes.

Q How far is it from point B at the gate to where you say Hammann shot?

A That must be at least 150 meters, certainly 150 meters.

Q And so Hammann was 150 meters away from you when he shot the carbine, is that right?

A Yes, approximately. I saw only the fire coming out of the carbine.

Q What was the condition of the moon that night?

A The moon hadn't come out completely yet, but I can't say it exactly any more.

Q You say the moon had not come out yet?

A The moon was out, but not completely yet. There was a little bit overcast, perhaps a few clouds.

Q All right. Now, I will ask you what was the condition of the moon generally that night. Was it a full moon?

A Later on it was very light.

Q How much later on would you say it got light?

A Four hours later, when I was on guard again.

Q How wide would you say Bierbrauer Weg is?

A Six or seven meters wide.

MR. RACHAEL: If the court please, Dr. Aheimer would like to interrogate the witness with a few questions.

QUESTIONS BY DR. AHEIMER:

Q I show you once more the exhibit P-126, of which P-127 is an enlargement, and I ask you who made the sketch.

A This sketch is made according to my information, by some American. It is the place where the crime was committed.

Q When was it done?

A I don't know exactly.

Q You see in this map some figures given, for instance, on the point B, six meters and three meters. I ask you who gave these figures?

A I didn't. The Americans.

Q Did the American talk to you about these figures?

A No.

Q How long is the Haus Felsenkeller?

A I guess 10 meters.

Q What is this square which appears on this map on the left side?

A Oh, this is the garage.

Q How long is this garage?

A Forty meters.

Q Do you mean this building here?

A Yes.

Q And you say this is approximately forty meters long?

A Yes.

Q How wide would you say the Haus Felsenkeller is, in your estimation?

A Six meters wide and ten meters long.

Q Then you mean this is from this point to this point ten meters?

A Yes.

DR. AUSTIN: The record may indicate that the two points between the beginning and the end of Haus Felsenkeller are meant.

Q I bring to your attention once more the sketch P-126 and I ask you then if the garage is 40 meters long and the Haus Felsenkeller is only 10 meters wide, is this sketch then correct?

A That doesn't make any difference, however, whether it is that long or that long. I don't know how long it is. I made an estimate. It might be longer.

Q Take this sketch once more into your hands. I bring now to your attention the center of this Exhibit 126 and 127, where appear, one after another, approximately ten little squares which run the middle of the sketch from top to bottom. I ask you now what these little squares are indicating?

A Iron railing.

Q I show you now a photograph and ask you what does this indicate?

PROSECUTION: I object to that. The photograph is not in evidence. It is part of my case.

MR. AMEIMER: I have the possibility of introducing this evidence and I am just going to do it.

PROSECUTION: Any document should be introduced by the defense when their case is on.

MR. MACHAEL: If the court please, at the moment the prosecution has on the stand a witness who has testified as to terrain of an area. He is now under cross examination. Counsel for defense is confronting the witness with photographs of that terrain and is about to ask the witness whether or not those photographs represent that area.

PROSECUTION: That photograph was given to the defense in anticipation that the prosecution would offer it in evidence. Had I known it would be used for this purpose, I would not have done so. That photograph will go in evidence in an orderly way at the proper time by the proper witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then, may it please the court, we will have to ask that the witness be recalled a little later for cross examination.

PROSECUTION: Of course, the defense is always at liberty to call this witness and make him its own witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: For cross examination, may it please the court. This is legitimate cross examination. We have the right.

PRESIDENT: The court approves of bringing him back for cross examination.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution would like to go on record as asking the court to reconsider that. I have not offered that evidence by this witness. It is my intention to offer the photograph by another witness who will follow this witness on the stand. The regular procedure is that the defense may cross examine concerning matter that was brought out while this witness was under direct examination, and the rules have also been laid down that if the defense wishes to go into this matter further, they may call the witness as its own witness, and is thereby bound by whatever he says.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I remind the court that the exhibit which went into evidence before the chart was introduced through this particular witness, and then the chart was introduced as an identical enlargement of the exhibit which went in through this witness. By impeaching the enlargement, we impeach its miniature, and we have a right to impeach the miniature and the enlargement through the witness through whom it was introduced. Furthermore, the prosecution has no God-given right to its evidence. If it legitimately comes into our hands and can be properly offered, it is for the court to use. It is the court who is going to decide the justice of this thing. If we weren't intended to be allowed to use it, then why were we given it?

PRESIDENT: The court's ruling stands as it is.

MR. RACHELS: No further questions of this witness.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

(JAEGER-Cross)

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: Witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

DR. AHRIMAR: I ask that the witness is kept ready for further cross examination at some later time.

MR. RACHAE.: That has been taken care of.

GERHARD ZAHN, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

A No. 6.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Eichel, No. 6.

Q Now, tell the court what happened on the 22nd of February, 1945, in Offenbach.

A On this evening in question, I was on guard duty with my comrade, Jaeger.

Q Continue.

A About nine o'clock I heard a call, "Guard." We went to this spot. A policeman came up to us a few steps and said, "We have here one man who is to be killed."

Q Was that in the morning or the evening?

A Evening.

Q Then what happened?

A I told them, "What are you bringing him to the fire department for? Better take him over to the caserne."

Q Before you continue with your story, please come over to the map, and with this pointer tell the court where on that map these things happened that you talk about.

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand and assumed a position near the map.)

A Here (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness is pointing to a place on the map marked "Bierbrauer Weg".

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What happened at that point that you are talking about?

A At this point the policeman came and said, "We have a man who is to be killed."

Q Then what happened?

A Then I told him, "Why are you bringing him to the fire department? Better take him over to the caserne."

Q Then what happened?

A Then he said, "That's where we are coming from; we are running around already for an hour and a half."

Q Then what happened?

Q Continue.

A About nine o'clock I heard a call, "Guard." We went to this spot. A policeman came up to us a few steps and said, "We have here one man who is to be killed."

Q Was that in the morning or the evening?

A Evening.

Q Then what happened?

A I told them, "What are you bringing him to the fire department for? Better take him over to the caserne."

Q Before you continue with your story, please come over to the map, and with this pointer tell the court where on that map these things happened that you talk about.

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand and assumed a position near the map.)

A Here (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness is pointing to a place on the map marked "Bierbrauer Weg".

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What happened at that point that you are talking about?

A At this point the policemen came and said, "We have a man who is to be killed."

Q Then what happened?

A Then I told him, "Why are you bringing him to the fire department? Better take him over to the caserne."

Q Then what happened?

A Then he said, "That's where we are coming from; we are running around already for an hour and a half."

Q Then what happened?

A I went up to this house where the pilot was standing with one policeman.

Q Are you referring to the Haus Felsenkeller?

A Yes, that's where the pilot was standing and one of the policemen.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness points to the south end of the Felsenkeller and is now pointing to a place on the Bierbrauer Weg alongside of the Haus Felsenkeller.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A Then I went back to the gate and the policeman said, "Who is in there here?" I said "over there is our guard room."

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is pointing to the place marked "guard room."

QUESTION BY PROSECUTION:

Q Continue.

A When we went up this stairs the policemen asked me, "You have a pistol?" I denied this.

Q Then what happened?

A Then he wanted to take off his pistol and give it to me, and I asked him, "What shall I do with it?" He said, "If I kill him he will see it."

Q Then what happened?

A I told him, "You think if I kill him he won't notice it?"

Q Then what happened?

A Then I went up the stairs up here (indicating) and Wahrgang came out of the guard room.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to a place just opposite the guard room and between the guard room and the garden.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A I recognized him right away and said that the policeman had a man who was to be killed.

Q Then what happened?

A Wahrgang went up to the policeman and went up the stairs here (indicating).

Q Then what happened?

A They talked something to each other; I didn't understand it. Wahrgang then went back to the door and Hammann came out of the room with him. They stood near the policeman.

Q When you say Hammann came out of the room do you mean the guard room?

A Yes, the guard room. At the same time that was the living quarters for the group leader and platoon leader.

Q Then what happened?

A They talked something to each other but I couldn't hear it because they said it in a very low voice.

Q Was the flier armed?

A No.

Q Then what happened?

A Hammann made a no sign with his head. Then Wahrgang called for Bernhard Fay. Bernhard Fay came out of the room, stood there for a moment and then he passed me and said, "He'll have it right away."

Q Then what happened?

A Then Fay went out this way down the stairs (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness is now pointing to a place just outside the bunker which is marked "F" on the map.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A How far he went I don't know because I stayed up here (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is now pointing to the curved line just outside of the guard room.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A A short while later the pilot came up the stairs and one of the policemen and Fay followed him.

MR. SACHAR: If the court please, I would like to have the record indicate that the witness is pointing to a spot between the guard room and the wall around the garden and he is referring to that area having stairs.

PROSECUTION: That is not a correct statement. I will ask the question.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q When you say they came up the stairs, point out the building that has the stairs that you are talking about.

A This (indicating) had been a garden restaurant and from the street to the garden restaurant there are approximately 8 to 10 steps because the garden is on a higher level then the street. The steps start at the height of the bunker and the last one is approximately at the height of the garden room.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is now pointing to a point half way between the guard room and the wall around the garden.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A So Fay drove the pilot in front of him. In his right hand he had a pistol and made signs like/when you drive cattle.

Q Then what happened?

A I changed the place where I was standing and went over here (indicating) where a tree is standing.

[illegible]: Let the record show [illegible] pointing to a place just below the writing, 'order - body brought here."

[illegible]:

Then what happened?

[illegible] by [illegible] with the pistol was directly up to the staircase [illegible]. I saw it because it was a preliminary [illegible] that they wouldn't go up the stairs but would go to the right to a place where they kept dirt.

Then what happened?

A short while later, [illegible] one or two shots and 'bolt', persecuted [illegible] escape."

From what direction did the shots come? I am referring to the [illegible].

They might have been fired here (indicating) or behind the stairs.

[illegible]: Let the record show that the witness first pointed to the place [illegible] letter "A" on the second time he pointed to the [illegible] on the west side of the area of the first arrow.

[illegible]:

Then what happened?

The party [illegible] the way west out there [illegible] along in a northerly direction.

[illegible]: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the state line from "A" to the [illegible] and that along Fairbrauer [illegible] in a northerly direction.

Then what happened?

[illegible] followed them, came up to [illegible] approximately here (indicating) and there [illegible] two or three more pistol shots and three shots from a carbine.

[illegible]: Let the record show that the witness [illegible] to a place just next to the [illegible] on the south end of that place.

(Whereupon,

Q Then what happened?

A Of the carbine shot I saw also the fire reflect.

Q Then what happened?

A I ran in a northerly direction to the spot where the shots had been fired; approximately here the pilot was lying on his knees. (Indicating)

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness pointed to the place on the map marked with a star and with the words "Hamann shot here."

A I was standing approximately here. (Indicating)

PROSECUTION: Let the record also that the witness is pointing to a place which is the intersection of the dirt road and Pierbrauer Weg.

Q Then what happened?

A A few people were standing around there. I went over there up to this point here. (Indicating)

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness is pointing to the place just east of the star marked "Hamann shot here" and near the edge of the road.

Q Then what happened?

A Whether the police director Michel arrived ahead of Fabian I don't know. Fabian came out of this direction (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness is indicating the direction from the north.

A The police director came up here (indicating). I couldn't hear what they were talking about because I was standing on the side.

Q Then what happened?

A I walked up a little bit closer then and the police director Michel turned around and said, "You son-of-a-bitch."

Q To whom did he make that remark?

A In my opinion, to the pilot. He might have referred to the others too, I don't know. I can't look in his head.

Q Then what happened?

A Then four men picked up the pilot and carried them to the gate. I followed them behind.

Q Was the pilot dead at that time?

A When he was being carried away I heard a moaning but I don't know whether this meant he was still alive or this sound was only caused since he was being carried away.

Q Then what happened?

A I followed them behind and when I came up to this point (indicating) -- this is a wire fence (indicating)--I saw here when a police officer picked up his bicycle.

[illegible]: Let the record indicate that the witness is pointing to a place on the Bierbrauer Weg right under the English word "Run".

A According to the description it must have been police lieutenant Alt.

Q Then what happened?

A He took his bicycle and he too went in this direction. Whether he entered the garden I can't say any more today.

Q Are you indicating a southerly direction on Bierbrauer Weg?

A Southerly direction.

Q Then what happened?

A The pilot was carried in and put down next to a tree (indicating).

[illegible]: Let the record indicate that the witness has indicated a place marked "Garden body brought here."

Q What happened there?

A I continued my guard duty here (indicating) but I saw still that police director Eichel was standing there too and with a big line like that used by the fire department they handled around with.

Q Now, going back to the place where the flier was shot, which is marked with a star on this map on Bierbrauer Way, did you see the flier (Zahn-/direct) after he was shot?

A Approximately from this spot here (indicating) I saw when he was on his knees.

Q About how far was that away from where the flier was kneeling on his knees?

A It might have been 20, 25 meters.

Q Who was standing around the flier at that time?

A Wahrgang and Hammann -- whether Fay and the others were there too, I don't know any more -- there were three or four people.

Q After the body was brought back to the garden, did anything else happen that you know of?

A After some time the master of the fire guard Tardt called "Guard". I reported and he asked me who was with me. I said, "Jaeger."

Q You said that you saw the flier over here at the place marked with a star on the map and that he was on his knees, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Had he been shot at that time?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this Prosecution Exhibit 128 for identification, please?

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 128 for identification.)

Q I show you a photograph which has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 128 and ask you to tell the court what that is a picture of.

A That is point "B".

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness pointed to the place on the large wall map indicated by the letter "B" and the word "garden."

Q I see a picture of a man standing in front of a building. Do you know who that man is?

A That is Jaeger.

Q Do you know his first name?

A Adam. Here you can see the steirs which I described before (indicating).

PROSECUTION: I offer in evidence a photograph which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 128 for identification and ask that it be received in evidence and be made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAM: The defense objects to those pictures on the ground that the prosecution has failed to show as yet that the condition of the area at the time those pictures were taken was exactly the same as it was on 22 February 1945 at eight-thirty P.M.

Q Look at this photograph again and tell the court whether it shows the condition around the gate and the yard as it was on 22 February 1945.

A Yes.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 128 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(Thereupon the document previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 128 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 128, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this Prosecution Exhibit 129 for identification, please?

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 129 for identification.)

Q I show you a photograph which has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 129 and ask you to look at it and tell the court what that is a picture of.

A This is Bierbrauer Way and where the soldier is standing, that is approximately the spot where the murders had been committed.

Q Does this picture fairly represent the condition of Bierbrauer Way as far as the terrain and buildings as it was on 22 February 1945?

(Zahn-Direct)

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence a photograph which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 129 for identification and asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHEL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 129 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(Thereupon the photograph previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 129 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 129, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this Prosecution Exhibit 130 for identification, please?

(The photograph referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 130 for identification.)

Q I hand you a photograph which has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 130 and ask you to look at it and tell the court what that is a picture of.

A That is a path through which the pilot ran to the Bierbrauer Way.

Q Will you point that out on the large wall map?

A That is a part from up here to down here (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the dotted line with arrows, where the flier was chased along this dirt road.

Q Take a look at this picture again and tell the court whether or not it fairly represents the condition of the terrain along that road as it was on 22 February 1945.

A This terrain is in the same condition for at least 30 years.

PROSECUTION: I offer in evidence a photograph which has been marked Exhibit 130 for identification and ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution exhibit 130 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this photograph prosecution exhibit 131 for identification?

(The photograph referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 131 for identification.)

I show you a photograph which has been marked for identification Exhibit 131 and ask you to look at that and tell the court what that is a picture of.

A These are the stairs on point "F".

Are you referring to point "F" on the large wall map?

A Yes, on there (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness pointed to the large wall map at the place marked "Stairway - 25 steps" and lettered "F".

Will you look at this picture again and tell the court whether it fairly represents the condition of the stairs as it was on 22 February 1945?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence a photograph which has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 131 and asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

H. MACNEIL: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit Number 131 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this photograph Prosecution Exhibit 132 for identification, please.

Q I show you a picture or photograph which has been marked for identification Exhibit 132 and ask you to look at that and tell the Court what that represents?

A Behind this wall are the stairs in question (indicating).

Q Referring to the stairs which are marked with the letter "E" on the large wall map?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell from that picture about in what direction the photographer would have been standing when he took that photograph?

A This picture is taken approximately from here (indicating).

Q Let the record show that the witness pointed to a place north of the stairway. So that the photographer, when he took this picture, was facing south, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Look at that picture again and tell the Court whether it is a fair representation of the general conditions of what is shown in the picture?

A Yes.

Q As it was on the 22nd of February 1945?

A Yes.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence a photograph which has been identified as Exhibit 132 and ask that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 132 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this picture as Prosecution Exhibit 133 for identification, please?

(Zahn-direct)

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 133 for identification.)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I show you a photograph which has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 133 for identification and ask you to look at that and tell the Court what it is, if you know?

A This is the garden restaurant and the pilot must have taken this way in order to come to the staircase "3".

Q I notice in the picture that there is a wooden building, can you identify that wooden building on the large wall map?

A Yes. Here (indicating).

Q Let the record show that the witness the building on the large wall map marked "Wooden Shack". I notice on the large wall map a row of small squares going from east to west and west to east, is that shown on the photograph?

A Yes. This entire railing here (indicating).

A Yes.

Q Does this picture show the general terrains and condition of the buildings as it was on 22 February 1948?

A Yes. Exactly.

Q That's all.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence a photograph which has been marked Exhibit 133 and ask that it be received in evidence and marked Prosecution Exhibit 133, and made a part of the record.

DR. RACHAL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 133 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibit 133 for identification was received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 133, is attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I show you exhibit 133 and I notice three men in the picture walking away from the camera, do you know any of those three men?

A The one on the right is Adam Jaeger.

Q I show you a picture which is in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 129 and I notice three men in that picture, do you know who those men are?

A It might be that the man on the right is Adam Jaeger.

Q You have told the Court what happened that night of February 22, 1945, did you see Adam Jaeger at all that night?

A Yes.

Q What was he doing?

A We both together were on guard duty.

Q Was Jaeger with you at any time when you went to the spot where you said the flyer was shot?

A No.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY Mr. L. CHAIN:

Q You testified you were on guard duty that night, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q What were you guarding?

A We guarded the barracks and the garage.

Q Against what?

A That was the order.

Q Were there any air raid shelters in that particular area which you were guarding?

A We didn't have to guard the air raid shelters but we had to guard the garage where the cars were.

Q Were there any air raid shelters in the area in which you were guarding?

A Yes.

Q How many air raid shelters were there?

A One public --

Q Where was that? Will you indicate on the map?

A The public one was approximately here (indicating).

Q Indicating a spot on the extreme east side of the chart at about the margin, in the center of the chart.

A The one for the police was approximately here (indicating).

Q Indicating the spot a short distance to the south of the spot originally pointed to.

A And here were two wine cellars (indicating).

Q Indicating a spot on the chart designated by the words, "Shelter Michel Command Post".

A Here are the stairs -- down the stairs -- the Command Post of Michel was approximately here and the wine cellars approximately here (indicating).

Q The wine cellar is indicated on the chart by the pointer pointing to the letter "E" of the name "Eichel" -- the first "E". So that there were at least three air raid shelters in the area shown by that chart?

A There was one public air raid shelter, one for the police and three wine cellars which, in case of emergency, could have been used by the population as air raid shelters.

Q The air raid shelters which you just mentioned, did these include the shelter of the "Eichel Com and Post"?

A It is included.

Q There was an air raid alarm, was there not?

A Yes.

Q Were there people in the air raid shelters at the time?

A There were people inside but I didn't go inside because I was on guard duty.

Q How do you know that there were people inside?

A Because while we were on guard duty the people passed us in order to go to the air raid shelters.

Q You were on guard duty with Jaeger, were you not?

A Yes.

Q About what time was it that these two policemen came up to you with the flyer?

A Nine o'clock.

Q Do you know those two policemen?

A No. I saw them for the first time and it was dark.

Q You say it was dark?

A It was evening, nine o'clock.

Q Wasn't there a full moon?

A I couldn't say it anymore today.

Q Would you say that there was no moon at that time?

A I don't know anymore today.

Q There was a black out at that time, was there not?

A Yes. There always was a black out when there was an alarm.

Q So that the only light you could see by was the light coming from the sky, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q How did you know that those two policemen accompanying the flyer were policemen?

A You could see it by the uniform they were wearing -- by the uniforms and they were talking to us.

Q When you say "talking to us" do you mean to you and Jaeger?

A Yes.

Q If you were to see those two policemen now, would you recognize them?

(Zahn-c-ors)

A It is possible but I cannot say it definitely.

Q Were those two policemen tall or short?

A Short.

Q They were both about your size, were they?

A I think a little bit shorter.

Q This flyer, how do you know that he was a flyer?

A You could see it on his uniform that he was wearing. He was wearing a combination- one piece uniform.

Q Had you ever seen any flyers before?

A Yes, when they were shot down.

Q This was at night, was it not?

A In the evening at nine o'clock, yes.

Q According to the knowledge that you have of air raids that took place, what nationality airmen would you expect at night in Germany?

PROSECUTION: Object to the question as being improper cross-examination.

RESTRICTED: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DR. RACHAEL:

Q Did you speak to the flyer?

A No? No.

Q Did the policeman speak to the flyer?

A Not in my presence.

Q Did anybody speak to the flyer?

A You.

Q Who?

A I think it was Jager and the policeman said, "Keep quiet because they all understand German".

Q Did the flyer understand German?

A I don't know.

(Zahn-cross)

Q What did Jaeger say to the flyer?

A I don't know it anymore today.

Q What did the policeman say to you?

A He said, "Be quiet they all understand German".

Q Did they say anything else?

A No.

Q Did you not testify on direct examination that the policeman said, "We have here one man who has to be killed"?

A Yes. I said so before.

Q Did they say anything else?

A Whether I had a pistol.

Q Did they tell you that they had brought this flyer from Offenbach?

A No.

Q Did they tell you that they had been to the police station in Offenbach?

A No. They said only that they have been running around with him for one and one half hours.

Q Did they tell you from where they were running around?

A No.

Q Do you know who the policeman was who said, "We have here one man who has to be killed"?

A No.

Q I ask you to look at these defendants and ask you to tell the Court if that policeman was anyone of them? Take your time, look around and decide.

A I do not think so.

Q After you had that conversation with those policemen where did you go?

PROSECUTION: Object to this further questioning on repetitious matter. All of this has been covered over and over again on direct and cross examination.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have just started my cross examination and have not gotten beyond the point I am interrogating about now. If the Prosecution means that he went through it, that is one thing but if he means I have gone through it already, I respectfully submit that I have not.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: I went to the guard room.

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Did Jaeger go with you?

A No.

Q Did the policeman go with you?

A One of the policemen, yes.

Q Did the flyer go with you?

A No.

Q Do you know where the flyer, the policemen and Jaeger were when you went with one of the policemen to the guard room?

A Yes. He was standing outside on the wall.

Q Is that at the foot of the steps or up to the top of the stairway leading to the guard room?

A Here was Jaeger with the policeman while I was going up the stairs with the other policeman (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Will you have the record indicate what the witness has pointed out?

MR. RACHAEL: I move to strike the answer of the witness from the record on the ground that it was not responsive to the question.

PROSECUTION: Unfortunately the Defense is not satisfied with the answer, however, he asked the question and it was answered and the record should indicate what the witness did at the wall chart.

PRESIDENT: The motion of Defense counsel is overruled.

MR. RACHAEL: Will you go to the chart again and point out where the flyer, the policeman and Jaeger were standing? Indicating a spot on Bierbrauer Weg just below the letter "A" in the word "Haus""Felsenkeller".

(Zahn-cross)

QUESTIONS BY MR. RAPHAEL:

Q Then you went over to the guard door what did you do?

A Mahrgang just came out of the door.

Q Did you have a conversation with Mahrgang?

A I called him right away because I recognized him and told him that the policeman had a man with him who had to be killed.

Q Did Mahrgang come out alone?

A Yes.

Q Where was Herrmann at that time?

A Inside the guard room.

Q Then did Herrmann come out?

A After Mahrgang had called him.

Q Then did Fay come out?

A After Mahrgang had called Bernhard.

Q So that Mahrgang, Herrmann and Fay, the policeman and you were all in the courtyard, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Then what happened?

A Then Fay went out and got the pilots.

Q Where did Herrmann and Mahrgang go?

A They must have followed him.

Q Then did you and the policeman go?

A The policeman went with them too.

Q Where did you go?

A I walked over to the right side to the trees.

Q So that Mahrgang, Herrmann, Fay and the policeman all went out through the gate to Eierbrauer Weg to where the pilots were standing?

A No, only Fay went there.

(Zahn-cross)

Q Where did Mahrgang and Hermann go?

A They were still standing there at the time when Fay brought in the pilot.

Q Where were you?

A On the tree I was standing.

Q That tree is in the garden?

A Yes.

Q Will you point out on that wall chart approximately where the tree is?

A Approximately over here (indicating).

Q Indicating a spot south of a dark line, east of the second letter "e" in the word "here".

A Yes.

Q This line that I am now indicating in the chart, what does that indicate?

A That is a wall.

Q I pointed to a black line which borders the words "Garden, body brought here". How high is that wall?

A Approximately like this (indicating) -- one meter and twenty.

Q How long did you remain at that spot?

A Until Hermann and Mahrgang had run out here this way (indicating).

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Whereupon at 1500 hours the court recessed.)

(Zahn-cross)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense; all the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

Let the record show that the witness, Gerhard Kahn, has resumed the stand.

GERHARD KAHN, called as a witness by the prosecution, returned the stand and being reminded he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter, as follows:

BY MR. MICHAEL:

Q Now, you went through the courtyard with the officers who were going in the direction of the officer's command post there?

A Towards the stairs "".

Q When the two civilians by you didn't the civilian the flier was escaping?

Pursuant to Nuremberg.

Q They ran from point "" to point ""?

A Either they came from the point "," or from somewhere on the way there, I don't know.

Q You were standing in the garden by the tree, were you not?

A Yes.

Q And you say that Fay and the policemen and the flier went towards point "", is that right?

A Yes.

Q And you saw there was a cry "the flier is escaping" and two men ran by you?

A Yes.

(Zahn-cross)

Q You say those two men were Hermann and Fahrgang?

A Yes.

Did Fahrgang and Hermann accidently run to point "A"?

They must have followed him because they weren't standing anymore on the spot where they stood before.

Q Did you see them follow Fay?

A No, I didn't see that because it was too dark.

Q Do you know where Dicker was at this time?

A No.

When you heard the words, "the flier is escaping" where did you go?

A I stood where I was.

How long did you stay there?

A Until Hermann and Fahrgang had passed me running.

Did you follow Hermann and Fahrgang?

A Yes.

Q Did you see Hermann take the carbine from Jaeger?

A No.

Q How far behind Hermann and Fahrgang were you?

A It might have been 15 or 2 or 3 steps. I can't say exactly.

Did you hear any pistol shots from the direction of point "A"?

I said before, the pistol shots might have been fired on point "A" but also might have been fired beyond the stairs.

Q You say you also heard pistol shots when you were on Fischbauer Weg?

A Yes.

Q Do you know who fired those shots?

A No.

Do you know who fired carbine shots?

A No.

MR. McCRAE: No further questions.

QUESTIONS BY DR. [illegible]:

Since when do you know Jaeger?

A Since the 1st of September 1939.

Q From September '39 until this day in question in February 1945, did you meet Jaeger quite often?

A We were together at the Fire Department. Once Jaeger was transferred to another detail outside of the city and whenever something had to be done, labor service or something like that, Jaeger and I were always together. We were always put on the same details.

Q In addition to the evening of the 22nd of February 1945, did you go guard duty with Jaeger before?

A Yes.

Q Is it not right that Jaeger had complained before that he was night blind and couldn't go on guard duty at night?

A He must have done this with his superior officers. He didn't do it with me.

Q Did he ever tell you that his eyes were bad?

A He spoke about this, yes.

Q Had you ever noticed yourself that his eyes were bad?

A No.

Q On this 22nd of February 1945 didn't you enter the guard room together with one of the policemen and ask for Mahrgang?

A No.

Q Since when are you in Dachau?

A We have been here since before Christmas then we were on leave for eight days and since the 3rd of January we are here again.

(/Ahn-cross)

Tr 94 1-24-47
Co -ls/4

Q Were you alone in the same room with the witness, Adam Jaeger?

A Yes.

Q Did you talk with the witness, Adam Jaeger, about this incident of 22 February 1945, during the past two days?

A No.

Q I bring to your attention once more prosecution exhibit P-127 and I ask you is it right that the staircase " " is located right outside of the wood shack?

A It is possible that the house is a little bit more to the right or the staircase is a little bit more to the left.

Q I show you once more prosecution exhibit P-127 and I ask you can you see on this photograph the staircase which is designated " " on the exhibit 127?

A Yes, the staircase is running behind this wall over there. (Indicating.)

Q I ask you furthermore, can you see on this photograph the wood shack partly or in its entirety?

A Up there (indicating) this corner is part of the wood shack.

DR. AHRENDT: The protocol should show that the witness is pointing to the part of the roof which is showing in the upper righthand corner of prosecution exhibit P-127.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY DR. AHRENDT:

Q Consequently, the staircase is behind the woodshack?

A Yes, I said so before.

Q Is it not then a fact that exhibit P-127, as far as the staircase is concerned, does not reproduce the right situation, the right location?

A In principle it is the same only according to the way people have to go a little bit more to the right instead of to the left.

(Cross-cross)

Q Is it not a fact that the staircase "E" is behind the woodshack?

A This woodshack is used as a kitchen and a mess hall and adjoining to this woodshack there is another shack which goes over up to the staircase.

Q Is this second shack of which you talk shown on this Exhibit P-127 or not?

A No.

Q I show you now the photograph P-133 which you identified before andask you is this shack which is adjoining the woodshack about which we just talked, shown on this picture or not?

A Yes, that is the one over here.

DR. AHLMARK: The protocol may show that the witness pointed to the center of the photograph where the second woodshack is shown.

QUESTIONS BY DR. AHLMARK:

Q To make it clear, this second woodshack is not shown on Prosecution Exhibit 127?

A No.

Q I show you once more the Prosecution Exhibit P-133 and I ask you whether the railing shown on the left side of this photograph can be seen on Prosecution Exhibit 127?

A Yes, it is shown through the twelve squares.

Q I bring to your attention that on this map, P-127, the little squares lead straight to the corner of the wood shack. Based on Prosecution Exhibit P-133, I ask you whether the sketch on P-127 is correct or not?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question and any further questions along those lines. This Exhibit, P-127, and the small map of which it is an enlargement, were not offered as an accurate scale map.

DR. AHLMARK: I wish to answer the following: I want to prove that not only as far as the measurements are concerned but also as far as the reproduction is corrected, -125 and 127 are 1 correct. Through another photograph I will attempt to prove that certain of these are shown on that map. If it can be proven that this map is incorrect, the conclusions drawn by the witnesses based on this map might also be incorrect. For this reason I ask the court to admit my question.

THE COURT: Objection is overruled.

MR. ALLEN: Will you repeat the question, please.

(Thereupon the reporter read the last question as follows:

"Q I bring to your attention that on this map, C-127, the little squares lead straight to the corner of the woodshack. Based Prosecution Exhibit P-133, I ask you whether the sketch on P-127 is correct or not?")

The WITNESS: According to the photograph it is correct but whether it is correct in accordance with the reconnaissance I couldn't say.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY Mr. ALLEN:

Q You misunderstood my question. I didn't ask you if the reproduction of the photograph is correct but I asked you whether this map is correct?

A I can't recall that.

Isn't it right in accordance with this photograph that the woodshack actually is beyond the building to the left?

A I don't know that.

Q I bring to your attention now on Prosecution Exhibit P-127, the dotted line which leads beyond the shack on this map and I ask you, does this dotted line represent a path.

A Yes.

Q Please show us once more on Exhibit P-127.

Q This part from here down to here. (indicating)

I show you once more Prosecution Exhibit P-127.

MR. CARTER: May it please the Court, have the record show the witness pointed to the map, the place marked along this route marked "dirt road".

[illegible] BY Mr. [illegible]:

I ask you, based on Prosecution Exhibit 1-22, where is the building which is shown in the center of this picture on or at the map.

It isn't shown but it is located over here. It must be located over here (indicating).

Aren't these lines indicating trees?

There is a garage which can be seen here.

I understand you might find this may be incorrect also insofar as it shows the existence of a garage building [illegible]

[illegible]: Let same be described for the record.

[illegible]: I'd like to point out to the court again we did not offer this map with the correct relations, as all the buildings merely showed it as a fair representation of the relationships to each other of the more important buildings in this case.

[illegible]/[illegible]: Court will recess in place.

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

MR. RACHAEL: The Defense has no further questions of this witness.

DR. AHEIMER: The protocol may indicate that the witness pointed to a space on Prosecution's Exhibit 127 which is marked as "woods".

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q I show you Prosecution's Exhibit 132, both copies thereof, and ask you to look at that picture and take this fountain pen; and, for the convenience of the Court, mark with the letter "S" where the stairs are that are shown on that map with the letter "E".

(Whereupon the witness did as directed.)

PROSECUTION: The witness put a mark here and here (indicating) on both of them. That's supposed to be a German "S".

No further questions. Any further questions by the Defense? Are there any questions by any member of the Court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: Witness excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: I call the witness Fritz Fabian.

FRITZ FABIAN, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q What is your full name?

Fritz Fabian.

Q Where do you live?

A Offenbach-Main.

Q How old are you?

A 50 years.

Q Now, directing your attention to the month of February, 1945, were you then a member of the air protection police?

A Yes.

Q What rank did you hold?

A I was platoon leader.

Q Where were you stationed in February, 1945?

A Felsenkeller on the Bierbrauer Weg, Offenbach.

Q Do you remember anything unusual happening on the evening of 22 February 1945?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what happened.

A On this evening there was an air raid alarm. Since it was quiet, I walked with two girls along the Bierbrauer Weg. It was between eight and nine o'clock.

Q In the evening?

A Evening, yes.

Q And then what happened?

A I walked with the girls in the direction of the railroad crossing. I stayed with the girls for a while, and then one of the girls said "shots have been fired" or "shot has been fired". A short while later another shot was fired.

Q Before you continue, I show you Prosecution's Exhibit 126 and ask you to look at it and ask you what it represents.

A That's a sketch of the Bierbrauer Weg.

Q What is shown on that sketch?

A There is the bunker, Haus Felsenkeller, furthermore, the Bierbrauer Weg--up here the stairs go down to the cellar, here the street goes to the railroad crossing.

Q Now when this woman told you she heard a shot--come over to this enlargement of the diagram I have just shown you and tell us where you were. Now I would direct your attention to the fact that the map is upside down.

PRESIDENT: If it's more convenient for the witness to have the map turned around, I suggest we turn it around.

PROSECUTION: Would it be convenient for the witness to identify the things on the map upside down as it is, or would you prefer to have it turned up?

WITNESS: It's all right this way. It's better this way.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Continue.

A The spot where I was standing isn't on this map anymore.

PROSECUTION: The witness indicates a point to the left of the map, which would be in a northerly direction and off the map.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Continue.

A A short while later a second shot was fired. I ran up the street, and from over there I saw men running towards me.

Q Now before you tell that part of the story, you say that this woman told you she heard a shot. Was she along side of you at that time?

A Yes.

Q Now I am referring to the first shot. Did you hear that shot?

A No.

Q Why not?

A I can't hear so well.

Q Did you hear the second shot?

A Yes.

Q Now continue and tell us what happened?

A After I heard the second shot, I run up the street in the direction of the Felsenkeller.

Q Is that in a southerly direction?

A Yes, in a southerly direction.

Q Then what happened?

A I saw men coming towards me and behind them a few men.

Q Now point out on the map where you were at that time.

A I run the street up here (indicating). The first man, the flier, might have been up here.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to a spot which would be about where the word "shot" is near the star where it says "Hamman shot here".

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Continue.

A On the way, two, three, it might have been four shots were fired.

Q And then what happened?

A When I came to this spot, the flier was lying on the ground, dead.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the star along the words "Hamman shot here."

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A Now the people came running.

Q Then what happened?

I pushed the people back a little bit--then I went over to the flier. There was standing Hammann, Nahrgang and Guenther.

Q What was Guenther's first name, if you recall?

A Karl.

Q Then what happened?

A We picked up the flier and carried him along here to the garden, Neber's Felsenkeller.

Q When you say along here, do you mean along Bierbrauer Weg?

A Yes, over the Bierbrauer Weg.

Q Then what happened?

A We put the flier down in the garden, and here Michel came with the second officer.

Q Before you continue, go back to the place where you say the flier was shot.

A Yes.

Q Now when you heard the three or four shots, did you see the flier, and what he was doing?

A I saw how the flier turned and dropped to the ground.

Q How far away were you from him at that time?

A It might have been 15 or even 20 steps.

Q Now come back to the place where you say the flier was brought and continue and tell the court what happened.

A We put the flier down in the garden next to the stairs, and there Eichel came with the second officer and asked "what has happened"? Hammann reported to him, "flier shot while trying to escape." Eichel said "good". A short while later Eichel asked what kind of a ring the flier was wearing. He asked, "The same ring as the flier on the afternoon?" Well, the flier was wearing a Jew ring like the other flier in the afternoon.

RING

Q Do you know a man by the name of Hammann?

A Yes.

Q Did you see him there at any time?

A Hammann was present there.

Q Would you recognize Hammann if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

PROSECUTION: Before the witness identifies the accused, tell him to wait just a minute. I notice and bring to the Court's attention that some of the accused today are wearing glasses that haven't worn them before. I would like to have the accused remove their glasses.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment. That's a natural thing--they have been wearing their glasses for the normal course of living. I object, and I also object to the intimation, too.

PROSECUTION: Whether the glasses were put on for the first time today makes no difference. I would still like the Court to ask them to remove their glasses.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: Number 12 is Hammann.

PRESIDENT: Do you still desire that?

PROSECUTION: Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT: All the accused will take their glasses off.

(Thereupon the accused did as directed.)

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Did you know a man by the name of Nahrgang?

A Yes.

Q Did you see him at any time that evening?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the Court, will you point him out?

A Number 11.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Hammann wearing Number 12, and the accused Nahrgang wearing Number 11.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Did you know a man by the name of Hans Eichel?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the Court room, will you point him out?

A Number 6.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Eichel, number 6.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Who was Eichel?

A Police Director.

PRESIDENT: Direct the accused that they can put their glasses on.

(Whereupon the Interpreter did as directed.)

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q At the time the flier fell down on Bierbrauer Weg, at that time did you have any conversation with Hammann?

A I said to Hamman, "How could you shoot?" He answered, "I saw you coming."

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. PACHAEL:

Q When was the first time you saw Eichel that evening?

(Fabian-Cross)

A In the garden after I had brought the flier into the garden.

Q Are you sure he was not where the flier was lying in the road and referred to the flier or someone as "son-of-a-bitch"?

A I don't know that.

Q You were standing where the flier was lying in the road, were you not?

A Near? Yes.

Q Did you see Michel there?

A I don't know that.

Q How far were you from the flier when the shots were fired?

A I was on my way, I can't say anymore.

Q How far away were you from the person who fired the shots?

A I don't know that, either.

Q If the flier had gotten past that point at which he was shot, would he have been in open country?

A No, only along the road.

Q What was on the sides of that road?

A On the left, in the direction in which the flier was running, there were gardens, and on the right there were previously beer cellars.

Q Do you mean by that depressions in the ground?

A Yes, it was pretty deep depressions.

PROSECUTION: Any further questions? Any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No. The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: I call the witness Karl Guenther. During the first part of the examination of this witness, the Prosecution makes the same request--to have the accused remove their eye glasses.

PRESIDENT: The accused will remove their eye glasses.

(Whereupon the accused did as directed.)

KARL GUENTHER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Karl Guenther.

Q Where do you live?

A Offenbach.

Q How old are you?

A 47.

Q What is your business?

A At the time I am fire protection police.

Q What time are you referring to?

A Now.

Q Now, directing your attention to February, 1945, were you a member of the fire protection police then?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember the 22nd of February, 1945?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember anything unusual happening on that day?

A Yes.

Q On that date date what rank did you hold?

A I was a sergeant of the protective fire police.

Q Did you know a man by the name of Paul Nahrgang?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, will you point him out?

A Number 11.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused wearing Number 11.

Q Did you know a man by the name of Philipp Hammann?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, will you point him out?

A Number 12.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Hammann, Number 12.

Q Did you ever know a man by the name of Bernhard Fay?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, will you point him out?

A Number 13 (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Fay, wearing Number 13.

Q Did you know a man by the name of Hans Eichel?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, will you point him out?

A Number 6.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Number 6.

Q Did you know a man by the name of Josef Kiwitt?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, please point him out.

A Number 7.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Kiwitt, Number 7.

Q Directing your attention again to the 22nd of February, 1945, do you remember anything unusual happening on that day?

A On this day a flyer was shot.

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit 126 and ask if you are familiar with this sketch? (Hands document to witness.)

A Yes.

Q What does that represent, in general?

A This sketch shows in general how this incident happened.

Q Where did the incident happen?

A On the Bierbrauer Way, near the Felsenkeller.

Q Tell the court what happened, and in doing so come over to this large scale enlargement of the small map I just showed you. I call the witness' attention to the fact that the wall map is upside down. Would you prefer to have it stay that way or do you want it right side up?

A It can stay the way it is.

Q Tell the court what happened?

A On the 22nd of February I was standing here on the gate. On this evening I was standing here on the gate. Then from a northerly direction two policemen came with a flyer.

Q Did they come along the Bierbrauer Way?

A They came this way (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to a place on Bierbrauer Way right next to the Haus Felsenkeller.

Q Continue.

A From this side the guard came(indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to a place on Bierbrauer Way south of the gate, and he pointed showing the direction of the people going north.

Q Continue.

A And then one of the policemen asked, "Who has something to say here?" Then we said, Jaeger, Zahn and myself, he should go into the guardroom and ask. Then Zahn went with him into the guardroom in order to tell the guard--the sergeant of the guard. A short while later the policeman came out again and said, "Over here." Then they walked up this way (indicating).

Q When you say "they", to whom are you referring?

A The two policemen and the flyer.

Q Then what happened?

(Guenther - Direct)

A And Fay accompanied them. A short while later I entered the guardroom too through the gate and came approximately to this point (indicating).

Q Point to that again, please.

A (Witness indicates).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the dotted line just opposite the guardroom.

Q Continue.

A Hammann came out of the guardroom, and when we were close together a call was heard from up front, "He has escaped."

Q You say a call came from up front. Will you point to the general area of that call on this map?

A From up there (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed up in the general area of the wood shack and the 25 steps.

Q Then what happened?

A Then Hammann and I went out through the gate, and here Jaeger was standing. There Hammann took Jaeger's rifle. Then Hammann ran down this way (indicating), and me, too.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to Bierbrauer Way in a northerly direction.

A (continuing) And the flyer was there where they came out there on the road.

Q Before that happened, and while you were back here near the guardroom, and when you heard the holler from the area up near the steps, did you hear anything else?

A You heard only from up front that he is escaping.

Q What did you hear?

A That the flyer had escaped.

Q Do you know who said that?

A There were several voices.

Q Did you hear anything else besides voices?

A No.

Q Now continue with your story.

A Hammann ran up there. Me too. Then several voices called "Halt".

Q Where did this happen? Will you point that out on the map?

A It was approximately here (indicating). And then Hammann shot.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the arrow at the end of the dotted line right near the star which says "Hammann shot here."

Q Continue.

A After several shots the flyer fell to the ground. Then I passed Hammann and wanted to go over to the flyer, and when I had nearly reached him Hammann shot once more.

Q Did you see that?

A Yes.

Q Was the flyer armed?

A I didn't see that. I don't think so.

Q What did Hammann shoot the flyer with?

A With a carbine.

Q Then what happened?

A Hammann shot, and then I wanted to go over to the flyer. Hammann shot once more. Then I told him, "Phillip, stop it." And then Hammann said, "I can't see any man suffer." Then, since so many people were coming over, I went back to hold back the crowd. When I was holding back the crowd Eichel arrived, too. And then Eichel asked what had happened, and Hammann said, "Flyer shot while trying to escape."

Q Did Eichel say anything after that?

A He said, "Good." Then we went over, picked up the flyer, and carried him over to approximately this point here (indicating).

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness pointed to the place just under the words "Garden, body brought here."

Q Then what happened?

A Then one of the policemen said, "The flyer is carrying a watch." Then I took off his watch and gave it to Eichel. This moment Eichel saw that the flyer was still wearing a ring, and then he said, "Let me see this ring, whether it is the same Jew ring as the flyer had in the afternoon." Then Fay took off the ring and gave it to Eichel too, and Eichel gave these things to a lieutenant or first lieutenant. I don't know who that was.

Q Did anything else happen that you know of?

A No.

PROSECUTION: Go back to your seat.

(Whereupon the witness resumed the witness stand.)

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Does that chart show correct distances to indicate where Hammann shot and where the flyer lay, as compared to the rest of the chart?

A Pretty closely.

Q Will you go up to the map and show exactly where Hammann was standing when he fired the first shot?

(Whereupon the witness assumed a position near the chart.)

A The first shot he fired while he was still running.

Q Where was he at the time he fired the first shot?

A Approximately in this height over here.

Q Do not move your stick. Point to the spot.

A Approximately this height (indicating).

MR. RACHAEL: Indicating a spot just about the head of the arrowhead and slightly below it, of the dotted line.

Q And how many shots did you say Hammann fired?

A A total of four shots.

Q Was he running when he fired the second shot?

A Yes. A few shots he fired while he was still running.

Q How many shots did he fire while he was running?

A I don't know that so exactly anymore.

Q Was that a single action carbine?

Tr 86 - 90
1-24-47:JGL cD;3

A That was an Italian carbine with six shots.

MR. RACHMEL: May we suspend until Monday morning, if the court please?

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

(Thereupon the court adjourned at 1700 hours until 0900 hours, Monday, January 27, 1947.)

(Thereupon court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Kau and Dr. Trost, who are absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the court reporter and the interpreter are present.

KARL GUENTHER, called as a witness by the prosecution, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that the witness Karl Guenther has resumed the stand.

PRESIDENT: The witness is reminded he is still under oath.

DR. RACHEL: Dr. Aheimer would like to interrogate the witness.

QUESTIONS BY Dr. AHEIMER:

Q Mr. Guenther, you said on direct examination that the incident about which you told us happened in the evening of the 22nd of February 1945. At what hour?

A It was eight-thirty or nine o'clock.

Q Was it light or dark that evening?

A I can't remember exactly any more. It wasn't light.

Q Can you remember whether the moon was in the sky or not?

A I can't say whether the moon was shining.

Q On this evening when did you see the accused Ushrgang for the first time?

A Before the incident happened or afterwards?

Q Before.

A Ushrgang was at the guard room.

(Guenther-Cross)

Q While you were standing at the gate after the two policemen had come to you, when did you see Wahrgang then for the first time?

A Then I saw Wahrgang at the place of the crime after the crime had happened.

Q You mean the spot where the flier had been shot?

A Yes.

Q You said that one of the policemen went to the guard room to ask for the sergeant of the guard. Did you yourself see that the policeman went into the guard room?

A I couldn't see that from the spot.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Adam Jaeger?

A Yes.

Q Where was this man on that evening?

A At that time he was standing at the gate.

Q During the time this one policeman went to the guard room, were you standing in the immediate vicinity of Adam Jaeger?

A Yes, in the vicinity.

Q You said you could not see whether one of the policemen went into the guard room. Was Jaeger able to see it?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question.

THE WITNESS: I can't say that.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DR. AUBERER: That is all.

MR. BACHAR: The defense has no further questions.

PROSECUTION: Any questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

(Guenther-Cross)

PROSECUTION: Call the witness Karl Schneider.

KARL SCHNEIDER, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Karl Schneider.

Q How old are you?

A 45.

Q Are you at present a prisoner of war at Dachau?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever hear of a man by the name of Goehrendt?

A Yes.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q Will you look around the courtroom and if he is present will you point him out?

A Yes, 10.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Goehrendt wearing number 10.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I [redacted] your attention to the 22nd of February 1945. Did you have any conversation with Goehrendt on that day?

A Yes.

Q What was that all about?

A A captured flier was brought in. We got the order from Goehrendt to bring a captured flier from Bieber to Offenbach.

Q What happened?

A We got all his things in a briefcase and a letter in which all his personal things were mentioned.

Q On that day were you a member of the German police force?

A Yes.

Q What rank did you hold?

A Corporal of the police.

Q About what time of the day did this all happen?

A It was in the evening.

Q Then what happened?

A We went with the flier to the headquarters of the order police and put down the briefcase with his personal belongings.

Q Where was this located?

A Corner Dom Street and Kaiser in Offenbach.

Q Then what happened?

A Then Captain Kiwitt was called.

Q Who was Captain Kiwitt?

A He was at the headquarters.

Q Did Captain Kiwitt say anything at that time?

A Yes, he took us to the next room.

Q What did he say?

A He told us, "How can you have the nerve to bring this man down here? Why didn't you do away with him?"

Q Would you recognize Captain Kiwitt if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q Take a look around the courtroom. If he is among those present will you point him out?

A Number 7.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Kiwitt number 7.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Then what happened?

A He asked us then, "Are you married? Do you have children?"

Q What else?

A We answered, "Yes."

Q Then what did he say?

A Then he asked, "Are you of the reserve or are you a member of the regular police?"

Q What did you say?

A We said, "We are of the reserve."

Q Was anyone else with you at that time?

A In the room?

Q Yes.

A Michel.

Q Who was he?

A Michel was a sergeant of the police.

Q What else did Kiwitt tell you?

A Kiwitt then said furthermore, "These are the men who killed your women and children."

Q Then what happened?

A "The flier has to be chained by you."

Q Who said that?

A Kiwitt.

Q What else did he say?

A We said, "We wouldn't do that, he is a prisoner of war."

Q Then what happened?

A Then he said, "Get out. The flier has to be shot."

Q Then what happened?

A Then we answered, "We wouldn't do that."

Q Then what happened?

A And then he said, "If you don't do it you know what's going to happen."

Q Then what did you do?

A Then we were turned out of the room. We left with the flier and said we would return to Bieber.

Q Then what did you do?

A Then we left and while we were on our way somebody called, "Michel, over here." I couldn't recognize who was calling. Then the same voice said, "Schneider, you stay with the flier." When Michel returned I asked him who that was. He said it was Lieutenant Alt.

Q What was Alt's first name?

A Might be Adolf; I dont' know for sure.

Q Who was Alt?

A Lieutenant of the police.

Q Then what happened?

A Then I said to Michel, "What did he want from you?" Michel said, "I told Lieutenant Alt we would bring the flier back to Bieber." Then an alarm was given and flak artillery was fired, so on our way to Bieber we went in the direction of the bunker.

Q Where was the bunker?

A Bierbrauer Way.

Q Then what happened?

A While we were still a little bit away from the bunker Michel said, "It is getting dangerous, run away and I will wait near the gate for you."

Q What gate are you referring to?

A The entrance to the bunker through the garden.

Q Did you take the flier to the bunker on Bierbrauer Way?

A Yes.

Q After you got there what happened?

A A guard was standing there and asked, "Whom do you have with you?" So we said, "We have a captured flier. We tried to hand him over at headquarters but we coul'n't get rid of him. We are supposed to shoot him but we are not going to do it, and therefore, we are returning him to Bieber. We would like to take cover until the danger is over."

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q Then what did you do?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question. I took this witness up to the point where he brought the flier to the bunker. That is as far as I went. He is going into direct examination.

MR. RACHAEL: I will make the witness my own witness.

PROSECUTION: You cannot do that. I object to that strenuously.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

MR. RACHAEL: This witness is a witness to all the facts that took place in this area during this entire proceeding.

PROSECUTION: The defense is commenting on something that is not in the evidence and I object again.

MR. RACHAEL: I believe the court should know what has happened.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MR. RACHAEL:

Q You spoke to Captain Kiwitt in his office, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Did he tell you to kill the flier?

A Yes.

Q Did you speak to me in my office one day last week?

A I think two weeks ago.

Q Did I ask you at that time whether Kiwitt had given you an order to kill the flier?

A Yes.

Q Did you answer me at that time that he did not?

(Schneider-Cross)

A The sentence which he used, "The flier has to be done away with", I took as an order.

Q Did you not answer me when I asked you whether Kiwitt gave you an order to kill the flier, that he did not give you such an order?

A No.

MR. RACHAEL: Dr. Buerger would like to ask some questions.

QUESTIONS BY DR. BUERGER:

Q On direct examination you said you were sent to Offenbach by Goehrendt, is that right?

A Yes.

Q What was Goehrendt's order?

A To deliver the flier at Headquarters.

Q When you arrived at Headquarters, who was present there when you arrived with the flier?

A First Lieutenant Trautmann.

Q At that time were you given already an order in regard to the flier?

A Not by 1st Lieutenant Trautmann.

QUESTIONS BY DR. AHEDER:

Q Mr. Schneider, what was the purpose of your going with the flier in the vicinity of the Bierbrauer Way?

A Because there was an air raid alarm and we were looking for cover.

Q That means the only reason for you to go in the neighborhood of the Bierbrauer Way was to find cover?

A Yes.

Q At what time of the day did you arrive at the Bierbrauer Way?

A It might have been quarter to nine or nine o'clock. I don't know exactly any more.

Q Was there a blackout at that time?

A Yes, there was a blackout.

Q Was it possible to see a lot through moonlight or was it dark?

A You couldn't see very much.

Q Can you tell us how many meters you could see at that time?

A I don't know exactly any more.

Q Approximately -- could you see five meters or ten meters?

A No, you couldn't see.

Q That means you could see only for a shorter distance than five meters, three or four meters, is that right?

A Yes.

Q You said before that at the gate of the Pierbrauer Hay you met a guard post. Did you know this guard before?

A No.

Q Did you meet one or two men there?

A We were close to the guard, which might have been one meter.

Q You misunderstood me. I want to know whether there were one or two men.

A I don't know so exactly any more.

DR. [illegible]: That is all.

PROSECUTION: Are there any questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibit Numbers 134 and 134-A for identification, please?

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibit Number 134 and 134-A for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Call the witness Eric Wahlgut.

ERIC WAHLGUT called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

(Thereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Eric Wahlgut.

Q Are you a United States Army War Department civilian on duty here with War Crimes at Dachau?

A I am.

Q Are you on duty as an investigator in this case now on trial before this court?

A I am.

Q Were you so employed on the 14th of December 1946?

A I was.

Q At that time were you a captain in the Army of the United States?

A Yes, I was.

Q I show you Prosecution Exhibit which has been marked 134 for identification and ask you to look at that paper and tell us whose signature appears at the bottom thereof?

A That is the signature of Paul Nahrgang.

Q Is he one of the accused in this case?

A Yes, he is.

Q Whose signature appears below that of Paul Nahrgang?

A That is my signature.

Q What is that paper?

A That is a sworn statement in German of the incident that took place.

Q Was that sworn to before you?

A Yes, it was.

Q Was any force, duress or promises of reward made to Nehrgang at the time he signed that?

A No, he wasn't.

Q Do you speak and read and translate the German language fluently?

A Yes, I do.

Q Where did you learn the German language?

A In Germany.

Q When?

A As a child.

Q How many years did you spend in Germany?

A The first eight and a half years of my life, two months in 1936 and two and a half years in the army.

Q At the time Nehrgang signed this statement did he have any discussion with you about any corrections to be made on it?

A Yes, he did.

Q Did you speak with him in the German language?

A Yes.

Q Did he make any corrections on that instrument?

A Yes, he made three corrections.

Q Did he make those corrections voluntarily?

A Yes, he did.

Q Did he initial them?

A He did.

Q Now, that instrument was taken on what date, or was signed and sworn to on what date?

A That was taken on the morning of the 11th of December about ten o'clock.

(Wehlgut-Direct)

Q About what time?

A Ten o'clock.

Q Were you present in my office most of the morning of the 14th of December 1946?

A I was.

Q Do you remember what day of the week it was?

A It was on Saturday.

Q Were you present when I served Paul Mahrgang with the process, charge sheets in this case?

A I was.

Q About what time of the day was that?

A They were served about a quarter to twelve.

Q On the same day, 14th of December 1946?

A Same day.

Q So that he was served with process by me after he signed and swore to that statement, is that correct?

A That is correct.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to cross examine him on the statement.

PROSECUTION: It has not been offered in evidence as yet.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then I ask that it all be stricken from the record as being purposeless.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence a document that has been marked Prosecution Exhibit 134 for identification, which is a sworn statement in German of the accused Paul Mahrgang, sworn to on the 14th of December 1946 before Erle P. Mahlgut, Captain, U.S. Army, together with a true and correct English translation thereof, which has been marked 134-A for identification, and ask that these documents be received in evidence and be made a part of the record.

(Mahlgut-Direct)

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes, I have an objection but I would like to cross examine the witness before stating my objection.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q On the day you administered this alleged oath, what was your official capacity?

A Interrogator, pre-trial interpreter.

Q By what virtue did you assume at that time to administer a binding oath?

A At that time I was still a captain in the Army.

Q Was the administration of the oath by you based solely on the fact that as a captain in the Army you had a right to administer an oath?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question. The Court Martial Manual says that an officer detailed for duty with the Judge Advocate General's Department, particularly with War Crimes, has the power and authority to administer an oath.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Were you in the Judge Advocate Genral's Department at that time?

A I was with War Crimes.

Q Were you a member of the Judge Advocate General's Department on that day?

PROSECUTION: If the court please, we can save the court's time. This man was an officer on that day, he worked for me. He was detailed to this office, which is a Judge Advocate Department function. I can get the Court Martial Manual if the court desires.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q At the time you took this oath, you knew, did you not, that Mahrgang was to be served papers that very day?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question as entirely irrelevant.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

THE WITNESS: I did.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense objects to the receipt of this exhibit, first, on the ground that the person who undertook to administer the oath was under no circumstances authorized to administer an oath on the ground that at the time the statement was made it was known definitely then that Wahrgang was a defendant, an accused in this case, and consequently, to obtain a statement from him at that time was a serious infraction of his rights, and on the ground given throughout this case, that to obtain a sworn statement from the accused, particularly under these circumstances, where he couldn't take the stand right now and deny under oath those statements, is a serious deprivation of the substantial rights of the accused.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order. The objection is overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like a ruling, may it please the Court, at this time specifically on the question as to whether the witness was authorized to administer oaths at that time, in view of the position he testified he held.

PRESIDENT: The Court is of that opinion.

PROSECUTION: Will the Exhibits 134 and 134-A be received in evidence?

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibits 134 and 134-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 134 and 134-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 134 and 134-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

DR. AMEIMER: I have a question.

QUESTIONS BY DR. AMEIMER:

Q How was the text of this statement made up?

A It was given to me by Colonel Dalnell.

Q Do you know whether the accused Nahrgang was interrogated before?

A No I don't. He probably was.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that "He probably was" be stricken from the record.

PRESIDENT: The motion is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DR. AMEIMER:

Q Did you bring to the attention of the accused Nahrgang that he couldn't be forced to make statements under oath which could be used against him?

A No, I did not.

(Mahlgut-cross)

PROSECUTION: I object to the question and move that the last last question and answer be stricken from the record on the the ground that the accused was not an accused at that time and therefore the question is irrelevant.

PRESIDENT: Motion is sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like the Court to have in mind and the record to indicate the fact that at the time this thing was done orders had been received from higher authority that this man was to be put to trial and that the charge sheets, as presented to this Court, had at that time been approved by higher authority.

PRESIDENT: The Court will consider that at the proper time.

PROSECUTION: The record should also show and I would like to ask the court to take knowledge of the fact that the Prosecution, despite those orders, could refuse or rather abstain from making that man an accused if the evidence so warranted.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to state positively that that is not a subject for taking judicial notice.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

MR. RACTAN: The Defense has no further questions.

PROSECUTION: Are there any questions by the Court?

PRESIDENT: No. The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 134-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 134-A, followed by a translation thereof into the German language by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this document Prosecution Exhibit 135 for identification?

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 135 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence the sworn statement of Kimitt which has been previously marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibit 135. This was taken on 8 June 1948 and sworn to before Milton M. Crooks, Civilian Investigator-Examiner, AFO 633. We ask that this document be received in evidence, and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: The Defense objects to this statement on the grounds previously stated about statements having been made by an accused.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 135 will be received in evidence and made a partof the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 135.

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost whois absent on business of the defense; all the accused; the reporter and interpreter are present.

I hand you a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 136 for identification, and the English translation thereof Prosecution Exhibit 136A.

(Whereupon the documents in question were marked Prosecution Exhibits 136 and 136A for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence a sworn statement of the accused, Philipp Hammann, sworn to the 24th day of August 1945 before George A. Gray, Major, Air Corps, Investigator-Examiner. This document has previously been marked Exhibit 136 for identification and is in the handwriting of the accused. The prosecution also offers in evidence a true and correct translation thereof which has been marked 136A for identification. The prosecution asks that these documents be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: Defense objects for the same reason previously stated, the same reason on the matter of swearing an accused.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 136 and 136A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 136 and 136A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 136 and 136A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 136A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 136A, the English translation of the statement of Philipp Hammann, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 136 by the interpreter in the German language.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 137 for identification.

(Whereupon the document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence the sworn testimony of Philipp Hammann taken at Dachau the 15th of May 1946 before Milton Crook, Investigator-Examiner, APO 653. This document has previously been marked for identification Exhibit 137. The prosecution asks that it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: Same objection as to the previous statements.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 137 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution asks the court's permission to read Exhibit 137.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 137, the statement of Philipp Hammann, followed by a translation into the German language by the interpreter.)

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

LAW MEMBER: The court wishes to ask the translator this question -- In the sentence which has been translated in Exhibit 136A, "I followed him from 80 to 100 meters and shouted 'halt' at him two or three times", will the interpreter give the actual translation of the word "from" as used in that sentence.

THE INTERPRETER: It should say "approximately 80 to 100 meters" instead of "from 80 to 100 meters". "Ungefahr 80 bis 100 meters" should be translated "approximately 80 to 100 meters."

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and ask that it be marked Prosecution Exhibit 138 for identification.

(Whereupon the document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 138 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence the sworn testimony of Bernhard Fay taken on the 9th day of May 1946 at Dachau, Germany before Milton Crook, Investigator-Examiner. This document has previously been marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibit 138. The prosecution asks it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MR. RACHAEL: Same objection as to the other statements, if it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 138 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission of the court to read Exhibit 138.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 138, the statement of Bernhard Fay, followed by a translation into the German language by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 139 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 139 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, at this time we call the Court's attention to the fact that we previously pointed out to the Court that there would be evidence presented during presentation of Charge 7 that would also be applicable to Charge 8. I am now specifically referring to the pathological report that went into the presentation of that part of the case wherein it referred to the body of Archibald Monroe. That part of the evidence is applicable to Charge 8, which is now being presented to this Court.

Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence the affidavit of Captain Marvin Kuschner, Medical Corps, with a true and correct translation thereof attached thereto, and with a photograph attached thereto to which reference is made in said affidavit, which was subscribed and sworn to on 29 April 1946. The Prosecution asks that this be received in evidence and made a part of the record. This has been marked for identification as Prosecution's Exhibit 139.

MR. RACHAEL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 139 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution requests permission to read Prosecution's Exhibit 139.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 139, followed by a translation into German by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 140 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 140 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence an affidavit which has been previously identified as Prosecution's Exhibit 140, with a true and correct translation thereof attached thereto, and also a photograph attached thereto, to which reference has been made in said affidavit. This is the affidavit of Captain Marvin Kuschner dated 29 April 1946. Prosecution asks that this be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objections by the Defense?

MR. MACHALL: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution's Exhibit 140 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission of the Court to read Prosecution's Exhibit 140.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 140, followed by a translation into German by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, that concludes the presentation of the proof offered by the Prosecution in support of the main, the allegations contained in Charge 8. The Prosecution will now proceed with the evidence in support of Charge Number 9. I call the witness Karin Schornweber.

KARIN SCHORNWEBER, called as a witness by the Prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Will you please state your full name?

A Karin Schornweber.

Q Where do you live?

A Wiesbaden.

Q How old are you?

A 28.

Q Now, directing your attention to 17 March 1945, where were you on that day?

A Wallrabenstein.

Q Do you remember anything unusual happening on that day?

A Yes, an American flier parachuted.

Q And what happened?

A The flier parachuted and was taken prisoner by the SS.

(Schornweber-Direct)

Q And then what happened?

A The flier was taken away to the school house and from there to the Mayor.

Q And then?

A Then I didn't see him any more.

Q Did you ever know a man by the name of Heinrich Michely?

A Yes.

Q Did you see him on or about that time?

A Yes.

Q When and where?

A Sunday evening.

Q Was that in March, 1945?

A Yes.

Q Tell the Court what happened when you saw Michely.

A Michely was very drunk and he was wearing a wrist watch and a little bracelet of an American.

Q Where was that?

A In a tavern.

Q Where was the tavern?

A In Jacoby, near Wallrabenstein.

Q Now, referring to what happened in the tavern, tell the Court exactly what happened in respect to Michely.

A I asked Michely where from he had the wrist watch, and the bracelet; and he told me an American prisoner had given him those as a present. Then I told him, "You don't believe this yourself,"; and then he said, "If you want to know it exactly, I did away with him and he is lying up there."

Q Now how long had Michely been in the tavern before he said that?

A He was there ahead of me.

Q What was he doing in the tavern?

A He was drinking.

Q Do you know to what extent he had been drinking? Say that if you know.

A He said he was drinking schnapps.

Q Would you recognize Michely if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Number 16.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Michely, wearing number 16.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Now, from your observation of Michely, were you able to tell to what extent he had been drinking?

A He was very drunk.

Q Did you ever know a man by the name of Goss?

A Yes.

Q Did you see him in March, 1945?

A Yes.

Q Was that about the time that Michely told you about the flier?

A Yes.

Q What happened?

want to know it exactly, I did away with him and he is lying up there."

Q Now how long had Michely been in the tavern before he said that?

A He was there ahead of me.

Q What was he doing in the tavern?

A He was drinking.

Q Do you know to what extent he had been drinking? Say that if you know.

A He said he was drinking schnapps.

Q Would you recognize Michely if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the court room, will you point him out?

A Number 16.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Michely, wearing number 16.

QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q Now, from your observation of Michely, were you able to tell to what extent he had been drinking?

A He was very drunk.

Q Did you ever know a man by the name of Goss?

A Yes.

Q Did you see him in March, 1945?

A Yes.

Q Was that about the time that Michely told you about the flier?

A Yes.

Q What happened?

A When the flier was being taken away, Goss said he should keep on walking, otherwise he would kick him--that's all.

Q Was Goss armed at the time?

A I don't know that.

Q Do you know whether or not the American flier was armed?

A I don't know that, either.

Q Where did all this happen? I am referring now to Goss.

A In the open.

Q Whereabouts with reference to the tavern?

A That was when the flier had parachuted.

End ta 100,
ps fols

Q Was it anywhere near the schoolhouse in the village?

A Yes, a few steps away.

Q Just exactly what did you see and what did you hear? I am referring to the incident near the schoolhouse.

A The flier was brought to the schoolhouse and was taken into the schoolhouse building, and I heard only a lot of noise, and that is all I saw.

Q What kind of noise did you hear?

A It sounded to me like beatings.

Q You refer to the fact that in the ——

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. "I think it sounded like beatings." I think that is definitely leading. The witness ought to describe what she heard, not what it sounded to her like. I ask it be stricken from the record.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

PROSECUTION: I think it is a rule of evidence that a person from his experience can make a statement as to whether or not a particular sound sounds like a particular thing. This witness is 28 years of age, was outside of the schoolhouse, and heard sounds in there. I think she was old enough to be able, of her own common knowledge, from normal experience, to state what those sounds sounded like.

PRESIDENT: Let the witness state what she heard.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Describe to the court, as best you can, the nature of the sounds that you say you heard from the schoolhouse.

A I heard only slaps, beatings, and loud voices.

Q Referring back to the time you say you saw Michely leave the tavern, you said something about a bracelet. Did you look at that bracelet?

A Yes.

Q Describe it to the court.

A It was a silver bracelet with a silver plate.

Q Did you notice anything else about it?

A The name.

Q What name?

A The first name, Jimmy.

Q Have you ever seen that kind of bracelet from that day to this?

A Yes.

Q When and where?

A With Americans.

Q Was there more than one name on the bracelet? You mentioned the fore name. Was there more than one name on the bracelet?

A Yes, there was another letter and a family name.

PROSECUTION: You may cross examine.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR FAXON:

Q You have stated here on direct examination that you remember this as March 17th, is that correct?

A The middle of March. I don't know whether it was the 17th of March.

Q You also mentioned that when you saw Michely the next time, it was on a Sunday night, it was March 17th, or whatever this night or day was that this parachutist came down. Was that the same Sunday?

A That was on a Saturday.

Q Were you there at the schoolhouse when Michely brought in the flier?

A I didn't see Michely.

Q Who did you see bring the flier in?

A Goss and a few others.

Q Had they just captured the flier at that time?

A Yes.

Q What time of day was that?

A It was approximately 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Q Had you known about this flier being in the vicinity before they brought him into the schoolhouse?

A I saw when he parachuted.

Q About what time was that?

A It was approximately 2 o'clock.

Q Was he then immediately captured by Goss?

A First by another SS man.

Q Who was that?

A I don't know.

Q You knew Goss personally before you saw him that day, did you?

A I didn't know him personally.

Q You knew him by sight?

A Yes.

Q Was this your home, this town?

A No.

Q How did you happen to be there that day?

A I was evacuated to Wallrabenstein.

Q Did you stay there at the schoolhouse or in the vicinity of the schoolhouse after they took the flier inside?

A Yes.

Q Did you see Michely at that time?

A No.

Q How long was the flier inside the schoolhouse?

A Perhaps ten minutes.

Q You stated to the court that at that time you heard beatings and slaps, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Will you describe to the court what you mean by beatings and slappings that you could hear from outside the building?

A There was a slapping noise.

Q Just what do you mean by that? Somebody slapped in the face with a hand or with a stick?

A I don't know that.

Q Do you think that you could have heard someone slapping his hand on a table, like that?

A No, it didn't sound like that.

Q Then how did it sound?

A It sounded like the way you slap somebody.

Q Did you ever slap anyone?

A Yes.

Q Did it sound like that, is that the idea?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever get slapped yourself?

A Me? No.

Q Did you hear any outcry from anyone as though they were being hurt?

A No.

Q Now, you say they were inside for about ten minutes, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And you waited outside during that time, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And did you go inside?

A No.

Q Were you outside when they brought the flier out to go to the burgomeister's office?

A No, then I wasn't there any more.

Q When was it that you saw the flier the next time?

A Not at all.

Q Didn't you testify on direct examination that you saw him being taken to the burgomeister's office?

A I didn't see it; I heard it.

Q You have placed the time that the flier was inside the schoolhouse at about ten minutes. What did you do after they took the flier inside the schoolhouse?

A Several women were standing in front of the schoolhouse, and talked about it.

Q Did you stand there and talk with them?

A Yes.

Q On this particular day, did you ever see the flier again after the first time he was brought into the schoolhouse?

A No.

Q Did you ever hear of anyone who saw them bring the flier out of there to take him to the burgomeister's house?

A Yes.

Q You talked to those people, did you?

A Yes.

Q Did anyone ever tell you that this flier showed any signs of being slapped or beaten after he was brought out of that schoolhouse?

A No.

Q The sole evidence you have got about slappings and beatings is what you think you heard inside the schoolhouse as you stood outside?

A Yes.

Q Did you see Michely at all that day?

A No.

Q As I understand it, it was the following day, which would be Sunday night, that you next saw Michely, is that right?

A That is right.

Q Before that time, however, had you heard about this particular flier in question being shot?

A No.

Q What time did you see Michely in the tavern Sunday night?

A 7 or 7:30.

Q How long had you been there in the tavern before you saw Michely?

A I just came there.

Q Michely was already there?

A Yes.

Q How long had you known Michely before this time?

A Perhaps two weeks.

Q Is that the length of time that you had been around that town?

A Yes.

Q You had been out drinking with Michely on other occasions, is that right?

A No, I hadn't gone out with him.

Q Were you drinking there with Michely during this conversation on this particular night?

A No.

Q How long did you and Michely talk there about this flier?

A Only these few moments.

Q Michely was very drunk when you got there, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And he was so drunk that he didn't know what he was talking about, is that right?

A Yes, I thought he was just bragging.

Q You hadn't heard about him shooting any flier yourself, is that right?

A No.

(SCHORNWEBER-Cross)

Q I believe you stated you saw this parachutist come out of the plane, is that right?

A I saw him hanging in the air.

Q What kind of a plane was it he came out of? Was it a bomber or a fighter plane?

A I couldn't distinguish it. I think it was a bomber, because many of them came out.

Q Were there both types of planes there that day, fighter or strafer planes, and also bombers?

A I don't know.

Q Were there big planes and little planes, both kinds there?

A Big, heavy bombers.

Q Any little planes?

A I didn't see any.

Q Had you been in the custom of going out on other occasions with Michely and drinking?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question. The witness said that she hadn't.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Had you ever seen Michely drunk before in the two weeks you had known him?

PROSECUTION: I object to that question on the ground that it is immaterial.

MAJOR SAXON: It is material.

PROSECUTION: The witness testified to admissions against interest made by the accused at a particular place and particular time.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

THE WITNESS: No.

Q Had you had occasion to see him as much as once a day for the two weeks prior to this?

A I saw him on several occasions in the evening.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Would you recognize Goss if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q Will you look around the courtroom and see if he is present, and if so, point him out?

A No. 15.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Goss, wearing No. 15.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Was Goss in the tavern at the same time that night with Michely?

A Yes.

Q What was he doing?

A He was sitting in the kitchen.

Q Do you know what he was doing?

A Drinking.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Did Michely tell you where he had secured the bracelet you have testified about?

A He said only his first American prisoner had given him this as a present.

Q You spoke of a plate or some kind of disc. Did Michely also have something besides the bracelet?

A No, there was one bracelet. It was altogether.

Q You mentioned a wristwatch?

A Yes.

Q How did he say he came by that?

A Yes, together with the bracelet.

Q From the same prisoner?

A Yes.

Q Did I understand you to say Michely told you this was the first and only American prisoner he had ever captured?

A No. He said, "This was my first one."

Q Just what did he mean by that?

A I don't know what he meant. I think that was his first American prisoner.

Q You mean it was the first American prisoner he had ever captured, is that right?

A Yes.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Didn't you tell him that you didn't believe that?

A Yes.

Q What did he say?

A Then he said, "If you want to know exactly, I did away with him, and he is lying out there."

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

Any questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

MAJOR SAXON: As I understand it, this witness and all of them are being held in case ———.

PROSECUTION: Let's not go into that again. They are all outside and will be here as long as you want them.

MAJOR SAXON: I just wanted to be sure.

PHILIPP BUHLMANN, called as a witness by the prosecution, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q State your full name.

A Philipp Buhlmann.

Q How old are you?

A 53.

Q Are you at present a prisoner of war in Dachau?

A Yes.

Q Were you a member of the German armed forces in World War II?

A No.

Q Were you a member of any police organization?

A Auxiliary police organization.

Q Where?

A Frankfurt-Main.

Q What do you mean by auxiliary police organization?

A That was an emergency squad.

Q How long were you a member of that auxiliary police organization?

A Since 1933.

Q Until when?

A Until the end of the war.

Q What rank did you hold?

A Master of the technical emergency squad.

Q What were your duties, as such?

A Our duties were to get into action in case of emergency, to build bridges over rivers in case of emergency, and to save people in danger of drowning.

Q Did you ever hear of the town of Wallrabenstein?

A Yes.

Q Where is that with respect to Frankfurt?

A Approximately 60 kilometers in the northwesterly direction of Frankfurt.

Q Directing your attention to the month of March, 1945, do you remember anything unusual happening in Wallrabenstein with respect to American fliers?

A Yes.

Q What happened?

A After I was in Bauerbach for two days from the hospital, I got orders from Dr. Goss to pick up a flier who had parachuted from a shot-down plane in a field near Bauerbach, and to deliver him to the headquarters of the police at Wallrabenstein.

Q Who was Dr. Goss?

A Dr. Goss was the director of the school.

Q Would you recognize him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q Take a look around the courtroom and see if he is among those present? Stand up.

A No. 15.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Goss, No. 15.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q You spoke about a school. What school were you talking about?

A There was a training school which had been organized, which was organized by the higher SS and police leaders in Wiesbaden.

Q What was the name of the school?

A It was a training school, W-12.

Q What do you mean by W?

A Wehrkreise 12, Service Command 12.

Q Did you ever hear of a man by the name of Best?

A Yes.

Q Who was he?

A Best was in charge of the school.

Q Would you recognise him if you saw him again?

A Yes.

Q If he is in the courtroom, will you point him out?

A No. 14.

PROSECUTION: Let the record indicate that the witness identified the accused Best, No. 14.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q What was his rank at that time in Wallrabenstein?

A He was major of the SS.

Q Did you ever hear of a school or undertaking known as the Wehrwolf?

A It was talked about, but I can't say anything exact about it.

Q Continue to tell the court what happened with respect to this flier about whom Dr. Goss gave you orders.

A I went out of Wallrabenstein approximately 1000 meters into the meadows, and I saw members of the army which had a flier in between them. I walked over to them and asked them to hand the flier over to me. The flier was handed over to me, and I returned with them to Wallrabenstein, to the headquarters office.

Q Then what happened?

A There the flier was searched, and since his weapons had been taken away already before, he was searched whether he had in his possession some other things, any other things.

Q Prior to that, just exactly what orders had you received from Dr. Goss with respect to this flier? Tell the court exactly.

A I had received the order to go into the meadows to pick up the flier and bring him to the headquarters building in Wallrabenstein.

Q Continue.

A After he was searched in the evening, about evening, I got the order to take the flier to a camp at Bauerbach, and on the way there, to do away with him.

Q Who told you to do away with him on the way?

A Dr. Goss. After darkness set in, I took my flier, took him over to Bauerbach, and found out that there was a labor camp of prisoners of war from the East.

Q Where was Bauerbach with respect to Wallrabenstein?

A Approximately seven kilometers in the northwesterly direction.

Q Then what happened?

A There I refused to leave the flier there, and I took him back to Wallrabenstein.

Q Then what happened?

A Following that, he was taken to Idstein in the Taunus by two men who were attached to the school.

Q Where was Idstein with relation to Wallrabenstein?

A Approximately five kilometers in a southerly direction.

Q Then what happened?

A Then the flier was brought there and delivered there at the police.

Q Did anything happen the following day?

A The next day another flier was taken prisoner.

Q Tell the court about that.

Q In the afternoon, I was told that Michely had captured a flier who had still his weapons and his knife in his possession. This flier was captured by Michely.

Q Then what happened?

A The flier was searched, and later on Dr. Goss talked to me who should bring the flier away.

Q What was said?

A I suggested that the two men who had taken away the flier the night before should take away also this flier, but then Dr. Goss answered me Michely would bring the flier away.

Q Was Michely on duty at that place at that time?

A Yes.

Q Who was his superior officer?

A Dr. Goss.

Q What did Michely do after that, if you know, with respect to the flier?

A When darkness set in, Michely left with the flier. Approximately one hour later, he returned and said he had shot the flier while he tried to escape.

Q Then what happened?

A I got orders from Dr. Goss to get four other men and to pick up the flier at the spot which was given to me, and to bring the flier to the cemetery.

Q Then what happened?

A I ordered four men to go with me, went to the spot with a stretcher, picked up the flier, and delivered him at the cemetery.

Q At any time since the flier was shot, did Dr. Goss say anything to you about it?

A He didn't say anything about the case Michely. He told me only that he had been bawled out because I hadn't shot the first flier.

Q Did he say bawled out by whom?

A Yes, by Major Best.

Q At any time after the flier was shot, did Major Best say anything to you?

A Approximately around the 24th or 25th of March, during a conference which Major Best had with Dr. Goss, and where I was present too, there Major Best complained about me and told me I should keep out of the view of the lieutenant general.

Q What lieutenant general was he talking about? To whom was he referring?

A He was referring to a lieutenant general Stroop.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until 1:30.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1200 hours.)

End ta 101
srh fols

AFTERNOON SESSION

(Whereupon court reconvened at 1340 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Trost, who is absent on business of the defense, all the accused, the court reporter and interpreter are present.

PHILIPP BUHLMANN, called as a witness by the prosecution, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the witness Philipp Buhlmann has resumed the stand.

You may cross examine.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have just one or two questions and then Major Saxon will take over.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q. Just before the noon recess you stated that someone said to you words to the effect, "Look out for the Lieutenant General." Just exactly what was it that you said at that time?

A Not to permit myself to be seen by him.

Q Who said that?

A Major Best said so.

Q Please, as near as you can remember, give the court Major Best's exact words to you as he said them.

A Major Best told me that I should not permit myself to be seen by General Best or I would get reprimanded.

(Buhlmann-Cross)

Q General who?

A By Gruppenfuehrer Stroop.

Q Did Major Best mention the name Stroop or did he just mention a title?

A Only the rank.

Q In other words, Major Best said something to the effect, "Don't let the lieutenant general see you," is that correct?

A Yes.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q How long had you been stationed at Wallrabenstein before this incident in March that you have been testifying to?

A Only a few days.

Q Where had you been stationed before that?

A In the hospital in Eichberg.

Q How long had you been with the police force?

A I wasn't in the police force at all. That was an auxiliary police organization.

Q As a member of the auxiliary police organization, what was to be your duty at Wallrabenstein?

A None at all.

Q That was a school, was it not, known as Wehrkreis 12 School?

A No, that was a school which was organized by the group and for which an expert for emergency aid was needed.

Q Were you to be an instructor in that school?

A Yes.

Q What rank did you hold in the auxiliary police?

A Master sergeant.

Q As I understand, you had come to Wallrabenstein to be an instructor and you were a master sergeant. Who was your immediate commander?

A Dr. Goss was.

Q Were you there on this particular day that Michely brought in a flier?

A Yes.

Q Were you in the schoolhouse?

A Yes.

Q Who else was there?

A Dr. Goss was there and several people were there too.

Q What time of day was it that Michely brought in the flier?

A In the afternoon.

Q About what time?

A Approximately between two and four o'clock.

Q Was the flier searched after he was brought in?

A Yes.

Q What was found on the flier's person?

A Two maps were found on the flier, a compass, a wallet, a pocket knife, bandages, the flier's package, cigarettes and a lighter.

Q Was there anything else found on him?

A I don't remember.

Q Was there a gun found on his person?

A That had been taken away from him before I saw the flier.

Q What kind of a gun was it?

A It was a pistol and a knife.

Q Was this additional equipment brought in at the same time the flier was brought in?

A Yes, Michely turned that in.

Q Was there anything else turned in by Michely besides the knife and the gun?

A I don't know.

Q Were you there while the flier was being questioned and searched?

A Yes.

Q Was this flier mistreated by anyone there?

A No.

Q Was he slapped or hit by any person there in the room?

A No.

Q Now, how long was the flier kept there in Dr. Goss' office?

A That wasn't in the office, that was a mess hall, dining room.

Q In the same school building?

A In the building next door.

Q How long a time was he questioned there by Dr. Goss?

A By Dr. Goss not at all, I don't think.

Q By whom was he questioned?

A Questioned by nobody.

Q How long was he kept there?

A That might have been until seven, seven-thirty, or eight o'clock in the evening.

Q Were you there all of the time that he was there?

A Yes, but not in the same room all the time.

Q What is the next thing that you recall after the afternoon had passed away and seven o'clock in the evening, so far as this flier is concerned?

A All I knew was that Michely then left with the flier.

Q About what time was that?

A I can't tell you exactly. It must have been approximately eight o'clock.

Q You have testified here that you were the person who got together other men to go get the body of the flier. Who gave you the order to do that?

A I got that order from Dr. Goss.

Q What was it that Michely said to Dr. Goss in your presence when he came back after having taken the flier out?

A When Michely first came back he was not with me in the beginning. I received the order to pick up the body of the flier from Dr. Goss and on that occasion I either saw Michely only for a short period or not at all.

Q On the afternoon that this flier was brought in for the first time, do you happen to know how Michely came to capture him?

A No, I don't know.

Q Getting back to the time when he was brought in and searched, did you see any wrist watches of any kind?

A No, he did not have a wrist watch while being searched.

Q I understand then that Michely didn't bring in any wrist watch, is that correct?

A No, I didn't see any such thing.

Q Did you see any bracelet?

A I only saw that afterwards.

Q Where did you see it?

A He had it on his wrist.

Q Who had it?

A Michely.

Q When you saw that bracelet on his wrist, did he have any American wrist watch on there?

A I don't know. He was wearing a wrist watch. I assumed it was his own.

Q Did you happen to see this particular flier parachute to earth?

A No.

Q Did you see planes over the little town of Wallrabenstein that day?

A No, I don't remember any.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

(Buhlmann-Cross)

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q You said the flier was not slapped when he was in the schoolhouse. Were you with him all the time he was in the schoolhouse?

A I wasn't in there during all the time but I was there during most of the time. The man who was guarding him was an elderly man 60 years of age and I am sure he didn't slap him.

Q Did you at any time leave the flier in anyone else's presence? I am referring to the schoolhouse.

A I didn't see anybody except these people from our place.

Q Do you know everything that happened to the flier while he was in the schoolhouse?

A Most of it.

Q Did you go out to get the flier's body?

A Yes.

Q How was he dressed?

A He was wearing coveralls, shoes. I don't know of anything else significant.

Q Was he armed?

A Well, until he was captured; not afterwards.

PROSECUTION: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I ask one more question?

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you know the name Lieutenant General Prustzmann?

A No.

Q Did you ever hear of some general who was in command of the school where you were located on the day in question?

A No, I never heard of anybody like that.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is all.

PROSECUTOR: Any questions by any member of the court?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these documents Prosecution Exhibit Numbers 111 and 111-A for identification?

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits Numbers 111 and 111-A for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the prosecution and offers in evidence the typewritten sworn statement dated 1 June 1946 of the accused Erwin Goss, sworn to before Lieutenant James F. Gutchen and William Smoke, Lieutenant Colonel, CAC, investigator-examiner. This document has previously been marked Exhibit 111 for identification. Prosecution also offers in evidence that which has previously been marked Prosecution Exhibit 111-A, which is a true and correct translation of Exhibit 111. Prosecution asks that these documents be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE: The defense objects to the acceptance of Exhibit 111 and 111-A, purporting to be the sworn statement of Erwin Goss and a translation thereof for the reason that it is a sworn statement and under the rules the accused cannot take the stand and refute the same under oath, and is therefore deprived of his substantial rights.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 111 and 111-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents previously marked Prosecution Exhibits P-111 and P-111A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits P-111 and P-111A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission of the Court to read Exhibits 141 and 141-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 141-A, followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 141 by the interpreter in the German language.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark for identification Prosecution Exhibits 142 and 142-A?

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence a typewritten sworn statement of the accused Baer, Ernst, dated 19 June 1946 and sworn to before James T. Latcher, 1st Lt., WCIT 3839, Investigator-Examiner. This statement has been previously marked Prosecution Exhibit 142-A. We also offer in evidence a true and correct translation of Exhibit 142-A. Prosecution asks that these exhibits be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

DEFENSE COUNSEL (MAJOR SAXON): Defense makes the same objection to the acceptance of these documents in evidence as made to Exhibits 141 and 141-A.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibits 142 and 142-A will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 142 and 142-A for identification were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 142 and 142-A, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission to read Exhibit 142-A.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Thereupon the Prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 142-A followed by a reading of Prosecution Exhibit 142 by the interpreter in the German language.)

PROSECUTION: Will you mark this document Prosecution Exhibit 143 for identification?

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 143 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Now comes the Prosecution and offers in evidence the sworn testimony of Heinrich Nieholy, taken on 24 May 1946 and sworn to before David S. Herrison, Civilian Investigator-Examiner, APO 633, this document was previously marked for identification as Prosecution Exhibit 143. Prosecution asks that the Exhibit be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

MAJOR SAXON: Defense makes the same objection to the acceptance of these documents in evidence as made to Exhibits 141 and 141-A.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 143 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Prosecution Exhibit 143 may be read.

PROSECUTION: Will you mark these photographs Prosecution Exhibits 144-A to 144-J both inclusive?

(The documents referred to were marked Prosecution Exhibits 144-A to 144-J, both inclusive, for identification.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution recalls the witness, Eric Mahlgut.

ERIC MAHLGUT, recalled as a witness by the prosecution, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

(Whereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language.)

PROSECUTION: Will the court remind the witness, please, that he is still under oath.

PRESIDENT: You are reminded you are still under oath.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q Are you the same Eric Mahlgut who testified in this case this morning?

A I am.

Q I show you a series of photographs which have been marked for identification Exhibits 144 A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, and I ask you to look at each one of these pictures and tell me whose signature or signatures appear thereon? I am referring to the backs of the photographs.

A On every one of them appears the signature of Heinrich Micholy.

Q Is he the same Heinrich Micholy who is an accused in this case?

A Yes, he is.

Q Does your signature appear on those pictures?

A Yes, it does.

Q Does any other signature appear on there?

A That of the translator, Barbara Schilling.

Q Now, look at the back of each picture, particularly drawing your attention to the upper right hand corner thereof, and tell the court if you see any writing or printing there?

A Yes.

Q In what language is that?

A That is written in English.

Q What else appears on the back of each picture?

A The statement by the accused that the above paragraph that is written in English has been translated to him and that it is correct.

Q. Are those statements sworn to?

A Yes, they are.

Q Who took the oath?

A I did.

Q Now, what day was that done?

A That was on the morning of the 14th of December.

Q And were you present on the 14th of December when I served Heinrich Michely with the charges in this case?

A Yes, I was.

Q- Was that before or after he signed the statements on the backs of those photographs?

A That was before.

Q About what time of the morning of the 14th of December 1946 did he sign the statements on the back of those pictures?

A About 10:30 or shortly before 11:00.

Q And about what time on that morning did I serve charges upon the accused, Heinrich Michely in this case?

A A quarter to twelve.

Q At the time Michely signed and swore to those statements was there any force or duress used to obtain those signatures that he placed on the backs of those pictures?

A No.

Q Did you or anybody make any promises or hope of reward to Michely to enable you to obtain those statements?

A No.

Q Did he sign them voluntarily?

(Wahlgut-redirect)

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. I am sorry I did not object fast enough. I thought that was a conclusion for the court to come to.

LAW MEMBER: It is.

QUESTIONS BY PROSECUTION:

Q I believe you told the court this morning that you speak German fluently?

A Yes, I do.

Q That you read and write German?

A Yes, I can.

Q Tell the court what happened at the time you translated the English statements that are in the upper right hand corner of the backs of those pictures?

A I gave the pictures to Michely for his signature whereupon he read the statements up there himself, stating he could read English fairly well and I only assisted him in translating certain portions which he did not understand.

Q Did he read the statements to you in English?

A Yes, he did. I was standing right next to him.

Q What you have said refers to each one of the pictures that you hold in your hand, is that correct?

A Each one.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution offers in evidence photographs which have been marked for identification Exhibits 144 A through J inclusive, and ask that they be received in evidence together with the sworn statements and all the matter that is contained on the back of each picture, and made a part of the record.

MAJOR SAYON: If it please the court, before any ruling is made by the court, Colonel Berman desires to cross examine this witness and we want to interpose an objection to the introduction.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Where did Michely read these statements and sign them?

A In Colonel Dwinell's office.

Q Who brought him into Colonel Dwinell's office, if you remember?

A I believe some guard brought him in from the waiting room.

Q Which waiting room?

A Down there where all the prisoners are kept in the waiting dock.

Q How many other of the accused were brought into the prosecution's office that morning?

A Eventually, all of them came in there.

Q I mean for the purpose of signing statements and so forth?

A That was the only one.

Q There was one you testified about this morning, that he had some argument about what happened on the morning of the 14th.

A That one I went out and got myself.

Q Where did you go to get him?

A I got him in the waiting room and took him right next door into the interrogation room, sir.

Q Now, at the time you went into the waiting room and took the man out, you testified about this morning -- at the time Michely was brought into the prosecution's office to sign these papers, were not every single one of the accused assembled in the waiting room at that time?

A Yes, they were all waiting there.

Q And weren't every single one of these accused assembled in that waiting room for the express purpose of bringing them over to the prosecution's office some time that morning to serve them with the charges for which they are now standing trial?

A Probably so.

(Wahlgt-recross)

Q Well, you know it's true, don't you?

A I know we were waiting for Major Saxon to come back so we could serve the charges.

Q So that at the time Nicholy was brought to your office to sign these papers you knew and the prosecution knew that he was a defendant and the question of serving the charges on him was only a question of time until Major Saxon came back, is that not true?

A Yes.

Q And was anything said to Nicholy or Fahrenz by way of warning them of their rights or --

PROSECUTION: I object to that.

PRESIDENT: Read the question again, please.

PROSECUTION: I respectfully object to that question on the ground it is irrelevant and immaterial. The matter has been gone into over and over and over again before this court. The testimony is very complete that the accused was served these charges about a quarter of twelve on the morning of the 14th of December 1946. Anything that happened prior to that happened at a time when they were not accused and this court knows that at five minutes before that time I could have decided, as prosecutor, to strike any name from that charge sheet, and not until I actually served them with process are they entitled to be called accused and entitled to any so-called benefits they may have.

Now we are taking the court's time over and over again. I did not warn them of any rights; they did not have any; they were not accused that I will state for the record and I will state for the record as prosecutor, and I am quite embarrassed to have to make these statements. I said to my assistant, "Bring in Nicholy and show him the pictures and ask him if they are true and correct." Nicholy went over to the corner and said very freely "Yes, they are." Mr. Kahigian and I asked him if he wanted to sign those statements and he said, "yes" and that was all there was to that. I did that because I am thoroughly grounded in the rule of law that anybody who makes an admission against interest, whether it be pictorially, orally or against the wall, that can be used against him.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense does not desire to enter into any controversy with the prosecution or challenge in any way the statement as to what took place. It is just that we think the line here is so close. When I asked this witness about what happened this morning I neglected to ask him -- there is just one thing -- if Colonel Dwinell insists on his right or authority to nolle prosequi the case as far as these accused are concerned, five minutes or five weeks before court, it is a matter of importance to the court and I want to put him on the stand and have him testify he has the authority to nolle prosequi any case.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained. Proceed with the examination.

MAJOR SAXON: As I understand it, the prosecution's objection is sustained?

PRESIDENT: The objection to the question is sustained.

PROSECUTION: Does the court desire to question the witness?

PRESIDENT: No.

PROSECUTION: May the witness be excused?

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, on the 23rd of January the defense made a written motion objecting to the introduction of these pictures. A copy was served on the law member and on that date a copy was given to Colonel Dwinell. I desire to have that written motion made part of the record and unless the court wants it, I won't read it into the record. It is in English now and I would like to give a copy to the reporter to have it incorporated in the record. However, it should be sent to the Court now should there be any interest or otherwise.

MR. O'TOOLE: In view of the fact, may it please the court, that I will answer this motion, I believe it would be helpful if the motion was read to the entire court.

JUDGE KAUFMAN: Can I read this to the Court on this?

MR. O'TOOLE: Proceed with the reading.

MAJOR STACK: The defense objects to the introduction into evidence against the accused in Charge 2 to the aforementioned purporting to be a re-creation of the car ferry which took place at the alleged homicide in which the accused Lobely is charged with being an active participant and the accused Cora and Heeb are likewise charged as participants.

According to the purported authentication on the back of these pictures, they were taken either in March or May of 1946, at a time about eighteen months after the date of the alleged crime. Further, this authentication dated the 11th of December 1946 which was the date the accused were served with the charges and whether the pictures were authenticated and sworn to before, or after the service of those charges, certainly were made at a time when the prosecution knew that these three accused were to be defendants.

The pictures in themselves disclose that at least two different cars are in the pictures than were actually on the scene of the alleged crime and that one car, perhaps in certain of the pictures, there are three cars before this Court shows could have been possible.

There is no evidence that the clothing is the same, nor that the weather is the same, nor that the time of the day is the same, nor that the physical scene and terrain is the same as it was then last.

Based on the evidence given by the three pictures are merely cumulative [illegible] to the [illegible] evidence and [illegible] Court or prove any weak link in the prosecution's case.

Evidence of this type allegedly procured by the use of one of the accused is so fragrantly unfair to an accused who has neither the benefit of counsel and knowing that he is without even the support of his own government that it should not be accepted by any court.

Evidence of this type is only intended to color wrongfully and prejudice the alleged acts of the accused and deprive him of a substantial defensive right guaranteed to him, even as an alleged war criminal.

The court's attention is invited to the fact that the authentication made on the back of these pictures is a statement made under oath on the date he was made an accused and that as an accused, he is unable to refute this statement under oath, and that he is therefore deprived of a substantial defensive right. Further than that, he has been deprived of one of the so-called "ground rules" accorded to defendants in a case of this kind both by this detachment headquarters and by the Group headquarters in Augsburg, to wit: after becoming an accused, he will be freed from further interrogation by the prosecution.

The court's attention is called to paragraph 117, page 159 of Underhill's Criminal Evidence, copyrighted 1935, and to the following quotation therefrom:

> "It is not allowable, however, for the Prosecution to arrange a scene assumed to represent the Res Gestae of the crime and then to photograph the scene represented. Thus the chief witness for the Prosecution very carefully reproduced his version of the crime by means of persons employed for the purpose, the situation, of the parties to the homicide, and a reproduction of the occurences which took place at the time of the killing."

I want to add just one other thing to that. There was one of these accused used in effecting this imaginary scene. There are two other accused in this same charge who had no voice in it, made no effort to participate in any way, and this one who was used certainly has no choice or voice in the part he played in the representation of this so-called reproduction and I think these pictures should not be admitted.

PROSECUTION: Does the court permit the prosecution to be heard?

PRESIDENT: You have another statement to make before the recess?

PROSECUTION: One more short statement.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

PROSECUTION: The confessions introduced in evidence in this case and in many other cases, have annexed to them diagrams made by the accused, or if they are not made by the accused in the body of the confession he says that is an accurate diagram, and that type of evidence has been received time and time again. Here the accused goes a step further. He said, in effect, "I will do something better than draw a diagram, I will go out to the scene. You can photograph me. I will point to the place and I will sign my confession on the back thereof."

Now, it is true that it says in the work of evidence that has been cited, on page 159 of Underhill, that it is not allowable for the prosecution to arrange a scene. The prosecution did not arrange a scene, the man himself was charged with the crime voluntarily arranged it for us and this very work of evidence cites cases on that same page. Photographs and arrangements of a scene of a crime are admissible as proof of accuracy of the arrangement. Who gave us the proof of the accuracy of the arrangement? The man himself whose picture was on the other side of the confession.

In the opinion of the prosecution, and we are urging this opinion upon the court, this has very definite probative value, more so than the typewritten confessions you have been receiving in this case with pen and ink diagrams attached thereto.

MAJOR SAGE: Could I add just one word, if it please the court. The first thing I want to answer is the voluntary nature of this defendant who at that time was a prisoner in jail, a prisoner of the American government. There wasn't much question about his going out and reproducing this scene. There is no proof before the court at all as to the accuracy of the pictures or the scene they attempted to depict. I would agree if the prosecution brought in good and substantial evidence for the court to accept them and the court wished to, but there is no proof before the court now.

PRESIDENT: Anything further?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, sir.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Whereupon at 1300 hours the court recessed until 1330 hours.)

(Whereupon the Court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the Court, all the members of the Prosecution, all the members of the Defense except Dr. Trost, who is absent on business of the Defense, all the Accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution's exhibits numbers 144 from A to J, inclusive, will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Prosecution Exhibits 144 from A to J, inclusive, for identification, were received in evidence as Prosecution Exhibits 144 from A to J, inclusive, are attached hereto, and made a part of the record.)

PROSECUTION: The Prosecution requests permission to read the written matter on the back of each one of these exhibits.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon the Prosecution read the written matter on the back of Prosecution Exhibits 144 from A to J, inclusive, followed by a translation into German by the interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Prosecution's Exhibit 145 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Prosecution Exhibit 145 for identification.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, at this time the Prosecution has concluded the proof offered in the main to support Charge Number 3. (Whereupon the remainder was stricken physically from the record, by direction of the Court.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the Court, I move that the request just made by the Prosecution that the Court take judicial notice that certain places mentioned in this case are within certain territorial limitations, and the comment by the Court be physically stricken from the record.

PROSECUTION: No objections.

PRESIDENT: Motion sustained; the request and the comment will be physically stricken from the record.

End ta 105, ps fols

PROSECUTION: Prosecution has one more offer of evidence in connection with the case as a whole, and offers in evidence certified, true copies of Document No. 728-PS, which was introduced in evidence as Exhibit No. GB-152 in the trial by the International Military Tribunal of Hermann Goering, et al, which commenced in that court on the 20th of November, 1945. This has been marked for identification Prosecution Exhibit 145. We ask it be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense, may it please the court, is aware of the fact that the court has received in evidence, over objection, analogous evidence when it received the Goebbels newspaper article. Despite that, I would like to press the defense objection to the receipt of this particular document, on the ground that it is a communication between the highest ranking officials in Germany, not named as conspirators in this case, people over whom the accused in this case had no control, on the theory that only evidence involving named conspirators can be introduced in a trial involving analogous conspiracy.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. Prosecution Exhibit 145 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

PROSECUTION: Prosecution requests permission of the court to read Prosecution Exhibit 145.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

(Whereupon prosecution read Prosecution Exhibit 145, followed by a translation of the same into the German language by the court interpreter.)

PROSECUTION: Prosecution rests.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: My associates, may it please the court, have the notion that the exhibit just received in evidence is identical with one already in evidence, No. 25.

PROSECUTION: Partially so.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The numbers are different, so I will not make any point of it. They are partly the same.

May it please the court, now that the prosecution has rested, there is nothing further to come up before the court, I take the liberty of saying, except the final determination of the date we are going to reconvene. As I remember it, the court announced that at the end of the prosecution's case, the defense would have eight days, not including Sunday, in which to prepare its defense. Eight days, not including Sunday, would bring us to Thursday, February 6, as the next date to reconvene, with the exception that one of these days is Saturday, a half day. I call the court's attention to that fact, at the risk of appearing somewhat picayunish about it, but when the court has in mind that we asked for fourteen days and were given eight -- I call that fact to the court's attention with a great deal of diffidence. Strictly eight days, counting Saturday as a half day, would bring us to noon of Thursday, February 6. Furthermore, because of this difference with respect to the production of witnesses, I think in all honesty I can say to the court that we are going to be later in getting them than we hoped to at the time we first asked for them.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess and reconvene Thursday, February 6, at 9 o'clock.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1620 hours.)

RECORD OF TESTIMONY

in trial of

THE UNITED STATES VERSUS JURGEN STROOP, ET AL

by

GENERAL MILITARY GOVERNMENT COURT

tried at

DACHAU, GERMANY BEGINNING 10 JANUARY 1947

5 FEBRUARY 1947 - Pages 633 - 690, Inc.

	Page No.
Motion to Quash	635
Motion for Finding of Not Guilty as to Charge I	647
Motion for Finding of Not Guilty as to Charge II	655
Motion to Strike Certain Exhibits	665

Before presenting the first [illegible] Dachau, Germany like to make a short general statement [illegible] 6 February 1947.11 the matters which will be presented to the court.

MORNING SESSION

It happens almost invariably in original proceedings [illegible] (Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.) which is the war PRESIDENT: Court will come to order. It is the duty of the [illegible] PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the trial members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense the except Dr. Treat, who is sick, all of the accused, the official reporter and the interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The defense may proceed with its case. [illegible] by the [illegible] DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense at this time has a number of matters it desires to present for the attention of the court, which it will do in the form of motions. It would like, subject to the approval of the court, to present these motions one at a time, and to [illegible] after argument by both sides, submit that particular motion for the decision of the court, and then to proceed with the next matter. May I ask for a ruling on that question now.

[illegible] for PRESIDENT: That will be agreeable to the court. [illegible] charge and DEFENSE COUNSEL: During the last several days the defense drew up four separate motions, copies of which were given to the prosecution and copies to the law member. This morning I drew up a fifth, which I have presented to the prosecution but not yet to the law member. This fifth one is a first cousin to one already presented, and I should like to argue it with the first matter to be presented to the court. [illegible]

Before presenting the first question I should like to make a short general statement with respect to all the matters which will be presented to the court. It happens almost inevitably in criminal prosecutions on a large scale that a great many matters are charged which in the very nature of events cannot be proved. It is the duty of the state in civil matters, as well as the duty of the prosecution in military matters, to make its charges as broad as language will permit. However, there comes a time when the decks must be cleared, when surplusage must be disposed of, and the actual issues joined. Later on in the course of the argument, as disclosed by the brief for the prosecution, there is an admission of surplusage in some of these charges. And now, as I have said, is the time to dispose of all those matters and come down to the questions really involved.

The first two motions, may it please the court, deal with the same charge and specification, namely, Charge I and Specification thereunder. The first motion with respect to Charge I is captioned "Motion to Quash", and the second is a motion for a finding of not guilty with respect to the same charge and specification. With the permission of the court, and subject to objection by the prosecution, I should like to argue them both at the same time, since the arguments and statements of fact with respect to one will in some degree apply to the other.

PROSECUTION: The prosecution does not desire to interfere with the plans of the defense, but I am a bit confused at the moment for this reason:

There is a motion to quash with respect to Charge I. Then there is a general motion addressed to all of the charges for a finding of not guilty. Now we have this morning an additional motion for a finding of not guilty with respect to Charge I. I think that all three of those should be [illegible] combined.

[illegible] DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think, if the court and the prosecution will examine the copies furnished, they will find that one of the motions for a finding of not guilty applies to Charge I, one to Charge II, and the long one to Charges III to X, depending upon which individual was involved, but that there is no duplication.

"DACHAU, GERMANY

"Case No. 12-2000 3 February 1947

UNITED STATES

vs.

JUERGEN STROOP et al

MOTION TO QUASH

"Now come the accused and individually and collectively move that the Particulars under Charge 1 and Charge 1, be quashed and for reason assign the following:

"Under the provisions of paragraph 5-22b, each charge upon which an individual is put to trial shall disclose one offense only, and shall be particularized sufficiently to identify the place, the time, and the subject matter of the alleged offense, and shall specify the provision under which the offense is charged. In determining the degree of compliance with the rule the charge must be read together with the Particulars set forth under the charge. The Particulars to Charge 1 allege among other things, conspiracy, assault, assault and battery, and murder, both as principals and as accessories before and after the fact.

"WILLIAM ERMAN
Lt.Col. AC
Chief Defense Counsel"

If it please the court, with respect to the Motion to Quash, paragraph 5-32b of Title 5 for the regulation established for the government of this tribunal states that each charge upon which an individual is put to trial shall disclose one offense only and shall be particularized sufficiently to identify the place, the time, and the subject matter of the alleged offense, and shall specify the provision under which the offense is charged.

It is our contention, may it please the court, that in determining the degree of compliance with that rule the particular must be read with the charge.

Now, procedure in courts of this description--courts martial, courts in civil life--on matters of this kind is practically all the same. The charge sheet upon which these accused face this court is analogous to an indictment in civil courts, and the charge, with the specification, is a count under the indictment in our state and federal courts. Each of them must state one offense only.

I think parenthetically, that rather than interrupt our train of thought, when the argument is through--at least I would so prefer--the reporter can read it back and the interpreter can interpret, unless the court objects.

PRESIDENT: That is satisfactory to the court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: It also happens in military commissions and in civilian courts that sometimes the circumstances make it difficult for the government, the district attorney, or, in this case, the prosecution, to determine under which offense, under which Article of War, under which statute, a certain set of facts will lie; and, consequently, in courts-martial it is common practice for the same set of facts to be alleged under two separate Articles of War, and it is then left for the court to determine which Article of War was in fact violated. And, likewise, in civilian courts the same thing happens. They are charged alternatively under different statutes. There comes a time when the accused or the defendant seeks to raise that issue. In courts-martial or in a court of this description it could be done in a motion to quash. I tried it myself in a court-martial two weeks ago, arguing the quashing of one on the ground of multiplicity, and the court at that time ruled against the motion, and it said, "How can we tell now, before evidence is introduced, whether it is multiplicitous or not and under which Article of War it should belong?" And so I raised that question at the end of the prosecution's case, just as we are doing now, and I emphasize that to the court on the timeliness of this motion, because the prosecution in its brief raises the contention that all this business has been waived by a failure to raise it prior to the plea to the general issue.

In civilian courts every lawyer has tried the same thing that I have done--at the beginning of the prosecution's case have sought to make the district attorney elect as to which indictment or which count of the indictment he was going ahead with, and in the courts with which I am familiar such motions are now denied on the ground that the time to make that is when the prosecution's case is in, unless the defense wants to rest before the prosecution's case is in.

I have in my hand a document called "Punishment of Persons Guilty of War Crimes," the sub-heading is "Crimes Against Peace and Humanity." It is dated Berlin, the 20th of December, 1945, and it is signed by McNarney, Montgomery, Koeltz, and Zhukov, the commanding generals of the four Allied powers, representing their governments.

Article 2 of that document begins with a paragraph that says "each of the following acts is recognized as a crime."

Incidentally, I want to urge upon the court that a great deal of this law now upon which these accused are being tried is ex post facto law, and is definitely contrary to the American Constitution, which no tribunal can vitiate. The commanding generals of armies or the President of the United States cannot authorize this court to violate the Constitution of the United States, which says that Congress in no authority shall pass any ex post facto law. It is our contention at this time that all this business is ex post facto law, and we desire most earnestly that the court have that in mind throughout its deliberations in this case.

At any rate, paragraph 1(b) goes on to describe war crimes, which is referred to in these charges, and it lists atrocities or offenses against persons or property, etc., then paragraph 2, which we particularly desire to call to the attention of the court:

> "Any person without regard to nationality or the capacity in which he acted" -- note that it makes a differentiation in capacity -- "is deemed to have committed a crime as defined in paragraph 1 of this Article, if he was (a) a principal or (b) was an accessory to the commission of any such crime or ordered or abetted the same or (c) took a consenting part therein or (d) was connected with plans or enterprises involving its commission or (e) was a member of any organization, etc., "or (f) if he held a high political" . . . office.

The point, may it please the court, of that document is this: A number of war crimes were defined in there and a number of capacities were defined in there, but the law also says that only one offense can be charged in one charge, and, necessarily, it has to be in one capacity. If a man is charged with murder as a principal he cannot in the same charge and specification be charged with aiding or in some capacity which is less than murder, and he cannot be charged with conspiracy, because conspiracy to commit an offense is not the offense of murder.

Now let us take the charge sheet. How are we going to read this? You have 22 people named here. If it said that these 22 people conspired to commit an act we are out. There would be no argument about that. But it says that these 22 people "as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators and accomplices." In other words, this thing runs the gamut of every single capacity named, in that it names them in all six.

It is fundamental, may it please the court, that John Doe and Richard Roe cannot conspire to commit murder and be so charged where one actually intended to conspire to commit murder and the other one never had murder in his mind, and, in fact, did nothing to accomplish the murder but his act was something entirely different.

Here you have these 22 men, it says, individually and collectively, as principals, accessories, and so on, did engage in, formulate, and participate in a common plan or design. That is one of the things mentioned in here. "To cause to be committed, violations of the laws of war and pursuant thereto did, wilfully . . . aid, abet, order and participate in, or took a consenting part" therein, to a long list of offenses which it defined as war crimes.

Now is the court going to determine in reading this charge whether it is alleged that Stroop conspired to commit murder with Fuehr, who conspired to commit something else? Or how can it be alleged in this thing that Somann committed murder and Hoehler or Goehrendt or somebody else did something else merely as an accomplice to the thing?

Now, an accomplice is not a principal. A principal is a man whose action in the case was a direct participating effective cause in the commission of the offense, and an accomplice could be almost anything, so far distinct from being a principal that the distinction between them is as broad as the Atlantic Ocean.

It is our contention that with this language as it stands it puts a burden on the court and on the accused to that language is surplusage. All right, strike it out. That is a part of our motion. The motion is to quash the whole business. If the court decides that the whole business should not be quashed, the motion is broad enough to cover a request that portions of it be quashed, and we so urge. The [illegible] I will conclude by inviting the attention of the court to the memorandum of law filed by the prosecution. The [illegible] PROSECUTION: I have not filed that word "accomplice" in [illegible] DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then I will have to call the court's attention to some things that are said in here. [illegible] PROSECUTION: I would like to call the court's attention to the fact that I have not said anything yet that is found in [illegible] DEFENSE COUNSEL: Then I will use it as my own remarks, with the court's permission, I will wait until later. [illegible] PROSECUTION: If the court will read charge L, at a first blush it appears that it is a standard type of allegation take these pieces together and decide what is charged. With 22 people named in six different capacities with any number of different crimes, what is the offense? We submit, may it please the court, that there are just as many offenses charged [illegible] there as the laws of combinations would bring out. The result is 22 people named, and some six or seven or eight different factors, and three separate categories, and we submit that that is not a proper burden for the court. It is not the function of the court. We even go so far as to say that this court cannot determine which offense was intended to be charged. Neither can the accused. And for that reason we urge that the count be quashed. [illegible] crime, which conspiracy was entered into by whom, the prosecution in its brief says that a lot of of conspiracy. We are charging one offense. If the court will read it sentence by sentence it can be analyzed that way. The particulars state, after naming the accused:

> "at sundry places within the then German Reich, individually and collectively, as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators and accomplices, did engage in, formulate and participate in a common plan or design" . . .

Now let us stop there for a minute. It says they engaged in a common plan or design. Now, the principal role played by each criminal in the conspiracy is one of several descriptive terms, namely, principal, accessory, leader, organizer, instigator, or accomplice. It is obvious that in a conspiracy to commit a crime, which conspiracy was entered into by two or more people, one or more of the conspirators may play one or more of the participating roles. They may play one or more of the participating roles that have been described--principal, accessory, leader, organizer, instigator.

There is much law that is fundamental and must be repeated, however, in order to clarify this situation. The law has been established, fundamentally, that an accomplice is a person who unites in or in some way is concerned in the crime for which the accused is on trial. The word "accomplice" in common law includes principals and accessories. That is fundamental law. The law member probably would like to refer to Underhill's Criminal Evidence, page 221-222. In a prosecution for conspiracy, all conspirators are accomplices. That is found in the same work at page 252. Certainly the words "leaders, organizers, and instigators" are synonymous in the law with the words "accessories and accomplices" and are descriptive of the position or positions held by the persons involved in this conspiracy.

Looking again at the charge sheet: After outlining the parts played by the defendants, they go on to say:

"did engage in, formulate and participate in a common plan or design" . . .

At that point we know that we are charging a conspiracy.

There then follows an allegation of the nature of the conspiracy, to indicate to the court that we are alleging conspiracy to commit acts that are unlawful in themselves. In that connection the particulars say: "to commit, or cause to be committed, violations of the laws of war."

There we have our case--a plan to violate the Laws of War--one crime. We are charging a plan--a formulation of a plan. If we had stopped at that point we would have had a legally sufficient pleading. That has always been the law.

The defense mentioned my statement about surplusage. I put that in because in studying the precedents that have been in the case books for years I found much to the effect that when we go on to characterize the conspiracy and allege overt acts such as killings, beatings, etc., that we could have left that out and still the pleading would be sufficient. There it is said "willfully, deliberately and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet, order and participate in, or took a consenting part," etc., in the killings and mistreatments--that was merely descriptive of the character of the relation between the act and the conspiracy. It has been held many times in all our courts that it is not necessary that that character or relationship be alleged. If it is alleged it is still a good pleading. It is informative to the court.

Now we come to the most important point, and I think we should decide this issue above all. First we should read the particulars as a whole and consider them in their entirety. It indicates one distinct crime, that is, a criminal conspiracy.

Referring particularly to the sufficiency of pleadings in war crimes cases, we have as the guide and the authority and the law for this court the Yamashita case again. There that question was raised. I am quoting from the opinion of the majority of the court:

> "Obviously, charges or violations of the laws of war tried before a military tribunal need not be stated with the precision of a common law indictment."

And then they cite the cases.

We conclude that the allegations of the charge, tested by any reasonable standard, adequately allege a violation of the law of war, and that the military commission had authority to try and decide the issue which it raised.

One more point that was mentioned by the defense: I do say that this motion is untimely. If the accused desire to resist the indictment by claiming that the pleadings were defective, they should have made what might be called a demurrer or motion to dismiss the indictment at the beginning of the case. If the accused desire to resist the indictment by advancing the theory that the charges and particulars do not state facts sufficient to constitute a legal charge, that should have been done at the outset of the case. To the contrary, they pleaded to the general issue, and thereby they agreed to stand trial as charged. They sat through our entire case and remained silent on the subject and in effect said,

"..e will take your pleadings and try to combat them."

One final point: I thoroughly disagree with the defense when they say that it is the practice to require the government to elect. If there is any defect in any indictment in any court, federal or otherwise, that matter is taken care of at the very outset, either by a motion made before the case starts or at the very outset of the case. Furthermore, we were never asked anything by the defense on that point during our entire case. We were never called upon to make any election or defend the indictment or pleading itself, and we therefore say that the motion is also untimely.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Shall I go ahead and finish my argument now?

PRESIDENT: We had better let the interpreter proceed now.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I reply just very briefly? The defense, may it please the court, has no quarrel with the Yamashita case. That case merely decided that the charge and particulars set forth a war crime for which Yamashita could be tried. It also set forth the principle that a statement of a war crime need not be set forth with that degree of particularity, that the charge of the crime had to be set forth in a similar case. I admit that by the proper use of punctuation marks, commas, brackets and parenthesis you can get a war crime stated sufficiently particularly to justify holding these people for trial. The question is this, -- there are so many of them.

No , the prosecution read to the court at the beginning of the particulars that the accused, "between certain dates, at sundry places within the then German Reich, individually and collectively, as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators and accomplices, did engage in, formulate and participate in a common plan or design to commit, or cause to be committed, violation of the Laws of War..." And there they stopped and said if they had stopped in the first instance they would have stated all that had to be stated. I would agree to that, but we object to the language that is stated in there, "as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators and accomplices." These people are entitled to know, -- are they charged as principals, leaders, accomplices or organizers? -- and that you cannot tell. And then it goes on to say, "a conspiracy to commit assault and batteries, beatings, abuses and indignities." Indignities cannot even be merely an assault without that. In other words, these individuals do not know whether they are being charged with. The prosecution should always say they are being charged as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators or accomplices. The prosecution, with its power to nolle prosequi, ought to rewrite the particulars here and now so that it would read, "so-and-so did conspire to commit a war crime" -- and if they do that, we will withdraw our motion.

PRESIDENT: Let the record show that by agreement of the defense, the prosecution and the court, each motion will be taken up one at a time.

Court will be closed.

(Thereupon, at 0950 hours the court was closed.)

(Whereupon the court opened at 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, with the exception of Dr. Trost, who is absent sick; all the accused; the reporter and interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The motion of the defense to quash is denied.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The second matter the defense desires to present to the court is a motion filed on behalf of all of the accused for a finding of not guilty as to each with respect to Charge I and the particulars thereunder.

Case No. 12-2000 6 February 1947

vs.

JURGEN STROOP, et al

MOTION

Now come the accused, Jurgen STROOP, Hans TEMMLER, Otto SCHAAL, Arthur FUHR, Wilhelm HOELLER, Hans KICHEL, Josef Johann KIRITT, Wilhelm ALBRECHT, Hermann HOELLER, Wilhelm Friedrich SCHREDER, Paul HEINRICH, Philipp HAHMANN, Bernard FAY, Georg BEST, Erwin GOSS, Heinrich Matthias KICHELY, Leonard KRAMER, Julius LABSAL, Fritz GIRKE, Heinz HELLENBROICH, Karl Franz STATTMANN and Michael MAAF and move for a finding of not guilty as to each and all of them with respect to Charge 1 and the specifications thereunder and for reason assign the following: -

1. That the Prosecution has failed to sustain its burden of proving the guilt of the accused beyond a reasonable doubt.

WILLIAM PERLMAN
Lt. Col. AGD
Chief Defense Counsel.

Now, may it please the court, my argument on that question will be very brief. It is necessary as a matter of law that to find a person guilty of being a member of a conspiracy, the burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt two things: one, an act, a contribution by that person to the effectuation of the conspiracy itself; and secondly, and this is vital, the burden is likewise on the prosecution to prove that this contribution was made knowingly and with intent to effectuate and promote the purposes of the conspiracy. If a stranger should come along during the course of the existence of the conspiracy and unwittingly do something which helps the conspiracy a great deal — let us say, for the purpose of making my argument, that his contribution guarantees the success of the object of the conspiracy, and yet he did this particular act not knowing of the existence of a conspiracy and without any intent to be a conspirator. We submit it is then as a fundamental principle that such a person could not be found guilty of the criminal act of conspiracy.

Now, in this particular case, we assume for the purpose of making our point that each of these accused did some act which could be tied with the acts of all the other accused and have the color of a conspiracy. The prosecution must prove that what each of these accused did was done with the intent to promote the conspiracy, that he had a common design in mind, and that he knowingly and wilfully and with intent did his act to promote the conspiracy.

Now, in that connection, may it please the court, I can only refer, or could best refer, to the brief filed by the prosecution with reference to the motion already disposed of. There is a quotation which I should like to read. "We must also hold, to advance a step further, that there cannot be a negligent conspiracy." It also follows that there cannot be a coincidental conspiracy. Joint evil intent is necessary to constitute the offense. Mere passive cognisance of a conspiracy is not sufficient to make a co-conspirator. Now, the evidence before the court with respect to all these people is that each did something. It could well be that what all the lowest strata in this case did, or what all the accused did, might have carried out the design of someone higher up, but all the evidence is this: what these people did, they did by order, by some form of compulsion. That might not be a defense to a murder charge, but to a charge of conspiracy, we submit it is a most effective defense. A man might do something in obedience to some form of compulsion, the orders of his superior, which, because it was an illegal order, would not constitute an effective defense to a charge of murder or a lesser charge, but there would not be that intent there to consummate and effect a conspiracy which is a fundamental, vital element necessary to make a conspiracy. Now, we submit, may it please the court, or, rather, we agree that a person's intent may be inferred from his actions as well as from his utterances. That is fundamental law, too. But the utterances of these accused are merely statements of what they did, and they say that what they did, they did in obedience to orders. "So and so said 'Do it.' We did it."

Now, if the court should find that the prosecution has failed to sustain its burden of proving they did the thing willingly, then this motion on Charge I must be allowed. If there is any evidence from which a reasonable man might say that the Fuehrer did what he did not willingly, but because his superior said "Do it," and he did it because he was ordered to do it and for no other reason, there is not that intent which is necessary to make a co-conspirator, and we submit, may it please the court, that that sort of situation is true of all of them. Each of them, from the lowest to the highest and each of these categories of prisoners, acted in conformance, let us say, with an illegal compulsion, but nonetheless a compulsion sufficient to vitiate or at least to cast doubt on the fact that they joined in with this evil intent to carry out a common design.

PROSECUTION: Very seldom has the court received such a mass of evidence to prove a combination of guilt to do an unlawful act. Certainly, a passive conspiracy is not criminal, by no stretch of the imagination was this passive. This was the most active conspiracy the world has ever known. Previously during this case I stated some principles of law about conspiracy very briefly. I would like to refresh the court again to fit the balance of my statements into their proper orders, would be continually effort. When two or more persons unite to execute a purpose, to injure or destroy the life or property of another, the conspiracy exists in that very uniting. The mere combination to do a criminal act, even though the object of the contemplated act is not completed, even though the object of the combination is not consummated, still the conspiracy exists, and if there is a criminal conspiracy that is one to violate the laws of war, that is sufficient. By direct testimony of co-conspirators and officers and exhibits many times in this court and other courts the term "common design" has been used. That is a descriptive term merely. The gist of the crime is the criminal conspiracy to violate the laws of war. The term "common design" is used to typify the over-all picture of the conduct of the accused. It can be understood to mean a community of intention between the peoples involved. When any one of the accused became a member of the conspiracy or joined the organization, he will be held accountable for all the criminal acts that were done by the group in accordance with the intentions of the parties when the conspiracy was originated. Ohlendorf, for example, so far as the evidence up to this point in the case, did not personally by his own hand kill anyone in violation of the Hague Convention. It is definitely a fact, however, that at the time he was the commanding officer of the SD, the over-all conspiracy had many months before been conceived and formed and, in fact, was in operation to accomplish the ends for which it was created. Ohlendorf, as a colonel with years of experience with soldiers and police matters in the German Army, with his over-all knowledge of the ends and aims and purposes of the High Command in Berlin, cannot now come in here and say that he was a more negative quantity and free from all responsibility for the criminal actions of the organization to which he not only belonged, but in which he held the rank as commanding officer.

Ga 109-pm-80-9/6-4

During the prosecution's case, we reminded the court over and over again that the murders, the extermination murders, would be continually offered to the court in support of the conspiracy, in addition to proving the actual murders themselves. The actual murder of nine Allied, named and unnamed, and which resulted from a scheme and a plan, were proven beyond question. It will be noted that the charges and specifications and the proof have included the conspiracy together with the intent and the actual overt acts of the murders themselves. Charge I, a criminal conspiracy, was proven by direct testimony of subordinates and officers and employees working under command of General Stroop, Colonel Trumler and Colonel Sammern. They came into court and testified. This was supported by an overwhelming mass of documentary evidence to show the general plan, general scheme, general design.

Now, the charges that concern themselves with the actual killings were offered to support, strengthen and corroborate the conspiracy, as well as to show that the actual men themselves are guilty of having the blood of these people on their hands. We did not submit this case on circumstantial evidence to prove the conspiracy or the murders. There are many, many cases decided in these courts where all the court has to guide it is a mere innuendo, an inference from a series of events. But in this particular case, if the court will recall, both with regard to the conspiracy and the nine murders, we submitted four different types of evidence and combined them together in addition to that.

1. The overwhelming amount of circumstantial evidence.

2. Direct evidence from eyewitnesses to the commission of the crimes themselves and to the formation of the conspiracy, people who were in Stroop's office and who heard what he said, people who were in his anteroom, people who were in various places where people talked about what the purpose of the conspiracy was, people who saw the actual commission of the deeds that resulted from the conspiracy, who got on the witness stand as eyewitnesses. Now combine that with the circumstantial evidence.

3. Then we had the voluntary confessions and the admissions against interest of the perpetrators themselves.

4. Then we proved the corpus delicti. We went the fourth step, the dead bodies, the identification of the victims either by medical testimony, photographic evidence, or the people that saw the bodies lying there, the most complete evidence that has ever been presented in a case of this kind.

It is a rule that the prosecution in resisting a motion that is made to dismiss at the end of the prosecution's case is only required to show that we made out a prima facie case. We went way beyond that. We proved our case beyond a reasonable doubt, and we showed the part each one of these people played in the whole scheme.

For example, getting back to the conspiracy once more, we submitted documentary proof, if the court recalls, from the Foreign Office of the German Reich, from the German High Command to the branches of the armed forces, showing that they wrestled continuously with the problem how to accomplish these deeds in an apparently legal manner. If the court recalls, we read evidence showing that the leaders of the German nation and the German nation itself knew well that the scheme was criminal. They heard it on the radio. They read it in the newspapers. The propaganda was extensive. Then the propaganda was born and the populace was exhorted to take action. You heard that right from the witness stand. Witnesses said, "Yes, I have seen that. I heard it on the radio. It came from the Propaganda Ministry." Then the commanders after that were directed specifically to spread that propaganda. Then the murders were committed.

I have one final thing to say which I consider an adequate statement of the law on criminal conspiracy, and I think if the court will listen to this last statement of the law it will fit right into this whole picture. I take this from an old British case that I found in Wharton's Criminal Law, an authority on the subject. For the benefit of the court, it is found in Wharton's Criminal Law, Volume II, page 1939.

> "In prosecutions for criminal conspiracies," says Judge King, the proof of the combination charged must almost always be extracted from the circumstances connected with the transaction which forms the subject of the accusation. In the history of criminal administration the case is rarely found in which direct and positive evidence of criminal combination exists. To hold that nothing short of such proof is sufficient to establish a conspiracy would be to give immunity to one of the most dangerous crimes which infest society. Hence, in order to discover conspirators, we are forced to follow them through all the devious windings in which the natural anxiety of avoiding detection teaches men to circumstanced to envelop themselves, and to trace their movements from the slight, but often unerring, marks of progress which the most adroit cunning cannot so effectively obliterate as to render them unappreciable to the eye of the sagacious investigator. It is from the circumstances attending a criminal, or a series of criminal acts, that we are able to become satisfied that they have been the results not merely of individual, but the products of concerted and associated action, which, if considered separately, might seem to proceed exclusively from the immediate agents to them; but which may be so linked together by circumstances, in themselves slight, as to leave the mind fully satisfied that these apparently isolated acts are truly parts of a common whole; that they have sprung from a common object, and have in view a common end."

The adequacy of evidence in prosecution for a criminal conspiracy, to prove the existence of the conspiracy, like other questions of the weight of evidence, is a question for the court. I do not intend to take the court's time to go through the record and point out all that mass of evidence, how it bound these people together in this great nefarious scheme. Suffice it to say that we contend that we have established a prima facie case.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, one more statement. Before the Court decides, I would like to call the Court's attention to the fact that this type of motion made by the Defense is quite similar to the familiar motion that is made at the end of a court-martial case as appears in paragraph 71d, page 56 of the Manual For Courts Martial where it says that, "at the close of the case for the Prosecution and before the opening of the case for the Defense, the Court may, on motion of the Defense for findings of not guilty, consider whether the evidence before the court is legally sufficient to support a finding of guilty as to each specification designated in the motion"--"If there be any substantial evidence, which, together with all reasonable inferences therefrom, and all applicable presumptions, generally tends to establish every essential element of an offense charged or included in any specification to which the motion is directed, the motion as to such objection will not be granted."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have nothing further to add.

PRESIDENT: The Court will be closed.

(Whereupon at 1120 hours the Court opened.)

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the Court, all members of the Prosecution, all members of the Defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent sick, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: Motion of the defendants for a finding of not guilty with respect to Charge I and the particulars thereunder is denied.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Before proceeding with the next matter, may it please the Court, I would like to ask for a ruling, I think perhaps it should be called by the Court, in the motion to quash. The argument was advanced by the Prosecution that the motion was not timely made. I would like a ruling from the Court whether or not the basis for the denial of the motion to quash Charge I and the specifications thereto was based in whole or in part on the question of timeliness or entirely on the merits.

PRESIDENT: The decision on the motion to quash was based on the merits and not the timeliness of the motion.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the Court, I have here another motion, which I should like to read into the record before argument:

Case No. 12-3000 — 3 February 1947
UNITED STATES
vs.
JURGEN STROOP et al

MOTION FOR FINDINGS OF NOT GUILTY

Now come Hans Eichel, Josef Johann Kivitt, Wilhelm Albrecht, Hermann Moller, Wilhelm Friedrich Goehrendt, Jr. Paul Nahrgang, Philipp Hammann, Bernard Fay, Leonard Branner, and Wilhelm Hohler, and move for a finding of not guilty as to each and all of them with respect to Charge 2, and the specification thereunder, and for reason assign the following:

That the prosecution has failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that they or any one of them was a member of any of the organizations for the period in question as stated in Particulars to Charge 2.

/Signed/ William Berman
Lt. Col. AC
Chief Defense Counsel"

The Court may recall that at one time in the presentation of this case, the Prosecution introduced statements by a number of the accused which listed the various organizations to which they belonged. I named in here some eight or nine, I have forgotten how many, seven or eight, individuals, concerning whom, with one single exception, no such statement was introduced. There was a statement by Mohler, and I will come to his case later on; but there was no statement introduced by any of the others named in that motion as to membership in an organization or any one of these four organizations; and there was no evidence introduced at all--I say that with a great deal of diffidence because my memory may be faulty--there was no evidence introduced by the Prosecution at all tying up any one of these men named with any one of the four groups found guilty as criminal organizations. The one exception is Mohler. In his statement he mentions the Gestapo, but in parenthesis he says "on detail", which means that he was "on detail" with the Gestapo--not a member of the Gestapo. Now, may it please the Court, this is a separate offense--membership in the organization--entirely separate and apart from the conspiracy, and entirely separate and apart from any one of the Charges from three to ten, and the same burden is upon the Prosecution to prove that these men did belong to one of these four groups named as criminal groups; and we submit that the Prosecution has presented no evidence to sustain that Charge, and that consequently this particular motion should be now allowed.

End ta 110, pls fols

PROSECUTION:

Concerning the accused Eichel and Albrecht, reference is made to Prosecution Exhibit P-122 which is the written statement of Albrecht, in that statement Albrecht admits that he was Commander of the Police Precinct in Bieber (page 2), that his immediate superior was Kuhlenbeck (page 2), that Kuhlenbeck was the Commander of the Protective Police in Offenbach (page 2), that Kuhlenbeck's immediate superior was Eichel (page 2), that Eichel was Police Director of Offenbach (page 2), and that Eichel's immediate superior was the Commander of the BDO in Wiesbaden (page 3).

With reference to the accused Moller and Goehrendt, reference is made to Prosecution Exhibit P-116, wherein Moller says: "I had received the order originally from Eichel and I believed that Eichel sent the other two along who were my superiors" (page 4). This was in answer to a question as follows: "Would you say that in the shooting of the flier you acted under the general orders of Eichel and the particular and immediate orders of Albrecht and Goehrendt?" (page 4). In that same exhibit reference is made to Captain of the Police Kiwitt who was part of that same organization and who took his orders from Eichel. In Kiwitt's statement, which is Prosecution Exhibit P-114, he says that he was a Captain in the Police of the Offenbach Police Department (page 2). Kiwitt exercised control and was in command of Moller and Albrecht.

In Moller's statement, Prosecution Exhibit P-110, he said, referring to Eichel: "The former showed up in a car with Captain of the Police Kiwitt. As the two entered the room in which my comrades and I, as well as the captured flier were, the Police Director yelled 'You cowards, you should be hit in the mouth', etc." (page 1), and, further that "we were intimidated." (page 1)

Kiwitt says in his statement, Prosecution Exhibit F-135, that he lived in the Commando building and that Major Kuhlenbeck was in charge that day and that he conferred with Kuhlenbeck about the killing of the flier and that Kuhlenbeck said the flier had to be killed as Police Director Eichel ordered it. (pages 2 and 3). All of these men he ing previously been identified as taking orders from the BDC in Wiesbaden.

Hammann refers to Eichel as his superior officer (page 4), in Prosecution Exhibit F-137, where at the end of the statement he said that he was directed by Eichel to make a report to his unit (page 5).

Fay, in Prosecution Exhibit F-138, identifies Mahrgang as a Police Sergeant (page 2), working with him and says that they were under Eichel (page 3). He identifies Hammann as a policeman working with him and says that they were subject to the orders of Eichel (page 6).

It is clear that although we have no evidence of the formalities of membership with respect to Eichel, Kiwitt, Albrecht, Koller, Goehrendt, Mahrgang, Hammann and Fay, there is no question but that they were in fact so much a part of the organization that they functioned as members, conducting themselves in accordance with the rules and regulations and codes under which these groups operated.

In referring to the Extracts from the Nuernberg Judgment, Prosecution Exhibit F-39, we point out to the court that the Tribunal said on page 14 of that exhibit: "In dealing with the SD the Tribunal includes Amts III, IV, V and VI of the RSHA and all other members of the SD, including all local representatives and agents, honorary or otherwise, [illegible] whether they were technically members of the SS or not."

There is no doubt whatever that all of the accused we have mentioned were local representatives and agents, honorary and otherwise, of the SD. The court had previously said on page 18 of the Extracts from the Judgment: "Members of the Security Police and the SD were charged with the enforcement of the decree for the shooting of parachutists and commandos."

We don't have the membership cards of some of these men that are declared criminal by the International Tribunal, but the last line referred to here showing that their dues had been paid and that they were accredited up to a certain date as members of the SD, but they were local representatives and cooperating with the SD with the complete carrying out of this plan all the way up from this Command to the Commander of the SD to whom they deferred and from whom they received orders and instructions which they obeyed and carried out. I don't know what other proof of membership could possibly be required.

Now, with respect to Leonard Brenner, although in Prosecution Exhibit P-58 he definitely states that he was a member of the Security Police in Munich from 1936 to 1939 and in September 1939 was transferred to the Gestapo in Darmstadt, that, of course, definitely makes him a member of the criminal organization. It is the opinion of the prosecution and we submit this for the consideration of the court that in view of the fact that Leonard Brenner is being tried in absentia, no finding of guilty of not guilty can be made with respect to that accused. Only a recording of evidence can be made, and I refer to the rule entitled Rule 8, Military Regulations 357.87.

With respect to Wilhelm Koehler, in his statement, Prosecution Exhibit P-66, he says: "I am the Criminal Secretary". In reading the entire statement it shows that he was associated with Luckhardt, Fraund, Fuhr, and he said: "As next highest ranking man, it was my duty to make the report" (referring to the killing of a flier) and that Trummler expressed appreciation by saying, "Well done." By his own admission and by the organization with which he was working and cooperating, he was definitely a member of one or more criminal organizations.

Now, it is interesting to note that this point has escaped the defense. -- Charge II alleges these men were members of organizations declared criminal by the International Tribunal, but the last line in the particulars of Charge II begins with the word "or" and reads: "or were personally implicated in the commission of such criminal acts", so that if, by any stretch of the imagination, it can be said that we did not prove membership in these criminal organizations, there is no doubt that, as to each defendant, we have proved personal implication in the commission of criminal deeds which were violations of the laws of war.

DEPUTY COUNSEL: May it please the court, I should like to answer the prosecution in rebuttal. The prosecution, in answering the motion by the accused for findings of not guilty to Charge II, divided the charge into three parts -- one to evidence deduced in the case, to which we take no exception if that was introduced to show conspiracy or if that was introduced subordinate to the BDO. But the BDO is the abbreviation for Befehlshaupt Ordnance Polizei which is here (indicating) and a branch of the regular Polizei, the Schupo. The SD is over here (indicating) and comes under Kaltenbrunner. There is no relationship whatsoever.

We admit that all these people, with the exception of Hoehler, took their orders through here (indicating) and were members through here (indicating), members of the Schupo, the regular civil police.

It is part of the establishment of the BDO in Wiesbaden but not the SD.

Now, may it please the court, the SD was declared criminal. It was one of four organizations declared criminal -- the SS, the Leadership Corps, the Security Police, the Sipo, and the SD. These were the four. The regular police were not. The SD was a part of the regular police and were not declared criminal so these two arguments fall.

Now, the prosecution thought we overlooked the last line because no reference was made to "or were personally implicated in the commission of such criminal acts." It was not an oversight, may it please the court, because that language was taken directly from the Nuernberg decision and was used for this reason: it came out during the trial that a lot of people claimed that they were forced to join the organizations, these four criminal organizations. They weren't members of their own free will, so the Tribunal had to deal with people who put up that defense and yet were just as mean in what they did as the man who joined willingly, so this is what they said: "The Tribunal declares to be criminal --" and I am now reading from the extract introduced in evidence, "the group composed of those members of the Leadership Corps holding positions enumerated in the preceding paragraph or who became or remained members of the organization with knowledge that it was being used for commission of acts declared criminal in Article 6 of the Act, or who were personally implicated as members of the organization in the commission of such crime." In other words, they took a whack at such people who tried to say, "We were driven into it, yes." If you were driven into it and did nothing, you are out. If a man was driven into an organization and compelled to join it and did nothing to carry out its aims, he wasn't criminal, he was let out. But the man who was forced to join and partipated was just as bad as the man who willingly joined it and that is what the last line means which the prosecution thought we had overlooked.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, I must reply to that, I correctly quoted from the exhibit when I said that the chain of command ran up to the KDO, which is the Ordnance Police. I also pointed to the SD and did it on purpose. Now, that chart has been before this court for several weeks and if the court will look at it again, they will notice there is a direct chain of command there from Stroop down to the KDO. You will notice there is a command channel down to the Commander of the SD. You will notice there is a chain of command from Himmler over to the Security Police Main Commander, Kaltenbrunner. There is a chain of command over to General Wunnenberg. We have a great inter network, all persuading each other and when any man said he operated down in this corner, (indicating), even if he got a great many of his orders from here (indicating); that he didn't have any orders or influence on him from this headquarters, (indicating), he is insulting the intelligence of this court. Look at the influences that come down from all corners of this chart. Certainly I showed the uniform that these men were was that of the Order Police, and these men are trying to tell this court they can hide behind a technical name -- KDO, or whatever you want to call it. They were part of the greatest conspiracy and setup in the channels, inter-relations of departments the world has ever heard of. There is no officer on this court who ever saw a chain of command setup so complicated as that one before you now. And any man down in the lower right hand corner who cooperated to kill Fliers worked hand in hand with SD men, belongs to that organization definitely.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I be permitted just one sentence.

The court at Nuernberg certainly went into all this business about the chain in much more detail than this court will ever be able to do it and they found the regular police is an organization not guilty and there is no question here of all this interchange and conspiracy with these members of a criminal organization.

PROSECUTION: But they didn't say that a member of the Order Police who associated himself with the SD in his work was absolved of the guilt, they never said that.

PRESIDENT: Court will be closed.

JUERGEN STROOP et al

MOTION TO STRIKE FROM THE RECORD

1. Now come the accused and move to strike from the record the following specified exhibits offered by the prosecution and received into evidence on the ground that they refer to individuals not named in the Charges and Specifications with which they stand accused; and on the further ground that the prosecution has failed to sustain its burden of proof that the accused or any one of them has conspired in any way wilfully and deliberately with any of the persons named in any of the exhibits hereinafter referred to: -

Prosecution's Exhibits: P15, P16, P17, P18, P19, P20, P21, P22, P23, P24, P25, P26, P32, P32A, P38, P39, and P40.

2. And the accused further move to strike from the record all references to the Kahrwolf, on the ground that the prosecution has not sustained its burden of proof that this organization was ever actually formed, or that it ever participated in any war crime.

3. And the accused further move to strike from the record all references and testimony with respect to one STOLL (beginning on page 169 of the record) on the ground that the prosecution has failed to sustain its burden of proof to connect any of the accused with the said STOLL.

4. And the accused further move to strike from the record Prosecution's Exhibits P27, P27A, P28, P28A, P29, P29A, P30, P30A, P31, P31A, P41, P41A, P42, P42A, P43, P43A, P44, P44A, P45, P45A, P46, P46A, P47, P47A, P48, P48A, P49, P49A, P50, P50A, P51, P51A, P52, P52A, P53, P53A, P56, P56A, P57, P58, P58A, P64, P64A, P65, P65A, P66, P66A, P103, P103A, P104, P104A, P105, P105A, P106, P106A, P107, P107A, P110, P110A, P111, P111A, P112, P112A, P113, P113A, P114, P115, P115A, P116, P134, P134A, P136, P136A, P137, P138, P141, P141A, P142, P142A, P143, P144A, P144B, P144C, P144D, P144E, P144F, P144G, P144H, P144I, P144J, and for reasons assign the following:

The prosecution has not sustained the burden of proving the confessions were obtained without duress and that they were voluntarily made. (In this connection, see Footnote 19, Page 555, Underhill's Criminal Evidence, Fourth Edition.) It is submitted that the rule permitting the receipt of any evidence having probative value is a modification merely of the hearsay rule and not an abolition of all the rules of evidence and a complete nullification of all the safeguards surrounding the introduction and receipt of evidence. It is urged that the rules governing the receipt of confessions are more matters of substantive law than adjective law.

WILLIAM HERMAN
Lt. Col. AC
Chief Defense Counsel

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, in arguing the first paragraph of this motion, the defense has in mind that this question has already been passed upon by the court when these exhibits were first offered into the record. And yet, it feels constrained to offer them again in accordance with the practice known to those acting as counsel in this case.

It is quite the common thing in civilian courts for evidence to be received de bene. That is the language used in my own home state. What it means is frequently in a conspiracy case evidence is offered, which at the time is not tied in definitely with the charge, but the court receives it subject to an obligation on the part of the state to show its relevancy later on and to show how it is tied up to one or more of the accused. The defense, in presenting this motion, assumes that to some extent, at least, that might have been the underlying motive on the part of the court. At any rate, whether it be right or wrong, we now present this motion for the decision of the court.

It is a fundamental axiom in all Anglo-Saxon courts, which has not been superseded by this rule which talks about probative value, that the accused is entitled to know those with whom he is accused of participating in a crime. This principle states unequivocably that when two or more people are put to trial on a conspiracy, that the charge must name, either directly or by class, or if neither one is known, with persons unknown, but the entire category of people concerned in the conspiracy must be stated. That is not true in this case. That point has been made before and I have to re-state it.

Now, the argument we have to make applies to some of these exhibits made not in the same degree as these others. It might well be that with more time to prepare this I might not have omitted one or two of these exhibits named, and we apologize to the court now for our failure to be more exact.

If what Keitel, Jodl and Goebbels did can bind Fuehr, so could what Hess did bind Fuehr, because this conspiracy as we know it, to wage this war, began in 1919, or perhaps even sooner. You cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, introduce evidence to bind these people to what was done by people to whom they were dirt and who did not even know they existed. To talk of Puhr and Koehler as conspiring with Himmler, I personally do not know how to characterize such talk. The only evidence in the case is that later on these people did something which these other people talked about and maybe advocated, but to say that they conspired with all those other people, we submit is going too far. Likewise, to seek to bind them with what the German ambassador said in a memorandum to some psychiatrist of what the heads of the Wehrmacht or of the secret police did in their sanctum sanctorum, we submit is going much too far.

All these people can be charged with is what they themselves did and what others did for them at their solicitation. They could be tools, but not members of a general conspiracy. For that reason, there we stop.

We submit that those exhibits which refer to acts and declarations of others way up in the higher-ups cannot be introduced as evidence against these small fry sitting in the dock even though one of them was a lieutenant general.

Now, with respect to the Wehrwolf, may it please the court, that was an organization which was testified to by Hans Gunther, for he worked on it two or three weeks. He said that Major Rost and I think, Goss, completed it. How he knew they completed the project nobody knows, but there is much evidence in this case as to what the Wehrwolf was. There is no evidence that it was actually more than a paper organization, no evidence that it ever actually functioned, no evidence that as an organization it committed a war crime, such as the Nuremberg International Military Tribunal found that the Gestapo committed war crimes. This man told us he never knew how he was tied up with these people, nobody said what his responsibilies were, and there is no way of finding out. But the court on several occasions in this trial has stricken out evidence dealing with people and the acts of people who were not accused. I think there was some evidence about some man by the name of Fraser that was stricken from the record and we submit the evidence for Stoll should be stricken from the record for the same reason.

Now, may it please the court, we come to what is by far the most serious question, and that is the exhibits referred to in paragraph four (4), which are all statements signed by the accused. Objection was made to the receipt of these statements at the time they were offered on a ground familiar to the court. We are now asking that they be stricken on a totally different ground. And we submit the ground is so fundamental and vital, the question of timing cannot be raised. As a background to the arguments on this question I need only refer the court to this manual, "Manual for Trial of War Crimes" and ask the court to consider page 106 -- if that is not the correct page, that portion of the manual which discusses the procedure in court when a man pleads guilty. The court cannot accept the plea. There is an obligation to prove that the man knew what he was talking about and rather than argue it now, I ask the court to refer to it. It is very important, may it please the court, because as a matter of law the court can suspend the receipt of further evidence once it is satisfied that a plea of guilty is knowingly made and received. It can then proceed to sentence, even to death, without the receipt of further evidence, and the law with respect to confessions in Federal Courts is the same. A confession is a plea of guilty so far as its effect is concerned and the court can sentence on a confession just as fully as a judicial confession, just as fully as if it were a plea of guilty in open court.

Then to come and say say that there is a plea in open court, certain safeguards must be gone through of a very serious nature, and then to say the court can receive a full-fledged confession without any evidence as to how it is made because it is evidence and has probative value and can be received is to give to that rule as much sanctity as the Creator gave to the Ten Commandments. It just does not make sense. It just cannot be believed that that rule was intended to supersede all safeguards.

I would like to call the court's attention to the fact that paragraph 399, entitled number 5, merely states that a Military Government Court "shall in general receive oral evidence which has probative value." It does not say it must. It has been interpreted to mean that the court must receive in evidence anything that has probative value.

Now, in passing on these motions, may it please the court, the court will have to consider first whether the statements were offered as evidence, -- some evidence -- whether they were offered as statements for admissions against interest, or whether they were offered as confessions. Throughout the trial reference has been made to them by the prosecution as "confession." Now, the law talks about confessions as being in two classes, judicial and extra-judicial. A judicial confession is made in a preliminary examination or before a coroners court or at the trial of the accused. An extra-judicial confession is one made by anyone outside of the court. These confessions, we submit, were all made as parts of preliminary examination, and some of them were taken by members of the staff of the prosecution on the very day they were served with charges, or a day or two before. We submit they were received during preliminary examinations and consequently, are to be treated as judicial confessions, subject to all rules and regulations governing the receipt of these confessions.

Now, in my brief, -- which I am not going to repeat here and take up the time of the court -- the law is plainly to be shown that a confession cannot be received without proof and the burden is on the prosecution or the state to prove that the confession was voluntarily obtained, and they make a distinction between proving the confession itself and the method by which the confession was obtained. The courts have ruled, and I have stated my authorities for it, that whether or not a confession is to be received is a mixed question of law and of fact to the extent that it might be a question of fact. It might be argued that it comes within the rule of probative value, but if it is a question of law, then it could not come under any rule which deals with the receipt of evidence.

Now, there is a distinction between confessions which are judicial and those which are extra-judicial. The difference does not relate to proof of their voluntary character or how they were obtained or that the person making it knew what he was doing. The safeguards around both are the same. The difference lies only in the weight to which the court can give. The judicial confession itself will support a confession. The extra-judicial confession requires some corroboration. The amount of that corroboration I will not go into at this time, but that is also set forth in the citations which are given.

I could, may it please the court, go on and argue this a great deal at length. I am going to submit it without very much more on the brief we have filed. It is an important question and I am going to have to refer to it again in my motion for finding of not guilty, which is why I am cutting my argument short at this time. I just want to say once more that this rule that anything that has probative value can come in, that is going to apply to every bit of evidence that comes before the court, you have a situation which reduces itself to absurdity. Somebody -- God knows who -- out in the field, under no circumstances, nobody but those who were there know -- goes a man to confess his innermost soul and put his name to a piece of paper. It is called a confession and is received. If that man comes into court he is put on the stand and analyzed by the court. The two things just cannot be reconciled and since the interrogation of a rule must be such as to give some sense to the rule, to give some validity to the rule, then this court must interpret this rule about probative value so as to give it meaning so that it will not be ridiculous. That meaning cannot mean that it has abolished all safeguards. That can apply only to the receipt of ordinary evidence.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for fifteen minutes.

(Thereupon at 1950 hours the court recessed until 1515 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1515 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frank, who is absent sick, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

In respect to the motion to strike from the record certain documentary evidence, the following is respectfully submitted:

For the information of the court, the documents referred to in paragraph 1 of this motion are as follows: [illegible] in toto.

D-15. Subject "Instructions to the civilian population regarding appropriate behavior in case of landings of enemy planes or parachutists in German territory." Substance of the directive outlines directions as to procedure which were to be disseminated only orally via district leaders, local municipal leaders, cell leaders, block leaders, leaders of the incorporated and affiliated organizations of the party. Signed, "R. Hess."

D-16. Instructions as to how single parachutists are to be handled (turned over to the Security Police). Signed, "Keitel."

D-17. Hitler's order regarding annihilation of terror and sabotage units to be used against British sabotage units and her Allies, orders, with or without arms, annihilation to the last man in battle or in flight.

D-18. Reiterates the Fuehrer's order of 18 October 1942, that is, "That the shooting of uniformed prisoners acting on military orders must be carried out even after they have surrendered voluntarily and asked for pardon."

The annihilation of sabotage units in battle are not at all to be kept secret but on the contrary to be currently published in the

"It is not the task of the Police to interfere in clashes between Germans and the English and American terror fliers who have bailed out." Signed, "H. Himmler." The order stated above was sent to the chief of the regular police and the security police for information with instructions that the order of Himmler contained therein be made known to subordinate officers verbally. In addition, the Reichsführer SS requested that the Gauleiters concerned also be informed verbally of this order.

P-30. A secret letter to the Inspector of the Sicherheitspolizei and of SD., SS Standartenführer, Sommer, Wiesbaden. Subject "Shot down enemy fliers." Reference letter (Sommer) 21 April 1944. This letter acknowledged complete understanding of the instructions contained in the order from Sommer dated 21 April 1944. The quoted terminology made it clear that there was not to be interference between CINC (Supreme Command of the Armed Forces) reports. The distinction was defined as between large scale landings, etc., where large scale battles take place and any two or more landed by sea or air or dropped by parachute. "The purpose of these measures do not as a deterrent, will not be achieved, if those taking in enemy 'commando operations' would not know, that certain death and not only imprisonment awaits them." This secret document states that such persons are to be annihilated immediately, unless their statements are first needed for military reasons, it is necessary that not only all members of the Armed Forces must receive instructions that these types of saboteurs, even if they are in uniform, are to be annihilated, but also all departments of the home staff, dealing with this kind of question, must be informed of the course of action which has been ordered [illegible] in [illegible] incidents involving [illegible] Distribution To all senior executive SS and police the population and shot down fliers, she further, "It has, besides, been learned confidentially that the chiefs have instructed their units accordingly, making it clear, at the same time that no value is attached any more to enemy fliers taken prisoners." Signature acknowledging receipt of instructions from Command was presumably that of Wilbrandt, Der Führer Des SD Abschnitts Koblenz.

[illegible] A newspaper article printed in the "Volkischer-Beobachter" newspaper, written by Reichs Minister Dr. Goebbels inciting the German population against enemy fliers.

[illegible] A circular letter dated 30 May 1944 signed "H. Hoffmann." "Concerning Action executed by the people against Anglo-American murderers." This letter states no police measures (or criminal proceedings) are taken against German civilians participating in lynching incidents involving American and British flyers.

[illegible] Führer Headquarters 6 June 1944, subject "Treatment of enemy terror aviators."

Minutes of meetings attended by Hitler, Himmler and others at which meeting it became evident that all were in agreement on the extermination of enemy flyers. In no case of killings, by the populace or soldiers, there was to be no question of court martial sentence or handing over to the police of perpetrators. Remarks by the head of OKW of the Armed, "I am against legal procedure. It doesn't work out." Signed, "F" (Keitel).

Remarks by chief of WVHA concerned himself chiefly with who would proceed by taking the guidelines (a) "by the people" and (b) "by the authorities". Signed "-" (Jüttl).

[illegible] On the basis of preliminary discussions and after consultations whatever would justify the transfer of enemy aviators from the air forced (FW) reception camp, Oberursel, to the SD for special [illegible] and reports was of [illegible] defined.

treatment, would be undertaken upon the publication of an instance of lynching and which would justify such transfer for special treatment. Signed, "F" (Knittel).

P-25. Concerning treatment of enemy terror airmen, reply to 15 June 1944 letter, "In spite of the evident objections from the point of view of foreign policy and of International Law, the (German) foreign office agrees on the whole with the intended action." Differentiation was to be observed between lynching justice and special treatment by the Security Police (SD). It is plainly stated that individual cases would not accord to legal prisoner of war status. "This will be prevented by the intended execution." Initialed "F" (Knittel). A guy out was meant to mean that the flyers would not become prisoners of war but, they were to be treated as criminals.

P-26. Commanders and inspectors of the SIPO and SD received an order in July or August 1944 by RF SS Himmler through the chief of SIPO and SD, Dr. Kaltenbrunner, that members of the English-American commando groups should be turned over to SIPO by the armed forces. The SIPO was to interrogate these men and then shoot them after questioning.

P-32 and P-33. References to letters sent to Gestapo, the State Police Detachments, Security Service, and Criminal Police, complaining that interference by the Wehrmacht hindered action by the population against enemy terror fliers. Signed, "SS Lieutenant Colonel". This letter originated from Wiesbaden, Germany, offices of the Commander of Security Police and SD, Rhein/Westmark dated 6 October 1944.

P-38. Nuremberg Judgment. Agreement among the governments of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, United States of America, the Provisional Government of the French Republic, and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, together with the governments of the United Nations. By a charter annexed to the agreement, a constitution, jurisdiction and functions of the Tribunal were defined.

It vested power in the Tribunal to try and punish persons who had committed crimes against peace, war crimes, and crimes against humanity as defined in the charter. The Tribunal could declare an organization criminal, or any individual member, or any group, either

P-39. The Tribunal Judgment declaring and making criminal the following organizations: 1) Leadership Corps of the former German Reich, 2) Die Gebeime Staatspolizei, commonly known as the Gestapo, 3) Die Sicherheitsdienst Der Reichsfuehrer SS, commonly known as the SD, 4) Die Schutzstaffeln der National Socialistchen Deutschen Arbeitspartie, commonly known as the SS.

P-40. Book entitled "Das Urteil Von Nurnberg" in the German language. This work is a German translation of the Nurnberg Judgment.

These documents were received in evidence pursuant to the general rules of evidence made for the guidance of this court, permitting the court to receive such evidence as would, in its opinion, have probative value. The documents are evidence of the scheme or plan inaugurated and carried forward by many persons of the German Reich. They serve to show the intent of all the parties who combined to bring about an unlawful end or result. They show the malice aforethought and the proof of criminal intent thinking on the part of all of those who determined to bring about the conspiracy and to put it into active operation. "The existence of the assent of minds which is involved in the conspiracy may be, and, from the secrecy of the crime, usually must be, inferred by the jury from proof of facts and circumstances which, taken together, apparently indicate that they are merely parts of some complete whole". That is a statement appearing on pages 1401 and 1402 of Underhill's Criminal Evidence.

"Evidence of actual participation, rather than mere cognisance, acquiescence or approval of an unlawful act, is required to sustain conviction for conspiracy. But proof of acquiescence in, or consent to, the actions of others is relevant to show the criminal intention of the passive party, and generally the smallest degree of consent or collusion among parties lets in the act or words of one against the others." See Underhill's Criminal Evidence, pages 1403 to 1405.

"In proving a conspiracy, any fact or circumstance, either direct or circumstantial, tending to prove a concurring agreement to carry into effect a common purpose to commit a crime, is admissible; and the court will permit the evidence to take a wide range. The acts and statements of conspirators, even though remotely relating to the crime which is the object of the conspiracy, may be relevant as a part of the res gestae, although otherwise irrelevant. So, evidence of bad reputation of the defendant is admissible; and so is evidence as to collateral transactions. However, the acts and declarations sought to be introduced to show the conspiracy must be relevant to the issue. Evidence is admissible to show the carrying into effect of a conspiracy to commit a crime, and many facts of no consequence in isolation may be proved because of the persuasiveness of their united effect. In a prosecution for criminal conspiracy, evidence is admissible to show the purpose of the conspiracy, and evidence of overt acts charged in the indictment are admissible, so is evidence of an overt act not charged in the indictment, to corroborate such act charged in the indictment or to establish continuance of the agreement of conspiracy. The remarks made by a bystander in the course of a fight held admissible under the rule pertaining to coprincipals. Evidence is admissible to show a conspiracy to commit a crime, although the indictment does not allege the conspiracy, and where one is charged with conspiracy to bribe, evidence is admissible to show his participation in the bribe-money. And where one is charged with conspiracy to possess and transport intoxicating liquor, a receipt for a large number of cans found in defendant's possession is admissible; and a receipt of a tip is admissible in a prosecution for violation of the liquor law. Evidence of escape and flight of conspirators to rob a bank, and the contents of a traveling bag found in defendant's automobile, held admissible to show continuance of the common purpose of the conspiracy. In a prosecution for conspiracy to commit homicide, evidence of threats or ill will, by any of the alleged conspirators, toward the deceased, is admissible. So, evidence is admissible to show the mental attitude of the conspirators as to the object of the conspiracy. In a prosecution of members of the Communist Party for conspiracy to overthrow the government, the party platform is admissible." Underhill's Criminal Evidence, Fourth Edition, pages 1406, 1407, 1408 and 1409.

I refer now to another well-known work on evidence. "The existence of a design or plan to do an act is some evidence to show that the act in question was done. While it is true that a design or plan is not always carried out, yet it is more or less likely to be, hence its probative value. The existence of a design or plan is evidence chiefly by conduct and the kinds of conduct are innumerable. It may be said that any act, which, under the circumstances and according to experience, as naturally interpreted and applied, would indicate a probable design, is relevant and admissible. For instance, the possession of tools or means for doing an act is admissible as a significant circumstance; i.e. a probable design to use them. Thus, the sharpening of a knife just before the affray in which the knife was used was admitted as an act of preparation." He cites some cases. "Getting a revolver out of pawn, a few days before the murder, was admitted to show deliberate intent," in the cases cited by Richardson on Evidence, Section 111, page 92.

It would be utterly absurd if in the case of taking a revolver out of pawn a few days before a murder to show a deliberate attempt, the name of the pawnbroker and the place where it took place could be excluded as irrelevant. The courts in America have gone further and have actually admitted as an exception to the general rule, evidence of other crimes to show a common plan or scheme.

"Evidence of other crimes is admissible to show a common plan or scheme. But to bring a case within the exception to the general rule which excludes other crimes, there must be some evidence of a general plan or system between the offense on trial and the one sought to be introduced." To illustrate: a very simple illustration to support the statement that was just made. The defendant was convicted of the crime of arson in the third degree. The specific charge was that defendant had burned a barn belonging to the man by whom he had been employed as coachman and gardener. The defendant had been discharged from this position. A poisonous preparation had been kept in the barn for use in destroying insects in the garden. The defendant knew of this. Evidence was received to show that on the night of the fire and before it occurred, a span of horses, a pony and a cow had been poisoned and had died. This evidence was held competent, as tending to prove that the injury to the animals was done by the incendiary and as a part of the same criminal scheme which resulted in the destruction of the barn. Another example: A police sergeant was convicted of bribery in collecting "hush money" from the proprietor of a gambling resort. Evidence was received to show that the defendant received from his predecessor a list of gambling house proprietors in his precinct from whom "hush money" had been collected; that the complainant's name was on this list; that the persons listed had previously paid sums of money for police protection to the defendant's predecessor; and that they continued to pay them to the defendant. This evidence was held admissible as proof of a plan or scheme to commit a series of crimes, including the one on trial. In order to render evidence of other crimes competent under this exception, however, a very close relation of time, place, or circumstance must be shown between the other crimes sought to be proved and the crime charged, so that they can truly be said to be embraced in a single criminal scheme. That is our situation in this case. Another case cited. The defendant was on trial for arson. Prosecution attempted to show that the defendant and one Irwin had entered into a conspiracy to induce persons to insure their property for the purpose of having it destroyed by fires which were to be set by Stein, and that the defendant was to attend to adjusting the losses and collecting the insurance. Evidence of nine other incendiary fires set by Stein in which the defendant was implicated was introduced. The Court of Appeals, however, held this evidence inadmissible on the ground that there was no such relation of time, place, or circumstance between them that the mere evidence of the origin of any of them tended to prove the origin of the fire in question." I cited that case to show that in comparison to this situation, we have direct relation of time, place and origin, making a complete plan and scheme, one readily recognizable.

"These rules apply to whether the action is civil or criminal." In one case, the Court said, "In an action upon a promissory note against an indorser where the indorsement is alleged to be forgery, it is permissible to show that other indorsements upon the same or other notes linked to and part of the original transaction coming from the same person were also forgeries." We think that both reason and authority justify that such evidence is competent. The fact that this is a civil case instead of a criminal prosecution plays no part. Where the signature is denied and claimed to be a forgery, it is competent to show the whole plan and scheme of the man procuring and giving the notes and to give evidence establishing the forgery of all signatures and all indorsements." That was cited by Richardson on Evidence, Section 154, pages 108-3-4.

The prosecution did not intend to indict or convict unapprehended and unavailable co-conspirators of the accused, such persons as Adolf Hitler, Heinrich Himmler, Kaltenbrunner and numerous other persons who were either dead, or unavailable, but it is straining logic to the ridiculous point to say that in proving a combination to commit violations of international law, which is a conspiracy on an extremely large scale, that we can not offer evidence, whether by witnesses or documents, that mention the name of any of these nefarious characters. If they were present with the conspirators and gave us by their presence or by their acts or deeds some probative information which would tend to show the overall scheme, this court could not lend a deaf ear to that merely because the persons mentioned are not sitting in the dock.

It is utterly absurd to say that Stroop, for example, in collaborating with the other accused can not be said to have an intent to commit the crime of conspiracy because we can not prove that the sources of his ideas and diabolical schemes came from members of the gang who are not before the court on trial.

All that has been previously said refers to paragraph 1 of the motion made by the Defense. Concerning paragraph 2 of the motion, much that was said in answering the objections of the Defense Counsel during the course of the trial as to the introduction of certain evidence and the answer to the multiplicity of dilatory motions with which the Court is now burdened are applicable in answer to this particular motion. With respect to paragraph 2 of the motion to strike, all that has been said heretofore is applicable to the introduction of evidence concerning the Wehrwolf School. The formation and adoption of that plan in violation of international law was another part of the criminal machinery and it is evidence to this Court of the intentions of the Accused and of the methods that were used to carry out their plans. As to the Wehrwolf School, the record very definitely indicates that the plan was organized, completed, and carried into effect, and, we direct the Court's attention to the testimony of Hans Gunther in this connection, beginning on page 119 of the record and concluding on page 123. At the bottom of page 121 and the top of page 122 we have the following:

"QUESTIONS BY THE PROSECUTION:

Q How long were you engaged in preparing the plans for the Enterprise W?

A From the beginning of the organizing work, approximately three weeks.

Q Had the plans been fully completed when you were relieved from that assignment?

A No.

Q Who completed the plan?

A Captain Keller and Major Best."

We also refer to the written statement of the accused Georg Best (Prosecution's Exhibit P-142) in which he says "About the same time as this incident, or shortly after, it was reported to me through Goss from Goss' unit that a foreigner had been executed by personnel of the Wehrwolf School." Goss says in his written statement (Prosecution's Exhibit P-141), "I was ordered as liaison officer to the Wehrwolf School located at Wallrabenstein."

That testimony, together with Gunther's testimony indicates that not only was the school created and formed as part of the conspiracy but that it was actually being put into operation, and the statements of Best and Goss when received in their entirety show that flyers were being made the victims of the students of that school of crime.

With respect to the reference to connecting any of the accused with a man named Stoll, the defense is now offering an absurd theory when it says that we can not mention any living human being in the course of our testimony as being present or near or associated in any way with the accused. All that we have heretofore said in answer to the numerous motions made herein concerning the proper admission to evidence of any and all facts that tend to prove the conspiracy and which are relevant, is also applicable to what has been said concerning Stoll.

Stoll told us about other crimes committed in pursuance of this common design. He gave us proof of crimes which are admissible in evidence to show conspiracy and that is a proper form of evidence as we have heretofore pointed out.

On page 170 of the record he spoke of a conversation with the witness Traeger and told him that it was "about the shootings there" and how he had to get vengeance for 7 family members and that he had taken care of 4 of them already, that is "That he had finished off four enemies". Will this Court turn a deaf ear to that, when it is the testimony of one of the Gestapo involved with all the rest?

The testimony on page 173 is as follows:

"Q In other words, would you say he was a civilian?

A He wore a brown uniform.

Q A member of the labor front, though?

A Yes, but that was in connection with the use of political units for the security service. He had the identity card of a Gestapo agent that he used to show."

This evidence should be considered together with all its logical inferences and all of its innuendos. It certainly is circumstantial evidence to be considered in connection with the conspiracy. Circumstantial evidence, as we know, is a linking together of a lot of chains, but they are all part of a complete whole, and that should be considered with all the rest for whatever value it may have.

Concerning the motion in paragraph 4 to strike from the record Prosecution's Exhibits which are written statements, this is also an untimely and belated motion. The Defense Counsels during the entire case presented by the Prosecution remained silent with respect to this objection. Conceding, for the purpose of this argument, that it is a correct state of law that we have the burden of proof of the voluntary nature of the statements, we can recall no challenge during our case on that point. The Defense is free to offer in its case whatever evidence they think they might have of duress to which we will counter with appropriate evidence.

At the beginning of the case we presented Prosecution's Exhibit P-27, the written statement of Stroop and we presented that by the U. S. civilian investigator witness, Kurt Tiel, who identified the signature and said that it was made in his presence. When it was offered, as appears in the record on page 98, no objection was made. We quote:

> "DEFENSE COUNSEL: I assume it has to do with this case. If it has we have no objection."

The same thing happened in connection with exhibit P-28, also a statement to Stroop. See page 100 of the record where the exhibit was offered in evidence and the Defense again said "No objection." This same happened with respect to Exhibit P-29, which was a statement of the accused Girke which appears on page 102 of the record. When the question was asked: "Any objection by the Defense?" the answer was "None." All of this took place while the witness, who was present when the signatures of the various accused were given was on the stand. Not only did the Defense not object, but they said nothing on the subject of duress. If the Court will continue to read the balance of the record with respect to all the other numerous exhibits, it will be noted that there was no objection to any of the exhibits except that made on the basis that sworn confessions should not be received unless they could be refuted by sworn testimony of the accused. No objection was made on the basis of duress or the involuntary nature of the statements. We began our case by putting a witness on the stand to identify signatures. When it became apparent that no questions of duress were going to be received, we stipulated then and let the witnesses go home. We could have brought five to ten witnesses to testify.

The time has come when, after a long series of War Crimes trials at Dachau, the frequent challenges made to these rules in spite of precedents both by reviewing authorities and trial courts should be once and for all silenced. This Court has listened with patience to motions of this character despite the fact that in the Trial Guide there is unequivocal rules for the guidance of the Defense and the opinion of the Deputy Theater Judge Advocate which is a clear and definite directive to this Court.

If the Defense Counsel wishes to quibble over the fact that some of the leading cases have not been finally reviewed, certainly the Hademar and Dachau cases not only have been reviewed, but the sentences of death have been executed therein, and, in those cases these very rules of procedure were followed.

Yes, the presumption of regularity of these documents exists because it remains unchallenged and we sustain the burden of proof when we are met with no challenge whatever, and certainly, without question, each and every one of the documents offered in evidence in this case are relevant and have definite probative value. Must we again say this is not a case tried before the Federal Courts of the United States, but is a case tried under the rules applicable to War Crimes procedure, based upon the fact that the gathering of evidence against war criminals is necessarily hampered by the nature of the case and the types of evidence and people involved and the circumstances under which the crimes were committed.

At the end of the notice of motion prepared and served by the Defense, reference is made to a statement in Underhill's Criminal Evidence on page 553 that the Prosecution has not sustained the burden of proving the confessions were obtained without duress and that they were voluntarily made. However, the Defense did not seek to call the Court's attention to the further statement beginning on that page as follows:

"But, on the other hand, there are cases holding that a confession is presumed to be voluntary, the burden of proof is on defendant to show that the confession is involuntary, and that the Prosecution is not required, as a preliminary to the reception of the confession, to introduce evidence as to the voluntary character, unless the Prosecution's proof of making the confession raises an inference or suggests that the confession was not voluntarily made. Where the trial judge has reason to suspect or there is evidence tending to show the use of violence, threats, torture or promises, all of the persons having any authority or control over the person making the confession and charged by the evidence with the use of such means, must be called, if possible, and examined as witnesses before the confession may be admitted." There is no suggestion or inference of that kind; therefore, the Court did not call anybody and neither did we; therefore the Defense remained silent, conceding that fact. The burden of proof may be on us, but that is not the law; and, if it was, it was never challenged; so the burden of proof has been sustained.

With respect to the motion to strike from the record Prosecution's Exhibits P-38, P-39 and P-40, we respectfully call the Court's attention to the fact that documents P-38 and P-39 are extracts from the Nuernberg Judgment and were put in evidence in this case for the convenience of the Court and the reviewing authority. The Court had previously taken judicial notice of the entire Nuernberg Judgment, and it has before it therefore all of the pages of that document. If the Court grants this motion with respect to P-38 and P-39, the Judgment is still before the Court, but it will be nevertheless inconvenient for the Court and reviewing authorities to have the pertinent extracts removed from the record. Of course, if the Court grants a motion with respect to P-38 and P-39, I can get the five volumes and bring them into Court. The Court has a judgment before it. The purpose of the Prosecution in bringing those exhibits was to make it more convenient both for the Court and the reviewing authority. All that has been said with respect thereto is applicable to Prosecution's Exhibit P-40, which is a German translation of that Nuernberg Judgment. That document, in addition, was put in the record for the benefit of the accused so that they could have the official, accurate German translation. The accused personally had the benefit of reading that exhibit and it seems inappropriate at least to now object to the fact that it is in evidence before the Court.

Nothing further from the Prosecution.

THE MARSHAL: Anything further from the Defense?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No, sir.

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show, may it please the court, that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick; all the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

PRESIDENT: The motion of the defendants to strike from the record and each of the four branches thereof is overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If I remember correctly, may it please the court, the position taken by the prosecution in opposition was to the effect that the motions were not timely made. May I request an opinion from the court whether the timeliness played a part in the decision of the motion by the court?

PRESIDENT: The decision of the court was based on the merits and not on the element of time.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The next matter to be presented to the court by the defense is a motion for findings of not guilty. That, as it was prepared and given to the prosecution, consisted of three paragraphs. The third paragraph, however, has already been presented and we request that it be disregarded. With the court's permission I will read into the record the motion as we now desire to present it.

It is captioned "Dachau, Germany, Case No. 12-2000." The date is today's date, of course.

" UNITED STATES

vs.

JUERGEN STROOP et al

1. Now come the accused in the above entitled cause as they are named herein below and move for findings of not guilty as to each of them with respect to the charges and specifications under the charges set forth in each instance, and for the reasons assigned the following:"

In preparing this, may it please the court, I have used the word "specifications" instead of the term "particulars". I meant to use the term "particulars".

"That the prosecution has failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that each of them was guilty of the crimes with which they stand charged and more particularly as set forth hereinafter:

A. Jurgen Stroop, with respect to Charges 3 to 10 both inclusive, and with respect to the specifications thereunder.

B. Otto Semann, with respect to Charges 3 to 10 both inclusive, and with respect to the particulars thereunder.

C. Hans Trummler, with respect to Charges 3, 7, 8, and 9, all inclusive, and with respect to the particulars thereunder.

D. Julius Lassak and Leonard Brenner, with respect to Charge 3, and with respect to the particular thereunder.

E. Wilhelm Hohler, with respect to Charge 4, and with respect to the particular thereunder.

F. Fritz Girke and Heinz Hellenbreich, with respect to Charge 6, and with respect to the particular thereunder.

G. Hans Tichel, Josef Johann Kiwitt, Wilhelm Albrecht and Wilhelm Friedrich Goehrendt, with respect to Charge 7 and with respect to the particular thereunder.

H. Hans Eichel, Johann Kwitt, Paul Mahrgang, Philipp Hammann and Bernard Fay, with respect to Charge 9 and with respect to the particular thereunder.

I. Georg Best, with respect to Charge 9 and with respect to the particular thereunder.

J. Fritz Sirke, with respect to Charge 10 and with respect to the particular thereunder.

2. Now come Jurgen Streop, Otto Sonnen, Hans Trumpler, Julius Lassak, Leonard Brenner, Wilhelm Mohler, Fritz Sirke, Heins Hellenbreich, Hans Eichel, Josef Johann Kiwitt, Wilhelm Albrecht, Wilhelm Friedrich Geehrendt, Paul Mahrgang, Philipp Hammann, Bernard Fay and Georg Best and move that a finding of not guilty of the crime of murder be found as to each and everyone wherever and in what form said crime may be charged in Charges 1 to 10 inclusive, and the particulars thereunder."

That is signed by myself as chief defense counsel.

PROSECUTION: Does the prosecution understand that the defense does not intend to proceed under paragraph 2 of their motion?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I thought I made that plain on the very ground it has been presented and passed upon by the court. I think that was the second item that was presented that was already denied. May it please the court, the items which make up paragraph 1 of this motion for findings of not guilty, as well as paragraph 2, are all addressed to the evidence which has been presented to the court during the long days which have passed, and it is our desire to avoid, as much as possible, arguing too lengthily on evidence which the court is presumed to know and unquestionably does know even better than I do.

However, to some extent it is going to be necessary to do that, and furthermore, because it involves some people, I am going to ask permission for my two associates to supplement my argument on the evidence to a reasonable extent on matters which I may fail to mention and which they think important so to do.

The court will note, first of all, that in these various subdivisions of this motion we have not named all of the accused either in paragraph 1 or in paragraph 2. We have named only those against whom, in our opinion, the prosecution has failed to state a prima facie case. We will admit at the outset that there is some evidence with respect to most of them. The opposition is just this -- That a prima facie case such as a case upon which the court may convict reasonably, without any other evidence, is not present in these particular cases.

Now, with respect to Stroop -- oh, yes, in considering this motion we would like the court to have in mind that, whereas evidence of an accomplice is admissible and whereas, under the federal law evidence of a co-defendant indicted at the same time as any other defendant and tried at the same time, is admissible in evidence. We admit that. However, the cases do state that the testimony of an accomplice or co-defendant, particularly one whose intimate, vital self interest persuasively directs him in the path of colored testimony -- to be blunt, where it is to his interest to lie -- that the testimony of such people is to be received with the utmost caution and scrutiny. Parenthetically, these charges of 8 to 10, in our opinion, are all charges involving the crime of murder. There is no evidence or language of conspiracy in them. It says: "deliberately and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet and participate in the killing" of someone and that is important for the defense, particularly when the court comes to consider the second paragraph of this motion.

Now, with respect to Stroop, the only evidence which ties him in with these killings is testimony that certain orders were issued from his headquarters and from him which, when it came down to the final element, were used by someone as the basis for a killing. In this connection I should like to invite the court's attention to the manual whichhas been prepared for the trial of these cases in which the defense of Superior Orders is discussed and in there the language, which is our contention, states that superiors who issue the orders are just as guilty as the man who executes. The language there, in our opinion, plainly means the original person who issued the orders and not intermediaries who were merely conduits, not issuing orders but acting as means of communications by which orders are issued. For instance, an order issued by Himmler finds its way down to the ultimate person who is intended to be the executor of that order. Any other reasoning could make even the stenographer in Stroop's office or in Birke's office or in any of these offices who transmits or typewrites and passes down an order, equally guilty of the crime. So you have a hierarchy beginning with Himmler and going all the way down to I don't know how many.

The court, being composed of members of the armed forces, knows the difference between the issuance of an order as a function of command responsibility and passing the order down issued by higher headquarters. There is a vast and vital distinction which we earnestly request the court to keep in mind and on that basis, on that principle, and on the fact that whatever Streep did was done through so many other hands and on the fact that theevidence, wherever it exists, is the evidence of biased, prejudiced, interested people. There is not that extension of the burden which falls on the part of the prosecution to justify the finding of not guilty.

With reference to Somann, there is uncontradicted evidence that he left Wiesbaden in July, the 28th of July, and went up to Berlin to an organization found not guilty by the Nuernberg Tribunal and had nothing to do with anything that happened in this case. He left July the 28th; the first murder was October 3rd. The evidence is that he transmitted two orders. One was a non-interference order that the police would not interfere with civilian populations, and one was an order -- I have forgotten exactly what it was, but I think it had something to do with the treatment of saboteurs. That was an order which never found execution in this case. None of the people are alleged to have been executed as saboteurs. They were all killed on the basis of an order that came out long after Somann had left and that was the order to the police to do the killing, and evidence shows that that order came out in September.

Now, this particular case I am using as an illustration of the problem facing this court. The evidence against Somann consisted, first of all, of a statement about this man, Christmann, the fellow who escaped and hasn't been caught, and he mentioned some man's name in here in connection I think with the delivery of the Superior Orders case and in a very indefinite way stated that he thinks that Somann had that order alone.

I am not going to take the time to find the exact part but it is referred to in Exhibit P-83A and in P-84A. This is from Christmann, too, he is asked a question: "What statement can you make about Order No. 67?" "I don't remember what that order was. I can fully confirm the substance of the statement made by Wellenbreich but I believe that, as far as the meaning was concerned, he did not only issue one order but two orders which both represented directives given by the Fuehrer and signed by Himmler. According to the one order the police was forbidden to interfere." Well, that's the old story. "According to the other order, the Constabul ry was instructed not to turn bailed out fliers over to the armed forces any longer but deliver them to the competent office of the State Police."

The evidence will show he was mistaken in that. That order came out in September.

Then there is a statement by Wellenbreich. He says he heard something, he doesn't know whether he heard it from Semann or Trummler.

THE INTERPRETER: Will you let me translate that?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I understood you would translate the whole business at the end.

THE INTERPRETER: I think it will be simpler if you stop after every man.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let us finish Semann.

Then there are two statements by Lassak in which he says he heard something, he doesn't know whether he heard it from Trummler of from Semann. That, may it please the court, is all the evidence which ties Semann to these 8 to 10 charges. A man who is two months gone before the first event happens. The question for this court to decide is whether the blight of that order which merely said the police should not interfere, lasted over the period of months and was a motivating factor in these murders committed by men long after he was gone or ever when he had no control, who killed, as they testified, on orders which were directed to the police to do the killing. How can it be said that an order which merely said the police should not interfere with civilians could be used in interpretations for the police themselves to do the killing?

Now, with respect to Trummler -- we do not intend to argue the evidence under "C" may it please the court, with respect to Trummler but merely call the attention of the court to the fact that the motions addressed to Charges 5, 7, 8 and 9, where Trummler is mentioned, and the basis for the motion is the fact that the actual participants, the so-called "trigger men" in 5, 7, 8 and 9 were all members of the organizations over which Trummler had no control. For instance, No.7 which I remember offhand, is made up of Meller and so on, were allmembers of the Ordnance Police and in other of these charges they were members of the Ordnance Police or Fire Police, which was a part of the Ordnance Police and we think it would be a fundamental miscarriage of justice to hold a man responsible for murders as he is holding Trummler responsible for murders, if I may use the word, committed by people of an organization who got the same orders from their own responsible head higher up and he had nothing to do with them. They are over on the lefthand side of the chart and he is over here on the righthand side, and these four charges mentioned with Trummler were all executed by people not members of the organization over whom he personall had any command jurisdiction or in fact, any other jurisdiction.

Now, with respect to "D" may it please the court, the only evidence against Lasak is his own statement. He was a member of the Ordnance Police and by his statement had admits that he turned over to the Gestapo one prisoner. Taking and interpreting his statement from the worst possible point of view, at least from his point of view, let's say, that Lasaak admitted that he turned this man over to the Gestapo, knowing what was going to happen to him, that was carried out under orders. Does that make Lasaak guilty of murder? Merely turning a man over to another organization under orders of his superior, that's all he did, taking his statement at its worst possible interpretation.

With respect to Charge 4 -- that charge, of course, names Stroop, Sommer and Truemler and also names Hoehler and Fuehr. The evidence against Hoehler comes from himself and from Fuehr so far as the actual commission of the crime is concerned. There was a lot of testimony about two men coming to the home of this gendarme and telling him to go bury the man and a lot of people who saw the body of the flier and the undertaker who buried him, and so forth and so on. Nobody has identified Hoehler in this case. None of the witnesses identified him. Fuehr says that he stayed in the car and that Freund went out of the car and he thinks both shot. Hoehler says that Freund went out of the car and he thinks both shot. The only evidence against Hoehler in that case is the statement of Fuehr who is an interested party to a most vital extent, and then too, the evidence I have already mentioned.

With respect to Charge 6, Stattman and Haaf had admitted doing the shooting. They say that Hellenbreich gave them the order to do it. Hellenbreich says Himmler gave him the order to do it. We submit the argument on that particular charge on the strength of the principles we have already enumerated and directed to the attention of the court.

With respect to 7, I'd like to expatiate a little bit more. The accused in that case, in addition to the three major accused, are Eichel, Kiwitt and Goehrendt, and one other not named in the motion, Heller. The evidence is complete that the actual firing was done by

Moller himself, his statement admits it. To tie in all these other individuals then becomes a question of their participation in the killing. Eichel, Kiwitt, Albrecht and Geehrendt were not there at the scene of the killing, although Albrecht and Geehrendt were not too far away, but Eichel and Kiwitt were not anywhere near the killing. That is the testimony of Moller. Moller says in one statement that Albrecht orderdd it done; in another statement which is also in the record, he says Eichel gave him the order. Now, the only other thing that ties Eichel in with that killing is first, the testimony that he was there at the police station and outside of the police station, prior to the departure of the flier; testimony that he knocked a cigarette out of the victim's left hand, and Moller's testimony that he gave him the order, and some testimony that Eichel made some statement to the crowd -- "this man is one of your murderers." That is all there is with respect to Eichel.

With respect to Kiwitt there is a great deal less. Nobody claims that Kiwitt gave any orders in this matter whatsoever. He was present prior to the departure of the flier from the station, nothing more. Albrecht is tied in with this murder, this killing, first by his presence, going behind them; by Moller's testimony that Albrecht gave an order and by some testimony from some man by the name of Gluck.

There is nothing that ties Geehrendt in with this killing whatsoever except the fact that he was one of the four people who went along. The evidence is he came into the police station just about the time the flier left the police station; that the order to him was to "come along". That order came from Albrecht to come along and he went along. There was a dispute as to what the translation was. We will rest on the assumption that the real translation is, "He's done us a dirty trick."

Ta 117 - 80

The case of No. 8, may it please the court, is somewhat entirely different from the others. The testimony of all of the witnesses for the prosecution is that the victim made an attempt to escape, that he made an actual break, and at the time he was shot he was actually in flight, ahead of all his pursuers.

PROSECUTION: I do not quite understand. Did you say the testimony of all of the witnesses in this case was to that effect?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: That is what I said.

PROSECUTION: I take exception to that.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think the time to do it is when your time comes. That is my memory.

PROSECUTION: I take an exception to the misquoting of the evidence before this court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, it is inevitable that I am going to make some misquotations of the evidence. I said when I began that I could not possibly remember it all, and I am relying on the court to disregard any statement I make which the court knows is in error.

He was shot by Hammann from the rear while Hammann was in pursuit of the man who was shot.

So far as Fay is concerned, the evidence is only that he fired a pistol. I am not sure whether the evidence was that he fired it in the air or not, but after the victim made a break and was in actual execution of his attempt to escape.

I do not remember what the evidence is of Hausmann, but he never fired on anybody. At least in this case he did not fire on the victim.

Eichel was present there, but that was his command post. There is some evidence that somebody told him about this flyer having been shot while attempting to escape, and that Eichel said "Gute", and that has been twisted to mean to this court that he said it in the sense of satisfaction, that it was a grand thing, Gute. The German word "Gute" means the same thing that the word "Good" means. Every member of this court has used it time and again when he has received a report from a subordinate. He says "Good". That simply means "Thank you for your report". It does not mean that you approve the report or that you are expressing an opinion or a sense of satisfaction about the contents of the report. It is merely acknowledgement. So they have not got Eichel tied into this case at all.

Kiwitt is not tied into the case at all; Hausmann did nothing in the case at all; Fay shot at a man trying to escape; Hahrgang admits killing him,--Or maybe I have got the names twisted--while attempting to avoid the escape, and the map shows that at the time of the fatal wound the victim was practically out of the compound and already on the open road.

I would like to make one more comment with respect to Charge 8, and that has to do with the autopsy. According to the autopsy this man was shot from the front, and I think this would be the right chest. The right side of the chest, anyway, with the exit point on the left of the body, which is the only evidence before the court to negative all the weight of the other evidence that the victim was actually in headlong flight at the time he was shot. There are two explanations for that, both of them consistent with the rest of the evidence.

There was testimony that at the time of the fatal contact with the bullet the victim was on the road with open fields to both sides. He could have, at the time of the hit, actually turned, heading towards the open fields, which would have turned his body in the direction of the fire, or else the body of the victim identified in this case was not the body that was shot.

I would like to call the court's attention to the fact that the only identification in this case, as I remember, is the same.
between the body upon which the autopsy was performed and the victim of this shooting was that somebody remembered the name
Archibald--the first name Archibald. That is all there is.
So that there could very well be a case of mistaken identity, as well as the fact that at that time he had turned and headed to the open fields at the time of the shooting.

With respect to Charge 9, may it please the court, the only evidence against Best is as follows: First there is his statement, and, second, there is a statement by Goss mentioned in the case. Best says that he was a messenger delivering an order from Stroop to Goss with respect to a flyer that had been captured, and that the order was to kill, but that that particular flyer had been delivered to the Wehrmacht. So there are two things: First of all, he did not give an order. He was a messenger--a staff officer--or conveying a message from one command to another. That is all he did, and that thing which he did do referred to an individual who was not hurt--who got away. And then there was the second statement that the second flyer was killed on the strength of Stroop's order, but that was the order which East brought down referring to some other individual. That is all there is to it, may it please the court.

The argument with respect to No. 10, may it please the court, we have made in No. 6, and I will not take the time of the court to repeat it.

Paragraph 2 was added to this motion with a view, particular thought in mind. The language of all three charges is the same. It says that they did wilfully, deliberately and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet and participate, four or five different words each meaning something different.

The law of the land with respect to principals first, the first and second degree, with accessories before the fact, with aiders, accomplices, abettors and participators is somewhat at variance, so that we of the defense could not with any degree of certainty calculate just what offenses were charged therein. Whether or not a man could be found guilty of Charge 3, for instance, of murder in the first degree or of the second degree, or as an accessory before or after the fact, or what. So we made our motion for findings of not guilty, which I have already argued, and because of that misunderstanding or lack of understanding on our part we have made the second motion, which asks for findings of not guilty on the charge of murder.

For instance, take this case of East, who brought this order down with respect to another man, and that order was used as the basis for killing a second individual. We ask the court to find that Best in that case was not guilty of the crime of murder. That is what we are asking in the second charge, and by analogy we are asking the same sort of thing with respect to the other named individuals in the various charges in which they are named. For instance, we are asking you to find Semmes not guilty of murder in all charges from 5 to 10, and that is in the event the court denies our motions for findings of not guilty, criminality than the or [illegible] so-called orderer. In our own mind we could understand how a court might refuse motions for a finding of not guilty on those charges, because they feel there was some slight responsibility, but the court could deny that motion and at the same time allow the motion for a finding of not guilty of murder, and those cases by analogy apply to all the individuals named therein. [illegible] at this [illegible] That completes our argument, may it please the court, subject perhaps to a request that we might add something by way of rebuttal. [illegible] with [illegible] defendants [illegible] fact [illegible]

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for 20 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1000 hours the court recessed until 1020 hours.)

[illegible] number "primal [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible], procurator [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] right to [illegible], many things [illegible] [illegible] the case.

[illegible]

(Thereupon court reconvened at 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent sick, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

The prosecution, in answering the motion by the defense, would like to point out to the court at the very outset that the defense in this court, and perhaps in many of these courts in Dachau, forget that a war crime killer has a greater degree of criminality than the ordinary so-called murderer, so that when the defense refers to murder and the elements of murder, we drift away from war crimes.

Our English Common Law surrounds the defendant with great many protections. For example, in murder, very definite elements must be proven conclusively beyond a reasonable doubt. Under our English Common Law we have available to us for the defendant certain safeguards, but this type of crime is an unusual one. It comes from war and the rules to be applied are different.

Recognizing the enormity of the offense with which these defendants are charged and the difficulties in obtaining evidence because of the fact that the evidence necessarily comes from a war or wartime area, the Nuernberg Tribunal and those authorities who laid down the rules, prescribed rules of evidence that give the court the right to take many, many things into consideration in determining the facts in the case.

The government of the United States and in particular, these people of the United States who are the relatives of the families of Duke, Lumley and Garrison -- and you must not forget them -- have charged me with the duty of presenting everything that we can possibly get, and that is what we are doing. The court should bear with us and consider every fact that has been made available to us through the processes of investigation.

Now, conceding for the sake of argument that this might be a charge of murder, I recall that from the principles of law that I know on the subject, that back in the States and in the British system, if I go into a house to kill a man in his bed and my associate stands downstairs as lookout, he will hang with me.

Now, as I mentioned yesterday, with respect to Ohlendorf, it is definitely a fact that at the time he was commanding officer of the SD, the conspiracy had been formed. Ohlendorf never denied that he was a colonel and experienced in police matters, and with his knowledge of the desires and aims of the High Command in Berlin, cannot be said to be a mere inactive quantity and free from the responsibilities of the criminal acts of the organization to which he not only belonged but in which he belonged as a commanding official.

Now, if the court will recall the statement of Hollenbreich, Exhibit P-30. Hollenbreich said, talking about a particular order:

> "It is not the duty of the police to protect bailed out terror fliers from the excesses of an enraged population. Intervention on the part of the police was unequivocally forbidden. In the discussion which followed the reading of this decree, Semann, who at that time was inspector of the Security Police and of Corps Area XII, made an unequivocal addition, which could be interpreted only as an order to shoot."

Hollenbroich says that Semann said:

> "It is understood that I do not want to hear that we, the Security Police, have turned fliers over to the air forces or that at public gatherings, one of us would be soft enough to turn his gun over to someone else. We can find all kinds of possibilities during the transport."

That is Semann himself speaking.

Christmann, in Exhibit P-34, says this:

> "I can fully confirm the substance of the statements made by Hollenbreich, but I believe that Semann, as far as the meaning is concerned, did not only issue one order but two orders, which both represented directives given by the Fuehrer and were signed by Himmler."

"As far as the meaning is concerned I can recall that Somann did not wish the Security Police to turn any fliers over to the armed forces. In substance he said approximately the same as did Hellenbroich in his statement."

Let us look back at the Yamashita case. Yamashita had a large army under his command, many millions of troops. It would have been impossible for Yamashita, while he was in Luzon, to be in Bagaio at the same time. Yet, the court said that by reason of his position and rank, the fact that it was war and he was a commander, a man of authority, and had some power to control these things, he is responsible. Even if he does not physically stop it himself, he is responsible for not putting in measures while he is in office to prevent these things. What did Somann ever do? Did he ever do anything to prevent this? No, he issued orders of his own.

Now, the actual murders of the nine fliers, some named and some unnamed, which resulted from the scheme and plan, we contend we have proven beyond a reasonable doubt, though at this point in the case we have only been required to submit substantial evidence, which, together with reasonable inferences therefrom and all applicable presumptions, fairly tends to establish the elements of the offense.

We ask the court to remember -- and we have said this many times in the trial -- that Charges III to X must be taken together with Charge I and considered as a whole. By taking the evidence in support of Charge I and combining it with the evidence of Charges III to X, a pattern is discovered -- the pattern of criminality. The fabric is discovered, -- the fabric by which it was constructed. The machinery that was set in motion is described and the results obtained are here established. Charges III to X concern themselves with actual killings, here supported and strengthened by more evidence than is usually offered in a case of this kind.

I pointed out yesterday, and I will repeat briefly now the four types of evidence in each charge: The circumstantial evidence, the evidence of eye witnesses, the voluntary sworn confessions or statements, or admissions against interests of the perpetrators, and the proof of corpus delicti, -- the dead body, named or unnamed.

The court has been furnished with a Memorandum of Law by the defense. I would like to make one or two comments about that. There is a statement in paragraph 3 of that Memorandum of Law that says that the accused's written statements are the only evidence in this case. Of course, I am sure that was a mistake and was not meant to be stated in that way. The evidence was overwhelming; there were 40 witnesses in this case and 140 documents, pictures, charts and pathological reports.

There was a statement of law which I am sure was unintentionally put in the Memorandum of Law as a mistake, and that was the statement appearing in the Memorandum of Law in which a quotation from Underhill on page 567-569 was given. It was quoted in the Memorandum of Law this way:

> "....but it is in reversible error for the confession to be received before the proof of corpus delicti...."

The quotation should read:

> "....but it is not reversible error...."

The word "not" was left out. I am sure that was a mistake.

The prosecution would appreciate it greatly if the court would read the other statements in that book on page 568. I will briefly mention a few of them:

> "If facts are shown from which the jury may infer that the crime has been committed, any other evidence tending to implicate the accused is thereby rendered inadmissible."

> "Evidence tending to show that the defendant intentionally ran an automobile against the deceased held sufficient evidence of corpus delicti to admit inculpatory statements."

> "The finding of a person dead from wounds not self-inflicted establishes corpus delicti, which admits the statement of the defendant."

> "The testimony of an accomplice may sufficiently prove corpus delicti to warrant introduction of admissions or confessions."

"As a predicate for receiving confession, corpus delicti is sufficiently shown by prima facie evidence. Proof beyond a reasonable doubt is not required."

"In homicide prosecution the corpus delicti is sufficiently established to render admissible defendant's extra-judicial confession where prima facie evidence establishes that deceased met death through another's unlawful act, though such act is not traced to the accused."

There is much evidence in this case, -- the record is voluminous. I do not want to take the court's time by analyzing it page by page. However, I would like to point out one or two things. A point was made about one or two cases where there seems to be an inference that the flier was the guilty one in attempting to escape. Well, let us look at the particular one I have in mind, which is shown on the chart in the courtroom. I have never seen a better case of staging an attempted flight. They shoved him and said, "Heraus, get going, get up there." Prior to that, the court must remember the flier had been down to the police station where he had been stripped of his possessions and two policemen took him out on the road and he was met by two armed men. He knew that certain death met him. Then they went a step further and they pushed him into that command post in the very right corner of the diagram and fired shots at him. The poor devil took one or two steps away. Would you not do that? I certainly would. He was not a prisoner of war then, and he knew it. They cornered him and shot him down like a rat.

Just to touch briefly on one or two other points with reference to Lassak. The defense gets up and says the only evidence against Lassak is his statement. That is an example of the type of argument the defense has been making, -- he has only been convicted on his own statement. If the court will turn to page 244 of the record, you will see the testimony of Kuenk:

"Question: What was Mr. Lassak's position there in Giessen?

"Answer: He was police director, SS colonel.

"Question: What occurred after you got to the police station?

"Answer: I went with the flyer to the basement. In the hallway it was half dark, and we moved only slowly. Lassak followed us, and since we moved slowly he pushed the flyer to the side and opened the door so that we could enter the orderly room.

"Question: What do you mean by 'he pushed the flyer to the side'? Be more definite.

"Answer: The hall is very narrow, and he wanted to pass between us, so he rushed him to the side so that he could pass us.

"Question: Then what happened?

"Answer: So I entered the room and the entire staff was waiting there. I intended to report to the commander that I had taken the flyer at Nerburger Street from the people, but I was told immediately to leave the room again. At this moment something flew against the table. I turned around and saw that the flyer had been pushed by Lassak, who wanted to pass by. I left the room immediately then with the flyer and waited outside with the flyer. A short while later Mr. Lassak came out again and said, 'He comes, the flyer comes to the Gestapo for interrogation.' Since we were still standing in the narrow hallway, he told the flyer, 'Get out of my way', and went up the stairs. Approximately six, seven minutes later he called into the cellar the flyer should come upstairs. I went upstairs with the flyer, and there was an employee of the Gestapo, and Lassak said, 'This is the man.' ....The flyer had walked a few steps and since he was alone and turned around once, so I thought maybe the crowd was still excited, so I thought it is better I accompany him to the Gestapo. At the Gestapo I went with him up to the stairs, and there I saw they were already waiting for him, and they said, 'He will be brought to Brenner.'..."

And then Branner admits that he did the killing. Now, by any stretch of the imagination, can this court take Lassak out of that picture?

When we talk about Lassak and people like Hoehler, for example, it occurs to me that they played roles we are familiar with from reading accounts of murder and crime committed elsewhere and that we know as lawyers, have been brought before courts many, many times in this form. A man who is on the look-out for a murderer is equally guilty. Hoehler drove the car. He drove the car and took the murderers to the place where the murder was committed. In any jurisprudence, in any court of law, that would be accepted as the man being an actual participant. It takes only one bullet to kill, but sometimes you have to have four or five people cooperate to see that the deed is done. Hoehler, for example, took a very active part.

Rohrgang tries to tell that he had nothing to do with it, but you recall he said in his statement that he was the superior officer of those other men and he did nothing to prevent it. Some of those men did not fire shots, but certainly, they had positions of authority and they did nothing to prevent what happened.

Now, with respect to the second paragraph in that motion, in recent days we have heard of an expression which I think is very apropos It is applicable to this situation. A few years ago, there was broken up a combine of men, and they were labelled, "Murder, Inc." The board of directors, Streop and Seaman and Trussler, are right over there right now. The agents of the corporation, the vice president, treasurer and secretary, were the trigger men. There they are. They carried out the board of directors' wishes. And also the stockholders back there, who contributed and who were interested in the results of the venture. They are just as much a part of that corporation as the board of directors and the vice president and the treasurer, and we know that situation is comparable to this. Suffice it to say that the prosecution urges upon this court that it has made out a prima facie case.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: We have been trying, may it please the court, to keep out of our argument any aspect of appeals to the emotions, of emotional argument. I don't intend to get down to that now. It is a commonplace that two lawyers, or sometimes half a dozen, can take the same case and squeeze out of it interpretations to suit each one of them. The Yamashita case, now, that case said plainly that Yamashita was guilty because he was in command at the time these things were done, and irrespective of what he might have been able to do to stop it, he tried nothing. That is all that case decided, and how can that case be quoted as authority to convict Seaman, who was three or four hundred miles away at the time these things happened.

The prosecution says to the court that Seaman should be found guilty of seven murders on the statements of Hellenbroich and a man who escaped because he didn't have the courage to face the accused. The rules of evidence in this case have been changed, there is no question about that, because of the exigencies of war. But the rule that a man has to be found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt has not been changed, and that is still the law. This court still can't convict on surmise or suspicion or by an appeal to the emotions; "how dastardly these crimes were." They were, they stunk to the high heavens, but they were no more murder than the murder of Lindburgh's baby was. Murder is still murder, it doesn't make any difference how it was done or who did it, and the law is still the law.

I have one more thing and I am through. Germany was over here. Four of these murders were committed by people over there. The argument I made for Trumler, that he had to be found not guilty of four murders, or four charges, because they were committed by people over in the lower lefthand corner over whom he had no control applies equally to Hossann. I ask for the court's judgment.

I request permission for Mr. Rachael to address the court briefly with respect to Charge VIII.

PRESIDENT: Permission granted.

MR. RACHAEL: I listened with amazement to the description of the prosecution of what happened over at that court. He referred to the area as a stage and the people in it as actors with a pre-rehearsed plan. He said also that he had four characteristics of evidence which he used voluminously, he says, to prove guilt of the persons charged in Charge VIII. Circumstantial evidence -- there isn't a bit of it. Every bit of evidence in Charge VIII came: one, out of the mouths of the prosecution witnesses, live witnesses; two, they came out of the accuseds' statements; three, they came out of what was purported to be a proved corpus delicti. There was no circumstantial evidence. What happened there is very simple and very logical. Two policemen brought a flier down the road and they were taking him to Bieber and there was an air raid. They wanted to protect themselves from the air raid and so they came to the closest shelter, and when they found out there was an air raid shelter up where it says, "Shelter Eichel Command Post," that was where they wanted to take this prisoner to protect themselves. They had the prisoner with them and they were supposed to guard him, so those policemen went with Fay, who knew the area and who knew those dangerous steps down there to the command post. Then their own evidence, the confession, says that the flier hit Fay on the chest and made a break, and Fay shot two shots after him. Now, if that was a pre-rehearsed plan, why would Fay shoot two shots at a flier and miss him? Why would he miss him? He had a chance, right close to him, to shoot the flier, but there was no pre-rehearsed plan and it is not what the prosecution is trying to tell you happened there. The flier made a break. The shots were fired and missed and then what happened? The one who did the killing, who was not even there and not even knew what happened, but who only heard that the flier is escaping, runs out of the guard room unarmed and takes the gun away from a guard standing at Point B and is chasing an escaped flier. Now, under any rule of law, whether it be military law or civil law or any kind of law, if he is chasing an escaped flier — which he has a perfect right to do — and the flier is about to take off into the woods, and he aims on a dark night and hits the flier and kills him, is that murder? He couldn't possibly have been guilty of murder. And Fay, who was not even there, who himself was hit on the chest by the escaping flier, and Nahrgang, who was not even around, he was in the guardhouse when this happened, and where was Eichel? He was in the command post. He didn't even know what was going on. And they are saying that that is murder? I will stop, if the court please.

PROSECUTION: I hope the court will not forget that Eichel sent those two policemen out there to have this man shot. The evidence is all clear on that subject. It was not a convenient air raid situation. I agree with the defense that it was not murder; it was killing by a war criminal. It was a war crime, greater than murder.

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the Court, let the record show that all members of the Prosecution, all members of the Defense, except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick, all the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May we ask the Court to recess in place for two minutes while we pull the tables out?

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

The motion made on behalf of some of the defendants for a finding of not guilty of certain charges and each branch of said motion is denied.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Before I proceed with the introduction of Defense's evidence, I would like an opinion from the Court. Some time in the course of the trial, we will have character testimony to offer, and it occurs to the Defense that the best time to offer that would be after the findings--between the findings, such as they may be, and sentence. That's the course we would like to follow.

CAPTAIN VANCE: We will object to that, because if the Defense puts the character of these accused in issue and attempts to prove good character, then we will attempt to prove bad character. If both the Prosecution and Defense have rested, then we would not be permitted to put on any testimony.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The right of the Prosecution to put on rebuttal testimony as to character would not be taken away. If there is any legal question about this right to do it after we put it in, we will stipulate that they may introduce such character testimony, if they desire.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the Court, in answer to that, character is, in a way, a matter of defense. Under the laws here--the procedure for these courts--if both sides have rested and the Court has made a finding in the case, then the Court permits the accused to put on testimony in mitigation or extenuation as to go to punishment that may be awarded by the Court. If they are permitted to go into the character, they would be in effect going into defensive matters rather than mitigation. If the Defense so desires to put the character of these accused in issue, we have no objection whatsoever, but it must be brought up during the proceedings of the Court and not when the Court hears matters in mitigation.

PRESIDENT: The Court rules that character testimony must be presented by the Defense before the Defense rests its case.

DEFENSE: For the record, I want to state that the Defense waives its right to make an opening statement of a general nature.

The Defense will now offer Jurgen Stroop as a witness for the sole, limited purpose of identifying certain exhibits and certain explanatory matter with respect to those exhibits.

JURGEN STROOP, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q May it please the Court, your name is Jurgen Stroop?

A My name is Jurgen Stroop.

Q Are you an accused in this case?

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The usual questions about address and age, I am going to waive because they were asked by the Court in preliminary examination.

I hand the reporter a document and request that it be marked Defense Exhibit 1 for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Defense Exhibit 1 for identification.)

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I show you a paper which has been marked Defense Exhibit 1 for identification only and ask you to examine it and then tell the Court what this paper represents.

A This photostatic copy represents the organization and official channels of the SS and the police in my former area of duty.

Q Will you explain just a bit more what organizations are represented by that photographic copy--illustrated by that photographic copy?

A Do you want me to do this by this small copy, or by the big one there?

Q Just explain what organizations are shown on that chart--that and nothing more.

A Yes. It says here Reichsfuehrer SS, in his capacity also as Reichsminister of the Interior and Chief of the German Police. Then directly below it are the main offices of the SS.

Q Before going into details, Stroop, does it also show the organization of the Security Police and SD?

A Yes, on the right side, the organization of the Security Police and SD is represented, and on the left side the organization of the Order Police or Regular Police.

Q I call your attention to the fact that on the left side, it is composed of some additional sheets. Turning these things over, what does the right side of the sheet as you face it represent?

A As I see it now, as it is before me now, the right side shows the organization of the Security Police until 1 September 1944.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think the record should show that the two sheets lying on top of the chart have been turned over so that he is looking at the chart itself.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, turning back one sheet, what does this chart represent?

A This represents the organization until 31 December 1944.

Q The organization of what?

A Of the Security Police.

Q Up until what date did you say?

A It says here until 31 December 1944.

Q Now, turning over to the top sheet, what is that?

A The top sheet shows the organization of the Security Police and the SD after January, 1945.

Q And how long did that organization and chain of command exist?

A Until the end.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Now, may it please the Court, I offer this into evidence as Defense Exhibit 1 and ask that it be received as a chart showing the organization of the Security Police and the Ordinary Police, with the chains of command, channels of command, for the dates set forth thereon.

PROSECUTION: No objections by the Prosecution.

PRESIDENT: Defense Exhibit 1 will be received in evidence and made a part of the record.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, I call your attention to the big chart standing up against the wall and ask you to tell the Court what that represents.

A This big chart on the wall represents the same thing. It is an enlargement of what I just had in my hand as a photostatic copy.

Q I show you Defense Exhibit 1 and ask you to tell the Court just what portion of Defense Exhibit 1 that big chart represents.

A It represents exactly what I have in front of me now.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask the record to show that the witness by the remark "what I have in front of me now" refers to Defense Exhibit 1, with the two superimposed sheets turned over.

I ask that the reporter mark the wall chart Defense Exhibit 2 for identification.

(The wall chart referred to was marked Defense Exhibit 2 for identification.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that the big chart be received in evidence, subject to withdrawal at the end of the case, as Defense Exhibit 2.

PROSECUTION: No objections by the Prosecution.

PRESIDENT: Defense Exhibit 2 will be received in evidence and permission is given to withdraw it after the trial.

(The wall chart heretofore marked Defense Exhibit 2 for identification, was received in evidence as Defense Exhibit 2.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, beginning in the center portion of the exhibit, Defense Exhibit 2, Stroop, will you explain to the Court just what this chart indicates?

A The center portion deals with my job in greater detail.

Q Start at the top--what is this thing up here?

A Up there I see represented the Reichsfuehrer of the SS, the Reichsminister of the Interior, and the Commanding Officer of the Replacement Army.

Q And who is that individual?

A That is the former Reichsfuehrer of the SS, Himmler.

Q And directly underneath the bracket showing the office of Himmler, there is an arrow pointing to the squares here. Will you explain just what those are?

A This rather big rectangle represents the main office of the SS, subdivided into the individual main offices.

Q Take them one at a time. I direct your attention to this abbreviation here "Pers Stab". What does that mean?

A This means the personal staff of the Reichsfuehrer of the SS.

Q And the next one is the"SS Hauptamt". What is that?

A The SS Main Office used to include all the main offices, it was mainly a chart of organization.

Q What was it in 1944?

A In 1944 it was the old SS Hauptamt, main office, decreased in size. It's main job was to organize all the organisations of the SS.

Q The next bracket, "Personal Hauptamt"; what was that?

A The Personnel Main Office was in charge of working out all personnel matters, office of replacement, etc.

Q The next one--"Fuehrungs Hauptamt"?

A The "Fuehrungs Hauptamt", the Leadership Office, was the chief office of the Waffen SS.

Q And the next one, "Wirtschafts und Verwaltungs Hauptamt"?

A Economic and administration main office, for all matters concerning economics.

Q And the "Hauptamt SS Gericht". What was that?

A That was the chief legal office in the SS under the Reichsfuehrer of the SS.

Q And the next one, "Rasse und Siedlungs Hauptamt"?

A The next one--the race and settlement main office. It was particularly in charge of working out problems arising from the SS marriage law and to work on the personnel files of every SS man who was admitted.

End ta 120, pls fols

Q And the next one, Reichskommissar?

A The next one, the Reichskommisar for the Fortification of the German Nation, was in charge of taking care of German nationals who were resettled in Germany proper from foreign countries.

Q And the next one?

A The next one, Main Office for Welfare of German Nationals. They were in charge of the welfare of all German nationals.

Q And the last one?

A The last one, Main Office Meissmeyer, was primarily in charge of taking care of Nationalist Socialist schools.

Q I call your attention to this heavy line from the Main Headquarters to the Reichssicherheitshauptamt, and likewise to the heavy line from Himmler's office to the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei. What does that heavy line signify?

A These lines represent the channels of command to these main offices.

Q The channels of whose command to whom?

A From the Reichsfuehrer of the SS office to the Reichshauptamt and the Reichssicherheitshauptamt and the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei.

Q According to that chart who was the commanding officer of the Ordnungspolizei?

A General Wuennenberg was the commanding officer of the regular police.

Q Was he the commanding officer of the regular police throughout the years '44 and '45?

A Yes.

Q And who was the ranking officer of the Reichssicherheitshauptamt?

A General Kaltenbrunner.

Q And was Kaltenbrunner the ranking officer of the Security Police during the years '44 and '45?

A Yes.

Q Now, these two lines we are talking about, the one from Himmler to Kaltenbrunner and the one from Himmler to Muehlenberg -- when you say that these are the channels of command do you mean by that that Himmler was in command of the Ordnungspolizei as well as the Security Police?

A Yes, he was the chief of the German police.

Q Now, coming down underneath the various subdivisions of Himmler's office, there is an arrow which points to Hoeherer Polizeifuehrer Stroop. Is the Stroop mentioned there yourself?

A Yes.

Q Now, limiting our questions to the years 1944 and '45, did you occupy the office of Higher SS and Police Leader during these two years?

A Yes.

Q Now, beneath the bracket referring to your name are the words "Rhein-Westmark". What does that mean?

A That is a description of the area of which I was in charge.

Q Both on the lefthand side and the righthand side of the bracket bearing your name are four squares or a total of eight. Will you explain them to the Court beginning with the one on the lefthand side marked "Adjutant"?

A Yes. As the name indicates, the first square indicates my adjutant. The next one, IA, representing one office, GS. I might say, the Operational Section. The next square says Reichskommissar for the Fortification of the German National. That is a sub-office of the one that I have already explained above.

(Stroop-direct)

Q Which one?

A Of the main office, Reichskommissar for the Fortification of the German Nation, the third one from the right.

Q Now the one, "Werwolf".

A Werwolf was an office in charge of Werwolf matters in my area.

Q Remaining with the Werwolf for the time being, will you point out to this court if on the chart the top headquarters of the Werwolf is indicated?

A Yes, it is to be found between the Main Office for the Order Police and the Personal Staff of the SS.

Q Will you read what it says there?

A It says Werwolf SS Major General Prutzmann.

Q Now I call your attention to the heavy black line from Himmler to the Werwolf. What does that indicate?

A That means that General Fruetzmann, who was the chief of the whole Werwolf in the Reich received his orders directly from Himmler.

Q I call your attention to a heavy black line underneath the bracket "Fruetzmann" which goes to the square containing your name and ask you what that line means.

A That means that the communications and the orders coming from Major General Fruetzmann went through my office.

Q The orders respecting what?

A The instructions concerning the Werwolf.

Q Turning to the four brackets on the righthand side, will you explain to the court -- no there are five of them -- what they are?

A The Nachrichten Fuehrer was in charge of maintenance of all facilities needed by the Higher Police officers and in charge of extending those, also.

Q And the next one?

A The next one was the Administration. They were in charge of all administrative matters.

Q And the next one?

A The next man again is the man in my staff who was a representative of the Race and Settlement Main Office. That is a sub-division of the fourth main office from the right, the Race and Settlement Main Office.

Q And the next one -- Fuersorge?

A The Welfare Department was in charge of all welfare matters, particularly as far as the relatives of SS men killed in action were concerned.

Q And underneath that?

A The Personal Section was in charge of personal matters for the Higher SS and police officers as well as for the SS Chief of Rhein-Westmark.

Q Right underneath the bracket bearing your name is one using the words "Stabsfuehrer Oberst Schluns." What is that?

A This Colonel Schluns was my permanent deputy as commander of the main section of the SS in Rhein-Westmark.

Q What does the bracket "Oberabschnitt, Rhein-Westmark" mean?

A That square means that in my area there also was a main sector, Rhein-Westmark, of the Allgemeine SS. I was its leader as well.

Q Now, from the bracket bearing your name there is a heavy black line going down here to Hoeherer Kommandeur der Kriegsgefangenen. What does that mean?

A At the time at which the then Reichsfuehrer of the SS became the commanding chief of the prisoners of war the higher SS and police leaders became the leaders of the prisoners of war.

(Streep-direct)

Q Can you tell the court when that was?

A As far as I remember in October '44, I believe on October 1st.

Q So that beginning on or about October 1, 1944 you were in command of the prisoners of war within the Rhein-Westmark area, is that correct?

A The higher commander, yes. If I might explain this right now, the commander of the prisoners of war who until that time had been in the 12th Corps, joined my staff and became the commander of the prisoners of war.

Q Then, underneath the bracket "Higher Commander of the Prisoners of War" is another one, "Commander of the Prisoners of War" and also the one here, "KGF Lager". Will you explain that.

A That is what I was just talking about. That is what I just explained. The commanding officer of the prisoners of war, a Major General of the regular army, joined my staff and through that means he, as well as all the other Kriegsgefangenen prisoner of war camps, came under me.

Q This KGF merely typifies prisoner of war camps?

A Yes.

Q I call your attention to a broken line between the word "Westmark" under your name, to this bracket, "Gerichtsherr des SS u. Polizei-Gerichts." Will you explain that.

A There also existed an SS and police court for my area. I was the chief of this court.

Q As the chief of the court what were your duties and responsibilities?

A Prior to any action being taken by this court the papers would be put before me and after any business had been transacted by the court it would be submitted to me to be countersigned or confirmed as the case might be.

(Savage-direct)

Q Do you mean by that that you were the reviewing authority of the decisions arrived at by the SS courts?

A Yes, the SS judges had to present their matters to me and I had a choice of either countersigning or refusing to do so or to let matters go on.

Q The little bracket underneath with the words "SS u. Pol. Gericht". What does that mean?

A This indicates the existence of this SS and police court about which we have been talking.

Q Going back to yourself -- the chain of command includes your adjutant, then goes down through the Oberabschnitt, Rhein-Westmark. What are those three lines forming a triangle which lead to the Abschnitt Frankfurt, Abschnitt Saarbrucken and Abschnitt Koblenz? What do they mean?

A The SS main sector Rhein-Westmark was subdivided into three sectors.

Q Do I understand you that the Rhein-Westmark area which was your jurisdiction had the German word or the German title "Oberabschnitt"?

A Yes.

Q And the Abschnitte of Frankfurt, Saarbrucken and Koblenz are the three sub-divisions of the Rhein-Westmark?

A Yes.

Q Did these three Abschnitte have someone in charge of them?

A In peacetime an Abschnittsfuehrer would be in charge of each Abschnitt or sector.

Q Was this Abschnitt a peacetime organization?

A Yes, that was built for peacetime.

Q Was it carried over into wartime?

A In wartime the organization kept existing but almost all the men were drafted as soldiers and the offices of the Abschnitt sector leaders were not filled.

(Streep-direct)

80 Ta 121
pls

Q Then under each Abschnitt you have three lines forming a triangle. What do these lines mean?

A That means that there were three SS regiments for every sector, three regiments on foot.

Q Were they located in any particular place?

A The headquarters of the regiments were but the regiments proper were distributed over rather large areas.

Q Now, going back up to the left-hand side, there is a heavy black line going directly down from the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei (Orpo) to a bracket marked "Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei". What does that bracket represent?

A It represents a direct line of command from the Main Office of the Regular Police to the commanding officer of the Regular Police.

Q Is the area represented by that office or commanded by the Befehlshaber, Rhein-Westmark, analogous to the area over which you had command?

A The area of command of the commanding officer of the Regular Police was the same.

Q This heavy black line that goes from the bracket including your name down to the bracket "Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei", what does that line indicate?

A This indicates the channel of command from the Higher SS and police leader to the BDO, commanding officer of the Regular Police.

Q So that in addition to the direct line from Himmler to General Juennenberg, that channel of one and, there was also one from you to the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungspolizei in Rhein-Westmark?

(Strop-direct)

A Yes, but the main channel of command, of course, was from the Reichsfuehrer to the Main Office of the Regular Police, to the commanding officer of the Regular Police.

Q Was there any distinction in the orders which went from Himmler direct to Wuensdorf and then down the line? Were they different in any way from the orders which went from Himmler through you, through the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungspolizei?

A Well, the difference consisted of the fact that of course all orders did not go through me.

Q Would there be any distinguishing factor to determine which orders went through you and which did not?

A You might say that all matters concerning personnel or less important orders would not go through the Higher SS and police leader but through the Main Office for the Regular Police.

Q Underneath the office of the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungspolizei there is an arrow directed to the Chef des Stabes. Will you explain what that is with all the words under it?

A These boxes below there represent the same sub-divisions as there are in the boxes around my name. You might call it the working staff.

Q In other words, they are the staff of the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungs polizei; just as you had a staff?

A Yes.

Q Was the Ordnungspolizei made up of different types of police or were they all of the same class?

A No, there were different ones. There was a Protective Police and the Flood Police, the Fire Protection Police, Air Raid Police.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think you translated Wasserschutzpolizei as Flood Police. Shouldn't that be Water Protection?

A Yes, but the main channel of command, of course, was from the Reichsfuehrer to the Main Office of the Regular Police, to the commanding officer of the Regular Police.

Q Was there any distinction in the orders which went from Himmler direct to Woermannberg and then down the line? Were they different in any way from the orders which went from Himmler through you, through the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungspolizei?

A Well, the difference consisted of the fact that of course all orders did not go through me.

Q Would there be any distinguishing factor to determine which orders went through you and which did not?

A You might say that all matters concerning personnel or less important orders would not go through the Higher SS and police leader but through the Main Office for the Regular Police.

Q Underneath the office of the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungspolizei there is an arrow directed to the Chef des Stabes. Will you explain what that is with all the words under it?

A These boxes below there represent the same sub-divisions as there are in the boxes around my name. You might call it the working staff.

Q In other words, they are the staff of the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungs polizei; just as you had a staff?

A Yes.

Q Was the Ordnungspolizei made up of different types of police or were they all of the same class?

A No, there were different ones. There was a Protective Police and the Flood Police, the Fire Protection Police, Air Raid Police.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think you translated Wasserschutzpolizei as Flood Police. Shouldn't that be Water Protection?

(Streep-direct)

THE INTERPRETER: Water Protection Police.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Coming over here on the lefthand side, NSDAP, Bormann, what does that represent?

A Bormann was the business manager of the National Socialist German Workers Party.

Q Is that the same as the Nazi Party?

A Yes.

Q Coming down under Bormann where the words "Personal-Union des Gauleiters" are and with the word "Gauleiter" underneath, explain that.

A The Gauleiters were the representatives of the Nazi Party for certain areas of the Reich.

Q Did the Rhein-Westmark area have a Gauleiter in it?

A Yes, three.

Q And they were what?

A The Gauleiter of Westmark, the Gauleiter of Hessen-Nassau and the Gauleiter of Moselland.

Q What were the areas over which the various Gauleiters had control?

A The Gauleiter of Westmark was Burckel.

Q I don't mean their names. What area did he have, what was it called, did he have an area for himself?

A Yes, the so-called Gau area, Hessen-Nassau.

Q In other words, each Gauleiter was in charge of an area called a Gau?

A Yes.

Q And the red lines from the word "Gauleiter" to the word, "Kreisleiter", what does that indicate?

(Stroop-direct)

A The Kreisleiter, as you can see, was in charge of a Kreis, a district, for political affairs, and they were directly under the Gauleiter.

Q You mean by that that each Gau was divided into districts and each district was headed by a Kreisleiter?

A Yes.

Q Underneath the Kreisleiter you have the red line including the "Parteidruck" to the line "Ortsgruppenleiter", what does that indicate?

A The district areas were sub-divided into so-called Ortsgruppen areas and the chief of such an area would be the Ortsgruppenleiter.

Q Coming back up to the bracket with the words "Personal Union des Gauleiters" I call your attention to the words "Reichsverteidigung Kommissar, Oberpresident and Reichsstatthalter, what do they indicate?

A In many cases, and Hessen-Nassau was one of those cases, the Gauleiter had some other job besides being Gauleiter. He could be the Reich Defense Commissioner, the President in Chief or the Reich State Representative.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: (To Interpreter) Reichsverteidigung Kommissar in English is the Reich Defense Minister. Did you translate it that way?

INTERPRETER: Reich Defense Commissioner.

Q What were his duties and responsibilities?

A To do everything to defend the Reich.

Q Does that mean against internal, external enemies, or both?

A Against everything.

Q What are the functions and the duties of Oberpresident?

A The Oberpresidents were the chiefs of the so-called provinces which existed in only a few cases any more.

Q In other words, the man who was Gauleiter in some cases also held these other three offices; is that correct?

A The other three as well.

Q Under neath the bracket Reichsstatthalter is an arrow pointing to Kommandeur der Ordnungspolizei. What does that mean?

A That was more or less a liaison officer of the Reichsstatthalter, for the commanding officer of the regular police, through whom he could transmit wishes or desires.

Q Just exactly what do you mean by that? Can you expand a little bit on that last answer?

A The Reichsstatthalter was in some cases entitled to give instructions to the Higher SS and Police Officer, but in most cases he could not contact this Higher SS and Police Officer directly but could transmit his desires through the commanding officer of the regular police.

Q In one of your gaus there was a man who was not only a gauleiter but also Reichsverteidigungs Kommissar and Reichsstatthalter, was there not?

A Yes, in the gau of Hessen-Nassau.

Q You mean by your answer that that man who was not only gauleiter but also Reichsstatthalter could give you orders?

A Yes. As I said, from the Reichsstatthalter to the Higher SS and Police Officer, meaning the Reichsstatthalter of Hessen-Nassau and Westmark.

DR. RAU: I object to the translation.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am sorry, that by-play missed me. I did not hear it.

PRESIDENT: Will you repeat what the translation was?

(Thereupon the last answer was read by the reporter.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: If any of the associate defense counsel object to the interpretation, I wish they would say so to the court and not directly to the interpreter. Dr. Rau, if you have an objection direct yourself to the court.

DR. RAU: In my opinion, what the witness said was that "I, as Higher SS and Police Officer, was assigned to the gauleiters and reichsstatthalters of Hessen-Nassau and Westmark."

CAPTAIN VANCE: We would like to ask the interpreter if that is what he said. We do not speak German and have no way of knowing.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q There has been a difference of opinion as to the correct translation of your last answer. Will you please tell the court which interpretation of your answer is correct.? (To the Interpreter: You tell him what the two translations were and ask him which is right.)

A What I was intending to say, if I can repeat it again precisely, was that I was assigned to the Reichsstatthalters of Westmark and Hessen-Nassau.

Q Will you explain just what this assignment meant?

A In the first place, assignment as far as the areas was concerned, and, in the second place, as far as instructions from these men were concerned.

Q To what extent did this assignment subject you, if at all, to the command of the Reichsstatthalter?

A Well, as soon as I became the Higher SS and Police Leader of Rhein-Westmark.

Q After you so became, what command jurisdiction, if any, did the Reichsstatthalter have over you in the performance of your office as the Higher SS and Police Leader?

A The Reichsstatthalter could give me instructions concerning the police. You might say, for instance, that the police was to do a certain job. He could submit all complaints he might have about the police.

Q Under the word "Oberpraesident" is an arrow which comes to a bracket marked "Regierungspraesident", and under that is "Stabsoffizier" and some other words. What do these two mean?

A The Regierungspraesident--government president--was the chief officer of a government district, and the staff officer of the protective police and the staff officer of the rural police were responsible to him for the execution of police measures within their district.

Q This arrow which goes from the Befehlshaber up to the Kommandeur der Ordnungspolizei: What does that line indicate?

A That means that the commander of the regular police was under the Befehlshaber of the regular police and received his orders from him.

Q In other words, this man here, the commander of the ordnungs police; had to take orders from the Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei and the Reichsstatthalter; is that correct?

A Yes. And he was more particularly the liaison officer.

Q Now, the Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei had to take some instructions from you, according to that line. He also had to take instructions from General Wunnenberg, according to this line. He also had to take instructions from the Reichsstatthalter, who at the same time was a Gauleiter, indicated by this line. What happened in the event that three of these officers gave him contradictory orders?

A If contradictory orders had been received in one place, the Reichsfuehrer of the SS would have had to make a decision.

Q Assuming that the contradictory orders came down to here, to the Befehlshaber, what would he do about it?

A The orders from the Reichsstatthalter and from who?

Q And from you and from Wunnenberg.

A Well, at first, at least, the Befehlshaber of the regular police would have to follow me.

Q And what happened later on?

A Well, that is merely a theory. That never occurred. But I suppose I would have had to ask the Reichsfuehrer for a decision or the Gauleiter would have done that, who had a direct channel of command to the Reichsfuehrer, since he was also the Reich Minister of the Interior.

Q I call your attention to three arrows, one coming directly down from the Reichsverteidigungs Kommissar to this point, one coming from the Kommandeur der Ordnungspolizei to this point, and one coming down through the Oberpraesident, all pointing to a bracket including three rectangles, Landrate, Oberburgermeister, and Polizeipraesidenten. Will you please explain these three brackets to the court?

A These rectangles further on down represent the subordinate offices within the police sector.

Q Explain "Landrats".

A The chief officer of a Landkreis--country district--was a Landrats.

Q And who was the Oberburgermeister?

A The Oberburgermeister was a chief of a so-called Kreisfrein Stadt. That is a city which was not under the jurisdiction of any Kreis or district.

Q And the Polizeipraesidenten?

A There were police presidents or police directors in these towns which were in charge of an Oberbergmeister. Which it would be depended on the cities.

Q I call your attention to the arrow crossed in red, pointing from Kreisleiter to the three brackets, Landrats, etc. What does that arrow in red indicate?

A That is supposed to indicate that the same Personal Union as existed frequently in case of a Gauleiter could also exist there.

Q In other words --

A I wasn't finished yet. And, further, the arrow is supposed to indicate the pressure from the Party which the Kreisleiter would exert on the district, particularly on those offices.

Q In other words, where in some cases the Gauleiter also held other offices, as indicated above, the Kreisleiter, in addition to being Kreisleiter, could also be the Landrats or the Oberburgermeister or the Polizeipresidenten; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Underneath the Landrats you have a line "Gendarmerie Kreisfuehrer". What does that mean?

A Whereas in a city you would have a commanding officer of the protective police under the command of the police president--the police director--as the diagram indicates, you would have a district chief of a gendarmerie district--chief of the rural police--in country districts, who would be in charge of the rural police.

Q There is a line from Landrats to Burgermeister Gemeindepolizei. What does that mean?

A The Burgermeister in the small communities, in the small towns, was simultaneously the police authority, total police authority, together with the community police officials. Not state police officials, but community police officials.

Q This bracket "Gendarmerie Posten" -- What does that mean?

A That again was a state rural police man under the command of the Gendarmerie Kreisfuehrer -- rural police district.

Q Under the Kommandeur der Schupo you have two lines, one leading to the bracket Polizeireviere and another one to the Feuerschutzpolizei and Luftschutzpolizei. What does that indicate?

A That is the command responsibility of the commanding officers of the protective police in the bigger cities. These were the so-called Polizeireviere, police district, who were in charge of certain sectors of the town. The Feuerschutzpolizei, fire police, and Luftschutzpolizei, air raid/protection police, were similarly organized.

Q Will you explain once more the distinction between Gemeindepolizei, Gendarmerie, and Schutzpolizei?

A Yes. The Gendarmerie was the state police. The Schutzpolizei, protective police, was a city police, but also under the state supervision. And the Gemeindepolizei was a community police--the so-called community police.

Q I call your attention to the red arrow pointing from the Ortsgruppenleiter to the Burgermeister, another red arrow to the Gendarmerie Posten, another red arrow to the Polizeireviere, and ask you to explain the meaning of these three red arrows.

A These arrows are supposed to indicate that the Ortsgruppenleiter, being a political man who was around, had a very great influence on these other boxes--the town mayor, and the rural police stations, and the city police districts.

Q What do you mean by "very great influence"?

A Well, in every respect, because the Ortsgruppenleiter received their political instructions from the Party, and everything went on pretty well the way the Party wanted it to.

Q I call your attention to the fact that there is no channel between Himmler and Bormann, who was the head of the Party. Can you explain that?

A Well, that was probably ommitted intentionally. I don't suppose that this chart was made with the intent of representing the connections between Bormann and Himmler.

Q But, at any rate, Himmler, through the direct channel of command over Wunnenberg and through you, exercised control over the Ordnungspolizei; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And that same channel of command functioned over the fire police, the air police, and the water police; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And in addition to the command exercised by Himmler and Wunnenberg there was also a very direct chain of command over the Ordnungspolizei through the Gauleiter representing the Party; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q So that when you come down to the lower brackets you had individuals who took orders from the Party, from the heads of the Ordnungs police, and from Himmler directly; is that correct? By Himmler directly I mean through you.

A Yes.

Q Now let us turn our attention for a time over to this section of the chart. The first line we refer to is the direct chain of command from Himmler to Kaltenbrunner; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And under Kaltenbrunner there were some seven subdivisions. Will you tell the court what each one was?

A Well, I can do this only sketchily, and in order to have the security police explained to you I request you hear Colonel Prummler and Colonel Somann, who know this in every detail much better than I would.

Q Then I will ask you just one or two more questions. Under the bracket "Kaltenbrunner" is a line which leads to another bracket, to the words "Inspekteur der SIPO und SD". What office was this?

A This line is supposed to represent the chain of command from the Reich Main Security Office to this inspector, with the exception, as these many lines indicate, that some of the orders would circumvent this inspector.

Q Limiting ourselves to one question: This Inspekteur der SIPO und SD--according to the map, who was that man at the time?

A According to this chart, applicable until 1 September 1944, it was the SS Colonel Somann.

Q What was the territorial jurisdiction, according to this map, under the inspector's office?

A That was the area of the Gau Moselland and Hessen-Nassau, so that area did not coincide with the area of my command.

Q Was his area larger or smaller than yours?

A Smaller.

Q This was the situation, as you testified, up until the 1st of September, 1944; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Do you know when Somann first became inspector?

A I don't know when he first became inspector. I think it was in the beginning of 1943.

Q Can you tell the court when he ceased to be inspector?

A Towards the end of July 1944.

Q So that this map represents a period of time after Somann ceased to be inspector; is that correct?

A Well, the chart does include 1 September.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you read my question, please?

THE WITNESS: Yes. From the time when I left until 1 September.

Q There is a broken line between the bracket representing your name to the bracket of the inspector of the SIPO and SD. Will you explain that?

A I, as the Higher SS and Police Leader, was responsible for the internal security of my area, and the whole SS and the whole police, including the security police, would be under me if any internal disorders would break out. This broken line is to indicate that this chain of command between the Higher SS and Police Leader on one hand, and the inspector or commanding officer, security police, on the other hand, would exist only in such extraordinary circumstances; and, furthermore, if I may add, the inspector or the commanding officer, security police, were required to keep me informed, and that is the reason for this other broken line--the channel of information.

Q So that the police not only were subject to the orders of Himmler but were also subject to orders from the political leadership of the nation; is that correct?

A Yes, by way of the Reichsstatthalter.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: You may examine.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess for 30 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1500 hours court recessed until 1530 hours.)

(Whereupon court reconvened at 1930 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent sick, all of the accused, the reporter and the interpreter are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense requests permission to change the numbering of its first exhibit, which was introduced and marked in toto as Defense Exhibit Number 1. For the sake of easier examination I would like to offer this one sheet as Defense Exhibit 1, the next one as 1-A and the top sheet as 1-B.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No objection.

LAW MEMBER: Will you make that in the form of a motion?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes, sir, I will make it in the form of a motion.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Motion sustained.

(The documents referred to were marked Defense Exhibits 1-A and 1-B and received in evidence as Defense Exhibits 1-A and 1-B, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

JURGEN STROOP, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made an unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to ask a few more questions, may it please the court.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Some time in 1944, did Himmler become possessed of any command powers over the army or any portion of the army?

A Yes, he became the commander of the replacement army.

(Stroop-Direct)

Q What date was that?

A I can't recall the exact date but I think it was in July or August 1944.

Q Now, at the beginning of your testimony you said that Defense Exhibit 1, 1-A and 1-B, which together comprise the entire chart, was an accurate representation of the organisation of the Security Police and the Ordnungs Police, as well as an indication of the various chains of command. Is that a complete description?

A I said so, but two lines on this diagram are missing.

Q I call your attention to Defense Exhibit Number 2, which is an enlargement of Defense Exhibit Number 1 and ask you to point out on Defense Exhibit Number 2 just where these lines should be?

A One line is missing from the main office of the Order Police to the higher SS and police leader, to my office.

Q You say there is a line missing from the Hauptamt, the Order Police, to your office. What type of line?

A There should be a black line like this one here (indicating). Most of the orders came from the Reichsfuehrer SS to the main office of the Order Police and from the main office of the Order Police to the higher SS police. Special orders came directly.

Q In other words, the general chain of command for the ordinary orders from Himmler to you came through Wuennenberg. Is that what you mean to say?

A Yes.

Q Are there any other things missing?

A Yes, furthermore, there is missing a line for a channel of command from the Reich Security Main office to my office.

Q What kind of a line?

A There should be a line like this one here (indicating) which should indicate that for information the Reich Security Main Office sent printed matter and other matters to the higher SS office.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record indicate that the witness illustrates the type of line by pointing to a broken line which goes from "Streep" to a bracket including the word "Inspector."

THE WITNESS: A line from the Reich Security Main Office to the higher Security SS leader which should indicate that the Reich Security Main Office did give copies of information to higher SS police. I wish to stress the point in some cases, not all.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Is there anything else missing?

A In order to make the map still more complete, a line could have been shown from the "Personal-Union Des Gauleiters", black-red, like this one here (indicating), from the "Personal-Union Des Gauleiters" over to me, since the Gauleiters in Personal-Union could give me orders too. If I am allowed to say so, I would like to bring to your attention furthermore that here is the pressure of the Party. I want to say that the Party was the State and the State was the Party. You might say the Party had the spiritual leadership of the State, starting from Adolf Hitler as leader of the Party and the highest authority of the State, over Bormann, gauleiter and kreisleiter.

Q Were there ever times when there was a question in your mind or the minds of your associates as to just what the channels of command were?

A Yes, sometimes there were doubts, especially for this reason: That the position of the higher SS and police leader had not been legally determined. I know definitely that the Reichsfuehrer SS did not establish a legal basis for the higher SS and police leader because he wanted this position to develop by itself and possibly he intended to use the experiences gained this way later on to establish a basis for this position. In his opinion, the main job of the higher SS and police leader in the beginning was to keep up the liaison between the Fuehrer and to coordinate police measures.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: You may inquire.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANC :

Q Stroop, who made the chart which has been introduced as Defense Exhibit 1 and Defense Exhibit 2?

A This map was worked out by several of us in meetings which we had with Colonel Berman.

Q Who furnished the information for this chart?

A It was like this: For the center part and for the part about the Order Police, I was mainly responsible and for the part of the right, that means Security Police and Security Service, the inspector of the Security Police was the responsible man.

Q You mean Bomann and Trumpler?

A Yes.

Q During direct examination you were asked what the block "Werwolf" meant and you said that pertained to Werwolf matters. Will you tell the court what Werwolf matters were in your command?

A The purpose of the Werwolf was to interrupt enemy supply lines and to furnish information from the areas which were occupied by the enemy.

Q Who was your officer in charge of this Werwolf?

A In my area, Major Best.

Q Didn't Captain Gunther precede him?

A Before Best, yes.

Q Did you relieve Gunther and put Major Best in command?

A You can't put it this way. Captain Gunther was not relieved, but General Pruetzmann asked me whether I would not like to have Major Best for this job. When Best arrived it wasn't necessary for Gunther any more to be occupied in this matter.

Q Now, General Stroop, I am going to show you an organisational chart of the police and ask you who made this chart?

A As the signature says, I did.

Q Now, the large wall chart which was introduced by the prosecution is Prosecution Exhibit 14. Is that chart similar to the chart which you prepared?

A Yes, -- what do you mean by similar? I can't say offhand; I can't check it right away.

Q I will ask you, is there anything wrong with the chart Prosecution Exhibit 14?

A No, nothing is wrong, but it is incomplete.

Q In other words, the chart, Defense Exhibit Number 2, just goes more in detail than Prosecution Exhibit Number 14, is that correct?

A It goes more into detail too but I can't say, especially in regard to the Security Police whether it is correct.

Q Now, Colonel Berman asked you about conflicting orders that may come from various sources and I believe you stated there were no conflicting orders, is that correct?

A Oh, yes, about the question who has to make the decision?

Q Yes.

A Yes, -- I don't remember that such decision had ever to be called for.

Q All of these various headquarters were in accord and in harmony about these orders, were they not?

A May I ask which officers?

Q Himmler, yourself, Kaltenbrunner, Juennenberg, Somann and Brunnler?

A I can't answer this question because I don't know. Sometimes one found out that it was not the case.

Q Could you explain to me again what the dotted line means running from your name over to Somann's name on the chart?

A That broken line has to indicate an extraordinary channel of command.

Q What do you mean by "extraordinary"?

A That only in special cases the Security Police was absolutely under orders of the higher SS and police leader, that means only in case of emergency.

Q When did the first emergency occur when you took command?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. I submit I have not said anything so far ---- the prosecution has already gone far beyond my line of direct examination of this man. I object. He is going too far.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: Such an emergency did not happen.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN YARC:

Q When the allied fliers began to bomb Germany, that was not such an emergency that you would take over command; is that what you meant

A No.

Q You tell the court that you never did take command of the Security Police, is that right?

A No, -- yes, I want to say that.

(Stroop-Cross)

Q I believe you testified that Colonel Somann left the Security Police in July, 1944, is that right?

A Yes, he was transferred from Wiesbaden.

Q Were you his commanding officer?

A No, his immediate superior was the Reich Security Main Office.

Q Who took command after he left?

A In between, Lieutenant Colonel Wiebens.

Q How long did he stay there?

A He stayed there until Colonel Trumpler arrived.

Q Were you Wiebens' commanding officer?

A No, Wiebens was a leader of the Security Service.

Q When did Trumpler take over command?

A I think on the 1st of September.

Q Were you his commanding officer?

A No.

Q Did Somann and Trumpler occupy the same position at different times?

A No, Somann was inspector of a smaller area and Colonel Trumpler came there as commander with greater authority and different orders.

Q In other words, Trumpler had a larger jurisdiction than Somann had?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q I call your attention to Prosecution Exhibit 14, and particularly that portion of it which shows the Gauleiters Burkel, Sprenger and Simon. Is this description of the position of the gauleiters as it appears on Prosecution Exhibit 14 the correct description of their powers and authority, or is that one as shown on Defense Exhibit 1 the correct portrayal?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I am going to object on the ground that he is going to impeach his own witness. His own witness has said he supplied the information which made this chart. If he wants to impeach his own witness, I have no objection.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He said it was made in part on his information, if I am not mistaken.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will withdraw the question.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Prosecution Exhibit 14 -- was that prepared entirely by you?

A As it is over there, no.

Q Under what circumstances did you participate in its preparation?

A I was in the prison in Wiesbaden and there the first lieutenant -- I think his name was Hodges -- came and asked me I should draw a sketch to indicate approximately how my office was organized. They had all the names and all the offices of the officers and all the names, but if they would discuss this case now, they couldn't get any clear picture of it. Sometimes they saw this man belonged on the chart and then he wasn't there, etc., and for this reason they asked me to draw up a chart. And then I drew up a chart on the cover of a file, especially the part in the center, but not the part about the Security Police.

Q This plan, this Defense Exhibit 2, was prepared under what circumstances?

A Probably the same reasons existed to make up this chart, and especially for the reason because such a clear picture did not exist before, because this other chart is still full of doubts.

Q And by "full of doubts" which one are you referring to?

A If I say that plan leaves doubts, though, I am referring to the one on the left which is incomplete.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Indicating Prosecution Exhibit 14.

Nothing further.

CAPTAIN WALCH: Nothing further.

THE COURT: No questions by the court.

(Whereupon the accused Stroop resumed his seat in the dock.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Defense calls as its next witness Otto Sommann.

OTTO SOMMANN, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Your full name is Otto Sommann?

A Yes.

Q And you are an accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q Sometime during the year 1944, were you an inspector of the SIPO and SD?

A Yes, from January, 1943, until the 28th of July, 1944.

Q I now call your attention to the righthand section of Defense Exhibit 2, that part of it immediately under the word Reichssicherheits-hauptamt. What was the Reichssicherheitshauptamt?

A The Reichssicherheitshauptamt was the Reich Main Security Office, was the Security Police and the Security Service together combined.

Ps 114-ps-60-6/7-3

Q What made up the Security Police?

A The Security Police consisted of the Gestapo, the secret state police, and the Criminal Police.

Q And what is the familiar abbreviation for Criminal Police?

A Kripo.

Q Who was the commanding officer of the Reichssicherheitshauptamt Police and the SD?

A Dr. Kaltenbrunner.

Q These seven subdivisions of the Reichssicherheitshauptamt -- what do they represent?

A That was the subdivision of the Reich Security Main Office in seven departments.

Q What was the first one?

A Office No. 1 was the Personal Office.

Q What was its function?

A Through this office all personal matters of the Security Police and the Security Service came through.

Q Now, Amt No. 2. What was that?

A Department No. 2 was economics and administration.

Q And No. 3?

A No. 3 was Security Service.

Q The SD?

A Security Service.

Q And the abbreviation for that was SD?

A SD.

Q No. 4 was what?

A No. 4 was the department Gestapo.

Q No. 5?

A No. 5 was the department Kripo.

Q In other words, the Criminal Police?

A Yes.

Q No. 6?

A No. 6 was defense.

Q Just exactly what did that include?

A The counter intelligence and the foreign information.

Q And No. 7?

A No. 7 was the department to make use of all the information available in the Reich Security Main Office.

Q Now, coming down to this bracket, "Inspekteur der SIPO u.a.SD," what was that office?

A The job of the inspector of the Security Police was to be a liaison officer first to the Higher SS and police leaders; second, ——

Q Wait a minute. Who was that?

INTERPRETER: I did not translate the whole answer.

A (Cont'd) First, to the higher SS and police leaders; second, to the gauleiters; third, to the commanding general of the army in this district; fourth, to supervise activities of the Security Police in the district.

Q And when you say that you were the liaison between higher SS and police leaders, do you mean between this bracket with the name "Stroop" in it and yourself?

A Yes.

Q The second one was between whom?

A Liaison to the gauleiters.

Q All right. Go ahead. The third one was what?

A And the third one was the liaison to the commanding general.

Q Who were the parties in addition to the commanding general between whom you acted as liaison officer?

A And the chief of the Security Police.

Q By that, you mean between the army and Kaltenbrunner?

A No, only for the district between the general command Wiesbaden.

Q Now, I call your attention to this bracket under Amt 1 and 2, with a straight line coming down to the bracket containing your name. What does that straight line indicate?

A There was a direct channel of command from the department 1 and 2 to the inspector.

Q I call your attention to this broken bracket which embraces 3, 4, and 5. What does this broken bracket mean, with the broken line coming down to you?

A That was the chain of command for special orders -- you could better say for orders of fundamental importance.

Q I direct your attention to the brackets Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt directly under the bracket containing your name. What do they indicate?

A In these three cities there were headquarters of the State Police, Criminal Police and the Security Service.

Q Were these the three main subdivisions for these three organisations within the territory under your jurisdiction?

A Yes.

Q Underneath each of the three, Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, the words "Stapo," "Kripo" and "SD" -- what do they mean?

A These were the offices of the State Police, Criminal Police and SD for a certain definite area.

Q So that in each of these cities representing an area, there were independent offices of the STAPO, the KRIPO and the SD, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q These Aussendienststellens which appear underneath the three cities -- what do they mean?

A These offices were branch offices under the main offices at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt.

Q In each of these Aussendienststellens, these branch offices, did they have offices of the STAPO, the KRIPO and the SD?

A Yes.

Q I call your attention to this broken black line between the SD, between Amt No. 3 which is the SD in Kaltenbrunner's office with the SD under Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt and ask you what that indicates?

A That was a direct channel of command from the department No. 3 Security Service to the Security Service offices at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, without coming through my office.

Q What would be the chain of command for the subdivisions of each?

A This all was forwarded from the Main Office, Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, to the branch offices.

Q I call your attention to the bracket indicated in red underneath 4 and 5 and the black line with the red dots on the side going down to STAPO and KRIPO under each, Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, and ask you what that means?

A The black and red line from department 4 and department 5 indicates the direct channel of command in matters to the offices of the Criminal Police and the State Police at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt respectively.

Q So that from the headquarters of the SD, the normal channel of command to its offices in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt was a direct line bypassing your office, is that a correct statement of what you said?

A Yes.

Q And through Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt gave their orders to the substations in the other communities?

A Yes.

Q Then the STAPO and the KRIPO, the Criminal Police and the State

Police, I understand you to say, also had a direct chain of command to the STAPO and Criminal Police in these three cities, bypassing your office, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Which was the channel of command normally used?

A The ordinary channel of command was a channel of command right from the departments at the Reich Security Main Office to the offices at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt.

Q I direct your attention to the line, the broken line, from Amt No. 6 to Kommando - Meldegebiet? What does that mean?

A On 20 July 1944, after the attempt at Hitler's life, the counter-espionage offices were put under the jurisdiction, authority, of the Reich Security Main Office, Department 6. These offices received the new name Kommando - Meldegebiet, and this black interrupted line was a direct channel of command from department 6 to Kommando - Meldegebiet.

Q By "broken black line," you mean this line here? (indicating)

A Yes.

Q What is this line that goes from the Kommando - Meldegebiet back up here with the arrow pointing towards you?

A The chief of the Kommando - Meldegebiet had the order to give information from time to time to the inspector or the commander of the Security Police.

Q Now, coming back to Amt 1 and 2, then was the direct chain of command through the inspector? Where did that chain of command go to from your office down?

A This channel of command went from my office then to the offices of the STAPO, KRIPO and SD at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt.

Q So that the normal direct channel of command for orders issuing from 1 and 2 to STAPO, KRIPO and SD at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt was through your office?

Ta 124-ps-80-2/7-8

A Yes.

Q And when this Kommando - Heldengebiet was established, orders from 1 and 2 never went through you after that, is that correct?

A No.

Q And orders from No. 7 — did they ever go through the office of the inspector?

A No.

Q I will call your attention to the square with the black and red line "Gauleiter" with the red arrow pointing in the direction of your name. What does that indicate?

A I was inspector. That means I was a liaison officer to two gauleiters in my area; that is, Gau Moselland and Gau Hessen-Nassau.

Q In other words, your area included two of the gaus under General Stroop, but not the Gau Westmark that was under General Stroop, is that right?

A Yes.

Q What was the relationship which existed between yourself and the gauleiters?

A The Party, under the leadership of the gauleiters, tried to gain influence in the work of the Security Police and tried to use its influence by making requests to the various offices.

End ta 124
IB fols

Q Now, I call your attention to the other red arrow, the one marked "Parteidruck" and the one "Parteidruck" down here, "Kreisleiter" and "Ortsgruppenleiter". What do those four things indicate on that sheet?

A That should indicate that the pressure of the Kreisleiter and Ortsgruppenleiter in their respective areas was very strong. These Kreisleiters and Ortsgruppenleiters had various requests and they tried to use pressure in order that the officers of the Security Police should follow their requests. If any differences of opinion arose, it was my job to straighten out these differences.

Q What was your title?

A Inspector of the Security Police and the Security Service.

Q Now you testified before that part of your duties was to act as Liaison Officer between four separate groups and organizations. What other duties, if any, did you have?

A My job was the supervision of the entire organisation of the Security Police and the Security Service.

Q How was that duty of supervision exercised?

A Either by visiting the various offices from time to time and also by calling the heads of the various offices to my office for conferences.

Q What command authority did you have over the Gestapo in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt? When I say "you", I mean the office of Inspector.

A It was my duty to pass on to the various heads of the offices the orders of fundamental importance which came to me. I only could pass on the orders which I received from the Department of the Reich Security Main Office--had neither the right now the possibility to give them any orders of my own.

Q What authority did you have to enforce obedience by the heads of the Gestapo in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, of orders which they received either direct or through you?

A Whenever it came to my knowledge that an order had not been executed, I made a report to the Reich Security Main Office, and this office would take care of the matter.

Q If it came to your knowledge that an order from Amt III, the SD, came to Frankfurt directly through you and was not obeyed, in addition to making a report to the Amt III under Kaltenbrunner, could you force by any means the leader of the SD in Frankfurt to obey that order?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object. The question is leading--he is putting words in the mouth of the witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will withdraw it.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What authority did you have to enforce orders issued from the Amt III under Kaltenbrunner by the SD in either Frankfurt, Koblenz or Darmstadt? What could you do in addition to reporting the matter to higher authority?

A No.

(Somann-Direct)

of the offices the orders of fundamental importance which came to me. I only could pass on the orders which I received from the Department of the Reich Security Main Office--had neither the right now the possibility to give them any orders of my own.

Q What authority did you have to enforce obedience by the heads of the Gestapo in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, of orders which they received either direct or through you?

A Whenever it came to my knowledge that an order had not been executed, I made a report to the Reich Security Main Office, and this office would take care of the matter.

Q If it came to your knowledge that an order from Amt III, the SD, came to Frankfurt directly through you and was not obeyed, in addition to making a report to the Amt III under Kaltenbrunner, could you force by any means the leader of the SD in Frankfurt to obey that order?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object. The question is leading--he is putting words in the mouth of the witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will withdraw it.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What authority did you have to enforce orders issued from the Amt III under Kaltenbrunner by the SD in either Frankfurt, Koblenz or Darmstadt? What could you do in addition to reporting the matter to higher authority?

A No.

Q What could you do if it came to your knowledge that an order issued from Amt IV, the Gestapo, either directly to the Gestapo in Frankfurt, Koblenz or Darmstadt, or through you, had been disobeyed? What could you do about enforcing that order?

A I had to make a report to the Reich Security Main Office, and I had to make a complaint about the man in charge of this particular office.

Q In addition to making a report that the Gestapo head in Koblenz had failed to obey the order which came from Amt IV, what else could you do about that disobedience?

A I could punish him with small fines, as a matter of discipline. In a case of greater importance, an investigation was started through the Reich Security Main Office.

Q Now, in the event it came to your knowledge that the leader of the Kripo in these three cities had failed to obey an order issued by Amt V, Kripo in Kaltenbrunner's office, through you, what could you do to enforce the Kripo in these three cities to carry out that order?

A I only could make a complaint to the Chief of the Reich Security Main Office.

Q So that as I understand it, your command authority over the Gestapo, the Kripo, and the SD, throughout your entire area was limited to matters emanating from Amt I and Amt II?

A Yes.

Q And if I understand you correctly, correct me if I am wrong, your authority over the Gestapo, the Kripo and the SD throughout your area to enforce obedience to orders was limited almost entirely, with one single exception, to reporting that disobedience to higher authority under Kaltenbrunner.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object--the question is leading.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I asked him whether my assumption was correct, I pray the Court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q For what period of time were you stationed in Wiesbaden, Germany?

A 30 January 1943 until 28 July 1944.

Q And what was your rank or title?

A At the end, SS Colonel and Colonel of the Police.

Q When did you become an SS Colonel?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Now, I stated, if I remember correctly, that I was putting Stroop, Trumpler and Somann on the stand for the sole purpose of identifying the chart and explaining it. That's the only thing I asked him about on direct examination, and if I did anything more than that I don't recall it.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If you did, I didn't hear you as to this man. You did as to Stroop.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: All right, then, I think you are going far beyond the limits of my direct examination. I object, and furthermore, I would like to say that I haven't offered any evidence as yet as to the ten charges. I haven't touched the ten charges.

Tr 125, 2/7/47, 1db-5

PRESIDENT: Did you object?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Yes, sir.

LAW MEMBER: What is your question again?

CAPTAIN VANCE: How long he had been a Colonel and when he became one. That's cross examination of an accused.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I know, but it has to be limited to the direct examination. If I ask him one question about a charge, that entire charge is open, but I have not touched a charge.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

WITNESS: Since January 1941.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q And how long have you been with the Police forces of Germany?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object, may it please the Court. I am sorry; I am going to be compelled to object to every single question.

PRESIDENT: Objection is overruled.

WITNESS: Since I came to Wiesbaden, January, 1945.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order. The Court will recess until Monday morning at nine o'clock.

(Whereupon at 1645 hours the Court recessed.)

(Thereupon at 1015 hours the court reconvened.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court and all members of the prosecution and defense except Dr. Trost who is absent sick; all of the accused except the accused number 13, Bernhard Fay are present. Bernhard Fay, accused number 13 is absent sick. The reporter and interpreter are present.

May it please the court there is a new reporter to be sworn. Mr. Peter L. Di Curti.

(Thereupon, Peter L. Di Curti, U. S. Civilian, was sworn as reporter.)

PRESIDENT: The court, at this time, advises both counsel for defense and the prosecution that it will be guided by the following rule in this case:

The rule limiting cross examination to matters brought out on direct examination is inapplicable when an accused is the witness. He may be cross examined as to the whole case and any matters relevant to the charges against him or having a legitimate bearing on his guilt or innocence.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense, on behalf of each of the accused takes exception to the ruling.

CAPTAIN VINCH: If it please the court, at the last session of the court the accused Somann was on the stand being cross examined by the prosecution. We request that he be returned.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I understand that that rule takes effect immediately.

PRESIDENT: That is right.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I'd like a recess in place for two minutes to consult with my associates.

PRESIDENT: The court will take a recess in place.

(Thereupon the court recessed in place.)

(Thereupon the court reconvened.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that the accused May, number 18, has resumed his place in the dock.

OITO KOMATSU, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN YANDA:

Q Colonel Sokuki furnished the information for the preparation of the affidavit which has been introduced as evidence as Defendants Exhibits one and two?

A I decline to answer this question.

CAPTAIN YANDA: If it please the court, he was asked that question on direct examination.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like, if we could, to shorten this thing which really begins to disturb me a great deal, he is refusing to answer every question on my instructions. That is a perfectly fair question to ask him. Rather than object to me but not object to the other I have issued a blanket order to answer nothing, and he is going to do that to every question that is asked until I put him back on the stand. I would like to agree on something rather than have the prosecution ask the same of a lengthy series of questions to which the answer will be the same, if there is such a way.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the order should show what specific records the accused refuses to answer.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask the court's judgment. There ought to be some comity about this business, particularly as I discussed the matter with some members of the prosecution.

PRESIDENT: The court will take a recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

CROSS EXAMINATION, continued

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Colonel Somann, calling your attention to the part of the chart which pertains to Security Police, Kaltenbrunner down; who furnished the information for the preparation of that part of the chart?

A I decline to answer this question too.

Q Now on this chart, the personnel section, Amt land Amt 2, which you testified was supplied--that line in command goes direct to you does it not?

A I decline to answer this question too.

Q You drew that line on this chart, did you not?

A I decline to answer this question too.

Q I notice that the other section from Kaltenbrunner's office which is marked SD, Gestapo or Kripo, as a direct chain skips your headquarters and goes down to the headquarters at Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt. I will ask you if you didn't draw that line and furnish that information yourself?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Tell the court what is meant by the line going from SD to Gestapo and Kripo, the line with the jagged teeth on it which goes down to your headquarters.

A I decline to answer this question.

Q By your preparation of this chart you show that you had no connection with the SD, Gestapo and Kripo, is that correct?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q I believe on direct examination you described your position as inspector of the Sipo and SD, is that correct?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Tell the court, exactly, what your duties were as inspector of the Sipo and SD.

A I decline to answer this question.

(Somann-cross)

Q Do you know, or I should say did you know one Heinrich Himmler?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Did you know the high SS police leader General Stroop back in 1941?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Did you know the head of the security police, one Dr. Kaltenbrunner?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Did you know the chief of the ordnance police, one General Wunnenberg?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q An inspector of the security police in Rhein-Westmark area from whom did you receive your orders?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q And to whom did you pass the orders that you received from that source?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q You did pass on those orders which you received from higher headquarters with instructions to pass them on to lower headquarters?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q On your direct examination last Friday you testified in reference to the party putting certain pressure on members of the police. I will ask you if it wasn't also the duty of the police, particularly the Gestapo, to put pressure on the party?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Last Friday, on direct examination, you testified that orders had come from the SD branch of Kaltenbrunner's office down the line to the SD in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt, and that if orders were disobeyed that you would report that fact. To whom would you make that report?

A I decline to answer this question.

Q How would you know of such violations on behalf of the Gestapo and the SD?

A I decline to answer this question.

(Sommer-cross)

If the various officials in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt were not carrying out the orders that came down from Kaltenbrunner, how would you know that they were not carrying them out unless those orders had passed through your headquarters?

A I decline to answer this question.

PRESIDENT: The court will be closed.

(Thereupon at 1010 hours the court was closed.)

(Whereupon the court was opened at 1060 hours)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost who is absent sick; all the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

PRESIDENT: Proceed with the question.

OTTO OHLENDORF, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VARCA:

Q Mr. Ohlendorf, will you explain to the court what was the connection between General Streep's office of the Higher Police and your office as Inspector of the Sipo and SD?

A On orders of the defense I am declining the answer to this question, too.

Q How many times during the period you were Inspector of the Security Police in Wiesbaden did you attend conferences with General Streep.

A I decline to answer this question, too.

Q How many times during the same period were you in conferences with Mr. Kaltenbrunner?

A I decline to answer that question, too.

Q During this period of time you were Inspector of the Security Police, how often did you have conferences with the chiefs of Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment to the question because there are any number of chiefs in all three of these places.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I will amend my question.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q With the chiefs of the SD in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt.

A I decline to answer this question.

Q During the period of time you were Inspector, how many conferences did you have with the chiefs of the Gestapo in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt?

A I decline to answer the question.

Q Now, Colonel Semmann, it is a fact that when you did have those conferences with the Gestapo chiefs in Frankfurt, Koblenz and Darmstadt you discussed the treatment being given to allied fliers, that is right, isn't it?

A I decline to answer that question, too.

Q And you issued orders that those fliers would be shot, didn't you?

A I decline to answer the question.

Q You don't deny that, do you?

CHIEF COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgement. I think that goes far beyond the limits of any decent cross examination.

CAPTAIN VANCE: We will agree this is unusual cross examination without any answers.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object to the question independently of what this witness will do about the answer.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Repeat the question, please.

(Thereupon the reporter read the last question.)

THE WITNESS: I decline to answer the question.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q When did you cease to be Inspector of the Security Police of Rhein-Westmark?

(Semmann-cross)

police including the channels of command. It also includes the party pressure of the various party officers indicated here--pressure upon the police.

Q That chart was prepared where and by whom?

A It was prepared by the defense in conjunction with the accused.

Q I call your attention to the right hand side of Defense Exhibit A, that section under the word Kaltenbrunner. What is that?

A That is the Reich Main Security office, the highest headquarters of the security police and the SD and the German Reich.

Q What does the whole part of the paper under Karltenbrunner show?

A It shows the organization of the Reich main security office and also the organization under the inspector of the security police and the security service in Wehrkreis Number 12.

Q I now call yourattention to Defense Exhibit Number 2--this big chart (Indicating)--and ask you if you recognise that? If so what is it?

A That is the same drawing that I have in my hands here.

Q You mean the drawing without those two sheets?

A Without those two sheets.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: For the record the witness is referring only to Defense Exhibit Number 1.

Q I call your attention to this date that appears on the top here (Indicating)--September 1, 1944. What is the significance, if any, of that date?

A On 1 September, 1944 I was officially appointed inspector of the security police and the SD in Rhein-Westmark, but I only opened my office and actually started working in the capacity in Wiesbaden on 20 September, 1944.

Q What was the title of the office to which you were assigned on September 1, 1944?

A The Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei, the SD Rhein-Westmark.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: What is the translation of Befehlshaber?

INTERPRETER: Commanding officer.

(Trummler-direct)

Q Wh t was the territory of which you were the commanding officer at the time you first took command?

A My area was the same area as the area of command of the high SS and police leader General Stroop.

Q Who was your predecessor in office?

A It was the SS colonel and colonel Somann, and the SS brigadier and Brigadier General of the Police Dunkern.

Q What w s the territory under Somann's jurisdiction, if you know?

A My comrade Somann had under his command the area Hessen Nassau and Moselland.

Q What territory was under your command?

A In addition to these the Gau Westmark and that part of Lorraine which was not occupied by the enemy yet.

Q When was the change in territorial command made?

A At the time of my arrival. At the time of my assumption of office. At the time I took office SS Brigadier General Dunkern became the police president of Metz and SS Colonel Somann was transferred to Berlin and took charge of the border duty command.

Q Do you know when Somann left Rhein-Westmark?

A That must have been about July.

Q Do you know who exercised the command of jurisdiction between Somann's departure and your arrival?

A The chief of the SD District Koblenz, SS Lieutenant Colonel Wibens was at that time in charge.

Q Now sometime in September, 1944 was there any change made in the organizational setup and chane of command of the security police in the SS in the territory under your jurisdiction?

A In the first place, as I have already stated, I got the additional Gau of Westmark and part of Lorraine and furthermore my headquarters was organized according to knew policies which I had received from Dr. Kaltenbrunner.

(Trummler-direct)

Q Was the new situation with respect to your headquarters illustrated by any portion of Defense Exhibit 1, 1-A or 1-B?

A Yes.

Q By which part is this change indicated? Between which of the three? Will you point to the part which illustrates the change first?

A Here (Indicating).

DEFENSE COUNSEL: He calls it 1-B, but the actual marking is 1-A. Will you read what it says down there?

A 1-A.

Q Is it the sheet marked 1-A which shows the first changes in your headquarters?

A Yes.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess until 3:

(Thereupon at 11:55 hours the court recessed.)

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1530 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost who is absent sick; all the accused; the reporter and interpreter, are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Before the recess there was some question about the translation of the word "Standgericht" and the interpreter has a dual translation he wishes to present to the court.

THE INTERPRETER: According to the military dictionary of the War Department dated 20 May 1944, Standgericht is a summary court-martial but according to other dictionaries it is translated as a "drum head" court-martial or regimental court-martial.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think you also said, may it please the court, that these dictionaries were commercial dictionaries?

THE INTERPRETER: Commercial dictionaries.

HANS TRUMMLER, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following unsworn statement through an interpreter, as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (continued)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Before the recess, Trummler, I asked you what changes were indicated between Defense Exhibit 1, the righthand side of the page under the word "Kaltenbrunner" and Defense Exhibit 1 A, and I think you mentioned that one change which had taken place was the fact that you acquired a larger territory in your command than Zoellner had?

A Yes.

Q I call your attention to this addition over Defense Exhibit 1 and ask you what that is, if you know?

A What do you mean by that?

(Trummler-direct)

Q What does it represent?

A That map shows the channels of command, the organisation in my area, until approximately 31 December 1944. At top of this map it says "from January 1945". This is a mistake, it should say "until 31 December 1944" but otherwise this map over there is in accordance with the map which I am holding in my hands.

Q In accordance with what part of what you are holding in your hands?

A 1 A.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should have had you mark that for identification as Defense Exhibit 2 A.

(The document referred to was marked Defense Exhibit 2 A for identification.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I ask that it be received in evidence as a larger reproduction of Defense Exhibit 1 A and marked Defense Exhibit 2 A.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

PRESIDENT: It will be received in evidence as Defense Exhibit 2 A and made a part of the record.

(The document heretofore marked Defense Exhibit 2 A for identification was received in evidence as Defense Exhibit 2 A, and made a part of the record.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I should like to ask permission to have it withdrawn at the conclusion of the trial.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted to withdraw it at the end of the trial.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Calling your attention to Exhibit 1 A, what date is indicated there?

A Until 31 December 1944.

Q That should have been the date of the map (indicating), is that correct?

A Yes, this date here should be up there on the map.

Q Which date, sir, do you mean?

A I am referring to the date "until 31 December 1 '4".

Q In addition to the changes in territory what other changes are indicated between the situation as shown on 1 A and 2 A and the situation as shown on the righthand side of 1 under Kaltenbrunner and the righthand side of No. 2 under Kaltenbrunner.

A First of all my headquarters was reorganized in accordance with new orders received from Dr. Kaltenbrunner, because the duties and powers of a commander of the Security Police and the Security Service were other and larger ones than the ones occupied by an Inspector of the Security Police and Security Service. In accordance with these orders my headquarters as mentioned has to be organized. While the Inspector of the Security Service and Security Police had only three departments, the Personal Assistant had the Personal Adjutant, Department 1 and Department 2. The Commander of the Security Police, in addition to these departments, had Departments 3 up to 6.

Q Just a second. You say that under the Inspector there were just those three departments, Personal, 1 and 2?

A Yes.

Q And you reorganized them to include, in addition, 3, 4, 5, and 6?

A Yes, that was in accordance with the organization of all staffs for the commanders of the Security Police.

Q At one time you were talking about an Inspector, another time you were talking about Befehlshaber. What is the difference?

A The Inspector, in general, had only rights of inspection. The Befehlshaber had also the right to have his hands in technical matters.

(Translator-Grant)

Q Which was Seemann?

A Seemann was inspector.

Q What were you?

A I was Befehlshaber, commander.

Q Do you know when that change was made?

A This change was ordered on the 1st of September 1944 but was put into effect only after my arrival at Wiesbaden on the 20th of September 1944.

Q Any other changes indicated on 1 A and 2 A?

A In view of the events my relationship to the Higher SS and Police Leader was a different one than the one of my comrade, Seemann. In the beginning, the Inspector and the commander of the Security Police were supposed to be only liaison officers to the Higher SS and Police Leader. That means that in general the orders came only from Dr. Kaltenbrunner, the Reich Security Main Office, so that the Higher SS and Police Leader gave direct orders only in very few cases. For instance, only in very fundamental matters which were of importance for the entire SS and Police force. When I arrived at the Service Command XII, this Service Command had become, in the meantime, near-front area. For this reason the so-called emergency case came into existence. In this case the responsibilities and the rights of the Higher SS and Police Leader became much larger. Under these conditions the Higher SS and Police Leader gave orders to me on several occasions.

Q Let me interrupt you just a second. At the time we are talking about now, when you had all these sections, what changes were made in the channels of command from the way they existed under Seemann, if there were any?

A In this case I prefer to give you a short description of my duties as the commander. This way you will get a better picture.

(Trummler-direct)

Q We will come to that. For the time being I want to stick to the chart -- we are explaining the chart. So far as the chart is concerned, the channels of command between 4, 5 and 6, the Gestapo, Orpo and Abwehr, as indicated, are the same, is that correct?

A The channels in general are the same.

Q And the same thing is true of the SD?

A Yes.

Q Now, were there any subsequent changes in the organizational setup in the chain of command made after January 1945?

A The beginning of January 1945 fundamental changes took place in the organization as well as the channels of command.

Q Are these fundamental changes indicated anywhere in the defense exhibits?

A On this page here (indicating).

Q How is that page marked?

A 1 b.

Q That date up there which is January 1945 you say should be December 31, 1944?

A Yes.

Q I call your attention to this sheet I have just let down and ask you if that is a reproduction of Defense Exhibit 1 B?

A Yes, it is an exact reproduction of 1 B.

MR. COUNSEL: I should have had it marked Defense Exhibit 2 B for identification.

(The document referred to was marked Defense Exhibit 2 B for identification.)

MR. COUNSEL: I ask that it be received in evidence and marked Defense Exhibit 2 B with the right to withdraw it at the end of the trial.

(Trumbler-direct.

PROSECUTION: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Defense Exhibit 2 B will be received in evidence and made a part of the record and permission is granted to withdraw it at the end of the trial.

((The document heretofore marked Defense Exhibit 2 B for identification was received in evidence as Defense Exhibit 2 B, and made a part of the record.)

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Will you explain to the court the differences in command responsibilities and organisational setup which took place in the Security Police, the SD, as shown in Defense Exhibits 1 B and 2 B?

A Yes. The organisation as shown on 1 B was the organisation which was intended to be used in peacetimes. I should like to point out that it was not possible to carry through this reorganisation entirely on account of the war events. The first difference with the organisation as it existed under the inspector and the organisation up to 31 December 1944 was that all orders and all written correspondence of the Departments 1 to 5 of the Security Main Office went through the command of the Security Police to the other headquarters with the exception of Department 6 which gave its orders directly to the headquarters at Wiesbaden of the Commando Meldegebie. There are no changes in Department 7 because Department 7 did not give any orders to the other offices anyway. The second change which started at the beginning of January 1945 was the combining of the Gestapo and Criminal Police, Cripo, and the so-called Security Police, in each Gau under one commander of the Security Police. That worked out like this -- the headquarters of the Gestapo and Cripo were now combined as far as orders were concerned as well as for their location and for this reason they had one office in each locality. The three SD sections, Koblenz, Frankfurt and Saarbrucken, remained in the same organisational setup as before since they were not really State police organizations but were Security offices. Provisions were made to put the [illegible] under the authority of the Commanders of the Security Police. There are three more important changes which took effect at the beginning of January 1945. Furthermore, there was one more change which affected me personally as the Commander Befehlshaber. From the Chief of the Security Police, from Dr. Kaltenbrunner, I received the right of better, all the rights to keep up the work and enforce the orders for all offices under my jurisdiction. This enlargement of my rights was a result of the special emergency which existed in the Service Command Ost and was created through the advance of the enemy and the air warfare.

Q By the word "rights" do you mean privileges or orders and responsibilities?

A I understand under this the following -- first I received the right to deal out punishment, if necessary even the death penalty. Second, I received the right to establish subordinate headquarters and to transfer same from one place to another without the consent of the Reich Security Main Office, and third, I received the right, without consent of the Reich Security Main Office, to transfer civil service employees of all branches of the police forces under my jurisdiction, from one department to another. Furthermore, I had the right to transfer some branch offices to other headquarters. That means to headquarters to which they really did not belong. In other words, I got all the rights necessary to keep up the work of the Security Police and the Security Service in this emergency area and I made use of these rights and duties in accordance with my best conscience.

DR. PFAU (Counsel): May I ask the interpreter through the court whether that interpretation of the word "right" should not better be the word "authority".

THE INTERPRETER: I will change it to authority. "I got the duties and with the duties I got the authority."

(Pummler-direct)

A I decline to answer this question.

Q Were any allied fliers executed in your jurisdiction during the time that you inspected the Security Police for the Rhein-Westmark area?

A I decline to answer the question.

Q You don't deny that, do you?

A I decline to answer the question.

Q During the time you were Inspector at Wiesbaden who was your immediate commanding officer?

A I decline to answer the question.

Q It was General Stroop, was it not?

A I decline to answer the question.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further cross examination.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No questions.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. Witness will be excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

FRIEDRICH HILDEBRANDT, called as a witness by the defense, having been duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What is your full name?

A Friedrich Hildebrandt.

Q What is your present status?

A Civilian internee.

Q What is your home address?

A My home address is now in Schleswig-Holstein, Flensburg.

(Hildebrandt-direct)

Q At the time of the end of the war what was your occupation?

A I was Reichsstatthalter, Gauleiter and Reichskommissar for defense for Mecklenburg.

Q When did you become the Gauleiter of Mecklenburg?

A 1925.

Q When did you become Reichsverteidigung Kommissar?

A March 1943.

Q When did you become the Reichsstatthalter for Mecklenburg?

A May 1933.

Q Were you ever the Oberpraesident of Mecklenburg?

A No.

Q Are you familiar with the area, Rhein-Westmark?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell the court into how many Gaus Rhein-Westmark was divided?

A Three Gaus there were.

Q Will you tell the court what the three Gaus were and who was the Gauleiter of each?

A That was Gauleiter Sprenger.

Q Which Gau?

A For the Gau Hessen, including Frankfurt; then Saarpfals, Gauleiter Buerkel, and Gauleiter Simon. I don't know right now the name of his Gau. I can't recall the name of his Gau.

Q Have you anything that would refresh your recollection as to the names of the three Gaus into which Rhein-Westmark was divided?

A Yes.

(Hildebrandt-direct)

Q What have you?

A In regard to the organization and as far as the channel of command are concerned during war times.

Q I don't think you understood my question. I call your attention to Prosecution Exhibit P-14 which is this entire chart (indicating) and ask you to examine it and then tell the court whether that chart refreshes your recollection as to the three Gaus into which Rhein-Westmark was divided, and please answer yes or no, does it or does it not?

A Yes.

Q Will you then tell the court the names of the three Gaus into which Rhein-Westmark was divided?

A In Frankfurt, Saarbrucken and Koblenz.

Q What was in Frankfurt?

A Gauleiter Sprenger was located in Frankfurt.

Q What was the name of Sprenger's Gau?

A The name of his Gau was Hessen-Nassau.

Q What were the names of the other two Gaus?

A Gau Saarpfals and Koblenz-Trier

Q Was there any other name given to Koblenz-Trier?

A Later on it was changed into the three Gaus, Westmark, Hessen-Nassau and Moselland.

Q You say Sprenger was the Gauleiter of the Gau Hessen-Nassau?

A Yes.

Q Who was the Gauleiter for the Gau Westmark?

A Westmark was Simon.

Q In the years 1944 and 1945?

A Buerckel was the Gauleiter for the Gau Westmark.

Q In the years 1944 and 1945 who was the Gauleiter of the Gau Moselland?

A Simon.

Q Did you know these three men personally?

A Yes.

Q In addition, in the years 1944 and 1945, to being Gauleiter, Reichsverteidigung Kommissar and Reichsstatthalter, did you have any other positions?

A Yes, I was ordered by the Fuehrer to make inspections over air raid protection measures and war damage in various Gaus.

Q And by the Fuehrer you mean whom?

A Adolf Hitler.

Q What were the names of the Gaus that you were ordered to inspect for air raid protection and war damage?

A Gau Saxonia, the Protectorate Krakow, Gau Brandenburg, East Hannover, these were the ones I had to inspect.

Q In the course of your official duties did you have anything to do with Rhein-Westmark?

A Yes.

Q And what was that?

A I had to ascertain from the Gauleiters and Reichsstatthalters about the war damages and the air raid protection and the anti-aircraft protection in their areas.

Q Throughout for any the Gauleiters, in addition to the title of Gauleiter had, from time to time, other positions, is that true?

A Yes.

Q For instance, in addition to being Gauleiter you were also Reichsverteidigung Kommissar and Reichstatthalter?

A Yes.

(Hildebrandt-direct)

Q Now, coming down to Buerkel, do you know what title he also had in addition to being Gauleiter?

A Buerkel was also Reichskommissar for Lorraine.

Q In addition to being the Gauleiter of Gau Westmark, do you know whether he held any of these other positions such as you held?

CAPTAIN VAN CE: I am going to object as being immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent. These Gauleiters are not on trial before this court and we fail to see where these questions are relevant to the issues before this court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes, he was Reichskommissar for Defense.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Now, did the Gauleiter Sprenger of Hessen-Nassau have any of these positions (indicating) in addition to being Gauleiter?

A Yes, he was, furthermore, the President of the Cabinet for Hessen-Nassau.

Q Into which one of these three groups does that title come, Minister President?

A Under Oberpraesident.

Q Is Oberpraesident and Minister President one and the same thing?

A No.

Q What is the difference?

A Oberpraesident exists only in the State of Prussia. President of the Cabinet exists in other States which formerly were existing in the German Reich.

Q Where do Oberpraesidents exist?

A In Prussian provinces only.

Q Did Gauleiter Simon have any of these three positions?

A He was Reichskommissar for Defense and he was also Reichskommissar for Luxemburg.

(Hildebrandt-direct)

Q Do you know whether any one of those three -- Huerkel, Sprenger or Simon, was also Reichsstatthalter?

A Sprenger was Reichsstatthalter and Huerkel, too.

Q Now, Herr Hildebrandt, I call your attention to Defense Exhibit 1, 1A and 1B, and ask you to examine them.

A Yes.

Q Do you know what is represented by Defense Exhibit No. 1?

A Yes.

Q Have you seen it before?

A Yes, I saw it before.

Q Where?

A Here at the Defense's office.

Q What is represented by Defense Exhibit No. 1?

A This Exhibit 1 of the Defense is to show the pressure of the Party on the Security Police, the Regular Police and, furthermore, the entire Police organization of the Reich.

Q Do you know what 1A is?

A This one here (indicating).

Q What does 1A indicate?

A 1A is supposed to show the pressure of the Party on the various branch offices of the Security Police.

Q Do you know what the difference is between Defense Exhibit 1A and that portion of Defense Exhibit 1 which deals with the Security Police?

A Yes, from this you can see that the pressure of the Party was exercised in the beginning against the Reichs Security Main Office and later on was exercised on the lower offices of this organization.

Q What, if anything, does 1B indicate to you?

A 1B shows how the Party pressure from the Reichsleitung was exercised against the branch offices and also against commanders of the Security Police.

Were the powers and duties of the Gauleiters [illegible] throughout Germany?

A Yes.

Were the powers and duties of the Reichsorganisationsleiter [illegible]

the same throughout Germany?

A Yes.

Were the powers of the Reichsstatthalter the same throughout Germany?

A Yes.

Q Will you explain to the court the powers and duties and prerogatives of a Gauleiter in Germany with particular reference to the years 1944 and 1945?

CAPTAIN MARCUS: No objection on the ground that the question is immaterial. We are not trying a Gauleiter here.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

Q (Question by DEFENSE COUNSEL:

My question was to explain the powers, duties and prerogatives generally, but with particular reference to 1944 and 1945?

A The Gauleiter had various prerogatives and powers in his hand, as Reichsstatthalter he appointed the men of the Regular Police, the Order Police, the Criminal police and the Fire protection police. The officers were appointed and promoted in the Reich Ministry of the Interior but the political opinion of the Party was necessary for that. The Reichsführer had ordered the Gauleiters, especially, in some orders to the Kreisleiters that they should use their influence, especially with the local police organizations for all crimes against the economics of the Reich and all criminal investigations resulting from them.

Q Let me interrupt -- when you talk about Reich Minister of the Interior, by that do you mean the Reichsstatthalter?

A Yes, but furthermore, the Reichs Fuehrer was Reichs leader of the Party so that as Reichs leader he could influence the Gauleiters, too.

Q When you said that the Reichsstatthalter appointed the personnel of the police, at what level would the Gauleiter make those police appointments?

A The Gauleiter did not appoint any police officers as Reichsstatthalter.

Q Did he appoint membership to the police in any capacity?

A On the enlisted men.

Q Limiting ourselves to the enlisted personnel, to what areas did his powers of appointment reach?

A The appointments for the Order Police were made through the Higher Police President.

Q But over what area, did it cover the entire Gau? What part of the Gau?

A The entire Gau.

end ta 127
Mac fols

Q You said something about promotions and appointments of officers. Did the gauleiter in any capacity have anything to do with the appointments and promotions of officers in the Ordnungs Police?

A The gauleiter, as gauleiter, gave his political opinion in regard to the officer who was to be appointed or promoted.

Q To whom did he give that?

A To the Reich Minister of the Interior.

Q And who was that?

A At the end it was Himmler--from 1943.

Q Did he have anything else to do with appointments and promotions of officers in the Ordnungs Police in any capacity?

A No, but he could, if he considered the police officer unreliable or politically unreliable or unfit for duty--he could turn to the commander of the order police or directly to the Higher SS and Police Leader or to the Reichsfuehrer himself.

Q And he could turn to these people and do what?

A And he could request the transfer or the elimination altogether of this police officer from the service of the police.

Q I call your attention to Defense Exhibit 2 and ask you if you recognize it.

A Yes.

Q And that is what?

A The entire map?

Q Yes.

A A reproduction of the organization as it existed in practice.

Q Is that a complete representation of the organization and the channels of command for the security police on the one hand, the Ordnungs Police on the other hand, and the Party, represented by the gauleiters, on the third hand?

A Yes. It is a complete reproduction of the legal, normal procedure.

Q Are there any other additional channels which, in your opinion, should be represented on that chart?

A Yes. There were also oral orders.

Q Taking them one at a time, tell the court what additional indications of channels of command should appear on this chart?

A The position of Bormann and the influence he had on the entire organization is not shown sufficiently in this chart.

Q What organization do you refer to?

A Especially I am referring to the state organization.

Q Which state organization?

A Bormann was a Reich minister without portfolio.

Q Limiting ourselves to this representation of police, and leaving out any other aspect except police, what channels of command should be indicated on that chart, in your opinion, which do not appear there now?

A Bormann used to pass on orders from the Fuehrer directly, orally over the telephone and over the teletype system. Weeks or months later then he would pass on these orders from the Fuehrer in a written form.

Q In going over this chart with me in my office you indicated several channels of command which you thought should appear on that chart. Which were those?

A Channels of command from the gauleiter as Reichskommissar for the defense to the Landrats, the mayor of the town, and the police presidents and police directors.

Q Well, that shows from here down; is that correct (indicating)?

A Yes.

Q Any others?

A Right now I don't know what Colonel Berman is leading to. In 1944 an order was issued by the Fuehrer that in the front near areas military tribunals should be established--Standgericht. The Reichskommissar for the defense was the appointing and reviewing authority for these courts.

Q Just a minute. The gauleiter as the Reichsverteidigungs Kommissar was the appointing and reviewing authority, did you say?

A Yes.

Q For which courts?

A For these Standgerichts.

Q Over whom did these courts have jurisdiction and for what offenses?

A They had jurisdiction over everything with the exception of the only military section.

Q Was there any channel of command from the gauleiter, say, towards the Reichsfuehrer SS, that is, towards Himmler?

A Yes.

Q Was there any channel of command from the gauleiter in any capacity with the Higher SS and Police Leader?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object to leading questions--putting the words in the mouth of the witness.

PRESIDENT: Read the question, please.

(Whereupon the question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q Was there any channel of command from the gauleiter in any capacity with the Higher SS and Police Leader?")

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Was there any channel of command between the gauleiter in any of his capacities with Kaltenbrunner?

A No, not with Kaltenbrunner.

Q Coming down to September 1944, were you present at a meeting which took place between the gauleiters Buerkel, Sprenger and Simon, and Hitler?

A Yes. We had a conference at the offices of the Fuehrer with the gauleiter and the Reichsfuehrer SS Himmler and the Fuehrer himself.

Q And who was present at that time?

A Gauleiters Simon, Sprenger, Buerkel, Reichsfuehrer SS I said already before, and a few other gauleiters, too.

Q Did that conference have to do with the conduct of affairs, among other things, in the Rhein-Westmark area?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court what the conference was about, what was said, and by whom.

A The gauleiters Sprenger and Simon did not understand clearly what front near area and area in greatest emergency meant. The Fuehrer defined that the Gau Westmark, in which the area of these two gauleiters was located, and the entire area of the Higher SS and Police Leader Stroop, was front near area.

Q Front what?

A Front near, and in the greatest emergency.

Q Was anything said as to what that language meant?

A Yes.

Q And what was that?

A It is necessary to explain to the court how these orders came about.

Q Go ahead.

A Until 1939 it was so organized that all the executive power in case of war was supposed to be in the hands of the commanding general of the army corps. In 1939 the executive power in the civilian sector was transferred to the Reichskommissar for the defense. There is no doubt that all the powers which the commanding general of the army corps had before, as far as civilian sectors are concerned, were transferred to the Reichskommissar for the defense; and, as a result of this, certain powers to give orders to the police force, too.

Q Just a minute. By the Reich Defense Commissioner you mean the gauleiter in his capacity as Reichsverteidigungs Kommissar?

A Yes.

Q Continue and tell what these powers over the police became.

A For instance, when it was necessary to requisition something or other forces had to be put into effect--requisitioning of apartments, vehicles; furthermore, changes in the civil law. The Reichskommissar for the defense could give the appropriate orders to the police force.

Q Just a moment. What do you mean by "police force"? Which police force?

A Various police forces.

Q Name them.

A For the rural districts, the rural police; for the cities, the order police--regular police; the air raid protection and fire protection police; for the security police; as appointing authority and reviewing authority of the special courts--Standgericht--to execute the man sentenced by this court; to order the imprisonment of people who were politically dangerous.

Q Who decided whether or not they were dangerous?

A This decision was made by the Wehrmacht, which contacted the Reichskommissar for the defense; and in the end and for the last time on the 24th of February, 1945, the Fuehrer requested the gauleiter, the Reichskommissar for the defense, and the Reichsstatthalter in Personal-Union that in a case of highest emergency, if necessary they themselves with their weapons should eliminate such dangers.

Q What do you mean by that? Explain it a little bit more fully--what you meant by that order.

A In case of disobedience of orders of the Fuehrer, or in case of propaganda in the army, or in case of disobedience to certain orders of the Reichsfuehrer.

Q Who was he?

A Himmler.

(Hildebrandt - Direct)

Q Yes?

A If necessary to execute personally, the person who refused to carry out this particular order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: (To Interpreter) By shooting, he said, did he not?

THE INTERPRETER: By shooting; to execute by shooting.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q In other words, the gauleiters received an order, as I understand your testimony, to shoot personally any person who refused to carry out an order of Hitler's or Himmler's; is that a correct statement of the testimony you have just given?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object to the question. It is leading. It is putting the words in the mouth of the witness. He has not testified to all those facts stated in the question.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You testified that an order was issued directed to the gauleiters of Germany in February 1945; is that correct?

A For the last time. That was for the last time. Before that time already orders were given orally as well as in writing by the Fuehrer to the gauleiters.

Q Let us limit ourselves to the time referring to the order of February 1945. That order was given to the gauleiters by whom?

A From Fuehrer.

Q I am asking what subject that order covered. Nothing but the subject.

A On all subjects. The gauleiter was supposed to get tough in case if somebody did not carry out his orders or some order was not carried out.

Q And what do you mean by "get tough"? What did the order say, if anything, that the gauleiter should do?

A Whenever an order from higher authority, either the police or Bormann or the Fuehrer or the Reichsfuehrer SS was not carried out.

Q And in the case of a refusal by someone to carry out any one of these orders, what was the gauleiter himself ordered by Hitler to do?

A To act immediately, and in case he could not enforce the obedience of the order to do it with his weapon, if necessary.

Q Do you know of any cases of any gauleiters who got into trouble for failure to carry out that order?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the ground that it is immaterial about a gauleiter getting in trouble. There is no gauleiter involved in this trial.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to discuss that with the court for a minute or two.

PRESIDENT: Open court or closed court?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to discuss it. I would like to make a request for a reconsideration.

PRESIDENT: We will hear your discussion.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: An integral part of the defense in this case is going to be the defense of superior orders, and we are trying to show by this testimony the pressure put on what the prosecution is so happy to call the trigger-men, from all sides; not only from the immediate superiors, so far as formal superiors are concerned, but from all sides. For instance, some of those lines in the Ordnungs Police and the gauleiters from Himmler, from Hitler, from Bormann, from Kaltenbrunner, from all of them, show the pressure put on them from all sides and the means used to enforce obedience--blind obedience. Now, we could show by my question, and this is an offer of proof: The testimony has been that that order was given to the gauleiters themselves--very important individuals--by Hitler. My question is: What would have happened to a gauleiter who refused to obey the order? That is the purpose of my question, and that is the question that was objected to. I would like to say that we ought to be given every reasonable latitude of putting in a defense.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, in view of the statements made by the defense and the anticipated defense of superior orders, I not only object to the question but move that all the testimony be stricken out. If the court desires to hear me at length at this time, I would like to do so. However, I can reserve that argument for later in the case. I wish to state, however, one thing apropos of the defense of superior orders.

This testimony led up to the Fuehrer as the man who gave the orders down to the gauleiters and down on through to the other people. Therefore, following out their defense to its logical conclusion, there is only one man that can be tried for these offenses, and that is Adolf Hitler.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May I say just this: that I have read the decisions on the defense of superior orders, as well as the prosecution, and I am not so silly, and neither is any member of the defense so silly, as to think we can dump this in Hitler's lap. However, the court might very well consider, in determining the degree of guilt, the position which some accused in this box actually occupied and how many fingers were pointing at him and how many people were threatening to cut his throat. I submit that that is legitimate, and very decent and reasonable evidence to put in.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until 1:30.

(Thereupon at 1200 hours the court recessed until 1330 hours.)

Ta 129-pe-80-2/10-1

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick; all of the accused; the reporter and interpreter are present.

FRIEDRICH HILDEBRANDT, called as a witness by the defense, resumed the stand and being reminded that he was still under oath, testified further through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

QUESTION BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

PRESIDENT: In view of defense counsel's statements, the decision of the court sustaining the objection is withdrawn and the objection is overruled. The question may be answered.

QUESTION BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Was anything said at that conference in February, 1945, as to what could happen to a gauleiter who failed to carry out the orders? Please answer yes or no.

A Yes.

Q Who said it?

A The Fuehrer.

Q What did he say would happen to any gauleiter who failed to carry out the order you said that he gave?

A He would be shot.

Q Was anything said as to who would shoot the gauleiter?

A That would be ordered.

Q Do you know by whom?

A By Bormann.

Q Do you know of any gauleiters who were shot at any time subsequent to the issuance of that order?

A Yes.

Q What was his name?

A Gauleiter Wiesbaden.

Q What was his name?

A Heyenrath.

Q Now, this morning you were testifying about chains of command. Is there a difference between the chains of command and spheres of influence?

A Yes.

Q What is the difference between a chain of command and a sphere of influence?

A Chain of command means that the gauleiter can issue direct orders to the officers concerned; in this case, the police.

Q And what is a sphere of influence?

A A sphere of influence concerns a political pressure, technical advisor to politics at the Reichsstatthalter office and the direct path to the higher SS and police leaders or the Reichsführer.

Q Did the gauleiter in any of his capacities as Reichsverteidigung Kommissar or Reichsstatthalter have spheres of influence in addition to the chains of command which pertained to his office or any one of his offices?

A No.

Q Will you please explain to the court how the spheres of influence operated?

CAPTAIN VINER: May it please the court, we object unless he confines that to the 12th Wehrkreis which is the matter in this court. It is not shown that he was in this Wehrkreis and the same condition may not exist in the Wehrkreis he was in.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will ask him.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Did the conditions with respect to the spheres of influence of the gauleiter in Koblenz-Trier, to your knowledge, pertain in all the other gaus as well?

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you read my question?

(Thereupon the question referred to was read by the court reporter as follows:
"Q Will you please explain to the court how the spheres of influence operated?")

A If it was the opinion of a gauleiter in his capacity as Reichs Defense Kommissar and Reichsstatthalter that there was a necessity for energetic action against political individuals who were performing active acts of resistance, and he would turn to the State Police office chief. He would talk the matter over with him and would demand energetic action.

Q What would happen?

A The STAPO, State Police chief, office chief, could then take action or else he would turn to the Inspector, and if he considered it necessary, he in turn would turn to the Main Office, to Kaltenbrunner, but if the results were not to the satisfaction of the gauleiter, he would turn to the Inspector personally or to Kaltenbrunner or to Hitler personally.

Q By "he," whom do you mean?

A The Reichsstatthalter.

Q Could he in the same way go to Nuremberg?

A As far as the regular police was concerned, he could.

Q Would the degree of the sphere of influence or the extent of the sphere of influence vary according to the personality of the gauleiter?

A Yes.

Q In what way could the personality of the gauleiter affect the sphere of influence?

A There were certain gauleiters who were naturally more active and did not have a personal legal means with them, and in accordance with that he would use his influence and expression.

Q You have testified before that you knew personally Streicher, Bruckner and Himmler. Do you know whether or not these people or any one of them were the type of individuals you just described who would use their sphere of influence?

A All three of them would.

Q You testified about a conversation with Hitler himself in which the Rhein/Westmark was declared to be a near-front area. What effect, if any, did that declaration have on the authority and obligations of the police officials, of the head police officials, in that area?

A The higher police leaders, with that act, joined the staff of the army commanders.

Q By "higher police leaders" do you mean people occupying positions that Stroop had at that time?

A Yes.

Q What other differences took place after that?

A He had the executive power and the police area.

Q Who had the executive power?

A The higher police and SS Fuehrer and in conjunction also the inspectors and commanders.

Q By "inspectors" do you mean people who occupied the position in that bracket here (indicating)?

A Yes.

Q Where Lohmann's name is mentioned?

A Yes.

Q What effect, if any, did this decision of September 1, 1944, have on the position described as Inspector of the SIPO and SD?

A There were changes in great powers which had before that, in principle, been included in the Reichsfuehrer's office or the main Office.

A Yes. The Inspector, who did not prior to that time have the authority to commit people into jail or concentration camps received this authority also.

Q Do you know when the title of Inspector of the SIPO and SD was first given to this office?

A No.

Q Do you know whether or not the title of that office was ever changed?

A No.

Q I asked you this morning whether or not, in your opinion, that chart correctly indicated all the chains of command and spheres of influence, and you said it did not. Will you please indicate to the court which lines should be added to that map, if any, to indicate spheres of influence not shown thereon?

(Whereupon the witness left the stand.)

A From the gendarmes, a direct path to the Reich Main Office.

(XXXXXXXXXX-Direct) 774

Q Was there any change in the name of the office?

A No.

Q Was there a time when the office no longer was that of Inspector but became known as that of Examiner?

CAPTAIN WISE: We object. He is leading the witness. The witness has answered.

EXAMINER: Repeat the question.

(Whereupon the last question was read by the court reporter.)

EXAMINER: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q After September 1, 1944, after this meeting, you stated that this office here, or wherever held it, had executive powers given him which he did not have before. Did that order of September 1 make any other changes than the one you have already mentioned?

Salzburg; a direct path to the Reichsfuehrer; a direct path to the higher SS and police leaders; the same from here (indicating).

Q Repeat them.

A To the main office of the regular police; to the Reichsfuehrer; to the higher SS and police officers.

(Thereupon the witness resumed the stand.)

Q If a difference of opinion had arisen between yourself as Gauleiter and the higher SS and police leader of your gau, whose wishes and interpretations would control?

A That can't be said. The decision would be made between Bormann and Himmler.

Q In the event of such difference of opinion, what could you do about it?

A A complaint to Bormann and to the Fuehrer himself.

Q On September 1, 1944, did any change take place throughout Germany so far as the command is concerned of all the civilian forces and the reserve army?

A Yes.

Q What was that change?

A The change was that the Reich Ministry of the Interior, the Reichsfuehrer SS Himmler, became the chief of the reserve army.

Q What was the effect of that?

A In my opinion, the effects were disastrous.

Q What was the effect of that so far as Himmler's power and authority was concerned?

A The power and authority of Himmler? I did not get it.

Q Did that order, in your opinion, give Himmler greater or less control over the internal defense control of Germany?

A Unlimited authority.

(HILDEBRANDT-Direct)

Q Over whom did that unlimited authority extend?

A Over everybody.

Q After September 1, 1944, when the Rhein/Westmark area was declared to be a near-front area, what would have been the consequences to any person who was a member of the Ordnungs Polizei, the Schutzpolizei, the Fire Police, the Air Police, the Water Police, the Gendarmerie, the Criminal Police or the SD, a member of any one of these organizations -- what would have been the effect upon any individual who had failed to carry out implicitly and completely any order which he received from a superior?

A Immediate death penalty.

Q Ordered by whom? Who had the power to order it?

A The Fuehrer had issued the order that the Reichs Defense Commissar had the authority to do so. Furthermore, the Reichsfuehrer of the SS Himmler, also the commanding generals of the army.

Q In other words, Sprenger and Simon, who were also Reichsstatthalters in Rhein/Westmark, had the power to order immediate death, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Coming down to the police, did any of the officials of the Ordnungs Police or the Security Police likewise have the same power?

A Yes, roving courts were instituted.

Q What did these roving courts consist of?

A They consisted of members either of the police force or the armed forces.

Q And how did they operate?

A They would pronounce death sentences within very short periods of time and have these carried out.

Q You called these roving courts. What do you mean by "roving courts?"

A Those were courts instituted by the Reichsfuehrer and the commanding officers of the proper Wehrmacht district and who would be assigned to these proper districts.

Ta 129-pa-60-2/10-8

Q Were there such courts in the Rhein/Westmark area?

A Yes, everywhere.

Q How many such courts would there be in the Rhein/Westmark, if you know?

A I can't say.

Q How many such courts were there in Gau Mecklenburg?

A Five.

Q Do you know whether or not the other gaus had more or less than five for each gau?

A It is quite probable that this may have been true for larger gaus.

Q Was Gau Westmark larger or smaller than Gau Mecklenburg?

A A little bit larger.

Q Was Gau Hessen-Nassau larger or smaller than Mecklenburg?

A Just about the same size.

Q How about Gau Moselland? How did that compare to Mecklenburg?

A Gau Moselland was a little bit smaller.

End ta 129
IB fols

Q And having in mind the areas of Gau Westmark, Moselle-Nassau and Moselland, can you give the Court an opinion as to how many of those roving courts existed in the entire Rhein-Westmark area?

A At least five, but I would estimate ten.

Q How large were these courts?

A These courts would consist of one president and two or three other judges.

Q Who could bring a complaint against anyone before such a court?

A Anybody.

Q In other words, anybody could complain to such a court against anyone?

A From the Police Forces to the roving courts of the SS and Police, and from the armed forces to the roving court of the Army, and for the Summary Court of the Reichs Defense Kommissar from anybody of the civilian sector.

Q What would happen when anybody made a complaint to one of these courts--what was the procedure that would follow?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object, may it please the Court. That's too general. We don't know whether the man is going to complain of rape, murder, disobeying an order or what.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let's talk only of failure to obey orders which came down from higher authority.

PRESIDENT: Have you a complaint?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I have an objection.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I amended the question.

CAPTAIN VANCE: That's satisfactory.

(Hildebrandt-Direct)

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q The question is this: What would happen when somebody made a complaint to one of these roving courts that someone failed to carry out an order passed down from a higher authority?

A In case of a complaint for disobedience of an order, and in case of an extreme emergency--in this case an extreme emergency would become extreme in close vicinity of the front, about 15 miles behind the front--in such cases the Reichs Defense Kommissar had to have the man shot immediately. In other cases when there was an emergency, he would make a request for a sentence to one of these roving courts.

Q How much of an investigation was made by a court after a complaint was made?

A The courts would interrogate the witnesses and the accused, and they would base their sentences on that.

Q How long after sentence was it until the execution of the sentence?

A It would have to be executed promptly--without delay.

Q Was the Rhein-Ostmark area declared to be such an area by the order of September 1, 1944?

A Yes.

Q In addition to punishment of the individual himself, who failed to carry out an order, was any provision made for the punishment of additional persons?

A Yes, they had that, too.

Q Who else would be punished, in addition to the man who failed to carry out the order?

A For subversive activities, sabotage or political obstruction?

Q I am a married man with a family, and I fail to carry out an order after September 1, 1944 in the Rhein-Westmark area--what happens to my family and myself?

CAPTAIN VANCE: Objection on the ground that the question is leading and suggesting an answer to the witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the Court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY THE DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What is mean by the German word "sippenhoft"?

A There were two such concepts of "sippenhoft". One of these concepts existed within the SS and carried out by the Reichsfuehrer of the SS, Himmler.

Q What was it?

A That he, that is the Reichsfuehrer, could apply "sippenhoft," to the members of a family of an SS man sentenced to death under dishonorable conditions--that is, by putting them in jail or declaring them unfit for society.

Q And what was the second interpretation?

A This concept came up on the 20th of July, 1944, against the family of Count Stauffenberg. It was applied against his family, and the wife and children were also arrested. This "sippenhoft" was later abolished in accordance with the protests of several Gauleiters. The Fuehrer then directed that only in cases in which a perpetrator would not report himself to the authorities, one of the members of the family of this person would be put under arrest.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: You may inquire.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q In which Wehrkreise was your Gau located?

A Wehrkreise Number 2.

Q And where was the Headquarters of Wehrkreise 2?

A Stettin.

Q Was that anywhere near Wehrkreise 12?

A No.

Q About what is the distance between your Gau and Gau Hessen Nassau?

A Six hundred kilometers, perhaps.

Q And how far from Gau Westmark?

A Six or seven hundred kilometers.

Q And from Gau Moselland?

A About the same--600.

Q Now, in each Wehrkreise did they have approximately the same Police setup as shown on this chart?

A Yes.

Q In Wehrkreise 2 that you were in, was the Police setup similar to this?

A Yes, exactly the same.

Q Did you have a Higher Police Leader?

A No, he was located in Stettin.

Q Did Wehrkreise 2 have such a person?

A Yes.

Q And did it have an Inspector of the Security Police?

A Yes.

Q Now what was the relationship between the Higher

SS Police Fuehrer and the Inspector of the Security Police?

A That was a community between each other.

Q Who was the highest official?

A The SS and Police Fuehrer.

Q And the Inspector of the Security Police was his subordinate--is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And likewise the Chief of the Ordnung Police was a subordinate of the Higher Police Fuehrer--is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Who was the chief of all of the police in a certain Wehrkreise?

A The overall chief?

Q Yes, for a Wehrkreise?

A The Highest SS and Police Leader.

Q Who is the Commanding Officer of the Inspector of the Security Police?

A Kaltenbrunner, and above him, Himmler.

Q Is the Higher SS Police Fuehrer also the Commanding Officer of the Security Police?

A Yes.

Q I believe you testified that a Gauleiter in some capacity could employ the enlisted men for the police force, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q If a man wanted a job with the police force, he would go to the Gauleiter and request employment, is that correct?

A No.

Q How did he make application?

A He would make an application to the Headquarters of the Protective Police.

Q And would that be subject to the approval of the Gauleiter?

A Yes, the political approval would be called in effect.

Q In your capacity as Gauleiter, did you employ or approve the employment of enlisted men for the police force in your Gau?

A No, I delegated this authority.

Q Was anyone forced to accept employment with the police forces?

A Yes, later on the emergency draft laws came into effect.

Q When did that begin?

A With the start of the war.

Q Prior to that time was it voluntary?

A No, persons were detailed usually from the police forces, but sometimes also from other branches of the civil service to the police.

Q Now you have testified about certain lines that should be on the chart running from the Gauleiter to Himmler. Do you mean that the Gauleiter could tell Himmler what to do?

A No.

Q Himmler would tell the Gauleiter what to do--is that right?

A Yes, as Minister of the Interior.

Q Now you indicated lines should be here from the Gauleiter to the office held by General Stroop. Do you mean that the Gauleiter could tell General Stroop what to do?

A No, he couldn't do that--only in such cases he could where he as the Reichs Defense Kommissar would order instructions from the Fuehrer or from the Army to take effect.

Q But you or no other Gauleiter could tell General Stroop what he had to do, could you?

A No, I couldn't do that.

Q Now, you indicate lines should be from the Gauleiter to the Inspector of the Security Police. Could a Gauleiter tell the Inspector of the Security Police what he should do?

A No, only in his capacity and within the area of his capacity as Reichs Defense Kommissar.

Q Did the Gauleiters run the police system of Germany, or did Himmler run it?

A The Gauleiters had no business running the police themselves.

Q Then they did not run it, did they?

A In cases such as the ones described by me just now--orders were issued.

Q Now, you spent some time telling about these roving courts. Who appointed these roving courts?

A The High Command of the Armed Forces, of the Navy and the Air Force, and the Chief of the German Police, Himmler, and the Summary Courts were appointed by the Reichs Defense Kommissars.

Q What connection did the Higher SS Police Leader have with these courts in his districts?

A He would be subject to their activities just like anybody else.

Q Didn't he appoint them and didn't he review their findings?

A As far as the military and civilian matters are concerned, he did not. As to the Police, I can't say.

Q You testified that anyone failing to obey orders that came from higher Headquarters of the Police Force would be shot, and by whom did you say they would be shot?

A Anybody who would have orders to do so. In cases of extreme emergencies, the Highest SS and Police Leaders of the Reichs Defense Commissary, and in the Army also the Commanding General.

Q We are talking about the police--we are not talking about Army personnel. Do you mean that the Higher SS Police Leader could give the order?

A In the case of the greatest emergency he could--in fact, he had to give it.

Q I believe you stated that if you didn't have time for Court, that the Gauleiter could order a shooting. Is that right?

A In the greatest emergency he could.

Q As a Gauleiter, how many executions did you order for failure to obey an order?

A None.

Q You testified that one Gauleiter named Wiechtler was shot, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Who shot him and what for?

A He was shot by an SS detail.

Q For what?

A Because he had dissolved the home guard and was not planning on continuing the fight.

Q In other words it was for cowardliness or desertion.

A No, he was shot because he failed to obey the Fuehrer's order to fight to the last.

Q Now, this morning, in explaining this chart, Defense Exhibit Number 2, you explained that certain marks were to indicate political pressure being put on the police--that's right, isn't it.

A Yes.

Q Now, you are testifying about what the chart shows, are you not?

A Yes.

CROSS EXAMINATION, continued.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You did not prepare this chart, did you?

A No.

Q You don't know exactly what the political setup was in Rhein-Westmark in 1944, do you?

A Exactly the same as it was in the rest of the Reich.

Q Haven't you previously testified that some Gauleiters would exert more pressure than others?

A Yes. It was up to the personality and activity of the Gauleiter concerned whether he wanted to get mixed up in these matters.

Q How often were you in the Rhein-Westmark area during 1944?

A I wasn't there in 1944.

Q How do you know what was taking place there in 1944?

A Because I had to talk to these Gauleiters in Berlin about such things as the air raid situation, the protection of the population and other matters.

Q What about the police officials in the Rhein-Westmark area? You had no knowledge of what they were doing, did you?

A That is not up to me to decide anyway.

Q Do you know about it?

A No, I don't know anything about it.

Q Did you know General Stroop back in 1944?

A I knew his name and we had seen each other in meetings of higher officials.

Q Did you know Colonel Sommann back in 1944?

A Yes.

Q Did you know Dr. Trumpler back then?

A Yes.

Q They attended meetings with the Gauleiters?

(Wildebrandt-cross)

A No. Colonel Somann was from my district and we have probably known each other ever since we were young. Dr. Trummler was in charge of the setup of the police school at Furstenberg in my district.

Q Mr. Hildebrandt, was the fighting going on between the party and the police system or were they in accord and in harmony on matters at that time?

A The only difference existing between the police and the party was of a personal nature.

Q Orders that were coming down from higher authority were in accord, is that what yo mean?

A The channel of command of the police was organized within itself and we had no hand in it.

CAPTAIN WANCE: No further questions.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I may have one or two after the court is finished.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q In case of a conflict of orders received by the inspector between orders he received from Kaltenbrunner and orders he received from Stroop, whose orders would he have to obey?

A Who me? I don't understand it. Police official? What orders? The police official? I didn't understand the question.

Q In case the inspector of police received an order from Kaltenbrunner, and Stroop tried to tell him something different from the order, whom did the inspector have to obey?

A The inspector would have to carry out the orders of Kaltenbrunner.

Q In addition to orders which Stroop may have received from Himmler affecting the security police did Stroop have any authority over the Sipo?

A No, as far as I know he didn't.

Q Would that also apply to the Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei?

A Yes, the same.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Could I ask the interpreter through the court to translate the German word Standgericht?

INTERPRETER: Summary court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense takes exception to the translation. May it please the court, I understand it means a martial court or a military court.

DOCTOR RAU: Will you tell the court it is an ordinary court and a martial court is an extraordinary military court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I could let that go until the recess so as not to hold up the court any further but I would like to have you check it.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q You said something before in which you referred to the Standgericht. Would you be good enough to tell the court what you said before about the Standgericht?

A The defense kommisser would appoint a standgericht in his area.

Q What were the duties and powers of the Standgericht?

A The Standgericht would sentence the accused.

Q What offenses did the Standgericht have jurisdiction over?

A Against all offenses which might be directed against the continuing resistance or against the Reich or any offenses concerning subversive activities.

Q What penalties could the Standgericht enforce?

A All punishments.

Q How many members comprised a Standgericht?

A Five members.

Q They were appointed, you say, by the Gauleiter in his capacity as Gericht Hauptsfuehrer?

A Yes.

Q Were these Standgerichts not similar to the roving courts you testified about before?

A Yes.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court, the witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Could I ask the court to recess in place, I would like to discuss something with Colonel Dwinell?

PRESIDENT: The court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The defense will now call Hans Trummler.

I would like to state for the record that the defense is calling the accused Trummler at this time for the sole and limited purpose of testifying to the organization set up of the police and the various channels of command.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to state to the court that the prosecution is not bound by any such statement made by the defense counsel.

PRESIDENT: The court understands that.

HANS TRUMMLER, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Your name is Hans Trummler?

A Yes.

Q You are an accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q The questions about your name, age and civilian occupation have already been asked previously?

A Yes.

Q I call you attention to Defense Exhibits 1, 1-A and 1-B and ask you if you recognize them?

A Yes.

Q Will you tell the court what it is?

A That is the organization under the higher SS and police officer of the

Ta 132 SO

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Were there any changes in the situation between the time Sommer was inspector and the time you were commander? Were there any changes so far as the Party was concerned?

A What do you mean? The Party itself or my relationship to the Party?

Q Your relationship to the Party and the Party's relationship to you. By "you" I mean your office.

A The pressure of the Gauleiters became stronger and stronger. Among other things the Gauleiters had requested from me and also from the Higher SS and Police Leader that the political leaders of the Party should have the right to take people into custody. It wasn't easy for me to deny these requests. Of course, I denied these requests. Of course also, the pressure of the lower Party authorities was increasing all the time from the Kreisleiters and Ortsgruppenleiters, the Gestapo and the SD branch offices in accordance with the ever increasing emergency.

Q How was this pressure exercised?

A In this way -- that the Kreisleiters and Ortsgruppenleiters, either personally or through their representatives, contacted the chiefs of my Gestapo, Cripo or SD offices and requested them to take people into custody to requisition things to evacuate the areas.

end Ta 132 Mac fols

(Examination direct)

Q You said it was not easy for you to say no to the gauleiter when he wanted authority to take people into custody. Why was that?

A Why wasn't it easy?

Q Why wasn't it easy to say no?

A Because the gauleiters had the possibility to complain about me directly to my immediate superior, Dr. Kaltenbrunner, or to the Reichsfuehrer SS Himmler or to Bormann. And there was a possibility that I would have been put before a special court-martial if conditions and the whole incident was not reported correctly. I had one incident in Gau Westmark where a gauleiter requested that a criminal commissioner should be transferred immediately out of his gau because he did not obey the requests of the Kreisleiter. That was in Neuenkirchen-Pfals. In a personal conference with the gauleiter then I had success so that the man could stay on his job.

Q So far as the organization and the channels of command are concerned, what tieup was there between the Befehlshaber der SIPO und SD and the Ordnungs Police?

A What do you mean by tieup between these two?

Q What authority did the Befehlshaber der SIPO und SD have over the Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei?

A We were on the same level. We both as commanders--Befehlshabers--were under the Higher SS and Police Leader.

Q What authority did you have to give him orders and what authority did you have to give orders to the Ordnungs Police through him?

A I couldn't give any orders at all to the commander of the Order Police. The same way, the commander of the Order

Police couldn't give any orders to me or to my subordinate officers. There were two absolutely separate channels of command. The only office which could give orders to both of us was the Higher SS and Police Leader.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: No further questions.

Cross-Examination

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You say the only person that could give orders to both you and the commander of the Order Police was the Higher SS and Police Fuehrer; is that right?

A On orders of my chief defense counsel, I decline to answer this question at this time.

Q Has your chief defense counsel explained to you that if you refuse to answer my question that the court can draw any inference they care to from your refusal to answer?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object to the question.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q When did you cease to be commander of the security police in Rhein-Westmark?

A On orders of my chief defense counsel, I decline to answer this question at the present time.

Q Is it on orders of the defense counsel or is it your own desire to refuse to answer these questions?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q As commander of the security police for Rhein-Westmark, from whom did you receive your orders in reference to the treatment of Allied fliers?

A I decline to answer this question on orders of my chief defense counsel at the present time.

Q During the period of your office were you ever in a conference with Kaltenbrunner where a discussion was had in reference to the treatment of Allied fliers?

A I decline to answer this question on orders of my chief defense counsel.

Q During the time that you were commander of the security police did you attend any conferences with General Stroop where you discussed the treatment of captured Allied fliers?

A Same answer.

Q And is it not a fact that during your tour of duty with the security police you called various and sundry conferences in your headquarters where you had representatives from Frankfurt, Koblenz, Darmstadt, and Saarbrucken, wherein you gave orders and directives as to the treatment of captured Allied fliers?

A Same answer.

Q Is it not a fact that when an emergency began to exist in the Rhein-Westmark area General Stroop took over command as your next higher commander of the security police for Rhein- estmark?

A Same answer.

Q On direct examination you testified that the gauleiters and political leaders were putting pressure on you and the lower offices under your command. What was the nature of that pressure? What did they want done?

(Trumbler - Cross.)

A Same answer.

Q Was the Party putting any pressure on the police in reference to the treatment of captured Allied fliers?

A Same answer.

Q Was the Party complaining that too many or too few captured Allied fliers were being murdered?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object to that question. I think it is far beyond the limits of proper cross examination.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: Same answer.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You have heard by written statements signed by the accused Arthur Fuehr to the effect that you ordered him on two occasions to take a captured prisoner of war out and shoot him. Do you deny that?

A I decline to answer this question at the present time by orders of my chief defense counsel.

Q I show you a document which is in evidence, Defense Exhibit 1, calling your attention to the right-hand side, which deals with the security police. Who furnished the information for making that part of this exhibit?

A Same answer.

Q What was that?

A Same answer.

Q Who gave the information for the making of Defense Exhibit 1-A?

A Same answer.

Q And who gave the information for making Defense Exhibit 1-B?

A Same answer.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, the prosecution moves that Defense Exhibits 1, 1-A, 1-B, 2, 2-A, and 2-B be excluded on the ground that no person has identified them that had knowledge that they furnished the information for their making.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: The evidence is plain. Stroop testified that he gave the information with respect to the center, the left-hand part, and that the right-hand section about Kaltenbrunner was drawn up by collaboration of all the accused, and it has been testified by three people that it is a correct representation. What more can anybody ask? Furthermore, Hildebrandt identified it as a correct transcription of the situation in the Rhein-Westmark area. Furthermore, they were already received without objection.

PRESIDENT: The motion is denied.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Can you offer any explanation to the court as to why Colonel Somann was called an inspector and you were designated a commander?

A Same answer.

Q Before you went to Wiesbaden and took command of the security police, and during the time that Colonel Somann was in charge, were you familiar or do you know anything about the chain of command at that time?

A Same answer.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court.

(Whereupon the accused Trummler resumed his seat in the dock.)

(Trummler - Cross)

Ta 133 - 50

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, I would like to make a brief statement of explanation as to the plan by which the defense will put on its case:

We will put in a defense to the particular charges 3 to 10 first, in the numerical order in which they normally come. In other words, we will put in a particular defense to Charge 3 first, and so on down through Charge 10. Then we will come back to a general defense under Charges 1 and 2. At that last stage we will raise the particular defenses which we have in mind to raise for these people.

It will be inevitable that as we go from 3 to 10 we will touch on matters which relate particularly to 1 and 2 and to the general defense for the entire case.

Major Saxon will put in the defense to Charge 3.

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, this court on February 3 considered a motion for a finding of not guilty as regards the accused Julius Lassak, who is one of the accused in Charge 3. Some few days ago I served on the prosecution and gave to the Law Member of the court what I have termed a "Motion to Quash as to the Accused Julius Lassak." That wording "Motion to Quash" might be all right, but I do not think it is quite right, so I want to amend that motion and call it a "Motion for a Finding of Not Guilty as to the Accused Julius Lassak," and I respectfully would like to ask the court to permit me, or rather to reopen its decision on that particular motion as regards this particular defendant, and permit the defense at this time to submit this supplemental motion for a finding of not guilty as to the accused Julius Lassak, and permit me to submit to you in further support thereof what we think we have.

want to say further to the court that this is not directed to the benefit of the other accused, Branner, but is solely for the benefit of the accused Julius Lessak. It is not an idle motion submitted before this court, but one that the defense believes has great merit. I believe, in any event, that I should at this time, with the permission of the court, read this motion into the record before the court rules one way or the other.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

MAJOR SAXON: "This will, with the court's permission, be entitled a "Motion for a Finding of Not Guilty as to the Accused Julius Lessak as to Charges 1, 2, and 3." It is dated February 5, 1947. We have termed it a "Motion to Quash."

"Comes now the accused Julius Lessak through Counsel for the Defense and moves this Court to quash the charges and particulars against him which are identified as Charges 1, 2 and 3 for the following reasons to-wit:

"Insofar as Charge 1 is concerned, there is no evidence that this accused conspired with any of the other accused in any manner insofar as the elements of the charges and particulars are concerned. Nor is there any evidence before this Court that this accused conspired with any other known or unknown persons to violate any of the laws and usages of war as so described in Charge 1.

"Insofar as Charge 2 is concerned, the defense moves that the same be quashed as to this accused for the reason that there is no evidence before this Court other than the fact that this accused was merely a member of the Allgemeine SS without any authority or function and no evidence of any kind that he ever participated in, aided or abetted any of the crimes charged against the SS as found in the Nuernberg Decision.

"The Defense further moves" -- and I have used the word 'quash' there when I should have said 'further moves for a finding of not guilty'--"to quash Charge 3 for the reason that there is no evidence before this Court that this accused in any way injured, insulted or participated in the assistance or even a consenting part in the death of an unknown member of the United States Army as set forth in Charge 3. The evidence clearly shows that as Director of the Schutzpolizei, this accused received an order to turn the flier over to the Security Police for interrogation which order he complied with.

"Attached to this motion are the reference pages in the transcript to the evidence which supports the position of this accused."

"Keene Saxon, Major, CVP Counsel for the Defense"

If it please the court, if I understand it correctly, my request is a matter strictly of discretion with the court, but I do not feel that it is unreasonable, and we do feel that this Motion for a Finding of Not Guilty as to this particular accused is highly important and with merit. I take it that before I can proceed further I have to wait until the court rules.

PRESIDENT: Any remarks by the prosecution?

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, we will object to opening it up at this time. A motion was made as to this very accused. That was argued by the prosecution and the defense. We think it would be repetitious to what has already been before the court.

PRESIDENT: Recess in Place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

(Whereupon at 1645 hours the court adjourned until 0900 hours, 11 February 1947.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0909 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick; all of the accused, except the accused Fay, No. 13, and Rost, No. 14, who are absent sick; the reporter and interpreter are present.

PRESIDENT: The court having already passed on similar motions by the accused Julius Lasnak, made together with others of the accused as to Charges No. 1 and No. 3, and the court having had before it and having considered the same evidence the accused Lasnak would now depend on in support of the motion he now desires the court to consider, finds no reason for granting the motion of the accused to reconsider the court's previous findings. Motion denied.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, due to the continued absence of Dr. Trost and the probability that she will be incapacitated for a number of days, certain changes have been made in the representation of German counsel which I would like to present to the court. The accused Fay will now be represented by Dr. Rau. The accused Girke and the accused Klemann will be represented by Dr. Aheimer. I would like at this time to present Dr. Richard Wagner, for whom permission is requested to represent Fuchr, Eichel, Schmann and Lasnak. The situation with respect to Dr. Wagner is identical with that with respect to Drs. Aheimer and Buerger, which was explained to the court when the case was first opened, and permission is therefore requested from the court that he be permitted to represent these four people in this case only.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted, with the same understanding that we had with the other counsel. Proceed.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the court, as regards the accused Julius Lassak, the defense desires to make a brief opening statement. This charge, known as Charge XIX, and the defense that will now be offered, will apply strictly to the accused Julius Lassak.

The evidence will show you that Julius Lassak, a man around 60 years of age, has all of his life been a railroad man, working for the German railroad, better known to most of us as the Reichsbahn. He undertook that employment in 1913 and continuously worked for the railroad until January 11, 1944. He lived a great deal of his life at Regensburg, Germany. He joined the NSDAP in 1925, when it was in its infancy, and when it was purely an economic and political proposition regarding the internal affairs of Germany. He joined the Allgemeine SS in 1926, when it was still, of course, in its infancy and while it was merely a political and economic proposition so far as the internal government of Germany was concerned. Lassak never held any function in either the Nazi Party nor in the Allgemeine SS except for a period of two years in 1935 and 1936, at which time he attempted to manage and operate a school for the Allgemeine SS. Some difficulty arose in the operation of that school, and from the honorary title of colonel he had in the SS, he was reduced to a Tech/Sergeant. Subsequently he was reinstated and continued to hold this title of colonel in the SS, which, the evidence will show you, is purely an honorary proposition.

The evidence will show you further that as the war progressed and the need for manpower became more intense here in Germany, he was drafted into the police work, of what we know as the Order Police or Ordnungs Polizei. He had never been in police work in his life, but sometime in the fall of 1943 they sent him to a police school for a few weeks and then placed him in charge of the police departments, on January 11, 1944, in Bad Nauheim, Friedburg and Giessen. He was known as the Police Director of those three cities. What he had charge of is what is commonly known as the Schutzpolizei, the police only within the city. He had no charge over the Gendarmerie, which were out in the country, or sometimes known as the State Police. He had three or four lieutenants under him, and a captain, and probably 60 to 75 policemen. He continued up until the end of the war in 1945 in that work.

The evidence will show further that, as such a police officer, he performed his duty in accordance with the rules and regulations as laid down to him by his superiors. I might add that the evidence will also show that he was under General Wunnenberg as his top superior, and that Colonel Niemann — both of which names you will find on that chart — was his immediate superior, and that he was also under Reichsstatthalter Sprenger, who appears on that chart, from a political standpoint, and who was gauleiter of this particular area.

The evidence will show you that he did receive orders throughout the summer of 1944, and, I believe the evidence will show you, probably in the latter part of August and first of September, two of which clearly indicated that enemy agents were parachuting to earth in his area, along with disabled fliers who parachuted to earth because of the flak and planes falling, etc.; that he had instructions to turn all of these parachuted fliers over to the Gestapo or to the political party leaders for the purpose of interrogation. One order came to him stating, in substance, that all parachuted fliers were to be shot.

The evidence will show you further that on receipt of these orders which came directly to him by mail or by courier, he destroyed these orders and never passed them on to any of the police that served under him or to anyone else. The evidence will show you that he never ordered, countenanced or permitted the execution of a parachuted flier in the zone in which he had control, and that no police officer that served under him or any of his subordinates ever participated in such an offense. The evidence will show you further that, as regards the particular flier who is unknown in Charge III and who parachuted to earth on October 3, 1944, that this flier was apparently apprehended by members of the Gestapo, that these members of the Gestapo wanted to keep their identity secret, and that when the officer Muenk and the Wehrmacht soldier who relieved these two Gestapo men and the other civilians of this flier -- not wanting to give away their identity, they immediately reported this fact to their superior, Winser. Winser, by the way, the evidence will show you, was the commander of the Gestapo in the same area in which Lassak was the commander or director of the police. Winser attempted to contact Lassak on the telephone and Lassak was out of his office at that time.

The evidence will show you that Muenk and the Wehrmacht soldier brought this flier to the headquarters and Lassak returned to his headquarters, and when he got back and found a telephone call from Winzer, that he called up Winser and Winser told him the story, that two of his Gestapo men had taken the flier away from him and they wanted him back for the purpose of interrogation and that they would send for him.

The evidence will show you that in view of the orders previously given to Lassak in the latter part of August and first of September that he was to turn fliers over to the Gestapo for interrogation, and by virtue of this request from Winser, he directed that the flier be turned over to a member of the Gestapo who came to his headquarters and who received him there, accompanied by Muenk, and Muenk went along to see that the flier was safely returned to the Gestapo for interrogation; that this flier was so turned over to Winser for interrogation, and that is the last and only part that Lassak had to do with this flier in question in any way.

The evidence will show you, which I think is already in evidence now, and it is, as a matter of fact, that the accused Winser escaped here from Dachau sometime in August of this last year. The evidence will further show you that Winser, who is charged here, had something to do with the death of this unknown flier, was apprehended by the Americans and committed suicide.

The evidence will show you further, as regards part of the statement made by the accused Lassak, and which has been read into evidence here, that that part of that statement was procured by means which were not lawful, by threats and by intimidation and by physical force used against this accused. That, in substance, will be the evidence in behalf of the accused Lassak.

ERNST MUENK, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your full name, address, occupation, age and residence.

A Ernst Muenk, police sergeant, Bad Nauheim, Riegstrasse No. 12, 49 years old.

Q What was your occupation and where did you live in 1944?

A I was a police sergeant in Giessen, at police headquarters in Giessen.

Q How long had you lived there?

A For 15 years in Giessen.

Q How long have you been a police officer in Germany?

A In my 27th year of service.

Q You came in about 1920, is that correct?

A I came to the police in 1920.

Q Have you ever had any other occupation?

A Before 1914, a moving picture operator.

Q Were you a member of the NSDAP?

A After the end of 1937.

Q Were you ever a member of any of the SS organizations?

A No.

Q You are acquainted with the accused Julius Lassak, are you not?

A Yes.

Q You testified here as a prosecution witness some few weeks ago?

A Yes.

Q At that time, you identified Julius Lassak here in the accused's box, didn't you?

A Yes.

Q When did you first know Julius Lassak?

A When he was transferred to the police headquarters, Giessen.

Q When was that?

A I don't know it exactly, towards the beginning of 1944, I think.

Q How long did you know him there as the director of the Polizei?

A Until the end, until the Americans came.

Q Were you a policeman there throughout the summer of 1944?

A Yes.

Q During that period of time throughout the summer of 1944, was Lassak the Police Director of that area?

A Yes.

Q What area did he cover there?

A In his capacity as police director, he was in charge of all the administrative police and the protective police.

Q In what area?

A In Giessen, including Bad Nauheim and Friedburg, as far as the police is concerned.

Q Were you in Giessen on the 3rd of October, 1944?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall an incident that day that involved you and some American flier?

A Yes.

Q Will you just tell the court what your part in the affair regarding this particular flier was?

A I had taken the flier away from the excited populace in order to take him along to police headquarters. Since an air raid alarm was going on, all the people were in the headquarters. In the entrance, Lassak was standing next to the door and told me to go down with the flier. I went on down and in the hallway, where it was a little bit dark, Lassak followed me and gave the flier a push so he would go to the side and he opened the door to the C.P. The whole staff, the whole air raid protection people, were there. I walked up to the table and reported to the commanding officer that I had taken the flier away from the populace on the Marburger Strasse. They were attempting to take the flier out of town. Upon that, the CO told me, "I haven't got any use for him. Take him on out." At that time something moved on the table and I turned around and saw that Lassak had walked behind us and had pushed the flier against me as he was walking over to the telephone in the corner. I went out to the hall right away, and after I had been standing there for a short period of time, Police Director Lassak came out and told me, "This guy goes to the Gestapo for interrogation," and there where the hallway was narrow again, he pushed the flier again. I went out to the exit and remained standing down there and a few minutes later he called for me to take the flier up, for the flier to come up. I went up there and there was somebody standing there, I don't know who it was, a Gestapo official, and he said, "Here he is," and he was supposed to go along to the Gestapo, but I went along behind them all the way to the Gestapo. There was several employees standing there already and they told him to go in for interrogation by Branner. I was standing there for a while and I just saw Branner making him stand next to the door and he asked me whether I had searched him for weapons. I said, "No," so they raised his hands up and searched him for weapons and as soon as they saw that several people were looking in as they were searching him, they closed the door. I then went on back to my office.

Q Did you see this flier any more yourself that day?

A No, I didn't see him any more.

Q What time of the day was it that you took him away from the civilian population?

A I can't give you the time, it must have been between 1 and 2 o'clock, but I can't tell you exactly.

Q How many people were in charge of the flier when you came up and took him away from them?

A 10 or 12.

Q Did you know them or who they were?

A There were — I don't know, I didn't know many of them. Kiefer was among them, but I think he just came with me, running over there. And since there were several men there, the man living in the house, Pfc. Willi Mahr, offered to assist me.

Q Was he a Wehrmacht soldier?

A He was.

Q Do you know whether any of this crowd of 10 or 12 were members of the Gestapo?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the ground the question is leading. I don't mind his telling who the crowd was.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Do you know to what organizations, if any, these 10 or 12 persons who had charge of the flier belonged to?

A The one who had the flier in the beginning?

Q Yes, that is right.

whether I had searched him for weapons. I said, "No," so they raised his hands up and searched him for weapons and as soon as they saw that several people were looking in as they were searching him, they closed the door. I then went on back to my office.

Q Did you see this flier any more yourself that day?

A No, I didn't see him any more.

Q What time of the day was it that you took him away from the civilian population?

A I can't give you the time, it must have been between 1 and 2 o'clock, but I can't tell you exactly.

Q How many people were in charge of the flier when you came up and took him away from them?

A 10 or 12.

Q Did you know them or who they were?

A There were — I don't know, I didn't know many of them. Kiefer was among them, but I think he just came with me, running over there. And since there were several men there, the man living in the house, Pfc. Willi Mahr, offered to assist me.

Q Was he a Wehrmacht soldier?

A He was.

Q Do you know whether any of this crowd of 10 or 12 were members of the Gestapo?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the ground the question is leading. I don't mind him telling who the crowd was.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR MAXON:

Q Do you know to what organizations, if any, these 10 or 12 persons who had charge of the flier belonged to?

A The one who had the flier in the beginning?

Q Yes, that is right.

A Men and women, all kinds of people.

Q Where were they taking the flier?

A Who?

Q These people, these 10 or 12 people.

A Well, there was several fires there due to the debris of the plane coming down, and they were trying to take him out of town. That is why somebody called me, I don't know why.

Q Did you feel that this flier was in danger and was that why you took him away from the people?

A Yes.

Q Did you think the public was going to lynch the flier or kill him?

A Yes, that is what I thought.

Q Now, in rescuing this flier, tell the court from whom you had orders to proceed in that kind of manner?

A We had orders from our office, from our headquarters, that we were supposed to take all fliers to our headquarters.

Q Your headquarters was in charge of the accused Julius Lassak, was it not?

A Yes.

Q During any time that Lassak was in charge of the police at Giessen, did you ever receive an order from him to shoot a flier?

A No.

Q Did you ever receive an order of any type to mistreat a flier from Lassak?

A No.

Q Did any of the other members of the police department that you belonged to ever receive such an order from Lassak that you heard of?

A No.

Q You did have an order to the contrary, though, to protect and take care of parachuted fliers, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Did Lassak ever tell you of having received orders from higher headquarters regarding the shooting of fliers?

A No.

Q Getting back to the time you brought this flier into the command post, that command post was in a bomb shelter, was it not?

A Yes.

Q You have mentioned here that on two or three different occasions Lassak pushed the flier. Will you just tell the court whether or not he did that to intend to injure the flier, or was it because of the narrowness of the hallway there?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the ground it calls for a conclusion.

PRESIDENT: On what ground? I didn't hear you.

CAPTAIN VANCE: It calls for a conclusion as to what mental operation was in Lassak's mind, what he intended to do by pushing him.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q What was the size of this hallway in which you and the flier and Lassak were proceeding?

A The hallway might have been one meter 30 to one meter 40 wide.

Q Tell the court why it was that Lassak apparently pushed this flier, from what you observed.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the same ground.

MAJOR SAXON: I will withdraw that question.

QUESTION BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Do you think, or could you tell by your observation, that Lassak pushed this flier with any intent to do any harm?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the same ground.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Did Lassak's actions in pushing this flier aside indicate on his part any malice or effort to do this flier harm?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the same ground.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Tell the court why it was necessary, if it was, to push this flier aside.

A Maybe he wanted to get through faster.

Q Was it with any intention to do him harm?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the same grounds as stated.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Did you see Lassak do this flier any harm?

A No.

Q Was the flier injured in any way while he was in your custody?

A In no way whatever.

Q Was he even searched for his personal effects or weapons of any kind?

A No.

End to 135
KB fols

Q Now, do you know what Lassak's general reputation was in Giessen for being a police official that attended strictly to his duty and performed it in accordance with instructions?

A It was all right. He was all right and he was just.

Q Did you ever hear of Lassak's in any way injuring, mistreating or insulting any fliers or prisoners of allied countries that were apprehended in his area?

A No.

Q Now, during the 15 months to a year and a half that you knew Lassak, did he ever attempt to induce you to join the SS or any part of the SS organization?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object to that as being immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent testimony.

MAJOR SAXON: Now, if it please the Court, one of the charges against Lassak here is that he is a member of this organization allegedly now found to be criminal. It's our effort here to show that while he was a member he took no active part and held no function and did not try to induce others to join, which we think goes to his defense.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Did you ever hear him speak to any other members of the Police Department along the line of inducing them to join the SS?

A No.

Q During the time that Lassak was Police Director in these three towns, was an allied flier or an allied prisoner of war ever shot or mistreated by any member of the police force which Lassak had charge of?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the grounds that this witness is not qualified to answer this question. The Court well knows that killings were held in secret places; therefore, this witness could not know.

MAJOR SAXON: If he knows he should be able to tell--if he does not he cannot.

PRESIDENT: Read the question, please.

(Thereupon the reporter read the question.)

PRESIDENT: The witness will answer the question. The objection is overruled.

WITNESS: No.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Musmk, this American flier that you captured on the 3rd of October, you didn't take that flier away from any Gestapo people, did you?

A No.

Q You took him away from, I believe, ten or twelve civilian people, among which were men, women and children, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And you took that flier in custody in an effort to protect his life--that's correct, isn't it?

A To protect his life, that's right.

Q And as you had been directed to deliver captured fliers to your police station, you took him to your police station?

A Yes.

Q And the only reason that the flier fell into the hands of the Gestapo is because Mr. Lassak directed him to be taken there--that's correct, isn't it?

MAJOR SAXON: Just a moment. I object to that question as calling for a conclusion of this witness and asking for something without the realm of his knowledge at all. I say that for this reason. He has testified already that he knows nothing about orders. They are asking about orders that came about. The Prosecution's effort here is to show some act of Lassak's. The evidence will take care of that as we go along.

PRESIDENT: Read the question, please.

(Whereupon the reporter repeated the question.)

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: Yes.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Now, you were asked if any killings took place in Julius Lassak's district in which police did the killing, and to which you answered "no"--is that correct?

A That's right.

Q Now, do you mean to state that there were no killings, or that you do not personally know of such killings?

A If something like that would have happened, we would have heard about it.

Q Now, what about under the Gestapo in that district--did you hear of any killings?

MAJOR SAXON: I object to that as not having any bearing on this accused. He was no member of the Gestapo. What the Gestapo did or what other persons did has nothing to do with this accused.

CAPTAIN VANCE: There is another accused, Leonard Branner, who is being tried in absentia. That is cross examination.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

INTERPRETER: Would you read the question, please?

(Whereupon the reporter read the question.)

MAJOR SAXON: Now, if it please the Court, that is beyond the realm of direct examination, for the further reason I object to this witness' being called on to answer that question. We have gone into nothing about the Gestapo.

PRESIDENT: The Court's decision stands.

WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You never have heard of any killings by the Gestapo?

A No.

Q Did you testify before this Court that you heard that this flier you captured was killed by Leonard Branner?

A I heard that later--weeks later.

Q Well, you have heard then of killings by the Gestapo?

A After this incident.

Q Now, Mr. Muenk, I believe you said that you considered Mr. Lassak a good police official, is that right?

A Yes.

Q He was the type of man that would receive orders from higher Headquarters and carry out those orders, wasn't he?

A Yes.

Q And he delivered orders to his subordinates and expected them to be obeyed, is that correct?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

MAJOR SAXON: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: Any questions by any member of the Court? No questions by the Court. The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

KARL ZIMMER, called as a witness by the Defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your full name, address, occupation, age and residence.

A Karl Zimmer, Giessen Am Riegelpfad 28, at this time a merchant. 54 years old.

Q Were you at one time a member of the Police Department in Giessen?

A Yes, I have been in Giessen since 7 October 1921.

Q Did you become a member of the police department there at that time?

A I was with the police.

Q And how long were you with the police there?

A I have been with the police ever since the first of July, 20.

Q And were you with the police up until the end of the war in that area?

A Yes.

Q Now were you a member of the NSDAP?

A Yes.

Q Were you ever a member of the SS organizations?

A No.

Q Were you a member of the Police Department there in Giessen throughout the year of 1944 and up until the end of the war?

A Yes.

Q Was Julius Lassak your commander there?

A Yes.

Q You know him, do you?

A Yes.

Q Could you identify him here in this court room?

A Yes.

Q Will you do so?

A Number 18.

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that this witness identified the accused, Julius Lassak, as number 18 in the accused's box.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Now, what was your particular duty there in 1944 and until the end of the war?

(Zimmer-Direct)

A I was air raid protection officer.

Q What rank did you hold as such?

A First Lieutenant of the protective police.

Q During that time was Hellwege-Emden a Lieutenant Colonel of the Police there?

A Yes.

Q And what was his position as regards Julius Lassak?

A Hellwege-Emden was the Commanding Officer of the protective police.

Q Was he the subordinate of Julius Lassak?

A The orders for the protective police which would come through the Police Director would be turned over to the Commanding Officer of the protective police and he would have to carry them out.

Q During 1944 and 1945, did you ever receive an order from Julius Lassak to mistreat or kill any allied fliers or prisoners of war which were apprehended in your area?

A No.

Q What were your instructions from Julius Lassak as regards allied fliers or prisoners of war that you took custody of?

A The orders were that we should turn them over to the troops of the Air Corps by way of the air raid protective police.

Q Was that done by the police of your unit there?

A The order?

Q When you would apprehend some flier or prisoner of war, was he turned over to the Wehrmacht and Luftwaffe?

(Zimmer-Direct)

A Well, we didn't have any to turn over except this one case. All other cases, the criminal police had them.

Q Do you recall--

DR. RAU: I object--ever, thing was not translated.

MAJOR SAXON: I ask the Court then to request the interpreter to translate it as he heard it.

PRESIDENT: Repeat the question.

(Thereupon the reporter read the question.)

WITNESS: We didn't have any other prisoners.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q I want to ask you, Herr Zimmer, if you didn't testify a little bit ago that your instructions were to turn them over to the Luftwaffe and Wehrmacht?

A Well, yes, but in Giessen it was handled this way--that we turn them over to the criminal police, and then they in civilian clothes would turn them over. That's the way we turned them in.

Q Now was there ever an incident, Herr Zimmer, within your knowledge in which the police of your department ever injured or mistreated an allied prisoner of war or flier?

A No, not in the area of Giessen.

Q Did you ever receive from Julius Lassak an order of any kind to mistreat or execute allied fliers when they were captured?

A No.

Q Do you know Julius Lassak's general reputation for being a good citizen and good police official in that area? You can answer that yes or no.

A Well, we didn't have any to turn over except this one case. All other cases, the criminal police had them.

Q Do you recall--

DR. RAU: I object--ever thing was not translated.

MAJOR SAXON: I ask the Court then to request the interpreter to translate it as he heard it.

PRESIDENT: Repeat the question.

(Thereupon the reporter read the question.)

WITNESS: We didn't have any other prisoners.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q I want to ask you, Herr Zimmer, if you didn't testify a little bit ago that your instructions were to turn them over to the Luftwaffe and Wehrmacht?

A Well, yes, but in Giessen it was handled this way--that we turn them over to the criminal police, and then they in civilian clothes would turn them over. That's the way we turned them in.

Q Now was there ever an incident, Herr Zimmer, within your knowledge in which the police of your department ever injured or mistreated an allied prisoner of war or flier?

A No, not in the area of Giessen.

Q Did you ever receive from Julius Lassak an order of any kind to mistreat or execute allied fliers when they were captured?

A No.

Q Do you know Julius Lassak's general reputation for being a good citizen and good police official in that area? You can answer that yes or no.

A I can't say anything of disadvantage to him.

Q The question is, do you know his general reputation for being a good citizen and a good police official?

A I have to answer this question yes, as far as I am concerned. Otherwise, I can't do it.

Q Well, was it good or bad?

A Towards me, good.

Q I am asking you, Herr Zimmer, what was his general reputation in the community--not whether it was good toward you, but was it good in the community?

A Well, I have to say frankly, that I didn't hear much about it.

Q Did you ever hear anything bad?

A No.

Q As I understood you to say, in your immediate area you turned fliers and captured prisoners of war over to the criminal police?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object, may it please the Court. He answered he had no prisoners of war and did not turn anybody over.

MAJOR SAXON: Maybe I am mistaken.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

INTERPRETER: Repeat the question, please.

WITNESS: We didn't actually turn any over. We only had one captured there by the protective police.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for 20 minutes.

(Whereupon at 1000 hours, the Court recessed.)

End ta 155

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1020 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent sick, all the accused, except Ley, number 15, and the accused Best, number 14, who are absent sick, the reporter and interpreter are present.

MAJOR SAXON: In order to maintain some order about the examination of these witnesses I have agreed with the prosecution that if the German counsel want to ask some questions, they ask them before cross examination.

PROSECUTION: That is agreeable with the prosecution.

KARL ZIMMER, called as a witness by the defense, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Zimmer, you were asked about the order as to what was to be done with captured allied fliers and you answered in Giessen they had some different arrangement, is that correct?

A No, I didn't say that.

Q What did you say, something in reference to Giessen particularly?

A That we transferred the captured enemy fliers to the Criminal Police to be handed over to the Air Force.

Q And Colonel Lassak gave you that instruction, is that correct?

A Not me personally. This order existed already and was passed on through the commander of the Order Police.

Q From whom did you get the order?

A From the commander of the Order Police.

Q Who is he?

A Hellwege-Emden.

Q Who is the superior to that officer?

A As far as the technical matters of the Order Police were concerned it was the inspector of the Order Police in Wiesbaden.

Q Who was his local commanding officer in Giessen?

A There was no superior officer; he was the highest one.

Q What was Mr. Lassak's position in Giessen?

A Police director.

Q Was he not over you?

A My position was an exceptional one because as an officer of the Air Raid Protection Police, the police department was my superior officer.

Q From whom did you receive your orders?

A As far as the Air Raid Protection is concerned, from the police department.

Q And as far as other matters, from this Hellwege-Emden?

A But I didn't work there because all my time was occupied by my work for the Air Raid Protection Police.

Q Did you ever hear of any contrary orders that Lassak gave about captured fliers?

A No.

Q Did you consider Lassak an efficient police officer?

A According to our standards, Lassak was not a police officer, -- he was a police director.

Q Would you say he was an efficient police director?

A Yes.

Q Was he a type of man who would receive orders and obey them?

A Yes.

Q Was he the type of man when he ordered a subordinate to do something he expected it to be done?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

MAJOR SAXON: If the court please, Dr. Rau, on behalf of General Stroop, wants to ask this witness a question.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAUD:

Q Do you know what the Criminal Police did with the fliers?

A The Criminal Police turned over the one flier I know about to the Air Force.

Q When did this happen?

A I don't know exactly; it must have been in 1944 but I don't know the date any more, -- or it was at the beginning of '45.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

PRESIDENT: There are no questions by the court. The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

OTTO RAU, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your full name, address, occupation, age and residence.

A Otto Rau, 57 years old, Giessen, police inspector.

Q How long have you been with the German Police Department in Giessen?

A Since 1935.

Q How long have you been in the police service in Germany?

A Since 1919.

Q Are you a member of the NSDAP?

A Yes.

Q How long have you been such a member?

A Since the first of May, 1937.

Q Were you ever a member of any of the SS organizations?

A No.

Q Are you acquainted with Julius Lassak?

A Yes.

Q Can you identify him here in the courtroom?

A Yes, number 18.

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Julius Lassak as number 18 in the accused's box.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q When did you first know Julius Lassak?

A In January, 1944.

Q In what capacity did you first know him?

A I worked in the administration and I was in charge over his office.

Q Were you a subordinate to Julius Lassak?

A Yes.

Q What were your particular duties there?

A I was in charge of personal matters of the administrative police, I took care of commercial matters, and I was in charge of price supervision.

Q Were you there continuously up to the end of the war?

A Yes.

Q Julius Lassak was your superior continuously until the end of the war?

A Yes, from '44.

Q During this period of time did you ever see any orders received by Julius Lassak regarding the treatment or disposition of fliers or allied prisoners of war?

A No.

(Rau-Direct)

Q Did you ever receive from Lassak any orders regarding the treatment of fliers or allied prisoners of war after they had been apprehended?

A No.

Q During the time 1944 and 1945 was there to your knowledge any allied flier or prisoner of war ever mistreated or executed by the police over whom Lassak had control?

A No, I don't know of any.

Q Had such a thing happened there would you have known of it?

A I would have heard about it.

Q Do you happen to know what Julius Lassak's orders were regarding the disposition of fliers or allied prisoners of war?

A No, I don't know that. I had nothing to do with that.

Q Do you know what Julius Lassak's general reputation was in that vicinity for being not only a good citizen but a fair and just police officer? You can answer that yes or no.

A Yes.

Q Was it good or bad?

A You can say good.

Q Did Julius Lassak ever suggest to you or request that you join the SS?

A No.

Q Did he talk of the SS and its operations in any way at all to you?

A No.

Q Did he ever attempt to enforce his will on you or any other members of the police department because he happened to be a member of the SS?

A No.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

(Neu-Direct)

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Tau, do you know the meaning of an oath?

A Yes.

Q In your answer to the fact that there were no killings of allied fliers that took place in Julius Lassak's district, do you mean to swear that there were not any killings or that you do not know of such killings?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, the question was directed to him as to these members of the police department that Lassak had control of. If it please the court, I think the prosecution's question is too wide.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I will restate the question.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Do you mean to say that there were no killings by members of the police under Julius Laasak, or do you mean to state that you do not have any knowledge of such killings?

A I don't know anything about such killings.

Q There could have been such killings happen without your knowing about them. That is right, is it not?

A Yes, they could have happened but I would have heard about it later through talk about it.

Q Did you hear of any killings being executed by the Gestapo?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I object to that question as going beyond the field of direct examination and beyond the scope of direct examination on this charge.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

FRITZ AUGUST HAST, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your full name, address, occupation, age and residence.

A Frits August Hast, 53 years old, Friedberg in Hessen. I was captain of the police.

Q Herr Hast, when did you first join the police department in Germany?

A 1st of September, 1919.

Q Was that your work continuously up until the end of the war?

A Yes.

Q Where were you so employed?

A I was in charge of the police office at Friedberg.

(Hast-Direct)

Q Who was your commanding officer?

A At the end, SS Colonel Lassak.

Q You mean through the year 1944-45?

A Yes.

Q Do you know Julius Lassak?

A Number 18.

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that this witness identified the accused Julius Lassak, number 18, in the accused's box.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Were you continuously the ceptain of the police in Friedberg through 1944 and 1945 during the war?

A Yes.

Q During that time what instructions did you receive, if any, from Julius Lassak, as to the disposition you should make of allied fliers and prisoners of war?

A The official order was that parachuted enemy fliers should be taken into custody but protected against the population and should be handed over to the Wehrmacht;later on, we got an additional order, "without interrogation."

Q Just tell the court what you mean by "without interrogation."

A We were not allowed to interrogate these fliers about their personal duty and purpose, where they came from and so forth.

Q I see. Did you ever receive any contrary orders to these and what you have just stated, from Julius Lassak?

A No.

Q During your term of office there in 1944, did you have occasion to apprehend an allied flier or more?

A Yes.

Q Will you just tell the court the situation, what you did in connection with this flier?

A It might have been in May or June, 1944, and a four-motor bomber crashed at Bayernheim near Friedberg. I saw it happen from the police office because the police office is located on a pretty high ground and I saw through my glasses two fliers who parachuted in the neighborhood of Dorheim. One of them stayed on the ground, the other one got up. I thought that this one flier was wounded and ordered the medical troop which was assigned to me to pick up the wounded flier. He had one shot through his chest and one through the upper leg. I had him taken over to the hospital at Bad Nauheim. That was done in accordance with the order which I had received, although I had no jurisdiction any more over the place where this wounded flier had parachuted.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAROS:

Q Who had jurisdiction over the particular area where this flyer came down?

A It was part of the County Friedberg. It was under the jurisdiction of the rural police.

Q Were either of these parachuted flyers injured by any of the population or the police after they came to earth?

A No.

Q What disposition was made of the flyer who was not injured?

A He was taken into custody by the rural police and was handed over to the Wehrmacht.

Q Herr Rust, did you have a little trouble with someone from the Kreisleiter's office regarding the disposition of the flyers sometime in the summer of 1944?

A Yes.

Q Will you just tell the court about that?

A It might have been in June, 1944. There was called by the Stabsamtsleiter Hemschal of the Kreisleiter Friedberg that from now on parachuted flyers had to be transferred to the Kreisleiter. I declined that for the reason that I had different orders from the command of the protective police and from the police director at Giessen. Then he told me that the Gauleiter was at the same time the Reichs Kommissar for the defense and therefore I was under his jurisdiction in this matter. Anyway I declined this order.

Q When you mentioned that you had contrary orders, were these orders from Julius Lassak's headquarters in Giessen?

A From the police director at Giessen.

Q The order you spoke of relative to the matter in which you treated the wounded flyer, did that order come to you from Julius Lassak?

(Mast-direct)

A Yes. Based on the orders which he had given.

Q Let me ask you, Herr Rust, whether you were a member of the NSDAP?

A Yes. The first of May 1933.

Q Were you ever a member of the SS or any of the subsidiary organizations?

A No.

Q During the time that you served under Julius Lassak did he ever attempt to induce you to join the SS?

A No.

Q Did he ever talk to you about the SS in any capacity?

A No.

Q Do you know Julius Lassak's general reputation in the area which you served as being a good citizen and also a fair and just police officer?

A I got to know the SS Colonel Lassak in office as a just and fair official.

Q Did you, at any time, hear of Lassak authorising the mistreatment or ordering the execution of any allied flyers or prisoners-of-war?

A No.

Q How far was Friedberg from Giessen?

A Twenty-nine kilometers.

Q How far was Friedberg from Bad Nauheim?

A That might be 27 kilometers.

Q Lassak's jurisdiction just extended to those three towns?

A Yes. Giessen, Bad Nauheim and Friedberg.

Q What was the number of personnel that served at Friedberg under you?

A Thirty.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the accused Rost, Number 14 has resumed his place in the dock.

MAJOR SAMON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Hast I believe you stated that you were Police Captain back in 1944. What is your position today?

A Today I am without profession.

Q Are you employed?

A No.

Q On the occasion when you had the two flyers, the injured one which you say you sent to the hospital and the other one to the Wehrmacht, did you call Colonel Lassak?

A In regard to every incident a report was made to Giessen.

Q Was that afterwards or before disposition was made of the flyer?

A Afterwards.

Q So you sent that injured flyer to the hospital on your own initiative and not upon instructions of Colonel Lassak, is that correct?

A No, on account of this order.

Q What order?

A That we should take into custody parachuted flyers and should hand them over to the air force and in this case, the man was wounded, to the hospital.

Q And Colonel Lassak told you what to do with injured flyers?

A No. I drew this conclusion. When a soldier is wounded I have to see that he gets the right treatment.

Q You wanted to see the flyers get right treatment, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q So Colonel Lassak can't take credit for this man going to the hospital?

A I wouldn't say that because if he would have given another order--anyway he would have gone to the hospital.

(Next cross)

Q If Colonel Lassak had given you contrary instructions to deliver this flyer or these two flyers to the Gestapo or for interrogation, what would you have done?

A We had no Gestapo at Friedberg. We had the order to deliver them to the Wehrmacht.

Q I am going to ask you to answer my question. Suppose Colonel Lassak had ordered you to deliver these two flyers to the Gestapo Chief at Giessen, what would you have done?

MAJOR SAXON: I object to that question as being beyond the scope of direct examination. I don't think it is a fair question to the witness anyway.

PRESIDENT: Will you repeat the question?

(Whereupon the reporter repeated the last question as directed.)

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You consider, or did consider Colonel Lassak as a good police official didn't you?

A Yes.

Q Would yo say that he was the type of man that would receive instructions from his higher headquarters and carry them out explicitly?

A Yes.

Q If he gave orders to his subordinates, was he the type of man who expected those orders to be carried out explicitly?

A Definitely.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q In order to clear up some little question here Herr Rust. When you took this wounded man to the hospital did I understand you to say, originally, that you were acting on a standing order given you by Julius Lassak?

A I drew the conclusion from the standing order I had.

Q Now suppose you had captured a flyer within the city limits of Friedburg who was not wounded, what was your standing order from Lassak as to his disposition?

A He had to be protected against the population and had to be handed over without interrogation to the Wehrmacht at Friedberg. There was the 36th Infantry Regiment at Friedberg.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q On the occasion that you had these two flyers, it is a fact, isn't it, that Colonel Lassak didn't even know that you had these flyers at all until after you had disposed of them and made your report?

A Yes, but in this case I was acting in behalf of the police director Lassak who had to carry out this order.

Q Well, can you answer the question. Did he even know you had them until after you----

A No, he couldn't know it.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

MAJOR SAXON: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

MAJOR SAXON: Send in Hack.

CONRAD HACK, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your full name, address, occupation, age and residence.

A Conrad Hack; 52 years old; engineer; Weiden, Upper Pallantate.

Q Is that your residence at this time? [illegible] can you state to [illegible] since 1948. [illegible]

Q Do you know the accused Julius Lasek?

A Yes.

Q Can you identify him here in the courtroom?

A Yes. [illegible] was good. He was a railroad inspector.

Q Will you do so?

A Number 18 (Indicating).

MAJOR BARNES: Let the record show that the witness identified the accused Julius Lasek by pointing him out as number 18 in the prisoners dock.

Q In what relationship did you know Julius Lasek?

A I got to know Julius Lasek in 1935, 1936 when he came to the railroad administration at Regensburg as an assistant. I was in charge there.

Q Have you known him, more or less, from there on up until the end of the war, I don't know more.

A Until 1940 when I was transferred to France. Since then I didn't hear from him anymore.

Q During that period of four or five years that you know him you were fellow railroad employees, is that right?

A Yes, we didn't say that.

Q Did you know that Lassak was a member of the SS?

A Yes, from his personal appearance and when I saw him in uniform.

Q Did he, ever, at that time and during that period of time, attempt to induce you to join the SS?

A No, we [illegible]

Q Did he ever bring the subject up with you at all?

A No, we [illegible]

Q Did you belong to the NSDAP?

A Yes, I [illegible]

Q During this period of time that you knew Lasnek can you state to this court whether or not you knew his general reputation and character in that community as being good or bad as a citizen?

A Yes.

Q What was it?

A His reputation was good. He was a railroad inspector.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Koch, you know Mr. Lasnek in 1935 and 1936, but I believe you said that you lost contact with him in 1940, is that right?

A Approximately when I returned from Poland in 1942 I was transferred to Weiden.

Q You don't know what he has been doing since 1940 do you?

A No, I don't know that.

Q You don't know anything about his reputation since 1940?

A No.

Q You wouldn't attempt to tell the court whether it was good or bad since 1940, would you?

A No, I couldn't say that.

Q How did you know he was a member of the SS?

A First from his personal records and then I saw him in uniform.

Q He was wearing the SS uniform back in 1935 and 1936?

A Yes, on special occasions.

Q What was his rank at that time?

A As far as I can remember he was an SS Colonel.

Q That was during 1935 and 1936?

A Definitely 1936.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

MAJOR SAXON: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness is excused.

(Koch-cross)

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

MAJOR SAMOS: Now, if it please the court, in order to make an orderly presentation of this accused's case I have attempted to call upon one more witness, Helwege-Emden, who fits in at this place. He has been ordered over a week ago. I was informed that he was here Friday and then I was later informed that he got as far as Munich. We have been constantly in touch with the Apprehension Section in Augsburg and up until a few moments ago he wasn't available. I would like a short recess, at this time, so that I can call Augsburg again and find out whether or not I am going to get that witness at all.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess.

(Thereupon the court recessed at 1115 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1330 Hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Sir, before the court goes into the evidence, may I ask if the court intends to sit tomorrow, Lincoln's birthday.

PRESIDENT: It has not been declared a holiday, as far as I have been able to determine. We can figure on sitting.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: It lies within the power of the court, does it not, sir, to give proper respect to such an occasion?

PRESIDENT: We will convene at the usual time.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the court, the defense has so far been unable to find the witness Helwege-Enden, whom we are very anxious to have. We are going to proceed with the defense to Charge 3 without him, but I would like to have the right to introduce his evidence if and when he can be found. I would like to know if that is permissible to the court.

CAPTAIN VANCE: It is agreeable to the prosecution.

PRESIDENT: No objection on the court's part.

MAJOR SAXON: In this Charge the accused Lassak is going to take the stand in his own defense, and we desire to call the court's attention to the fact that the court should apprise the accused, I believe, of their rights when they take the stand. It has been the thought of defense counsel that they might be apprised en bloc, as they are sitting in the accused's box. That would save repetition.

PRESIDENT: That was done at the beginning of the trial. The record will so show.

MAJOR SAXON: That slipped me, if it please the court. I did not know that. Julius Lassak.

JULIUS LASSAK, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q For the record, state your name, age, and present domicile.

A Julius Lassak; prisoner of war. At that time I was present in Dachau.

Q You are one of the accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q What is your age?

A Fifty-nine years.

Q When were you born?

A On 28 May 1887.

Q And where?

A In Gross Goschitz, in Upper Silesia.

Q What is your nationality?

A German.

Q Are you married?

A Yes.

Q Where does your wife reside?

A My wife resides in Schwandorf, in the Upper Palatinate.

Q Of what does the rest of your family consist?

A Of two sons.

Q Where are they?

A One of them returned home sick from Russian captivity, and the other one still is a Russian prisoner of war.

Q What has been your lifetime occupation?

A My profession was that of a technical chief inspector of the Reich railroads.

Q When did you first go with the railroad?

A In 1913.

Q Has that always been your occupation up until the time of the war?

A Until the beginning of the war I was technical Reich railroad chief inspector.

Q Where were you located immediately before the war started?

A At the headquarters of the Reich railroad at Regensburg.

Q Were you a member of the NSDAP?

A Yes.

Q When did you join that organization?

A 1925.

Q Were you a member of the Allgemeine SS?

A Yes.

Q When did you join that organization?

A 1926.

(Lassak - Direct)

Q Did you have any function or official position in the Allgemeine SS?

A From 1934 until 1936 I was tried out as an SS Colonel in Detmold.

Q What happened to that trial?

A I was tested as to whether I'd be capable of being taken in the SS as a main occupation.

Q How did that finally end?

A I was demoted to a technical sergeant in Spring of 1936.

Q Since that time and up until the war ended, what was your rank or title, as it may be called in the Allgemeine SS?

A In 1937 I was put back. I got my rights back and I became an SS Colonel again.

Q Did that carry with it any command responsibilities or functions?

A Yes. In December 1940, when the commanding officer of the SS regiment in Regensburg was drafted, I honorarily received the command of this regiment.

Q What were your duties there?

A My duties were the welfare of the relatives of SS men killed in action, and of the wives of SS men at the front, and the taking care of the SS hospitals.

Q Did you receive any pay or compensation for this work?

A No. That was honorary.

Q Did your rank as Colonel carry with it any pay or other stipend of any kind?

A No.

Q Prior to 1944 did you have any other position other than working for the railroad from which you earned a living?

A Yes, when I became the temporary colonel in Detmold.

Q That ended in 1936. After that time did you receive any pay?

A No.

Q Were you ever in the police service of Germany prior to January of 1944?

A No.

Q At that time what police service did you undertake?

A From the 1st of October until the 31st of December I had received my orientation at the police headquarters in Regensburg.

Q Tell the court what brought that about. Was that a voluntary request of yours or were you ordered there?

A No. In accordance with orders of the Reichsfuehrer of the SS.

Q Where did you go after you had taken this orientation and training?

A On the 11th of January, 1944, I was then transferred to Giessen.

Q Did you take your family there with you?

A No.

Q When you went to Giessen, what was your position there?

A I was police director in Giessen.

Q Referring you to the large wall chart that has been offered into evidence here as Defense Exhibit 2, can you point out to the court your position on that chart?

A Yes.

Q Will you do so?

(Whereupon the witness left the witness stand and assumed a position near Defense Exhibit 2.)

A (Witness indicates.)

PRESIDENT: Let the record show what he pointed to.

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that the witness has pointed to the square known as "Polizeidirektoren", which appears down on the left-hand lower part of the chart known as Defense Exhibit 2.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Calling your attention to the square immediately below, which says "Kommandeur der Schupo", who held the position that that square represents?

A That was the Lieutenant Colonel of the Police Helwege-Emden.

Q Calling your attention to the two arrows that point off from the square you have just identified, tell the court what they represent?

A This arrow here (indicating) represents the organization of the districts.

What does the other one represent?

A I, as police director, was also the acting chief of the air raid protection service, and as such I had under me the air raid police and the fire protection police.

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that the witness has identified the three squares which are joined with the Kommandeur der Schupo, called the Polizeireviere, the Feuerschutzpolizei, and the Luftschutzpolizei.

(Lassak - Direct)

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Now, Herr Lassak, is the Polizeireviere the same as the Schutzpolizei?

A Yes. Those are the Reviere--the districts of the Schutzpolizei.

Q Who was your immediate commanding officer?

A My immediate commanding officer--I had several of these. The Reichsstatthalter Sprenger was my immediate superior. Also in his capacity as Reich defense commissioner Gauleiter Sprenger was my immediate commanding officer. On top of that, the main office of the Regular Police and the chief of the Regular Police.

Q Who was in command at that time of the Orpo?

A The commanding officer of the Orpo was at first General Hilla, and later on Colonel Niemann.

Q I ask to have you recheck that, Herr Lassak. Do you mean that General Niemann was of the Orpo or of the HDO?

A The HDO. Of the Regular Police.

Q Go ahead and tell the court who else were your various commanders?

A An immediate commanding officer was also the chief of the Regular Police, General Kunnenberg, and then the Higher SS and Police Leader General Stroop.

Q Were there any other sources that you received orders from than those you have now mentioned?

A I could also receive orders from the Gauleiter.

Q Could you receive orders directly from these various sources that you have mentioned?

A Yes.

(Whereupon the accused resumed the witness stand.)

Q Calling your attention again to this chart, which is known as Defense Exhibit 8, what was your relationship with the Kreisleiter as far as your functions were concerned?

A The Kreisleiter was a deputy of the Gauleiter, and in view of the fact that the Gauleiter was also Reich defense commissioner, the Kreisleiter also attempted to take the Gauleiter's place in that capacity.

Q Who was the Kreisleiter in the Giessen area when you were there?

A That was Kreisleiter Brusk.

Q Besides being Kreisleiter, did he hold any other office?

A No. He was only a Kreisleiter.

Q Who was the Landrats in that particular area?

A I don't know the name.

Q Do you recall the name of the Oberburgermeister?

A No, I don't either.

Q When you went to Giessen as the Poliseidirekterem, tell the court just what your area of command consisted of there.

A My area included Giessen, Bad Nauheim, and Friedberg.

Q Did you have any area outside of these cities?

A No.

Q How many officers and policemen were under your command in Giessen?

A There was Lieutenant Colonel Holwege-Emden, one captain of the protective police as his deputy, two first lieutenants as district commanders, one first lieutenant an an air raid officer, and in addition one captain each in every district in Bad Nauheim and Friedberg.

Q What number did the personnel amount to, first, in Giessen?

A Between 40 and 50, approximately.

Q What was the number of personnel you had in Friedberg?

A Between 35 and 30.

Q And in Bad Nauheim?

A The same.

Q Will you just tell the court what your duties were over this area consisting of these three towns?

A Primarily I was a local air raid protection commander. I was responsible for all measures for air raid protection in the three towns. Then, further, I was police director in an administrative capacity. Then I was the chief of the protective police, who had to obey my orders concerning action.

Q That was Lieutenant Colonel Helwege-Emden, was it?

A Yes.

Q In the summer of 1944 did you receive any orders from any source relative to the future disposition of fliers or enemy prisoners of war that may fall into your hands?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall how many such orders you received?

A As far as I remember there were three such orders, but there might have been more.

Q Do you recall approximately the date that these three orders or a similar number were received by you?

A I can't remember it according to dates.

Q Do you know what month you received them in?

A It might have been towards the end of August or the beginning of September.

Q How did you receive these orders? In what manner did they come to you?

A By insured mail.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAKON:

Q To whom were they addressed?

A To the Giessen Police Director.

Q What did you do with these orders when you received them?

A After I received these orders, particularly the three orders concerning enemy fliers, I destroyed them.

Q How quickly after receiving them did you destroy them?

A Immediately.

Q In what manner?

A By tearing them up and destroying them with a match in an ash tray.

Q Did you ever show these orders to anyone in your command?

A No.

Q Did you ever tell anyone in your command the contents of these orders?

A No.

Q Going back to the early part of your command of these three towns in the Sehutzpolizei, what instructions did you have earlier in 1944 as to the disposition of fliers and prisoners of war who came into your hands?

A I had received an order that the fliers would be turned over to the armed forces.

Q Did you convey that particular instruction to your subordinates?

A Yes.

Q Was that the procedure that was followed in your area by your subordinates up until October 8, 1944?

A Yes.

Q Prior to October 3, 1944 had you had any requests made to you by anybody such as the Gestapo or Kreisleiter, to turn over to them fliers or prisoners of war?

A Yes.

Q Will you tell the court just when that was?

A The first case was on the 3rd of October at 12:00 o'clock noon and the second case between 1:00 and 2:00 P.M.

Q I mean, did you have any such requests prior to that time?

A No.

Q After you received these three orders in August and September 1944 did you ever have occasion to attempt to tell anyone the contents of these orders until you were interviewed sometime in the summer of 1945 by the American army?

A No.

Q At this interrogation which was held on the 7th of August 1947 were you then requested at that time to attempt to remember the contents of these orders?

A Yes.

Q At no other time, for two years, had you been requested to recall these orders, is that correct?

A No.

Q Where were you at the time the war ended?

A I was captured on the 8th of May 1945 in Wassertrompten in the Sudeten area.

Q Where were you taken after your capture?

A I was locked up in jail in Neiden after I was captured.

Q How long did you remain there?

A I remained there until the 28th of May.

(Lassak-direct)

Fa 139 SO
pls/3

Q Then where were you taken?

A On the 28th of May I was taken to the internment camp of Natternberg near Deggendorf.

Q How long did you remain at Natternberg?

A I remained in Natternberg until the 23rd of June 1946.

Q Shortly after you arrived at Natternbergwere you interrogated by any member of the American forces?

A Yes, in August '45.

Q Were you interrogated more than once at that time?

A I was interrogated once only.

Q Do you know the name or names of the person or persons who interrogated you?

A I only knew the Chief of the SIS, that was Lt. Sichel.

Q He was in charge of the SIS at Natternberg?

A Yes.

Q Was he the one who actually interrogated you or was it one of his agents?

A No, he was just the Chief.

Q Was a record made of your interrogation at that time?

A As far as I remember it wasn't.

Q Were you asked to sign any written papers at that time?

A No.

Q What were you interrogated in regard to at that time?

A About my position as SS Colonel and Police Director.

Q Were you interrogated regarding any other matters at that time?

A Yes, about how many people I had killed in the concentration camp; how many Jews I had hanged; how many people were murdered upon my orders and how many were sent to the concentration camp upon my orders.

(Lasak-direct)

Q Tell the court the punishment you went through during that day of your interrogation.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, we object on the grounds it is immaterial. The interrogation he is talking about he said was not reduced to writing, he did not sign that document, it is not before this court, so any means or methods used at that interrogation are immaterial and have no bearing on this case since nothing in regard to that interrogation has been brought before this court.

MAJOR SAXON: Now I will tell the court why I want to do this. It is the contention of the accused here and the defense that two subsequent statements were procured from this accused which are now in evidence here and were procured with this man in great fear, with his being and having been previously mistreated, and this is the foundation to show the reason why, as well as to point out to the court as we go along here, errors that appear in these two statements of his. This is the foundation for the basis of that build up. I think that counsel for the prosecution has urged this court many times that an accused can be asked anything under the whole wide world and this man is on the stand now and he is going to be asked everything the court will permit me to.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I should like to state one more ground, may it please the court -- that he suggested to the witness that he was tortured in some manner. This witness has not mentioned he was mistreated in any manner up until this time.

MAJOR SAXON: I will correct the question and withdraw the previous question.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q On the interrogation in 1946 in Hatternberg, will you tell the court what time of day that interrogation started?

A It was in the afternoon, 4:00 o'clock.

Q Now, will you just tell the court how many people interrogated you?

A Two persons interrogated me, Lt. Siebel whenever he was present and one of his agents. Later on another American soldier appeared.

Q Just tell the court what happened to you during this interrogation.

A When I answered the questions by "no" I was told to go to the corner of the room. I received a weight in each of my hands, seven and a half kilograms each. I had to do knee bends for half an hour. When I couldn't do it anymore I collapsed unconscious. Water was poured down my throat. When I got up again I received a blow in the face, on the chin that is, thus losing this tooth here (indicating) and the tooth above it. When I collapsed the second time I was kicked with the feet and trampled upon. When I got up again the official loaded the pistol in my presence and said, "I'll shoot you, you dog." When I couldn't get out anymore I was carried out. I don't know what else happened to me.

Q How long did this interrogation last?

A One hour.

Q Where were you when you later regained consciousness?

A When I regained consciousness I was lying in the barracks in my bed.

Q Were you ever interrogated again at this place?

A No.

Q You were not asked to sign or make any statement at this time?

A No.

A Yes.

Q Is that a photostatic copy of the statement you made and which is now in evidence here?

A Yes.

Q Calling your attention to this exhibit, this question was put to you and this answer given by you, as found on page 8:

"Q What was the order to which the Kreisleiter was referring?"

Your answer:

"A One order was signed by the Reichsstatthalter Sprenger which ran as follows: 'Lately many hostile agents are coming down by parachute and are doing a lot of damage behind the lines. Such fliers as come down by parachute and are captured by civilians are to be turned over either to the Party or to the Gestapo.'"

Is that one of the three orders that you testified to a little earlier?

A Yes.

Q And is that answer given from your memory of the order you destroyed two years before?

"Q What was the other order?

A The other order came from the head of the SD, the Higher SS Police Chief, Wehrkreis XII, Wiesbaden, stating about the same thing with the difference that these fliers had to be turned over to the Gestapo.

(Lesch-direct)

Q Who signed that order?

A This order was signed either by Somann or his successor.

Q When was it issued?

A This order had been issued in August or before.

Q Was there not an order to the effect that these fliers had to be executed?

A Yes.

Q Give us the details of that order.

A That was a very short order which stated about as follows: 'Emergency landed fliers are to be shot.'

Q Now, all these orders, these orders and the third one you referred to here -- you attempted to quote strictly from memory, did you not?

A Yes, I kept emphasising that I was stating these orders merely according to their gist.

Q Did you advise the interrogator at that time that it was merely from memory?

A I pointed out to him that they ought to give me time to think it over.

Q What did they say to that?

A The official didn't give me any time.

Q I hand you what has been marked Prosecution Exhibit No. 56 and ask you to state what it is, if you know.

A That is my own statement.

Q When did you make that?

A On July 11, 1946.

Q Where did you make that?

A I made that in the police jail in Giessen.

(Lassak-direct)

Q Was that the first statement that you made of any kind since the time you made the one in Natternberg the year before?

A Yes.

Q What was said to you preliminary to your making this statement?

A Before I made the statement I was first pushed into a cell which was filthy all over and I was told by the official to "think it over" and I'd be interrogated by the Giessen CIC at 2:00 A.M. and if the statement wouldn't come out the way he had talked it over with me, then there would be a rope thrown into my cell and if I didn't hang soon thereafter two negroes would take care of it.

Q What else was said?

A Then he told me he would like to have a statement by tomorrow morning.

Q Did he give you a paper and pencil and tell you to write out a statement?

A Yes.

A That I shot fliers, that I gave orders to shoot the fliers.

Q Did he tell you how many fliers you were supposed to have shot and how many orders you were supposed to have given to that effect?

A Yes.

Q How many?

A He said that up to now fourteen fliers had been shot.

Q When he put you in that cell, did you remember at that time what had happened to you up in Natternberg a year before?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object to him leading the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

Q What was your feeling about the future treatment you expected to get there in Wiesbaden?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the same ground, he is leading the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Were you in fear of personal bodily injury when you were put in that cell that night and told to write this statement?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object, he is leading the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I don't mind your asking him how he felt. Let him tell, don't suggest it to him.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q How did you feel when you went in that cell that night?

A Not well.

Q And what did you anticipate?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object, he is leading the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Why did you not feel good when you went into that cell that night?

A Because the picture of Natternberg kept re-appearing in my mind.

Q What happened the next morning?

A The next morning the officer came into my cell and after he had read the statement, he struck a blow in the area of my heart and I collapsed, with the words, "You German pig, you violated the Geneva Convention."

Q What did he do then?

A Then he took me along to Wiesbaden again.

Q And you remained at Wiesbaden then for some time?

A I remained in Wiesbaden until the 28th of August.

Q Then where did you go to?

A Then I went to Dachau.

Q Now, while you were still in Wiesbaden, were you called upon to give this statement, which is known as Prosecution Exhibit No. 57, a question and answer form statement?

A Yes.

Q Where was that statement taken?

A In Wiesbaden, in the prison.

Q How did you feel when you were called on to give this statement?

A Same as in Giessen.

Q Do you mean you did not feel good, is that right?

A No.

Q Why didn't you feel good?

A Because I had fears of being beaten again, which actually did happen.

Q Were you beaten again in Wiesbaden?

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SALOM:

Q Getting back to the 3rd of October, 1944, when did you first

[illegible]

[illegible] there was a flier in your command post or police station?

A When I returned from the scene of the accident where two enemy planes, enemy bombers, had crash-landed, [illegible] previous return you had received upon your coming back from there?

A I returned from there and went to my headquarters.

Q Who told you about this flier when you first arrived at your headquarters? Not when this flier was being turned over, because that was not an official of the Secret State Police.

Q [illegible] first told you.

A This official said that he had first captured the flier and upon that Police Sergeant Hunk came and took the flier into custody.

Q Did you receive a phone call from anyone about that time regarding this flier and of his war, did you ever pass on to anyone the instructions you received from the SSPS chief or Criminal Official Winzer?

A What did he tell you?

A He said that his official had reported to him that he had captured the flier and that Police Sergeant Hunk had taken his away from him and that he needed him for interrogation.

A What did you do then after he told you that?

A I told Police Sergeant Hunk to turn this flier back over to the Gestapo men, because it was not a prisoner of war but of the Gestapo, and also instructed Sergeant Hunk to accompany him to the SSPS place.

A Was anything said to you by anyone at that time or later that day that this flier was going to be shot, or might be shot, or like, what instructions had you given them as to how to dispose of them?

A What did you turn this flier over to the Gestapo for, for that purpose? [illegible] applicable even more strictly after the attack for interrogation, just like Criminal Official Winzer had told me he needed the man for interrogation[illegible] officer, Lt. Col. Helmuth [illegible]. Q Was there any other reason that you dropped this flier over to the Gestapo?

A No.

Q Had you given any thought at all to these previous orders you had received and destroyed?

A Yes, I had to give thought to them.

Q In conjunction with turning over this particular flier?

A No, not when this flier was being turned over, because that was not my prisoner.

Q You were turning him over principally because he was first a prisoner of the Gestapo, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Now, during your tenure in office there from January, 1944, up until the end of the war, did you ever give out to anyone the instructions you received in these three orders you destroyed?

A No.

Q Did you ever give directly to any of your subordinates an order that American fliers or Allied fliers and prisoners of war would be mistreated or shot?

A No.

Q Did any of the Schutzpolizei or any of the subordinate police under your command ever mistreat or kill a flier in your area while you were in command there?

A No.

Q Now, when fliers did come into the hands of your police, what instructions had you given them as to how to dispose of them?

A Primarily to take the fliers into custody and protect them from the excited populace. I made this order applicable even more strictly after the attack on Darmstadt.

Q Was it necessary for your executive officer, Lt. Col. Holunga-Emden, to report to you the capture and the turning over to the Wehrmacht or Luftwaffe of Allied fliers?

A It was not, because they came through message center channels.

Q Did you have to keep any written record of how many were captured and turned over to the Wehrmacht or Luftwaffe?

A No.

Q Did you have to even so much as get a receipt when you turned them over to the Wehrmacht or Luftwaffe?

A Yes, we did get a receipt every time.

Q Coming back to Prosecution Exhibit 57 and going on to Page 5 therein, I want to ask you regarding this question and the answer that you gave. Near the bottom of the page, a question was put to you as follows:

"Q Did you know what was going to happen to this flier once he had been turned over to the Gestapo?
A I realized very well that this flier would be shot, too, because there was an order to that effect."

The next question and answer are as follows:

"Q Why did you not deliver this flier to a PW camp?
A Because there was an order from the head of the SD stating that captured fliers had to be turned over to the Gestapo."

The next question:

"Q At that time, were you aware of the order that these fliers were to be shot?
A Yes."

Did you hear those questions, and did you make those answers?

A Yes, under influence.

Q Just explain to this court what you mean by influence.

A I was weighing 97 pounds, I had heart cramps at night on account of the blows directed at the heart and I decided to answer the questions in the way the CIC man wanted me to, because everything was all the same to me in that day.

Q Did he tell you how to make these answers?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. He is leading the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

you turned this flier over to Hinter that you knew this flier was going to be shot?

CAPTAIN WEBER: Some objection, may it please the court.

[illegible]: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q When you received these orders in August of 1944, will you tell the court what you understood and understand to this time was the intention of those orders so far as the disposition of Allied fliers was concerned?

A My opinion was that these fliers in accordance with the two existing orders, were to be turned over to the Party or to the Gestapo. They would be turned over to the armed forces after the interrogation, and if it was found out that they were agents or spies, they would be shot by some army headquarters.

Q What did you understand about who would determine whether they were agents or spies, and if they were so determined, what process would be had before they were shot?

A Well, my opinion is that the Gestapo would have made a written report and sent it to the proper Army headquarters.

(CAPTAIN Hinert)

Q And how would that be acted on from there on?

A And they might have been shot after the trial by summary court there.

Q Did you have any idea at all when you turned over this flier on Winser's order on the 3rd of October, 1944, that he might be shot?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. It is leading.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q When you turned this flier over to the Gestapo; that is, to Winser on his order there in Giessen on the 3rd of October, 1944, what did you think was going to happen to him at all events?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. It is leading. He is leading him to the fact that Winser ordered it.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

A He would be interrogated.

Q And then what would happen to him?

A He would then be turned over to some army headquarters.

Q Was there ever any report made to you officially about what disposition was made of this particular flier?

A No, I only found out, the first interrogation, that the flier was shot.

Q When you turned him over to Winser, it was not necessary that he make a report to you, was it?

A No.

Q Herr Lassak, there has been some evidence here about your pushing this flier in the bomb shelter. Will you just tell the court what you did in the bomb shelter there, as far as this flier was concerned?

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Now, Lassak, referring again to these orders that you have attempted to quote in Prosecution's Exhibits 56 and 57, do you have any recollection as to who signed these orders?

A As far as I can recall, one order came from the Higher SS and Police Leader, another one from the Reichsstatthalter; and, if I remember right, a copy of the same statement from the Gestapo Headquarters at Darmstadt through channels over the Gestapo office at Giessen.

Q Now, the one that you got from Gestapo Headquarters in Giessen or Darmstadt, would that be an order to you or merely an information copy?

Q You didn't receive orders, did you, from the Security Police?

A No.

Q And you didn't know whose signature appeared on the orders other than the source from which it came, is that correct?

A Only the source, yes.

Q Are you acquainted with the accused, Jurgen Stroop?

A Yes.

Q Just state the extent of your acquaintance with this accused.

A I knew him as a High SS and Police Leader who visited my Headquarters in July or August, a second time after the heavy air attack at Giessen when he inspected the damages together with the Commanding General of the Army.

Q Now was this visit visit in July, 1944?

A 1944.

Q Was that the first time you had ever met him?

A Yes.

Q And was that a visit merely to make your acquaintance or a matter of inspection of your quarters there?

A Yes, it was an inspection.

Q Had you ever been to Jurgen Stroop's Headquarters in Wiesbaden?

A No.

Q Were you ever there at any conferences?

A No.

Q Has he ever been to your Headquarters for conferences other than this one visit?

A No.

Q Now did you know the accused Hans Trummler while you were in office there in Giessen?

A No.

Q Had he ever visited your Headquarters?

A No.

Q Had you ever visited his in Wiesbaden?

A No, I don't know where it is.

Q When did you first meet Hans Trummler?

A Here in the bunker.

Q When was that?

A When he came to our first meeting on account of the charge sheet--when we received the charge sheet.

Q Did you ever have any correspondence with the accused Hans Trummler when he was in office or have any conferences with either him or his subordinates?

A No.

Q Now, did you know the accused Somann while you were in office in Giessen?

A No.

Q Did you ever have occasion to go to his office in Wiesbaden?

A No.

Q Or did he ever come to your Headquarters?

A No.

Q Did you ever have any correspondence with him or his Headquarters while you were in office?

A No.

Q Now, Herr Lassak, do you know any of the other accused outside of the three that we have just spoken of? I mean, during the time you were in office.

A Yes, Number 19, the accused Girke.

Q Tell the Court the extent of your acquaintance with that accused during 1944 and 1945.

A When Girke took charge of the Gestapo Headquarters at Darmstadt he made a visit to me after he had inspected his office at Giessen.

Q When was that?

A It might have been the end or middle of July.

Q 1944?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever have occasion to see him or correspond with him after that?

A No.

Q Now, is there any other one of the accused that you know back in the time when you were in office?

A Yes, the accused number 8, Albrecht.

Q When was it you knew Albrecht?

A In February, 1945, when he was transferred to my Police Headquarters.

Q And whom did he serve under in your area?

A Under his commander, the Lieutenant Colonel Hallwage-Kaden.

Q Did you ever have occasion to know him personally or merely as a subordinate officer?

A He was introduced to me in the usual manner as being transferred to my command.

Q Is that the extent of your acquaintance?

A Yes.

Q Now are there any more of the accused that you know while you were in office in 1944 and 1945?

A No.

Q I call your attention to Charge Number 1, the particulars thereunder, wherein it says that you conspired with all of these other accused sometime between the 8th of December 1941 and the 8th of May 1945 at

"sundry places within the then German Reich.

individually and collectively, as principals, accessories, leaders, organizers, instigators, and accomplices, did engage in, formulate and participate in a common plan or design to commit or cause to be committed, violations of the Laws of War and pursuant thereto did willfully, deliberately and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet, order and participate in, or took a consenting part in the mistreatment of members of the armed forces of nations then at war with the then German Reich, who were then and there surrendered and unarmed prisoners of war in the custody of the then German Reich to cruelties and mistreatment, including killings, beatings, tortures, abuses and indignities.

Did you ever [illegible] with any of these other accused in a conspiracy to the ends which have just been enumerated?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object to that question. It calls for a legal conclusion. It's going within the province of this Court--it's the province of this Court to determine that question and not this witness.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the Court, he has the same right to answer that question that he would to deny any guilt that he might be charged with--just the same as if he is asked if he committed a robbery. He has the right to deny it.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: No.

MAJOR SAXON: Did any of these accused ever approach you on such a conspiracy?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the same ground, if it please the Court, and move that the answer to the former question be stricken from the record.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order. The objection is overruled and the motion is denied.

(Lassak-Direct)

WITNESS: No, I had no connection with that.

MAJOR SAXON: Did you, during the time you held office in Giessen, know of any plans or schemes or ideas even that any of these accused had, if any of them did have such, to violate any of the laws or usages of war as charged in Charge one, and the particulars thereof, including those charges up through number ten?

CAPTAIN VANCE: The same objection, may it please the Court, and I would like to read an authority to the Court.

LAW MEMBER: Read the question, please.

(Whereupon the reporter read the question.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: Now, may it please the Court, I will renew my objection. I am objecting to it because it calls for a legal conclusion. It invades the province of this Court. It is one of the very issues for this Court to decide and not the accused by his testimony. I would like to read a statement from Underhill's "Criminal Evidence", Chapter 20, on page 429;

> "General rule. As a general rule witnesses are not allowed to testify to their opinions or conclusions on material matters, but must state facts within their knowledge relevant to the issue, as it is the province of the jury to draw deductions and conclusions from the pertinent facts placed in evidence and to decide matters directly in issue. No witness, be he expert or nonexpert is allowed to testify to the legal effect of a transaction."

Now, at the present time the accused Lassak is on the stand testifying as a witness in his own behalf and in behalf of other co-accused.

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, first let me answer what he said. Lassak is not a witness here at this time for any other accused but himself. He is not testifying in behalf of these other accused relative to the conspiracy so far as they are concerned, but he is testifying now in denial that he was ever approached or knew of any conspiracy, if they did have one. He is not testifying here is a witness, -- he is testifying here as an accused, who is denying the charge against him, which I believe he has every right in the world to do. He is not testifying as a witness. This indictment, as it were, in this charge is so all-comprehensive that you could not go far enough afield to ask this witness questions which he has a right to deny because they say, -- did he take a consenting part? -- almost to the place, or -- did he just stay and look on? He has a right to deny this conspiracy in every form of speech that we can concoct to give him. I think it is a well known fundamental principle of law that when you ask an accused a question which results in his denial, you have a right to ask him any kind of leading questions you want. If he is charged with killing John Doe, you have a right to ask him, "Did you kill John Doe?"

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Did you, while you were a member of the Allgemeine SS, ever commit any of the crimes of which that organization has been charged?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the same ground, if it please the court.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q From 1939 up until the end of the war, did you carry on any work of the Allgemeine SS?

A Yes.

Q That is the work you had reference to in aiding the widows and children of the deceased soldiers, is that correct?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I am going to object on the ground that it is leading.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Did you carry on any official function for the SS other than that which you have already testified to?

A No.

Q Now, since September 1st, 1939, have you paid any dues into the Allgemeine SS?

A No.

Q And other than the charity work that you did for the wives and children of the deceased SS and those who were at the front, did you perform any other service in the SS?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object. The question is leading. I have not heard this witness testify that he did any work for widows or children.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q I call your attention to Charge Number 3. Did you, on or about the 3rd of October, 1944, at or near Giessen, Germany, wilfully, deliberately and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet and participate in the killing of an unknown member of the United States Army who was then and there a surrendered and unarmed prisoner of war in the custody of the then German Reich?

PROSECUTION: I object. Certain forms of procedure have been long established. One is that when the accused has read the charges, as the accused is doing now, he denies it. This is a new procedure, to rehash each charge and ask him whether or not he did it. The The accused has pleaded not guilty and that is sufficient.

MAJOR SAXON: May I say this to the court? Counsel pleaded this man not guilty. This is the first time he has ever had a chance to get on the stand and deny the exact charge which is now thrown at him. In addition to that, he has a right to prove his not being guilty by all of the surrounding evidence necessary and by categorically denying the charge. That is what he is now attempting to do.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Do you have any relatives in the United States?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the ground that it is immaterial.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I will tell the court what I am drawing to. I want to show that this accused is not only not guilty of the charges of which he is being accused here, but that he had relatives in the United States Army, close relatives, who were in the American Army and over here; and that in addition to the fact that he did not violate the laws and usages of war, that he would not have obeyed an order to shoot an allied prisoner of war or a parachuted flier to earth.

PRESIDENT: The ruling of the court stands.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Colonel Lassak, when you joined the Allgemeine SS in 1926, why did you join?

A That was voluntary.

Q I know it was voluntary, but why did you join?

A Because I was a member of the Party.

Q What was the purpose of the Allgemeine SS?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I object to that. The witness has not been shown to be qualified to testify as to its purpose. Besides, the court knows its purpose from the Nuernberg decision. It is immaterial to the issues in this case.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: The Schutz Staffeln, the SS, were made up for the purpose of the protection of the Party speakers.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q It was also made up to persecute the Jews and undesirable political persons, was it not?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I object to that question. It is argumentative with the witness. The witness has already answered.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You mean to say that the SS took no part in the persecution of the Jews and other people, is that right?

A Not during the time of the fight. They beat back only when they were beaten.

Q Well, during what time did they do it?

A Until '33, during the time of the fight.

Q You were still a member in 1933, were you not?

A Yes.

Q The defense counsel has stressed a great point, that you did not receive any pay from the Allgemeine SS. As a matter of fact, no one got paid from the SS, did they?

A Yes, the leaders who had a full-time job, they were paid, they got their salary.

Q But you were not a full-time job member, were you?

A No, with the exception of the two years when I was in Detmold and temporarily in charge of the SS regiment.

Q Your main occupation was railroading?

A Yes.

Q And your membership in the Allgemeine SS was part-time duty?

A Yes.

Q You joined this organization voluntarily?

A Yes.

Q Didn't anyone force you to do it?

A No.

Q You remained a member until the end of the war?

A Yes.

Q Why did you leave the railroad and go with the police department?

A On the orders of the Reichsfuehrer SS, at that time the Reich Minister of the Interior.

Q What was your pay from the railroad at the time you left its employment?

A 518 marks a month.

Q What was your pay as chief of the Giessen police department?

A Until I got my permanent appointment, the same salary which I had as chief inspector of the railroad.

Q And later on your salary was increased, was it not?

A Yes, up to 538 marks.

Q Who was the highest police official in the Giessen district while you were there?

A I.

PRESIDENT: May I remind those present in the courtroom that this is a serious matter and we will stop this laughing.

(Lassak-Cross)

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Who was the next higher commander while you were with the police force in Giessen?

A That was the Lieutenant Colonel of the police, Hellwege-Emden, the commander of the police.

Q Was he not a subordinate of yours?

A Yes, a subordinate.

Q I mean, who was your next superior higher than you?

A That was the gauleiter in his position as Reich Kommissar and Reichsstatthalter.

Q Was his name Sprenger?

A Yes.

Q Did you take his orders and carry them out?

A Yes.

Q Who else was your commanding officer besides Sprenger?

A The commander of the Order Police.

Q Is that indicated on the chart at this position where it says, "Ordnungspolizei BDO"?

A Yes.

Q And did the next chain of command go from the chief of the Ordnungspolizei to General Stroop?

A Yes.

Q Did you receive orders from him and carry them out?

A I received an order but I did not carry it out.

Q In your testimony you have talked about a man named Winzer who was head of the Gestapo in Giessen. What was his rank?

A He was criminal counselor.

Q Were you a higher ranking officer than Winzer?

A Yes, as police director.

(Lassak-Gross)

Q Mr. Lassak, I believe you testified that you received three orders which concerned the treatment of captured allied fliers, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Are they about as you have stated in your written statement? I mean, the contents of these orders.

A Yes, approximately the meaning.

Q I believe you stated upon receipt of these orders that you destroyed them by burning, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Now, those were your instructions, to burn them and destroy them upon receipt, were they not?

A Yes.

Q So, by burning these orders you did nothing but carry out part of the orders contained in them, is that right?

A I had to burn them because it was a secret order.

Q That is right. You were told in the order to burn them upon receipt and that is what you did with them?

A Yes, because it was a secret order.

Q Before you received these three secret orders about the treatment of fliers, what had been your policy with reference to the treatment of captured fliers?

A To deliver enemy fliers to the Wehrmacht.

Q When did you change those instructions?

A I didn't change them at all.

Q Well, when did you desire to change your course and begin turning fliers over to the Gestapo?

A Not at all.

Q Do you deny that you turned this flier who was captured the 3rd of October, 1944, to the Gestapo?

A At the request of the Gestapo, because this was a prisoner of the Gestapo, and not a prisoner of the police.

Q What makes you state that he was a prisoner of the Gestapo? Did you not hear Mr. Muenk testify that he took him from the civilian population and brought him to you?

A The official who informed me, as well as the criminal counselor Winzer, told me that the man of the Gestapo was in civilian clothes at that date.

Q What did Mr. Muenk tell you?

A That he had taken the prisoner from civilians.

Q Why did you not keep this flier in custody and turn him over to the Wehrmacht?

A Because he was a prisoner of the Gestapo.

Q Were you ordered by the Gestapo chief Winzer to turn this flier over?

A I didn't get the order. That was a matter of course. After the official told me that Muenk had taken the prisoner away from him, I had to give him the prisoner because he was not our prisoner. He was a prisoner of the Gestapo.

Q On this date you were already familiar with the fact that fliers turned over to the Gestapo would be executed, were you not?

A No.

Q Let us back up a little. Tell the court the contents of these three orders we have been discussing.

A According to the meaning, one of the orders said that behind the front lines agents and saboteurs were dropped and that they were creating great damages; therefore, in the future, parachutists have to be delivered to the Gestapo, also at the request of the Party in order to be interrogated.

(Lassak-Cross)

Q When did you receive the order which I quote -- "Emergency landed fliers are to be shot"?

A It might have been the end of August or beginning of September.

Q Now, if that was August or September, in October you certainly knew of that order, did you not?

A Yes, I knew about this order.

Q All right. Now, you knew when you told Mr. Muenk to take the flier over to the Gestapo headquarters that this order was in existence, that the fliers were to be shot, is that right?

A At the Gestapo?

Q Yes.

A No.

Q Who did you think was to shoot the flier?

A I mentioned already in the beginning I thought the fliers would be questioned and interrogated whether they were agents and spies and then after this interrogation they would be delivered to the Wehrmacht and sentenced.

Q In other words, you knew they would be shot by someone, but you did not know by whom, is that correct?

A By whom I didn't know but certainly not through the Gestapo or the Party.

Q Major Saxon asked you the question on direct examination if on the 7th day of August, 1946 you were asked to make a statement and if that was the first time you had ever been requested to quote these orders and you said yes. Is that correct?

MAJOR SAXON: If the court please, I think the Captain must have misunderstood my question because what I had in mind when I mentioned that was the first request to make some mention of the orders in July when he made that first statement. If that confusion has arisen I may be at fault or he may have misunderstood my question.

PRESIDENT: Will you read the question, please?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Major Saxon asked you the question on direct examination if on the 7th day of August, 1946 you were asked to make a statement and if that was the first time you had ever been requested to quote those orders and you said yes. Is that correct?")

MAJOR SAXON: Frankly, I cannot remember whether I asked that question. However, I will withdraw my objection.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

pld-145-1

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You had quoted those orders that you had received previously to that time, and you noted [illegible] Can you give any [illegible]

A Yes, [illegible]

Q You have just mentioned that them, is that correct?

A Yes. I mistake the first time. There was a statement I made, a verbal statement I made, and the first was the written statement I made.

Q Then, when Mr. Mueck first brought this flyer to the air raid shelter on the third of October, 1944 why did you go to the telephone and call the Gestapo [illegible] Mueck take this course and [illegible]

A Because I wanted to ascertain whether the information which the Gestapo official had given me in front of my headquarters - the information that he had taken the [illegible] right or not. I came in and lied. He told me [illegible] who was that Gestapo official?

A I don't know to anymore because I didn't know any Gestapo officials.

Q At that time did you know that an American flyer had been captured?

A I knew it through this official who told me that Mueck had taken the prisoner into custody and was on his way to my headquarters. [illegible]

Q Now, Lasch, you know that you called the Gestapo Headquarters to make arrangements for that man to be shot, don't you? He didn't recognize [illegible]

MAJOR SAXON: I object to that question as being argumentative.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled, here?

THE WITNESS: [illegible] this Gestapo official told me that. Mr

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE: [illegible]

Q Now, you know that if you hadn't sent that American flyer to the Gestapo Headquarters he would be living today don't you? [illegible]

A I don't know that. I didn't know that he would be shot. He wasn't my prisoner.

(Lasch-cross)

Q He wasn't your prisoner? What was he doing in your headquarters?

A Because Mazuk had taken the prisoner away from the Gestapo official. He didn't know this Gestapo official because he was in civilian clothes.

Q You have heard Mazuk testify before this court. Can you give any reason why Mr. Mazuk would not tell the truth about that?

A He said the truth--that when he came out the Gestapo Official was already standing there.

Q I am talking about where he got the flyer from. You heard him testifythat he took him from men, women and children?

A Yes.

Q How do you know any reason why Mr. Mazuk would come into this court and lie about that?

MAJOR SANDS: If it please the court, that is repetitious, argumentative and there has been no statement at all that Mazuk came in and lied. He said he told thetruth.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: He didn't make a wrong statement.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Well he did take the flyer them from the civilian population and not from the Gestapo, is that correct?

A The Gestapo official was in civilian clothes. He didn't recognize him.

Q How do you know that? Were you there?

A I have to assume this when the gestapo official told me that. For this reason I tried to ascertain from his superior officers, the criminal counsel, what had happened.

Q Lesnik, when did you say was the first time you were interrogated by the Americans in regard to war crimes activities?

(Lesnik-cross)

A In August.

Q What year?

A 1945.

Q You said you were mistreated at that time?

A Yes, severely.

Q What is the man's name that mistreated you?

A I don't know his name, but the man in charge was there--Lieutenant Seischel--and he must know his name.

Q You say no statement was taken from you and neither did you sign anything upon that occasion, is that right?

A No, exclusively about my personal data, my background.

Q He didn't even discuss the matters with which you were charged with at the present time on that occasion, did he?

A No.

Q Is today the first time you have ever mentioned what happened to you on that occasion?

A No.

Q You made a written statement in Giessen in July, 1948, is that right?

A The beginning of July, yes.

Q Who requested you to make that statement?

A The CIC officer.

Q Do you know who he was?

A I don't know his name.

Q Where were you at that time?

A At the police prison in Giessen.

Q I believe you said that you felt very bad when you were put in that cell in Giessen, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q That is the same jail that you used to be the master over wasn't it?

pldbl6-4

A No. The offices of the police headquarters at Glogau were destroyed during an air raid attack. I would have been ashamed to have cells like this.

Q You wrote the statement made on 11 July, 1946 in your own handwriting, did you not?

A Yes.

Q You were alone at the time you wrote the statement, were you not?

A Yes.

Q Where did you get the paper and pencil that you wrote that statement on?

A From the CIC officer.

Q I show you a document which has been introduced as Prosecution Exhibit 56 and ask you if that is the statement that you wrote at that time?

A Yes.

Q You say the CIC furnished you this pink stationery?

A Yes.

A Yes.

Q How long did it take you to write this statement?

A From six o'clock in the afternoon he had given me time until two o'clock in the morning, then I would be interrogated at the CIC offices in Glogau if the statement wouldn't be the way he expected and wanted it to be.

Q Did he tell you to tell the truth?

A He said, "Write the statement the way we discussed it."

Q Did he tell you to tell the truth?

A Yes. He always insisted upon that I gave the order for the shooting.

Q You said that he told you to tell the truth. Tell the court if that statement written by you contains the truth.

A No.

Q Point out to the court what part of the statement is not the truth.

A Just a moment please. First: "Perhaps they will be shot while trying to escape." You know the order in accordance to which parachuted flyers have to be shot. I answered the question with a "Yes, Kreisleiter."

(interrogation)

Q That is not the truth?

A No, that is not the truth.

Q Why did you put that in there?

A Because he wanted the statement this way. He said, "You know about the order and you know what would happen."

Q You were alone when you wrote that part of the statement?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court anything else wrong about the statement.

A More. Then furthermore this passage, "I called immediately the criminal constable Wimmer from my headquarters over the phone and asked him to pick up the flyer immediately." This was a mistake, but it was wrong, but I was forced to write it this way.

Q Who forced you?

A The CIC officer. He always insisted, "You called Wimmer and asked him to pick up the prisoner."

Q The CIC agent wasn't there when you wrote this statement was he?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object to the answer as not being responsive. I ask that he be instructed to respond to the question.

MAJOR SAXON: I think the answer ought to be made a part of the record. It has got to be translated.

THE WITNESS: But the CIC officer told me by two o'clock you will be put in the cellar and by two-thirty you will hang. That was the impression I had.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Tell the court what else is wrong with that, if anything.

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I know the thing he will find wrong with that statement he will want to tell about on cross examination, but it will take another ten or fifteen minutes here.

PRESIDENT: What do you want to do?

(Lassak-cross)

CAPTAIN VANCE: It is customary to run court until five o'clock.

MAJOR VANCE: Quarter of five.

PRESIDENT: If you deem it advisable the court will carry on until you are finished.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to point out everything wrong with this statement before he leaves the stand, if it please the court. I would like the court to instruct the witness to take his time and be able to pick out anything wrong on that piece of paper there.

LAW MEMBER: He is doing that.

THE WITNESS: Then here where it said, "Captured enemy flyers have to be shot immediately." It should have said, "Captured enemy flyers who are agents, spies or saboteurs have to be shot immediately.", but at that time I couldn't remember these words anymore.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q All right, what else is wrong with that statement, if anything?

A Here where it says, "Signature Sommer." It should say, "Trummler or his predecessor," whose name I don't know.

Q Why did you put Sommer's name on that?

A Because I got mixed up with the name of Trummler.

Q That was your mixup. You didn't do that because the CIC agent told you, did you?

A That is my own mistake.

Q All right, what else is wrong with that statement, if anything?

A I couldn't remember the name anymore.

Q Have you finished reading the statement?

A And here on page three it shouldn't say that I went to my "enterprise", but only to the headquarters.

Q All right. Are there any other corrections you want to make on that statement?

A No.

(Lasch-cross)

Q Have you read that statement through thoroughly at least one or two times since you have been sitting in the chair?

A Once.

Q With the exception of the changes you have made does that statement state the truth Mr. Lassak?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: We can take a recess. I haven't finished with him.

They both require time to talk over with the new accused they represent and familiarize themselves with their particular problems. They feel they need at least one day in which to do so.

Originally I consulted Colonel Dunnell of the prosecution and he personally had no objection. I am informed that Captain Vance, associated with him, does have an objection.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, I speak for myself and perhaps not for the prosecution staff in the case. First: I would like to say that this court gave the defense eight days time, excluding a Sunday, within which to prepare its defense. On other occasions the court has recessed at several minutes to a half hour before quitting time in the afternoon, which gave them time to prepare this case. I think they have had sufficient time to prepare the defense of this case.

Secondly, for purely personal reasons on my part, I was ordered to return and be discharged from the army prior to this case. I voluntarily stayed for this trial. I expect to leave the day the case ends and for this reason I object to the continuance and insist that the case continues in the morning.

PRESIDENT: Will you read the prosecutions last statement?

(Whereupon the reporter read the last statement of the Captain as directed.)

PRESIDENT: The court will take a one day recess. We will meet again on Thursday Morning at 9 o'clock.

(Whereupon the court recessed until 0900 hours 13 February, 1947.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

JULIUS LASSAK, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make an unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION (continued)

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Lassak, when the court adjourned last Tuesday you had just finished reading the document that you wrote, which is in evidence as Prosecution Exhibit 56, and you pointed out four corrections that you wanted to make in your statement.

A Yes.

Q I believe you stated that with the exception of those four corrections you wanted to make the rest of that statement was the truth. Is that right?

A As far as I could see it. Well, the short time I had available.

Q You read it for about a period of 15 minutes, did you not?

A I don't know, because I have no watch.

Q Did you read it all the way through?

A Yes, I read it all the way through.

Q Are you satisfied with it now?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, at this time the defense would like to request that the accused be permitted to read that statement over again and ascertain whether he is willing to say that the statement is correct. We have had a lapse of a day here in between. The witness testified the other day and he read it over rather hurriedly. I think he should have an opportunity to read it again before he answers that question.

PRESIDENT: The court feels that the accused Lassak has had plenty of time to read the statement during the last session.

MAJOR SAXON: Would the court permit me to ask the witness one question at this time?

PRESIDENT: Any objection from the prosecution?

CAPTAIN VANCE: No, sir.

MAJOR SAXON: Mr. Lassak, do you feel that you need the opportunity of reading that statement once more before you make an answer to the prosecution's last question?

ACCUSED LASSAK: Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to ask one question now.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Lassak, you have seen your own statement many times since the time the charges were served on you and the day you appeared in this court, have you not?

A No.

Q Your defense counsel did not show you this statement?

A No.

Q Did he show you a photostatic copy of this statement?

A Yes.

MAJOR SAXON: I might add one word, if it please the court. One of the vital points of our defense is that this statement and the next one were procured under duress and without a fair opportunity for this accused to know what he was doing in signing, and signing afterwards words that were put in his mouth and in his hands, as it were, and in his pencil when he wrote this statement. It seems to me that he ought to have an opportunity to examine it again.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, it is not the question of duress I am examining on. I am just asking him whether it is the truth or not. He knows whether or not it is the truth.

PRESIDENT: The court's ruling stands, that he has had enough time.

THE INTERPRETER: Will you read the last question, please?

(Whereupon the question referred to was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q Are you satisfied with it now?")

THE WITNESS: As far as I can remember, yes.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Lassak, on direct examination you testified that you received one order concerning the treatment of flyers from the Higher SS and Police commander. Was that General Stroop?

A Yes.

Q Now I am going to read you an order which you described in your statement and ask you if this is the order that you received from General Stroop:

(Lassak -Cross)

"Lately many cases have happened where enemy agents have parachuted down from planes. I order hereby that all bailed out fliers who are captured by the civilians or police should immediately be turned over to the Party or the Gestapo. This order is to be destroyed immediately upon acknowledgement."

Marked "Secret Matter".

A No. This is the order from the Reichsstatthalter.

Q And who was he?

A That was Gauleiter Sprenger.

Q I will read you the second order that you described:

"Secret Rush Order:

"Captured enemy fliers will be shot immediately. This order will be destroyed immediately upon acknowledgement."

Signed "Stroop, Higher SS and Police Leader, Wiesbaden."

A Yes, sir.

Q Now I will read you the third one:

"Captured enemy fliers will be turned over to the Gestapo. Secret Rush Order. This order to be destroyed upon acknowledgement."

Signed "Seyss-Inquart or his successor."

This is the one that you said should be signed "Trummler"; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And you received that order from Dr. Trummler or his headquarters; is that right?

A Yes.

Q When you finished writing this document and signed your name to the bottom of it was anyone present?

A No, because I was alone in my cell.

Q I believe you stated you did not know the man's name that furnished you this paper and told you to write this statement. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Can you describe him to the court?

A Yes. He was a small man; full-faced; a little bit broad shouldered; thick neck; dark hair; with glasses.

Q Did he speak German or English?

A He spoke German and English.

Q Did he come back the next day to get this paper after you had written it?

A Yes. At this occasion he beat me, with the words "You have violated the Geneva Convention", and he pushed me against the wall.

Q That was after you had already made the statement?

A Yes. Before he threatened me I would be taken to the C.I.C. by 8 O'clock, would be interrogated there, then a rope would be thrown into my cell. If I wouldn't hang myself within half an hour then two Negroes would take care of me, with the words, "You German pig. You will croak."

Q Would you recognize that man if you were to see him today?

A Yes, because I was together with him on several occasions.

Q Mr. Lassak, you made a second statement in Wiesbaden on the 7th of August, 1946; is that correct?

A That is a question and answer sheet?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

(Lassak -Cross)

Q Do you know the names of the people that interrogated you on that occasion?

A It was a certain Mr. Coates and this same official.

Q Which same official do you mean?

A The one I mentioned before who mistreated me.

Q The one who requested the statement you wrote yourself?

A Yes.

Q And that is the same man that was with Mr. Coates when you gave this second interrogation in Wiesbaden; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Could that man's name be Mr. Zinn? Does that sound familiar?

A I don't know the name.

Q But you remember the name Mr. Coates?

A Yes, because this name was made known to me through some other gentleman.

Q Did one of these men act as interpreter and the other one propound the questions to you?

A Yes.

Q Did they ask you certain questions and you gave certain answers on that occasion?

A Yes. It wasn't admitted that I could make a statement. I only had to answer certain questions, yes or no.

Q Did you answer those questions truthfully?

A No. Under duress.

Q What duress? Tell the court what was done to you in Wiesbaden.

(Lassak - Cross)

A In Wiesbaden, when I intended to make my first statement, this same gentleman came over to me and pushed me against the wall. If I wouldn't make the right answers he would go back with me right away to Giessen to the C.I.C. and would hand me over there for proper treatment. He couldn't guarantee whether I would be able to return to Wiesbaden once more.

Q What did he do to you?

A What I answered the questions in such a manner that these two gentlemen were satisfied, because I wanted to defend myself before an American court and not before people who mistreat human beings.

Q Can you answer my question? What mistreatment did you get at the hands of this man in Wiesbaden?

A As I said before, in Wiesbaden I got a slap against my chest around the heart, and then he grabbed me on my neck and pushed me against the wall.

Q We are talking about Wiesbaden now. He pushed you against the wall. Is that what you said?

A Yes.

Q Did he strike you with any object?

A That was enough. He didn't need any object.

Q Did he strike you with anything?

A Not in Wiesbaden, but in Giessen.

Q Mr. Lassak, you know we are talking about what happened in Wiesbaden. Do you understand that?

A Yes.

Q Were you struck in Wiesbaden? Yes or no, please.

A Yes.

(Lassak - Cross)

Q With what?

A With the fist; with the hand.

Q By whom? This same interrogator that struck you in Giessen?

A Yes.

Q What did Mr. Coates do to you, if anything?

A Nothing. He behaved very correctly.

Q Who got pushed the hardest? You in Wiesbaden or this American flier in Giessen by you?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I object to that question. That is something that, so far as this accused and that flyer in Giessen are concerned, has no purpose in this cross examination. There has not been any evidence here that I know of that this man mistreated any flyer. In fact, the evidence has been to the contrary.

CAPTAIN VANCE: He said he pushed him. He tried to mitigate it and explain it.

MAJOR SAXON: I withdraw the objection.

THE WITNESS: I.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Lassak, do you remember what happened on the 3rd of October, 1944, at Giessen in reference to an American flyer?

A Yes.

Q Everything that happened on that day is clearly in your mind at this time, is it not?

A It isn't clear anymore in my memory, because after the mistreatments at Natternberg I started to suffer troubles of my blood circulation; and, furthermore, I got a heart disease.

(Lassak - Cross)

Q What effect does that have on your memory? Does that have an effect upon your memory?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember having a conversation with the Kreisleiter on that day?

A Yes.

Q What was the Kreisleiter's name?

A Kreisleiter Bruock.

Q Tell the court what you and Kreisleiter Bruock talked about in reference to an American flyer.

A That was not a conference; that was only a very short talk on our way to the police headquarters at Wiesock.

Q What did you talk about?

A The Kreisleiter received me when I intended to go to the place where this bomber had crashed at Wiesock with the words that at my police headquarters would be three fliers, and he needed these fliers for interrogation at the Kreisleiter's Then in reply I said, "I have no policemen available, because all my policemen are at the spot where the bomber had crashed." Then he said he would send three men of the political staffel and they would pick up the fliers.

Q What business did the Kreisleiter have with these bailed out fliers?

A On orders of the Reichsstatthalter, to interrogate the fliers in regard to the opinions in foreign countries and the final results of the war.

Q That was a job for the Wehrmacht and the police, was it not?

A I don't know that. I know only the order that at the request of the Party I had to hand over these fliers to the Kreisleiter, and as far as I could understand it was for interrogation.

Q Previous to this time you had already received the order that the fliers were to be shot. That is correct, is it not?

A Yes.

Q And you knew of the existence of that order on this date in question?

A Yes.

Q Did you turn those three fliers over to the Kreisleiter?

A Yes.

Q Did you know what was going to happen to these fliers when they were turned over?

A No.

Q Now I am going to read you your answer to the same question which I just propounded to you:

"Answer: I realized that they would be shot if I turned them over to the Party or the Gestapo, but, of course, I did not know who was going to do the shooting."

Did you say that?

A I said so under duress, forced by the official who wanted it this way, because he didn't want any additional statement from me.

Q What happened to these three fliers after you turned them over?

A I don't know that.

Q I am going to read you the answer to that question. It is contained in this statement:

(Lassak - Cross)

"Next day the Kreisleiter called me up and told me that all three fliers were shot while trying to escape."

Did you make that answer?

A Yes.

Q Was that the truth?

A Yes.

Q Why did you give me a different answer when I asked you the question the first time?

A The question was whether I knew what had happened to the fliers afterwards.

Q Well, you know they were shot, do you not?

A Yes. On account of the telephone call the next day.

Q It was later, after these three fliers were turned over, that you turned this flyer over to the Gestapo in Giessen on the 3rd of October, 1944; is that correct?

A Yes, because he was a prisoner of the Gestapo, not a prisoner of the police.

Q I believe you testified that you were a superior in the police force. That is right, is it not?

A Me? No.

Q You have testified that you were the highest police official in the Giessen area, have you not?

A That has nothing to do with the matter. The Order Police is not identical with the Secret State Police.

Q Do not argue with me. Were you the highest official in the Giessen area?

MAJOR SAYLOR: Just a moment. I have let the prosecution go on here with this line of questioning, which is an effort to draw an answer from this accused, and it is misleading.

(Lassak - Cross)

Ta 144 - 80
2-13-47;JMcD;12

The evidence has been clear before this court from the very beginning of this trial, so far as the defense is concerned, that this man was the Polizeidirektoren of the Schutzpolizei in this area. It is clear before this court that the Gestapo is a separate entity and force entirely, and I object to the prosecution asking this witness that type of question. He should ask him if he was the highest police officer in the Schutzpolizei in Giessen, Bad Nauheim, and Friedberg. When he speaks about the area, there were General Stroop and others.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled. Was this flyer shot?

A THE WITNESS: Yes. In order to do so you would have done that.Q In When you had this flyer in your custody you had the power and authority to keep him in your custody, did you not?

A No, because he was a prisoner of the Secret State Police and not my prisoner. I have nothing to do with the that Secret State Police. In Giessen but the Gestapo all over

Q Was Mr. Munk an employee of your police department?

A Yes. If it please the court, I object to that Q And Mr. Munk had a prisoner in his custody, did he not? question. There is no evidence here from this accused to such Yes. This is not my own knowledge. It was no hearing of Q And you could have held that prisoner if you had wanted to, could you not? objection is overruled

A Yes, if the Secret State Police wouldn't have requested the prisoner. that no one who knew American flyers

Q Why did you not deliver this prisoner to a PW camp?

A A. I have to stress the point once more. This man was a prisoner of the Gestapo and not a prisoner of the police force.

(Lassak -Cross)

Q I am going to read your answer to that same question in your statement:

"Because there was an order from the headquarters of the SD stating that captured fliers had to be turned over to the Gestapo."

Did you make that answer?

A Yes. The order existed.

Q At that time were you aware of the order that these fliers were to be shot?

A Yes.

Q Then why did you not personally have this flyer shot?

A Because I had no order to do so.

Q If you had had an order to do so you would have done that. Is that what you mean?

A I can't say that. I can't say that at this time. That is a question of conscience.

Q It was familiar to you at that time, was it not, that not only the Gestapo in Giessen but the Gestapo all over Germany were executing American fliers?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I object to that for the reason that it is going beyond the scope of the direct examination. There is no evidence here from this accused in any manner that he had any such knowledge. It has no bearing on the case. He is charged here with a particular offense.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: I can't say that because I had no time to find out whether the Gestapo was shooting American fliers all over Germany. It was the only case which happened in Giessen, yes.

(Lasak - Cross)

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Your answer is that you just do not know; is that right?

A I didn't know it, yes.

Q At the time you sent this American flier over to the Gestapo, did you have any pity or sympathy for him?

A Why pity? I didn't know what would happen to the flier. I acted as a German officer exactly in the same manner as American officers acted in accordance with orders they have received.

Q You mean to tell the Court you didn't know what was going to happen to him when you said you already had these orders you received?

A No.

Q Did you think that they were just going to ignore the order that all fliers were to be killed?

A I didn't know that the flier was to be shot. I said before that I handed over the three fliers for interrogation and that I handed over this one prisoner to the Secret State Police, because he was not my prisoner, but the prisoner of the Secret State Police.

Q And in a very short while, all four of these men were dead--that's correct, isn't it?

A I don't know that. I heard only about the three fliers when the Kreisleiter told me so over the phone.

Q Was General Stroop one of your commanding officers?

A Yes.

Q What was the purpose of his visit to your office in July or August, 1944?

A First, I was at Giessen only for a short while, and he visited the Headquarters in Giessen to greet me there as a new officer because he had made an inspection in the neighborhood.

Q Did you discuss allied fliers?

A No.

Q I believe you said when Girke took over as Chief of the Gestapo in Darmstadt he came over and made a visit to you, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And you and Girke had a conference at that time?

A No, I didn't say that.

Q What did he come for?

A He made only a visit to me as a new officer.

Q You were highly interested in the operation of the Gestapo, weren't you?

A What business of mine is the Gestapo? I had enough to do with the police and the air raid protection at Giessen, Bad Nauheim, and Friedberg.

Q Tell the Court why he came there--what you did--and what you talked about.

A Girke came to Darmstadt as a new Chief of the Gestapo Headquarters there, and since he had a branch office at Giessen, he, as chief of the Gestapo Headquarters at least has to know who is in charge of the Gestapo Branch Office at Giessen; and, as Chief of the Gestapo Headquarters at Darmstadt he visited not only me, but also the mayor of the town, all other political organizations, the Kreisleiter, etc., as was the custom in Germany.

Q He wanted to visit all the officials to coordinate matters, didn't he?

A How do you mean that? It seems that the Prosecution doesn't know what the Secret State Police was.

Q Well, I don't care about your telling me about that--just answer my question, if you can. If you can't don't answer it.

DR. HACKER: I would like to make an objection, because the witness has said something which hasn't been translated yet.

WITNESS: The Secret State Police would not be so careless to tell everybody what the work of the Secret State Police was all about.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I move to strike that--that's not answering my question at all.

WITNESS: Otherwise, the Secret State Police would lose all its importance and its meaning as secret.

PRESIDENT: Did you make a correct translation of the first statement he made before the objection?

INTERPRETER: Yes, sir, he had made two sentences. I translated the first one; and I was interrupted by Captain Vance; and now I translated the second sentence which he made right after the first one.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I move his answer be stricken from the record. I asked him a question, and he starts telling me about the police system of Germany, which I think I am pretty familiar with.

MAJOR SAXON: I want to say for the Defense that that is a responsive answer. They asked a question about the police, and that's his answer.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I withdraw my objection.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q The Order Police and Secret Police worked together and assisted each other, didn't they?

A How? In which respect?

Q By assisting each other, by your arresting people and turning them over to the Security Police.

A No, the meaning is given already in the words "Order Police" and "Secret State Police." We took care of the order, and the Secret State Police took care of the security of the Reich.

Q Well, if the Security Police wanted one of your prisoners, you turned him over, didn't you?

A What kind of prisoner?

Q Any kind.

A That can't be done so fast. First, you have to know what crime the man has possibly committed. First, the District Attorney has to be heard, or should we let the criminals run away?

Q Now let's get back to Girke. He came to you as a new official, seeking your advice and guidance, didn't he?

A My advice? The first visit of a new official--is that made for the purpose of getting advice?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I am asking you the questions.

PRESIDENT: The witness will answer the questions and not ask questions.

INTERPRETER: Repeat the last question please.

(Whereupon the reporter read the question.)

WITNESS: Girke didn't ask me for any advice because the purpose and the work of the Secret State Police was entirely different from the work of the Order Police.

(Lassak-Cross)

Q Can you explain why the Order Police would get copies of the same orders that would go to the Security Police--for instance, these "flier orders"?

A Because it said in the order that captured enemy fliers, captured by the police forces or by the population, should be turned over to the Secret State Police, or, in accordance with the order of the Reichsstatthalter, should be turned over to the Party.

Q In what capacity did Mr. Albrecht work under you?

A He was First Lieutenant of a Police District and had been transferred to Giessen.

Q How long did he work for you?

A He came in February of 1943.

Q Did he stay until the end of the war?

A Until the end.

Q You heard the incident with which he is connected. Was he a subordinate of yours at that time?

A Yes.

MAJOR SAXON: I beg your pardon. May it please the Court, I want to ask that that question be restated to the witness and be made clear, because the witness has now stated to the effect that Albrecht was the subordinate of this accused at the time of this offense.

CAPTAIN VANCE: That was my question.

MAJOR SAXON: The question was not clear.

PRESIDENT: Ask the witness if the question was clear to him.

(Thereupon the interpreter did as directed.)

WITNESS: Directly, he was not my subordinate

(Lassah-Cross)

because he was under the command of the Order Police.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q All right, now, Mr. Lassak, I believe you testified on direct examination that when you received these three orders in question, you burned them and did nothing to enforce them except on this one occasion. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And in doing that you defied the orders of both General Stroop and Colonel Trummler, is that correct?

A How do you mean, violate the order?

Q Well, you failed to carry out the instructions.

A I couldn't carry them out.

Q That's right, and now as you failed to carry them out, state to the Court if you suffered any punishment whatsoever for your failure to carry out these orders?

A I didn't have any failure to carry out any orders, because nothing else happened in Giessen.

Q I am not asking you that. I merely asked you if you passed these orders on to anyone, and you said no, you tore them up and kept them secret to yourself. Is that true?

A Yes.

Q Now my question is did you receive any punishment for that from Stroop, Scmann, Trummler or anyone?

DR. WACKER: I object to this question. No basis has been created for it. So far, it hasn't been brought out that the accused was under any obligation to pass on the orders to his subordinate officers.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

WITNESS: No, because it was not said on the order that these orders have to be passed on.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Well, why did you spend so much time on direct examination explaining that you didn't pass them to anyone?

A I didn't pass them on.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the Court, Dr. Rau on behalf of General Stroop wants to examine the witness at this point.

PRESIDENT: The Court will recess for twenty minutes.

(Whereupon at 1000 hours, the Court recessed.)

Rmd to 146
pc file

Ta 146-ps-50-2/13-1

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1020 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, except Colonel Robertson, who has been temporarily excused by the appointing authority; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick; all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

I believe the defense has something to say to the court with respect to German counsel Dr. Trost.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to have the record continue to show that Dr. Trost is absent sick for this reason: while the probabilities are that she may not return, there is a possibility that she might, but that is not the important reason. She became seriously ill while at Dachau, and if I can, I am going to recommend that she be paid for the entire period of the trial on the ground that her illness was incurred while she was actually in service. I have in mind, if the record shows that she is completely out of the case, that that may be some impediment in accomplishing what I have in mind.

PRESIDENT: That is agreeable with the court.

JULIUS LANGBEHN, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. MAX:

Q At that time, did you ever report to General Stroop that Allied fliers had been shot in your area?

A No. I had no reason to do so.

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, I would like to re-examine the accused on two or three points that I left in mid-air, as I view it, on direct examination.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Mr. Lasnik, you were asked on cross examination by Captain Vance whether or not Wilhelm Albrecht was a member of your command on the 22nd of February, 1945. Is that correct or not?

A No. He came only on the 11th of March.

Q Did you know Albrecht at all before he came to your command as a new policeman?

A No.

Q You have been asked at some length by Captain Vance regarding those three orders that you attempted to quote in your statements of July 11 and August 7, 1946, and you have been asked many times by Captain Vance as to why you turned them over to the Gestapo or the Kriminalpolizei when you knew they were going to be killed. I want to ask you first, Mr. Lasnik, when you turned these fliers over to Kriminalpolizei Brunn, and the one that you returned to the Gestapo, did you at that time have any idea that they were going to be killed?

A No.

Q Will you tell the court what your understanding was of these three orders that I have referred to?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on what his understanding was. He has quoted the orders as best he can remember, he has stated that is the truth as best he can remember. They are simple orders and it requires no explanation as to the meaning.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

A In regard to the three orders, I understood in regard to the shooting of the flier and the transfer of the fliers to the Gestapo and other offices that the fliers would be taken for interrogation, and after they were found out to be saboteurs or spies, they would be handed over to the Wehrmacht, would be put before a military tribunal of the Wehrmacht,

Q I may be repeating, but I want to ask you again, Mr. Lassak, did you ever receive from any of your higher commanders or subalitte commanders any orders directing that you or any of the policemen under you might do injure any Allied prisoner of war?

A No.

Q You have testified here regarding the mistreatment that you received prior to the making of the statement of July 11 in the jail at Oleszno. Would you be able to recognize the person that inflicted those injuries and made those threats upon you and against your person?

A Yes.

Q I call your attention and hand you Prosecution Exhibit 144-I and ask you to state to the court whether or not one of the three persons appearing in that picture exhibit is the man who made the threats against you and personally injured you in Oleszno in 1946?

A Yes.

Q Will you point him out on this picture?

A This one.

(LASSAK-Redirect)

and would be them also.

Q You may report some mail to you by the State Police as to the disposition of the fliers that you had thereby return to the Sheriff?

A No.

Q Was there any reason or occasion why they should have reported it to you?

A No.

Q This order that you have published to have me, I believe, in quotes it says, "Emergency. Persecuted fliers are to be killed." -- was that an order directed to you or was that an informational copy of an order sent to you?

A This order was only for my information.

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that on this particular exhibit the accused identified the one who made the threats against him and personally injured him by pointing to the man on the righthand side of this picture, out of the three persons who appear in the picture.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q I now refer you to Prosecution Exhibit 11b-B and ask you to state whether or not one of the three men that appear on that picture is the same person you have just identified in Prosecution Exhibit 11b-I?

A Yes.

Q Will you point him out on that exhibit?

A (Indicating.)

MAJOR SAXON: Let the record show that the accused identified this man as being the person out of three, the person being the one on the lefthand side in that picture.

Let the record further show that it has been stipulated between the prosecution and the defense that it is Joseph B. Zinn who has been identified by this accused. Is that correct?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We so stipulate that the man pointed to on the picture is Joseph B. Zinn.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is accepted by the court.

MAJOR SAXON: Does the court care to see this?

PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I would like to ask one more question.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Lanzak, if you understood that these orders were above-board, that these men were to get a fair trial before a Wehrmacht court, can you explain why the orders were marked top secret and you were instructed to burn them?

A Because it was only for acknowledgment and so that spies and agents couldn't get hold of these orders.

Q They were classified the very highest secret matter, weren't they?

A Yes.

Q This man Zinn that you have identified in this photograph — isn't he a kid about 18 years old?

A No, he is older. He is between 35 and 40.

Q You are sure about that?

A Definitely over 30.

Q And definitely over 20?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q You mentioned in your cross examination by Captain Vance that he spoke German also?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether or not, Mr. Isaak, he is a native-born Austrian or German?

A I don't know that.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all. No further questions on the part of the defense.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further from the prosecution.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness resumed his seat in the dock.)

GUNTHER HIEMANN, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Will you state your name and age?

A Gunther Hiemann, 46 years old.

Q What is your permanent residence?

A Essen, Misthoffweg 26.

Q Where are you now residing?

A Special camp Dachau.

Q What is your status here?

A I am an internee.

Q You testified here in behalf of the prosecution earlier in this case, did you not?

A Yes.

Q Where were you taken prisoner?

A In Egerland, in the village Wassertroupeten.

Q When was that?

A On the 6th of May, 1945.

Q Where were you taken and confined after that date?

A On that day, I marched with my comrades and other units of the Wehrmacht to Bischoftinits.

Q Where were you next taken from that place and confined?

A From Bischoftinits we were taken in trucks to the prisoner of war camp Weiden.

Q Did you finally reach a camp called Natternberg No. 5?

A Yes.

Q When did you reach there?

A I arrived there on the 28th of May, 1945.

Q How long were you confined there?

A Until the 26th of January, 1946.

Q Do you know why you are confined here in Dachau?

A I am as a witness here in the flier trial for the Wehrkreis XII. Why I am in the class of war criminals, I don't know.

Q You have never been charged with a war crime, have you?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent testimony as to this man's status.

MAJOR SAXON: I think it has some bearing on his credibility as a witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Let me remind the defense counsel that he is your witness.

MAJOR SAXON: I know it. I want to show his good standing.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

A No.

Q Were you in Hattersberg, Camp No. 5, when the accused Julius Lasnak was also a prisoner there?

A Yes.

Q Were you there on the day that he was subjected to interrogation?

A Yes.

Q Will you just tell the court what you know regarding the treatment given Lasnak that day during his interrogation and what you saw of him afterwards?

A I myself wasn't present during the interrogation.

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, I am going to object right there. He said he was not present, so I am going to object to him testifying about anything that took place. He said he was not there.

MAJOR SAXON: I intended my question, when I made it, to cover during that time and what he saw afterwards regarding Lasnak, so he can't testify until he has laid that foundation, not at the actual interrogation, but what he saw afterwards.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

A (Cont'd) After the interrogation, we were waiting for Lasnak, because it was sometime. We knew that other examples who had been taken for interrogations before Lasnak, to a special interrogation barracks outside the camp, had been beaten. We saw them when Lassak returned from the interrogation barracks to the camp, from the interrogation barracks, which was approximately 150 meters from the entrance gate to the camp. Lassak couldn't walk straight. He had his head down. He came through the camp gate and when he reached the place in front of the camp gate, he fell to the ground. Some of the comrades ran over to him and picked him up. Lassak was moaning. He was beaten up in his face. His face was swollen up and at the beginning he didn't say anything. We carried him and I don't remember exactly any more whether we carried him first to the doctor and then to his quarters. Anyway, at the end he was put into his bed. The doctor was there and we were not allowed to see him. Lassak then said a few incoherent words that he had been beaten. Sometime later then, I received the permission to go to him. I then gave him my hand and told him to keep his head up and not to lose his courage. His head was bandaged over the front head with a white bandage, and Lassak gave me a sign with his head like he understood what I said to him.

A few days later, Lassak asked that I should visit him. I went to him with a colonel of the Order Police, Hink. He is now at Ludwigsburg. During this conversation, Lassak was able again to talk, but his face was still blue and green and at this occasion, he told us that during the interrogation outside the camp he had been beaten severely. A few methods of interrogation were used on him and during these interrogations he was beaten on several occasions. He told us that whenever he got unconscious, water was poured over him so that he regained consciousness. Furthermore, he said he didn't know any more exactly what he had said, but it seems to him there was something about a confession he had to make. I can't make too exact a statement in regard to this matter, because there was a lot of talking going on at that time about beatings in the camp because all the comrades were beaten. As far as I can recall, he was supposed to make a confession also to the effect that he had been the chief of the Gestapo. I can't say any more about this.

Q Have you had any opportunity to see or talk with Lassak at all in the past thirty days since this trial started?

A I saw and spoke with Lassak for the last time when he was taken from the Special Camp to the bunker.

Q When was that?

A Just a moment I put it down on paper. I think on Friday, the 13th of December.

Q Will you just tell the court what Lassak's appearance was before he underwent this interrogation, what his physical appearance and weight and so forth were?

A I came to this camp on the 28th of May and Lassak came either with me or two days later. Although we all were beaten when we entered the camp, we still were not beaten in such a manner that we had marks of beatings on our bodies and Lassak was in good condition as all of us were.

Q What did you observe as to his condition as far as weight and appearance were after this interrogation?

A He was very much depressed on account of the beatings. He did a lot of thinking about the confessions which he had made and which supposedly were not correct, and we noticed that not only through the prisoners food and the fact that he was a prisoner but also for other reasons, he was losing weight and was getting weaker.

Q Did you state that he had black and blue marks on his face from this beating?

CAPTAIN [illegible]: I object to his leading the witness.

MAJOR [illegible]: I think he said blue and green marks. I didn't mean black and blue.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

(Niemann-direct)

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q What kind of marks did you observe on his face after this bandage was removed?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the grounds it is repetitious.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Do you recall how long these discolorations on his face remained?

A It might have been eight, ten or twelve days, as usual when you are beaten, the same way as when a child gets beaten, first it's blue and then it gets yellow.

Q Did Lassak tell you what they interrogated him in regard to?

A Yes, I just remember it now through your question. He had given my name as a witness because I would know his headquarters, but I was not interrogated. He wanted me to testify that he was not the chief of the Gestapo at Giessen.

Q Were you ever called as a witness to verify his statement?

A No.

Q Mr. Niemann, when Lassak was Polizei Director in Giessen, you, for at least part of that time, held a position as the Befehlshaber of the Ordnungs Polizei, is that right?

A Yes, from the 10th of October 1944.

MAJOR SAXON: That is all. Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q What was your military rank when you were Chief of the BDO of Rhein-Westmark?

A When I took over this office I was Lt. Colonel of the Rural Police. On the 14th of October I became Colonel of the Rural Police.

Q At that time you were the immediate superior officer of Colonel Lassak, is that correct?

A No.

Q He was not under your command?

A No. The Police Directors were not under the Commanders of the Order Police. Only the Order Police at Giessen was under my command.

Q Did you know Colonel Lassak at that time personally?

A I got to know Lassak on an official trip to Giessen, perhaps in November.

Q 1944?

A Yes, 1944.

Q And you have known him continually from that time up to the present date?

A Yes, but I was in Giessen only once and I got acquainted with him more closely only during our retreat.

Q Now, I believe you said you saw Colonel Lassak after his interrogation, is that correct?

A At Hattenberg?

Q Yes.

A Yes.

Q Your knowledge of what happened and what was said about what took place at the interrogation is what Lassak told you, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Lassak told you that they had made him make a confession, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q And he told you that they had questioned him about Gestapo activities in Giessen, is that right?

A Yes. May I say something else, too? It just comes in my mind.

(Niemann-dross)

a general at Hatternberg, everything had to be presented to the general and immediately the treatment improved. The beatings during the interrogations stopped immediately; we got better food and the American soldiers, I mean the American front soldiers, always treated us decently.

Q Did Colonel Lagnak also tell you that they questioned him about a flier who had been killed in Giessen in October 1944?

A No.

Q Were you interrogated at Hatternberg?

A I was interrogated at Hatternberg only on the 17th or 18th of January 1946 when I came out of the automatic arrest class and there was an application for my release.

Q Were you beaten?

A At Hatternberg yes, when we entered the camp, all of us.

Q Colonel Wiemann, about how long have you known me?

A I know Captain Vance from Wiesbaden.

(Wiemann-cross)

Za 147 50

Q Yes.

A He told me also that he had been confronted with the organization of the Police Director at Regensburg because at Regensburg the organization -- what I didn't know because I had nothing to do with it -- was different from the organization at Giessen because supposedly at Regensburg the Police Director, who had the same position as Lassak had at Giessen, was also the chief of the Gestapo.

Q Did Lassak tell you further that he was beaten and forced to sign his name to a confession in Nuremberg?

A There was so much talking going on about confessions and revocations of confessions that I couldn't say under oath whether he really said he signed the confession. I know he only said he was supposed to make a confession and if I remember, he later on made application. There was

Q Since you have known me, have you been mistreated in any way whatsoever?

A No. Captain Vance always treated me very correctly, very properly and during my sta, at the hospital in Wiesbaden when I was very ill he took care of me so I got many improvements.

CAPTAIN VANCE: That is all.

MAJOR SAXON: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: Questions by the court? The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

ERNST MUENK, recalled as a witness by the defense, having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further through an interpreter as follows:

PRESIDENT: You are reminded you are still under oath.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Mr. Muenk, did you know the Kriminalrat Winzer in Giessen?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what became of him?

A The end of November '46 the rumor was going around that he hung himself.

Q From whom did you got that rumor?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object to this, may it please the court. I can't understand the materiality of it.

MAJOR SAXON: I told the court to start with that Winzer was Kriminalrat at that time and there is evidence to show he directed the death of that flier and that Winzer has now committed suicide.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I am willing to stipulate he committed suicide while in the custody of the Americans in an American jail.

MAJOR SAXON: That is the only purpose I called this witness for.

(Muenk-redirect)

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is accepted. The court does not desire to question this witness, he is excused.

(Thereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, the defense has only one other witness and that is Lt. Colonel Hellweg-Emden. I have exercised every possible means in my power to get him here. I want to state to the court that information from the Apprehension Section in Augsburg is to the effect that he was placed in a train in Frankfurt by one of the War Crimes teams Thursday night, last Thursday night, I believe February 6th and directed to report here as a witness. Since that date we have not heard from him. We cannot learn where he is. I have learned this morning that he has not returned to his home. I am trying to locate him in Munich at the hospitals and through the police and the Apprehension Section is also trying to do so. I would like to have a right to present the evidence of that witness when and if I find him at any time during this trial.

CAPTAIN VARGO: We have no objections.

PRESIDENT: No objection by the court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I don't suppose it is necessary, may it please the court but as a matter of record perhaps I should make this statement. When we go from one charge to another we are not resting on any charge. We reserve the right to come back. Normally we expected to go from Charge 3 to Charge 4 but it so happens that Dr. Aheimer's mother died and he is leaving tonight for the funeral. He is involved in Charges 4 and 5 so, with the court's permission, we are now going to jump to Charge 9 which is the first charge with which Dr. Aheimer is not connected. Major Saxon will conduct that.

PRESIDENT: Court will take a recess in place.

Boerger is special counsel engaged by these accused -- that is, Georg Best, Erwin Goss, and Heinrich Micholy.

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

MAJOR SAXON: The evidence of the defense here will disclose to the court that the accused, Goss, Erwin Goss, was a soldier in the Wehrmacht of the German Forces from sometime around the beginning of the war; that he was seriously wounded on the Eastern Front, having lost an eye in this engagement besides receiving some forty or fifty distinct wounds from exploding shells; that he was hospitalized for a long time and that subsequently and until the Fall of 1944, after having been back in civilian life for a year or two, he was drafted into the Waffen SS. I think this was in October 1944. That when he left the Wehrmacht he held the rank of Lieutenant and when he was drafted into the Waffen SS he was given that same rank and at that time he was assigned to General Streop in Wehrkreis XII as liaison officer between the Werwolf School and General Streop's headquarters in Wiesbaden; that around the first of the year 1945

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

CAPTAIN WAGNER: If it please the Court, I'd like to state before we open the proceedings, that each one of the members of the Court signed an oath every effort to locate witnesses which have been requested and prepare the case for trial. We did not locate all of the witnesses requested. We did locate Lieutenant Colonel Hall and Lieutenant Colonel Bowman. We have every reason to believe that we can produce them before the end of the week.

PRESIDENT: Very well.

MAJOR SAXON: I'd like to state, sir, that the defense has requested the presence of certain witnesses and evidence by the writing dated 15 August 1945, addressed to the Commanding General, Army Forces Western Pacific, and that the defense has been informed that the witnesses requested are not available. I would like to state that the defense considers the presence of these witnesses essential to the defense of the accused.

PRESIDENT: Very well.

MAJOR SAXON: I'd like to state that the defense has been informed that the witnesses requested are not available by the writing dated 15 August 1945, addressed to the Commanding General, Army Forces Western ovidance will show he was appointed as a sort of superintendent in charge of this Werwolf School in Wallrabenstein. This school was also located in another town near there for a few months and then moved to Wallrabenstein. This Werwolf School had about three to five instructorsand there was an average of thirty to fifty students in the school. That the mission of this school was to train defien it in the art of defense with small arms and in demolition for the purpose mainly of destroying bridges and highways as the enemy approached and for the further purpose of destroying rear lines of communication of the enemy such as bridges after the enemy had passed, if they were rebuilt, and the destroying of the advance of supplies and equipment. Further than that, it will show that around the 1st of January General Streop also made Lt. Goss a sort of a Provost Marshal of this town of Wallrabenstein for the purpose of maintaining order generally in thatimmediate vicinity. The evidence will show further that at this time Lt. Goss was informed of the instructions that had been handed down from the highest headquarters, that is Himmler, to the effect that certain parachuted fliers who were found to be enemy agents, saboteurs or other persons who were coming behind the German lines for the purpose of destroying and damaging property, were to be executed.

The evidence will show that Lieutenant Goss continued in his work, without any particular thing unusual happening until the 15th day of March, 1945, at which time a parachuted flier was apprehended by some of Goss' personnel at this school and was brought to headquarters; and Lieutenant Goss called in to Wiesbaden, asking for advice as to how he should dispose of this flier. At this point the court should be informed that in Wiesbaden, the accused Major Georg Best was a staff officer of General Stroop's, and was in charge of the Werewolf activities in Wehrkreis 12. Lieutenant Goss attempted to contact Major Best and therefore secure from him information from General Stroop as to the disposition of this flier. Major Best happened to be out at the time so a message was left with Major Best's assistant and on his return, learning of the telephone call, he made inquiries of General Stroop as to what disposition he should make of this flier. General Stroop gave the order that the flier was to be executed and directed Major Best to convey that order to Lieutenant Goss. This was some time in the afternoon of March 15th, 1945. That message was not conveyed at once, but around six o'clock, Lieutenant Goss and Major Best met in a sort of rectangular set of barracks near the area of Wiesbaden, which was the usual place to meet in the evening, providing they were unable to communicate with each other by telephone, and Major Best conveyed General Stroop's order to Lieutenant Goss. Lieutenant Goss returned by motorcycle to Wallrabenstein and directed that one of his subordinates named Buhlmann execute this order by taking the flier from the city of Wallrabenstein and shooting him on the outside of the city. Buhlmann started out with the flier, and due to difficulties of too many civilians around and many other things interfering, decided not to execute the flier. He returned with the flier and told Lieutenant Goss that he had brought the flier back. Lieutenant Goss then directed

The evidence will show too that either Richely nor Goss ever participated, before or after that time, in the mistreatment or execution of any flier or allied prisoner of war. That they were acting directly under the direct superior order that they had, coming down from Himmler, to execute this particular flier. That Major Rost in no way directed the execution of this flier or the one on March 15th. That he merely conveyed to Goss either Streep's order or Himmler's order that Streep was conveying down. That Major Rost held no command function but was strictly a staff officer and in this capacity was nothing further than a courier.

That will be the evidence disclosed to this court in Charge 9.

If it please the court, before the defense commences with the presentation of this evidence, it is so near adjournment time, I minutes or half hour and captured him and brought him before Goss. At that time he was interrogated -- this was some time between two and three in the afternoon. He was kept there until evening and Goss then directed that Michely take this flier ostensively to another place of security, and that he was to execute him. Around seven or eight o'clock that night Michely took the flier out on this road halfway and did shoot him. The evidence will further show that Michely returned and made his report to Goss. This report was written up by Michely and Michely turned it over to Goss, who certified it and turned it over to headquarters in some other town. It had to be sent by way of a courier, and this report reached Wiesbaden headquarters, or General Streep, probably the 19th, 20th, or 21st. A great state of confusion existed. The time of its reaching there is not important to this issue.

wonder if it would be possible to adjourn at this time and start it off at one-thirty.

PRESIDENT: I think we are delaying too much. Let us proceed.

ERWIN GOSS, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made an unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your name.

A Erwin Goss.

Q Your age?

A 41 years of age.

Q Your home residence?

A Frankfurt-Main.

Q Your occupation in civilian life?

A Economist.

Q Where are you presently confined?

A Prisoner of war at Dachau.

Q You are one of the accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q Are you married or single?

A Yes.

Q Married?

A Yes.

Q What does your family consist of?

A My wife, one son and one daughter.

Q How old are your children?

A My children are ten and eleven years old.

Q What was your occupation in civilian life?

A I was a federal employee of the Reichs organization, Rhein-Main.

Q Where was your headquarters at that time?

A Darmstadt.

Q Will you tell the court what that kind of work consists of?

A The Reich planning organization since the year 1936 was part of the Reich department for the reorganization and redistribution of ground.

Q Well, it meant building and planning of new road, did it not?

A The Reich planning organization had to do with the proper distribution of property, of real estate, and with the proper settlement of industry in cities and out of the country.

Q When did you first join the armed forces of Germany?

A In 1939 I was drafted into the field.

Q What branch of the service did you go in at that time?

A I was a member of the 14th company of the infantry, regiment 81, with headquarters at Frankfurt.

Q Was that a part of the Wehrmacht?

A Yes, it was a machine gun company of this regiment.

Q After your training to what front did you proceed?

A I participated in the entire war on the western front and at the eastern front until I was wounded severely.

Q What date was that?

A On the 23rd of July 1941.

(Goss-Direct)

Q What did your wounds consist of?

A I got a full hit which destroyed my right eye, my hearing of my right ear, and my right leg, and furthermore, several shrapnel splinters in my head.

Q Do you know how many shrapnel splinters you received altogether in your body?

A I had over sixty splinters.

Q Are these shrapnel splinters still in your brain?

A Two splinters are still in my brain and they have the size of a pea.

Q How long were you in the hospital as the result of this accident?

A I was in the hospital for over one year.

Q Where was that?

A First I was brought to Koenigsberg by airplane. There I was operated several times. For four weeks I was blind and for six weeks I was out of my mind, since my second eye was affected too and I had a grave eye disease from this shot.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, I fail to see where this is material, -- this man's health during the war and his injuries. Maybe I am wrong.

MAJOR SAXON: Here is a man who is up for a charge that is the most serious of all kinds. I think the court has a right to know something about his military background. That might be the reason for his doing some of the things he did or was ordered to do.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. I would like to caution the defense that the court only desires the things that are material to the case.

MAJOR SAXON: Yes, sir.

(Goss-Direct)

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q After you were released from the hospital, were you then discharged from the army?

A Yes.

Q Were you sent home from military service as unfit for further duty?

A Yes.

Q About when was that?

A The end of 1943.

Q Were you later called back into military service?

A Yes, in 1944 I was drafted once more.

Q What month in 1944?

A August I had my examination and in October I was ordered to General Streep's headquarters.

Q Was that in Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q Into what branch of the service were you drafted?

A I was transferred to the Waffen SS as first lieutenant or first lieutenant of the SS respectively.

Q Was that the same rank you had when you were discharged as being unfit for active service?

A Yes.

Q What was your assignment when you first reported to General Streep's headquarters?

A General Streep told me that he was in need of an adjutant who was a front officer because his present adjutant had no front experience. Since I fulfilled his requirements he asked me whether I was willing to accept this assignment. I accepted this assignment with the remark that if he is satisfied with my work on account of my very heavy wounds.

Q Did you then commence to act as adjutant?

A No.

Q Tell the court what happened then or what you did next.

A In order to hand over my professional business matters I requested a ten-day leave in order to hand all these matters over into the hands of my successor. At the beginning of October, 1944 -- I don't know the exact date any more -- I reported for duty at General Stroop's headquarters at Wiesbaden. Since General Stroop was not present I reported to his chief-of-staff, Colonel Schlums.

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until one-thirty.

(Thereupon at 1200 hours the court recessed until 1330 hours.)

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all members of the court are present with the exception of Colonel Robertson who has been temporarily excused by order of the appointing authority; all members of the prosecution, all members of the defense except Dr. Frost whose absence is caused by sickness, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter are present.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, the prosecution announced before the noon recess that it would get the witnesses and attempt to rebut the testimony of Julius Lasaak to the effect that he was beaten. By coincidence the witness, Gerald Coates, is here in Dachau. I saw him during the noon hour. I talked to Mr. Coates an told him we would want him and the court would want him before this court at a later time. He stated that he was leaving the employment of War Crimes. He is on his way now on ten days leave. He will not be available in the next ten days. Any time after that he will be in military government in Berlin. He is present here physically if the court should desire to call him as a witness.

I realize the customary procedure, that the prosecution would not be entitled to place a witness on the stand while the defense is presenting its case.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Normally, may it please the court, there would be very strenuous objection, but in view of the fact that the witness may be outside the jurisdiction of the court we will accept the court's decision as to the desire of the court to hear Coates at the present time.

PRESIDENT: Under the circumstances the court desires to hear the witness, preferably this afternoon.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, this witness is all packed and ready to leave. I wonder if it is possible to hear him at this time?

PRESIDENT: We will hear him right now.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Call Gerald Coates.

GERALD COATES, called as a witness in rebuttal by the prosecution, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q State your full name.

A Gerald Coates.

Q Mr. Coates are you a U. S. Civilian Employee employed by the War Department?

A Yes.

Q By what branch of the War Department are you employed?

A I work with the War Crimes Group in Augsburg, with the control section.

Q During the month of August, 1946 were you employed by War Crimes Group?

A Yes.

Q Where was the headquarters of War Crimes located at that time?

A In Weisbaden, Germany.

Q Mr. Coates, do you know another War Crimes civilian employee by the name of Joseph B. Zinn?

A Yes.

Q In August of 1946 was Mr. Zinn working for the War Crimes Branch at Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q What was his job or position with War Crimes?

A He was an investigator with War Crimes Group.

(Coates-direct)

Q Mr. Coates do you know a person by the name of Arnold Mela?

A Yes, I remember him.

Q Who was he?

A He was a court reporter with War Crimes Group in Wiesbaden.

Q What was his nationality?

A He was an Australian.

Q Do you know where Mr. Mela is today?

A As far as I know he went back in January to Australia.

Q Do you know where Mr. Joseph A. Winn is today?

A He returned to the States in December, 1948.

Q Mr. Coates, I show you a document which states as the testimony of Julius Lasak taken at Wiesbaden Germany, which statement has been introduced as Prosecution Exhibit 57 and ask you to examine that document. State whether or not you were the interpreter who translated at the time that that interrogation was made.

A Yes, I remember it.

Q Were you present during the entire time of this particular interrogation?

A Yes I was.

Q Who propounded the questions to Mr. Lasak?

A Mr. Winn.

Q Were his questions propounded in English?

A No, in German.

Q You mean he propounded his question in German to the accused Lasak?

A I have to correct myself. He propounded the questions in English. I translated his questions into German and then I retranslated to Mr. Winn into English again.

(Coates-direct)

pld-1Gb-6

Q Was this civilian employee, Arnold Mola, present during this interrogation?

A Yes, he was.

Q What were his duties, and what did he do?

A He just took down the testimony into English.

Q Was he a stenographer?

A Yes.

Q Was he present during the entire interrogation of the accused Lasaak?

A Yes, he was.

Q Will you, in your own words, tell the court what took place in the interrogation room from the time you, Zinn and Mola entered until the time that you left?

A The prisoner Lasaak was brought in. We were sitting at the desk waiting for him. Mr. Zinn asked him to sit down. He asked questions and after a while when Mr. Zinn had the impression that Mr. Lasaak lied to him he said to Mr. Lasaak, "Stand up." and took the chair away from him.

More questions were asked and again Mr. Zinn had the impression that Mr. Lasaak lied to him so Mr. Zinn lost his patience, rushed around the desk and took the prisoner Lasaak and pressed him against the wall. He told him that he is not going to stand for any nonsense and he should stop that lying. Then he went back to his chair and again Mr. Zinn asked him questions up to the end of the statement.

Q On this occasion did this man Zinn beat the accused Lasaak?

A No, he did not.

Q Did he hit him with his hand or with any other object?

A No, he did not.

Q Did you truthfully propound and translate the questions propounded by Mr. Zinn into the German language?

A Yes, I did.

(Coates-direct)

Q Did you truthfully translate the answers given by Lasenk back into the English language?

A Yes, I did.

Q Do you speak and understand the German language and the English language fluently?

A Yes, I do.

Q Where did you learn your German?

A Here in Germany. I was born here.

Q How long did you live in Germany?

A About 29 years.

Q How long did you live in America?

A About eight years.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY [illegible] COUNSEL:

Q When did you live in Germany?

A 1929.

Q Now these questions that were asked, were they prepared in advance of the interrogation?

A No.

Q Where did this interrogation take place?

A At the jail--at the city jail in Wiesbaden.

Q Was that the same building that housed the accused?

A Yes.

Q Were you present at Giessen during an interrogation of Lasenk?

A No, I was not.

Q Your knowledge of the interrogation of Lasenk is limited to Wiesbaden, is that correct?

A That is right.

Q Do you know whether or not Zinn talked to Lassak in his cell at any time before Lassak was brought into the room for interrogation?

A No, not at that time when he interrogated Lassak at Wiesbaden, because we both came from our office together and Lassak was asked--the director of the jail was asked to get Lassak into the interrogation room.

Q Did you leave at the same time that Zinn did?

A Yes, I did.

Q How well does Zinn speak German?

A Zinn was born in Austria and was living in Austria for about--as far as I can recollect--about 15 years.

Q How old is he now?

A He is about 28, 4 or 5.

Q So that during the interrogation at Wiesbaden you were with Zinn all the time that he was in jail on that occasion?

A Yes I was.

Q Is it part of the procedure of investigators to push persons interrogated against the wall if you don't believe they are telling the truth?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object, if it please the court.

PRESIDENT: The objection is sustained.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q How long did this interrogation take place?

A About an hour.

Q Was anything said to Lassak when he was brought into the room prior to the first question that was put to him?

A I don't remember it.

Q Do you remember whether or not there was any preliminary conversation between you and Lassak or Zinn and Lassak or between Zinn and yourself before the interrogation began?

A No, there was not.

(Coates-cross)

Q Did you not ask Lassak at that time, "Why are you looking so scared?" and Lassak said, "I didn't want to be beaten again." and you said, "Never mind, I will take care of that."?

A I don't remember that.

Q Will you deny that such a statement took place?

A It could have happened that I told him that he doesn't have to be afraid.

Q Why would it be necessary for you to make such a statement?

A Because he said that he was beaten before and I told him--it is very well I could have told him that we don't use methods like this.

Q Did he tell you who had beaten him before?

A Yes. He said that some agents of the CIC.

Q Didn't he mention Zinn by name to you?

A No, he did not.

Q Didn't he indicate in some way that Zinn was the man who previously had beaten him?

A No, he did not.

Q Was Zinn at any time a member of the CIC? Did he

A I don't think so.

Q How long did you know Zinn prior to this meeting at which the interrogation took place?

A I knew him ever since March, 1945.

Q Were you working since March 1945 all of the time with Zinn or did you have duties apart from him, and did he have duties apart from you?

A We worked apart from each other.

Q What did you say when Zinn pushed him up against the wall?

A I said to him, "Joe, come back. Don't do a thing like this. We don't touch prisoners."

Q What did you say to him when he took Lassak's chair away?

(Coates-cross)

Q Did he slam him up against the wall.

A He slammed him against the wall, yes.

Q The first time that he lost his patience what did he say?

A "I have enough of this lying Iasenk, you tell me the truth now."

Q Did he tell Iasenk what would happen if Iasenk didn't tell the truth?

A I don't remember that.

Q Do you remember whether or not there was any more conversation other than what you have just testified to?

A That was all.

Q The second time he lost his patience and shoved him up against the wall was anything said?

A As far as I remember he only lost his patience once.

Q Well, Mr. Coates, you said the first time he lost his patience Zima took the chair away and the second time he lost his patience he shoved him up against the wall, is that correct?

(Coates-cross)

A I didn't say anything.

Q At what time during the course of the interrogation was the chair removed?

A It was around the beginning of the interrogation. I don't remember the exact time.

Q At what time during the interrogation was he pushed against the wall by Zinn?

A Around the middle.

Q How was this push accomplished?

A He went up to him, took him by the blouse and pressed him against the wall.

Q How far did he push him?

A About a yard.

Q Did he shake him at all?

A No.

A That is right.

Q What did he say the second time he lost his patience?

A That is what he said the second time. "Now don't lie to me."

Q Did Zinn, at any time, tell Lassak what the truth in the case really was?

A Yes, he did.

Q How often did that sort of business take place?

A Which business do you mean?

Q How often did Zinn tell Lassak, "Well Lassak you know the real way it happened to 'so and so' and not the way you said it."?

A About four or five times.

Q Were you armed on that occasion?

A I don't think so.

Q Was Zinn?

A I don't think so either.

Q Will you think back, Mr. Coates, search your memory, and then tell the court whether or not either you yourself or Zinn carried a pistol or were a pistol or had a pistol on your person or there was a pistol in the room, at any time during the interrogation?

A As far as I remember we didn't wear any pistols, because we don't carry pistols around during interrogations. We only carry pistols while we are transporting prisoners.

Q That may have been your custom, Mr. Coates. I am not questioning your general custom. But on this particular occasion is it not true that Zinn was carrying a pistol on his right hip?

CAPTAIN YANCY: I object to the question on the grounds that the question is repetitious. The question has been asked twice and answered.

BY MR. CONNALLY: I pray the court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Was Zinn, on this particular occasion, during at least part of the time when he was being interrogated, didn't Zinn carry a pistol on his right hip in a holster?

A As far as I can remember he did not.

Q Is it not also true that during that same time he carried a sap--I think that is the slang for a billy--in his right rear pocket?

A I have never seen such a thing on him.

Q Did you ever see Zinn carry one of these leather contraptions about a foot long that makes a very effective club--a loaded blackjack?

A I have never seen it.

Q On these four or five occasions when Zinn told Lassak "Lassak, that is not the truth" -- I am giving the paraphrase of his words; I am not trying to quote them, because I do not know that they are -- but on these four or five occasions when Zinn said to Lassak, "Lassak, that is not the truth, it happened so and so," how did the statement finally come out--the way Zinn said it should be as being the truth or the way Lassak said in the first place the way it should be as being the truth?

A It came out to Zinn's satisfaction.

Q At any time was there some discussion back and forth between Lassak and Zinn before the answer was given to Zinn's satisfaction?

A Yes.

Q Tell me: As long as Zinn understood German so well, why were the two of you there?

A He asked me to act as an interpreter, which was very unusual because he took Mr. Weller, who didn't speak any German at all, with him. He acted as a court reporter, and he wanted Mr. Weller to put the whole statement down at the spot into English.

Q Was there any reason for this unusual procedure?

A Not especially. Zinn apparently wanted to get this thing over with as quickly as possible and wanted to have the statement all prepared and ready.

Q In propounding his questions did Zinn have any papers in front of him to which he made reference from time to time?

(Costas - Cross)

A I don't remember.

Q During these four or five times that Zinn differed with Lassak, did he on each of these four or five occasions say, "Lassak, stop lying; that is not the truth!?

A Yes, he did.

Q Isn't this the real truth: that what Zinn wanted that night was a statement to Zinn's satisfaction and not a statement of what Lassak wanted to tell?

A Zinn, in my mind, wanted the truth!

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will you repeat the question I originally asked?

(Whereupon the last question was read by the reporter.)

CAPTAIN VANCE: We submit the question has been answered and that the defense counsel is arguing with the witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. His answer was that Zinn wanted him to tell the truth, which was not responsive to my question.

CAPTAIN VANCE: What do you want him to give, the untruth?

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: I can only state what I said before--that Zinn wanted nothing else but what was, in his opinion, the truth.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q And is it not true that he insisted that the answers be given according to his interpretation of the truth and not what Lassak wanted to say? That can be answered yes or no, Mr. Coates.

(Coates - Cross)

A I can only answer this question as I see fit, because I tell the truth. But I can't be forced into saying anything which I don't think is right.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. I do not want to be contumacious, but I submit that answer also is not responsive, and I appeal to the court to ask the witness to answer my question.

PRESIDENT: The witness will give the answer as he can and will not be confined to yes or no.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Let us leave it this way: that at least four or five times during that interrogation Lasaak gave certain answers to certain questions which did not please or suit Mr. Zinn for one reason or another. That is true, is it not?

A Yes.

Q And on each of these four or five occasions Zinn said, "Lasaak, that is not the truth. The real truth is so and so." Is that true?

A Yes.

Q And on each of these occasions when this thing happened, the interrogation as finally completed contained as his answers what Zinn said was the truth and not what Lasaak said originally; isn't that true?

A I only remember that at the final end of the statement the Lasaak statement came out as Zinn wanted it.

Q Was that statement read back to Lasaak in German after it was completed?

A As far as I remember he read it himself. We gave it to him to read, and then after he was finished reading it, signed it.

(Coates - Cross)

Q You know that statement was taken down in English, do you not, Mr. Coates?

A That is right. I am sorry. That is right.

Q Did you read it back to him?

A Yes, we read it to him.

Q Who? You or Zinn?

A I did.

Q I would like to call your attention to the exhibit itself, Mr. Coates (handing paper to witness) -- the attestation clause signed by Zinn. Read that to yourself--the attestation clause signed and sworn to by Zinn--and then I will ask you a question about that.

A Yes.

Q According to that attestation clause Zinn swears that he himself read it back. Is that not true?

A Yes.

Q Now, is that attestation clause sworn to by Zinn the truth?

CAPTAIN VANCE: May it please the court, I want to interpose an objection. That whole thing reflects that everything was done through an interpreter. This man acted as interpreter. I might make a statement that I read something to the accused, and very often you do make a statement, but you know when you use an interpreter you do it through him. I think the question is unfair and it is an attempt to trick this witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

(Coates - Cross)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like, before the court stands by that ruling, to take the trouble to read the attestation clause. When a man who speaks German says in there "Do hereby certify that by reason of my training, experience, and education, I read, write, speak, understand, and interpret both the English and German languages, that I have correctly translated the oath in the foregoing statement administered by me, and that the statement given by Julius Lassak . . . was read over to the said Julius Lassak by me in German, am I asking a trick question? I pray the court's judgment. That is what he says--"by me".

PRESIDENT: The court changes its ruling and overrules the objection.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Is the statement contained in that attestation clause, signed and sworn to by Joseph Ziun in Prosecution Exhibit 57, wherein he says that he interpreted and translated to Lassak the questions and answers appearing above, true or not?

A I was an interpreter during that statement, and I translated the statement to Lassak.

Q Did Ziun translate that statement to Lassak in addition to your translation, or was yours the only translation made?

A Mine was the only one.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Could I ask for a recess in place for two or three minutes, because there is a possibility that the witness' testimony may be essential in a similar situation in another charge. I can tell in two or three minutes.

PRESIDENT: Recess in place.

(Coates - Cross)

(Thereupon the court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further on this matter.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Coates, Colonel Herman asked you why you and Zinn both, being German speakers, were present at this interrogation. I want to ask you: Is it customary for a man to interpret and translate his own work?

A No, it isn't.

Q And even though Mr. Zinn spoke German you were there to translate so the statement could be taken from German into English; is that correct?

A That's right.

Q And from English to German likewise?

A That's right.

Q Can you furnish the court with the last address or the last information you have about Joseph Zinn?

A The only information I can give you is this: that he wanted to get back to New York City College, I think, and he wasn't even sure if he could get in.

Q When did he leave Germany? Do you know the approximate time he left War Crimes and returned to the States?

A I think it was December 1946.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the court?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to ask him just one more question, with the court's permission.

(Coates - Redirect)

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Would you recognize Lassak if you saw him again?

A Yes, I would.

Q Will you please point him out?

A Number 18.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record show that he identified the accused No. 18.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Any questions by the court?

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court.

CAPTAIN ANCE: Request the witness be excused.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

MAJOR SAXON: Is the court ready to proceed with 9?

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

PROSECUTION: Let the record show that the accused Goss, No. 15, resumed the stand.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: In an effort to expedite this thing, with the court's permission I would like to take Somann and Hellenbroich outside the courtroom and see if I can find out what these statements are about. It might save the time of everyone concerned.

PRESIDENT: Any objection?

CAPTAIN VANCE: No objection.

PRESIDENT: Permission is granted.

(Whereupon the accused Somann and Hellenbroich withdrew from the courtroom.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would also like to take Girke, No. 19.

PRESIDENT: That will be permitted.

(Thereupon the accused Girke withdrew from the courtroom.)

ERWIN GOSS, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (continued)

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Lieutenant Goss, just before the noon recess we left off with you reporting to Colonel Schlums, chief of staff of General Stroop. After you reported there what did you do next?

A By order of Colonel Schlums I went out to Tiefenthal, where I reported to Captain Kriegsheim, who was in charge of setting up this school.

Q How far was Tiefenthal from Wiesbaden?

A 12 kilometers.

Q Was this school at that time just in the process of being established?

A Yes.

Q And what was this school known as?

A The name was Werewolf.

Q How long had the school been in operation before you arrived there on that day?

A It wasn't in operation at all; it was in construction.

Q What was your assignment of duty at that time?

A The first day I was out there, I didn't have any idea of what I was supposed to be doing. I was told only to report out there to be a liaison officer at that school.

Q About what day was that?

A I can't say that exactly. It was the beginning of October.

Q What were your duties from then up until the first of January?

A I was told that I was supposed to be in charge of the personal welfare of the 35 men who were taking part in various courses in this school.

Q What did you actually do yourself during this time from October through December?

A I took this job as liaison officer at the school between the school and General Stroop. I reported all incidents which mostly concerned personal matters of these men to General Stroop, as well as everything concerning plans and operations of interest to General Stroop.

Q Did you finally take charge of the operation of this school?

A I, myself, was a liaison officer and did not have any training whatever concerning these Werewolf matters.

Q Were you given any training at that time?

A No, after differences of opinion arose between Captain Kriegsheim and General Stroop, I was scheduled to take charge of the school itself.

Q And when was that?

A The arguments started between October and Christmas, 1944.

Q When did you take charge of the school, Lt. Goss?

A In order to take over this school, I was sent to school at Brandenburg which lasted from Christmas, 1944 until New Year's.

Q What was your training there?

A That was some engineering training where all of the men participating in this course were familiarized with the latest discovery of blasting technique.

Q Now, when you completed that course, did you then take charge of the school?

A Yes, I then took charge of the school.

Q Was it still at Tiefenthal or was it then at Wallrabenstein?

A The school remained in Tiefenthal until the 13th of January, 1945, the day in which we were bombed out completely.

Q When, when you took charge of it, it was at Tiefenthal. Where were you when you were informed that you were in charge of the school?

A I was told this by General Stroop upon my return from Brandenburg.

Q That was at Tiefenthal?

A The school was still in Tiefenthal.

Q What did General Stroop tell you your duties were from then on?

A My duties in this school were to instruct the men in the new techniques which I had been instructed in in Brandenburg, and to increase and continue the previous training of these men.

Q What were the aims and intentions of the instruction that you were to give at the Werewolf school at Tiefenthal?

A The training of these men in Tiefenthal was purely a military course as far as engineers and infantrymen are concerned.

Q What kind of training actually was it?

A The men got demolition training, as far as materials were available, and as far as we had any opportunity at all to make them familiar with blasting--demolition.

Q Did you have training there in small arms also?

A During the time I was training these men there were only two instructors available. Those were Uhlman and myself.

Q Did you have other duties in that area besides operating the school?

A During that time I had the additional duties of taking care of the personal welfare of the men there and to keep up the liaison between the men and General Stroop by my personal action.

Q Were part of your duties the maintenance of order in that town and the area?

A In the school itself, yes.

Q Now, what was said to you by General Stroop at that time, if anything, regarding your duties provided parachuted fliers or enemy agents came down in the area in which you resided there?

A On occasion of a meeting in Wiesbaden, I was told by General Stroop that if any allied fliers, terror fliers, would come into my hands these were to be shot.

Q About when was that meeting, Lieutenant Goss?

A In my opinion that meeting took place in February.

Q Had you then moved to Wallrabenstein at that time?

A Either we were there already or else we were in our temporary quarters which we had moved into after we had been bombed out of Tiefenthal.

Q About how many students did you have in school after you got to Wallrabenstein?

A I can't say the exact number any more, but I am sure all that were left were the last fragments, primarily boys from the Hitler Youth. I assume there was a total of 12 or 14 of us.

Q When you were then transferred or moved your school to Wallrabenstein, were you given instructions as to other duties you were to perform there?

A Yes, as senior officer in that area at that particular time, I was appointed commander of this town by General Stroop.

(Cons-Direct)

Q What did those duties entail--what were you supposed to do as such?

A As community commander, my duties were to see that good order prevailed, to report any incidents, and to see that any disadvantageous incidents did not take place or would cease.

Q Now, during the time and after you assumed command of this school, were you personally familiar with the Bormann "non-interference" order and the Goebbles' propaganda that has been testified to in this case?

A Yes.

Q And Stroop had also spoken to you of the disposition of terror fliers, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q What date was it that the first allied flier came down in your zone?

A About the middle of March.

Q Was it the 15th of March, do you happen to recall?

A As far as I remember, it was.

Q Just tell the Court about your work in the apprehension of that flier and your disposition of him.

A About noon, my attention was drawn to a free field by the population of the town running in that direction and by the noise of motors passing by. Several people pointed up in the air, in the direction where, as I noticed later when I looked there later on, a parachute was visible.

(Goss-direct)

Almost the whole town was up there at that time. A large part of the people were running to the spot where the flier could be expected to drop. I, myself, told Buhlman, who was near me, to run over there, pick up the flier and bring him over to me. I gave this order because I wanted to prevent the population from expressing their attitude toward the flier in any way. In the meantime I heard about two or three shots. Buhlman brought the flier to me in school as he had been ordered.

Q Just one moment. Did you wait at the school after you sent Buhlman after the flier?

A Not exactly at the school. I had walked up about the next house were there was a slight rise in the area so you could see where the flier came down.

Q Who fired these shots you heard?

A I can't say that--I really don't know. Anyway, the flier wasn't injured and nothing had happened to him.

Q All right, continue.

A The flier was taken to the school upon my orders and taken into the first building of that school where we had arranged one room to be a mess hall. There I ordered Buhlman to search the flier for weapons. In the meantime, a rather large crowd had accumulated in front of the school house, which I tried to disperse. I succeeded in doing that only after repeatedly asking these people to go home.

Q Let me ask one thing. Was this crowd displaying a threatening attitude toward this flier?

A I can't answer the question this way because the way in which the crowd was accumulated out there showed on the one hand curiosity, and probably on the other hand threats.

Q Continue them.

A Buhlman conducted the search of the flier and put the objects which he wasn't supposed to have and wasn't permitted to have at that particular time on the table. I then had the flier sit down in the room next door to the one he was in. At that time Buhlman was there as a guard, and I had given the additional order that the men were to relieve each other as guards at approximately half-hour or hour intervals.

Q About what time of the day was this that you brought the flier to the school house?

A It must have been between two and three P. M.

Q Then what did you do next, relative to the disposition of this flier?

A I went to the Major's office, and by way of Lieutenant called up Major Rost in order to tell him I had a flier here and to ask for instructions what I was supposed to do with him.

Q Go ahead.

A I couldn't get Major Rost, because he wasn't there, and I left him a message that I would be at this appointed place called Unter den Linden--that I would be at this particular place in the evening and could receive further instructions there.

Q Were you asking instructions from Major Rost or General Stroop?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the grounds that the question is leading.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q From whom did you expect to get your instructions as to the disposition you should make of this flier at Major Best's headquarters?

A The instructions, or rather the orders concerning what I was supposed to be doing with the flier could be issued only by General Stroop, and that's why I was asking Major Best. He was supposed to call General Stroop and find out what I was supposed to do with the flier.

Q What happened next concerning this flier?

A I met Major Best at Unter den Linden, and Major Best transmitted to us the order that the flier was to be shot.

Q He transmitted to you what order?

A The order that the flier which was in our custody was to be shot by us.

Q From whom did that order come?

A From General Stroop personally.

Q What did you do next?

A I discussed with Best the matter of when we had best a point to carry out this order.

Q Whom did you designate to carry out this order?

(Goss-Direct)

A We agreed upon Buhlman because he was an old soldier.

PRESIDENT: Recess in place.

(Whereupon the Court recessed in place.)

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Getting back, what time of the day was it that you met Best?

A It was about six.

PROSECUTION: Major, may we interrupt a minute? Let the record show that the accused Baumann, Girke and Hellenbreich, who previously left the court room have resumed their places in the dock.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q After you talked to Best, where did you then go?

A I mounted my motorcycle and rode back to Wallrabenstein.

Q Did Major Best go with you?

A No.

Q And when you got to Wallrabenstein, what did you next do then?

A I transmitted to Buhlman the order which I had received from Best, which he had received from General Shroep.

Q Continue telling the Court what next transpired.

A Buhlman then received the order to take this flier to Buerbach and to shoot him on the way. Buhlman left with the flier and returned after about three-quarters of an hour to one hour and reported that he had not been able to carry out his instructions because some civilians had always butted in.

Q What did you next do, then, as far as this flier is concerned?

A Since I did not have any facilities for keeping the flier in a safe place where he couldn't get away, I decided to have the flier taken down to Idstein and turned over to a special services battalion there.

Q Who did you appoint to take him down there?

A I told two of our younger men to take the flier to Idstein and turn him over there.

Q Did you transmit to these two new guards the instructions you had received from General Stroop about disposing of the flier by shooting him?

A No.

Q Why didn't you?

A These new guards were boys 15 or 16 years of age, and I did not consider it proper to burden these young people with a deed which would probably rest upon them for the rest of their lives.

Q How did you expect to avoid punishment yourself for not having carried out the order given you by General Stroop?

A I did carry out General Stroop's orders which I had received by way of Best by ordering Buhlman to take the flier to Bauerbach and shoot him on the way, and I had then received the report from Buhlman to the effect that it was impossible to carry out this order because civilians were around all the time, and even more now civilians would be around and would be following the flier around, if, for no other reason than to find out what would be happening to him. I, therefore, had a good cause for exonerating Buhlman and keeping him out of trouble as well as myself; since he could see that I had done everything to carry out the order.

Q You knew what would happen to you if you didn't have a good excuse, didn't you?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. The question is leading.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q What would have happened to you had you not carried out the order of General Stroop, and had you not had a good excuse for not carrying it out?

A In order to answer this question, you have to pay particular attention to the conditions in this area at the particular time.

Q Just explain to the court what you mean by the conditions in the area at this time.

A The enemy was at the door and had already approached Giessen from the other side of the Rhine to our north due to the treason and the trouble at the Remagen Bridge, a place that has been established, from which the enemy had been able to push up the Lahn River and the Rhine-Main area. The enemy was pushing from both directions as well as from Giessen where I had crossed the Rhine near Oppenheim, and spearheads of the enemy were approaching and in fact had reached Frankfurt and part of it had already crossed the Main line between Hanau and Frankfurt on the Main, and we were practically surrounded. All that was necessary was one push upwards from Giessen and one in the other direction, from Frankfurt, and the disaster of the Remagen Bridge which was not destroyed due to the failure of the officers there, resulting in disaster to all concerned. Several officers, including two majors, were sentenced to death and executed on the spot for this and their families too were suffering from it. These facts were reported in official Wehrmacht reports and also over the radio and were, of course, known to us.

General Stropp, who, in his capacity as Commanding Officer of the 12th Army Corps, was responsible for repelling the enemy and maintaining order in his area, was not the sort of a man to sit by while an order issued by him was disobeyed and it was perfectly clear to me that the only thing that was waiting for me was promptly executed death sentence. In spite of this, I was unable to transmit this order that had been given to me because in the first place Buhlman had reported to me that it was impossible for him to carry out the order given him by me because of the interference of the civilian population, and in the second place I was not able to decide that these young persons, who were in fact only boys, would take a burden upon their conscience.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Whereupon at 1506 hours the court recessed for thirty minutes.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1535 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, except Colonel Robertson, who has been temporarily excused by the appointing authority; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent sick; all of the accused; the reporter and interpreter are present.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the court, in Charge III, the accused Lasaak, we had six witnesses here and they are still here. We don't need them any further. We have talked to the prosecution and they say they don't need them any further. I would like to ask the court if it desires that they be kept here longer.

PRESIDENT: The court does not desire to have them stay.

MAJOR SAXON: Thank you.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, I am ready to proceed and finish with the witness Coates, subject to the court's approval.

GERALD COATES, called as a witness by the defense, having been previously sworn, testified as follows:

(Whereupon the proceedings were translated into the German language)

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I would like to state for the information of the court that the next examination has nothing to do with the charge on trial, but does have to do with an exhibit introduced in evidence. I will put this examination in the record now for such value as the court decides to give to it later on.

May I ask the court to remind the witness he is still under oath?

PRESIDENT: You are reminded you are still under oath.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, may I interrupt? I think the record should show that the defense is calling this witness at this time to expedite the release of this witness from the jurisdiction of the court.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am assuming that is so. When we are through, he can be dismissed.

PROSECUTION: The record should show that the witness Coates is now being called as a witness for the defense.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I have no objection.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Mr. Coates, I call your attention to Prosecution Exhibit 30, which is a statement by Heins Hellenbroich, and Prosecution Exhibit 30-A, which is a translation of that, and ask you to examine it.

A Yes.

Q Do you know Hellenbroich, Mr. Coates?

A Yes, I do.

Q Will you point him out, identify him?

A He wears No. 20.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will the record indicate the witness has identified the accused Hellenbroich, wearing Placard No. 20.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you know Girke?

A Yes, I do.

Q Will you identify him, please?

A He is wearing No. 19.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Will the record indicate that the witness has identified the accused Girke, wearing Placard No. 19.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q During the intermission, there was some conversation between you and Hellenbroich, Girke and myself with respect to Exhibit 30 and the English translation of it, 30-A.

A Yes, there was.

Q Addressing ourselves first to Hellenbroich, during this conversation he called your attention to certain things having to do with his statement, which is Prosecution Exhibit 30?

A Yes, he did.

Q That conversation had to do with the last paragraph on Page 4 and one paragraph, the first paragraph, on Page 5. Will you refresh the recollection of the court as to the contents of those two paragraphs and then tell the court just what that conversation was?

A I asked Hellenbroich about the orders which were issued from his superiors. He put down all superior orders which were issued ever since 1943. Then I asked him to make a summarization, or rather, an analysis, of these orders stating why they were given.

Q By that, you mean his opinion why they were given?

A Yes. Whereupon he put down in his statement that these orders were given to weaken the Geneva Convention and to weaken the Geneva Convention for the prisoners of war. Then he asked me that this might lead to more misunderstanding and to put in an additional statement saying that all these orders were given in order to weaken the Geneva Convention on account of terror fliers.

Q Now, Mr. Coates, the language of the paragraph dealing with all prisoners of war — that was to a large extent your language, was it not?

A I couldn't say so, no.

Q Partly your language?

A We formulated this statement together.

Q And after reading it, Hellenbroich was dissatisfied with it and asked you, or, rather, drew up this second statement limiting the analysis to so-called terror fliers, is that correct?

A Yes. He read it and he said, "This might lead to misunderstandings," and he asked me to put in an additional statement saying that the Geneva Convention was supposed to be weakened on account of terror fliers.

Q So that that second statement dealing with terror fliers is not a purely additional statement separate and apart from prior statements, but is a limiting statement on the larger, preceding paragraph, is that correct?

A That is right. It was supposed to specify.

Q Now, you at one time read that statement of Hellenbroich's to Girke, did you not?

A Yes, I did.

Q And you had some conversation with him about that statement, discussing the treatment of prisoners of war in general?

A Yes, I did.

Q And during the course of that statement, during the course of that discussion, rather, Girke requested an opportunity to make a statement submitting his views on that same subject, is that correct?

A He didn't offer an explanation. He only said, after he was through with the reading, that he doesn't quite agree with the analysis of Hellenbroich.

Q And asked, did he not, for an opportunity to express his own views on the subject?

A Yes, he did.

Q Which wasn't done because, in your opinion, his views on the subject had no particular importance, at least at that time?

A Yes, that is right.

Q Do you remember what were the opinions of Girke on that particular subject? If you do, will you please state them to the court?

A He didn't make any comments, any further comments.

Q Did Girke say something to you about a conspiracy?

A No.

Q Was anything discussed that was in the nature of a conspiracy?

A No, never.

Q Was anything said that that statement of Hallenbreich's sounded in conspiracy, to use a legal term, if you know what I mean by that?

A No.

REDMAN COUNSEL: I think that is all.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Mr. Gentes, you referred to an additional statement that Mr. Hallenbreich wished to make. Is that additional statement on the same document as that exhibit, and is it in evidence before the court as a part of that document you hold in your hand?

A It is part of this statement here, yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY REDMAN COUNSEL:

Q Was anything said in the discussion between Dirks and yourself relative to an existing or an alleged existing cooperation between the State, the Party and the Police?

A I don't remember.

Q I think I asked you the question before, that statement on Hallenbreich's statement is supposed to be his personal opinion? Did I ask you that question before?

A Yes.

Q And your answer was yes?

A His personal statement.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q The entire statement is Mr. Hallenbreich's personal opinion, isn't it, Mr. Goetze?

A Yes, it is. It definitely is.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I imagine we may excuse the witness permanently?

PROSECUTION: Yes, as far as the prosecution is concerned.

PRESIDENT: The witness may be excused permanently.

ERWIN GOES, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that the accused Goes, No. 15, has resumed the stand.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Before the recess, Lieutenant Goes, you explained your reasons to the court for the necessity of obedience of this order. Was it known to you that had you not obeyed this order regarding disposition of fliers as given to you by General Streep, or passed on down by him, that you would have been executed yourself?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. That question is leading, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q After this flier was disposed of by turning him over to the armed forces in Idstein, what kind of a report did you then make to General Streep?

A I made a written report to General Streep to the effect that due to the interference of civilians, the execution of the order was impossible, and furthermore, I met Best at Under den Eichen, because

I had some business to attend to there. Some of our things were still left down there and I made a verbal report to him.

Q About when was this report made?

A The day after.

Q At the time you talked to Major Best, had he received your written report at that time?

A No, not yet.

Q When did you next see Major Best after the following day?

A The next day.

Q Did you see him each day after that?

A I will have to put the following in here by way of explanation.

Q Go ahead and explain.

A When we had been bombed out at Stefanstal, we took some of our things which we were able to save such as food, clothing, and similar objects, to Unter den Linden as we had been ordered to, and it was natural that occasionally I would need some of those things and I would always take as much as I would be able to carry along. And since this place Unter den Linden was on the direct road from my place to General Stroop's headquarters, it was nothing but natural that I would use this place to meet Major Best and discuss matters with him.

Q Let me ask you, Lieutenant Goes, did you meet Major Best there subsequent to March 15 and after General Stroop had received your report about the failure to shoot this flier?

A Yes.

Q Did you have a conversation with Major Best then at that time regarding Stroop's feeling about the failure to execute this flier?

A Yes.

Q Tell the court what message was conveyed to you from Stroop regarding that.

A Major Best told me that he had transmitted the report to Stroop, and that he had also made clear to him the reason why this flier had not been shot. Major Streep had been quite outraged at this report, and Best said that he told Best, "It is a bad symptom for these men if they appear to become weak. If they do, I consider it cause to talk a few serious words to them." Next time I was to appear there, I was to contact him. Best told me that in case General Streep did come out there, the best thing for me to do would be to see that Buhlmann stays out of his sight. In addition, he told me that this, of course, did not close the matter and that we could expect quite a few things, particularly in view of the fact that the situation was such that orders must be obeyed more strictly now than ever. He further pointed out to me that the failure to carry out this order could be considered as committee before the enemy.

In 150-po-60-6/13-8

(OSS-Direct)

Q Did you understand then, Lt. Coss, that for failure to obey this order that both you and Buhlmann could be shot?

A Yes.

Q How far to the west of you were the Americans at that time?

A Twenty-five kilometers.

Q You had known personally, had you not, of the four or five officers who had been shot for failure to destroy the Remagen Bridge, isn't that right?

A I heard about the report. It was expressed by the radio and the Army communications, etc.

Q Was this last conference you had with Major West on or around the 16th or 17th of March?

A Yes.

Q With reference to time -- how long after that was it that you and all of them evacuated the area at the coast of the Americans?

A We left Hallrabenstein when the Americans landed air borne troops about one kilometer away from us.

Q What day was that?

A That was on the 27th.

Q Now, tell the court what happened on March 18th regarding the American fliers?

A About noon I and Richely were about to do some repair work on a motorcycle in the yard because my clutch was out.

Q Richely is one of the accused here charged with you?

A Yes. While we were working on this motorcycle two boys about seven or eight years came in very excited and told me, "Lieutenant, there's an American flier running around back there by the wood and he's trying to get away or maybe he's trying to hide in the woods."

Pa 168 80

Q You say the flier had a loaded automatic pistol, is that right?

A Yes.

Q He had a knife you stated that was about a foot or a foot and a half long?

A Not a foot to a foot and a half but a foot.

Q What else did you find on the person of this flier?

A Papers were then taken away from him.

Q Were those maps of this area in Germany?

A All Germany.

Q Did this flier tell you how long he had been in this area?

A Yes, he said he had been in the area for one or two or maybe even three days, I don't know.

Q Is that what he told you, Lt. Goss, one to three days?

A Yes.

Q Did he tell you where he had parachuted down?

A No.

Q Did he tell you what kind of a plane he had been in?

A No.

Q Did he tell you where the rest of his comrades were, if he had any?

A No.

Q About what time of the day was it that you finished interrogating him?

A Shortly after he had been brought in.

Q What time of the day was it?

A Between 3 and 4.

Q How long did you keep the flier there at the school?

A Until it got dark.

Q Then just tell the court what you next ordered done in regard to this flier.

A I transmitted to Michely the order to take the flier to Idstein and to shoot him on the way to Idstein.

Q At what time did you direct that order to be executed?

A I gave that order to Michely only a short time before he left with the flier.

(Goss-direct)

Q About what time of the day was that?

A Between 7 and 7:30, about.

Q How long was Michely gone?

A Between half an hour and an hour. It might have been forty-five minutes, I can't give you the exact time.

Q On his return what did Michely tell you?

A Michely told me that he had shot the flier, that he had carried out the order.

Q What did you direct Michely to do then?

A I said, "Michely, sit down and write out the report."

Q Was this report then written?

A Michely sat down next to a typewriter we had at our disposal, wrote the report and signed it and upon my instructions and over my signature put down that I acknowledged seeing this order and was herewith transmitting it to General Stroop through Major Best.

Q Did you ask anyone's authority or receive any order directing your execution of this particular flier?

A I had the direct order of General Stroop which he had given me on the occasion of one meeting where he had particularly pointed out to me he had received this order directly from the Reichsfuehrer of the SS and Minister of the Interior and he was authorized unlimited powers in this area. He particularly pointed out to me that amongst these powers there was one clause very succinctly stating, "his orders are to be obeyed."

Q Lt. Goss, did you know and have in mind at that time the Hermann non-interference order?

A I knew of this order from hearsay but the order that was applicable to me was the order solely from General Stroop which was absolutely binding upon me.

Q Did you feel you had any other recourse than to obey this order of General Stroop and see this flier was executed?

A Since I had had the conversation with Major Rost after this first incident and since he had told me that the matter was certainly not closed but that we would certainly expect a court-martial, I was quite sure I could not permit myself to even attempt to circumvent this order without risking to be shot right away for disobeying an order.

Q While you were fighting with the Wehrmacht on the Western front and later on the Eastern front did you have occasion to have prisoners of war in your custody on previous occasions?

A I captured a whole number of prisoners of war both in France and in Russia and in accordance with my orders I turned these prisoners of war into battalion headquarters who in turn sent them further back to a prisoner of war camp.

Q Did you ever before in your life, outside of these two instances, order the shooting of any enemy prisoner of war who happened to be in your hands?

CAPTAIN VANCE: No objection on the ground it is immaterial.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAUER:

Q Have you always obeyed orders as a soldier and an officer strictly to the very best of your ability?

A As a soldier as well as an officer I always carried out any order that was given me by a superior officer in the manner in which it was given and in the manner I knew it was supposed to be carried out.

(Cross-direct)

Q Were you satisfied in your own mind that the place of Wallrabenstein at the time these events happened was as a matter of fact the front lines?

A We were the immediate front line area. Wiesbaden was under artillery fire and we were constantly attacked by strafing planes and so forth.

Q How many strafing attacks occurred in that area daily? I am speaking of the last fifteen days you were in that area?

A We were awakened in the morning by bombs. Usually it would be this way -- that the Allied Forces would enter our area with about five or six or twenty bombers, low flying bombers, and would close down the Autobahn between Wiesbaden and Limburg by their constant attacks. At such occasions civilian objectives were sometimes also fired at and to my knowledge one man and woman were shot in Heuerbach. People living in the country were by them refusing to till the soil because there was a constant danger of being attacked from the air and even though it might occur a few times during the day these fliers would disappear, they would certainly reappear again and be rattling around our vicinity again.

Q Lt. Goss, did you have any way of knowing that this particular flier you captured on the 18th was an agent or flier by view of the fact he had been around for three days?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object to that question as leading.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Goss, when was it that General Stroop call you in and told you that all fliers were to be shot?

A I cannot give you any exact date but I think it was in February.

Q February of 1944?

A No, 1945.

Q You testified that on March 15th I believe is when you captured the first flier, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And that on March 16th Nichols captured the second flier?

A Yes.

Q Did you have any other fliers in your hands?

A No.

Q At the time you met Major Rost and he told you what General Stroop's desires were in regard to this first flier, quote as best you can exactly what Major Rost said to you.

A I didn't ask Major Rost for any desires of General Stroop but rather for orders as to what was to be done with the flier.

Q That's what I want to know. As best you remember what did Major Rost tell you?

A "This flier is to be shot."

Q Did he say anything else?

A Nothing that I remember right now.

Q Did he say who was to do the shooting?

A As I have already said, the two of us discussed whom I should give instructions to carry out this order of General Stroop.

Q So it was left up to you to pick the trigger man, is that correct?

A Yes, the trigger person was not named because probably General Stroop didn't know everybody's name.

Q So it was left to you to decide who the trigger man was going to be. That is correct, isn't it?

(Cross-cross)

A For that reason I discussed with Major Best whom we should instruct to carry out the order.

Q Then did you agree upon a trigger man?

A Yes, Buhlmann.

Q, Then did you go back to your office and give Buhlman the order to execute the flier?

A I gave Buhlmann the order to shoot the flier.

Q If you had not received this order from Major Best would you have given this order to Buhlmann?

A I would have had to give him this order on account of the fact that I had already had this previous order from General Stroop. The reason that I called back that time in spite of the already received order was because I didn't know whether this flier was not perhaps supposed to be interrogated prior to being shot. That would have been the usual procedure.

Q Will you listen to my question again and see if you can answer it? If you had not received some orders from Major Best on that occasion would you have ordered the flier shot?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, that is a misstatement of the fact here. That order came from General Stroop.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I said "if".

MAJOR SAXON: Then it's purely a hypothetical question and has no bearing here.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: I'd like to have the question repeated please.

(Whereupon the reporter read the last question.

MAJOR SAXON: That's the thing I'm complaining about. The question is "if you had not received orders from Major Best --" . It's the contention of the defense there were no orders given by Major Best

(Cross-cross)

Ta 158 80

These are Stroop's orders at a designated place.

THE WITNESS: I had my direct instructions from General Stroop to the effect that every flier who happened to come into my hands was to be shot and I would have had to carry out this order.

(end ta 158
erh fole)

Q I understand that now. You already had the order but when you got this flier you tried to call Major Best on the telephone, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You could not reach him so you made arrangements to meet him someplace that night, is that right?

A Not at night, but in the course of the afternoon.

Q In the afternoon, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You did meet Major Best and talk to him, is that correct?

A I left a message to tell Major Best to find out what the instructions of General Stroop would be and then in the afternoon have the orders of Major Best transmitted to me by meeting him in this place.

MAJOR SAXON: Just a moment. That is not the exact translation, is it?

INTERPRETER ROSENSTOCK: It is, sir.

MAJOR SAXON: Is that correct?

INTERPRETER ROSENSTOCK: The mistake was apparently on his part.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Did you meet Major Best as you had arranged to do?

A Yes.

Q Did you have a conversation with Major Best?

A At Unter den Eichen, yes.

Q After your conversation with Major Best, you went back to Buhlmann and gave him the order to execute the flier, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Now, my question is, had you not seen Major Best on that occasion, would you have ordered the execution anyhow?

A I certainly would have tried to contact General Stroop concerning this order first.

(Goss-Cross)

Q Goss, you do not want to answer that question, do you?

A Yes, I want to answer it. I freely admit that I transmitted this order to shoot and I wish to state here the fact that the reason I did try to find out was in order to see whether the flier was to be interrogated first or what was to happen to him, particularly in view of the fact that I myself would not have an opportunity since my knowledge of English is not sufficient to conduct an interrogation myself. And then the possibility arose that I would have to turn the flier over to some office in order to have such an interrogation conducted there.

Q You have already answered that. Do you remember my question that I asked you a few minutes ago?

A Well, I was asked whether I had given the order to shoot this man.

Q That is not it at all. I asked you if you had not met Major Best at that time would you have ordered that flier executed? Answer me, yes or no, and if you do not want to answer the question, tell me and I will withdraw the question.

MAJOR SAXON: I want to renew my objection to this. This witness has attempted to answer the Captain's question by testifying the reasons why he thought this contact should be made with General Stroop, but what he might have done is something I do not think this witness should be called upon to say "yes" or "no" to. He has given all the surrounding reasons for why he did what he did.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: I was obliged to carry out under all circumstances an order once I had received it.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Do you want to answer my question or don't you, yes or no?

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, because I sincerely do not believe that an accused in this man's position has to answer a hypothetical question, and because he is not charged here with such a supposition, and with the permission of the court, I would like to instruct this accused that he does not have to answer the question.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled. The witness will answer the question. The court is under the impression that he is trying to evade the question.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Do you remember the question?

A Yes.

Q Answer it yes or no, please, or if you do not want to answer it, tell me you do not want to and I will withdraw it.

A I would not have had the flier shot that evening.

Q All right. Now, Major Best --

MAJOR SAXON: Now, if the court please, I want to ask that that answer either be stricken out or made clear. There was no flier shot on this evening.

PRESIDENT: That question has been settled by the court. No further argument.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Now, Major Best told you that he had received the order delivered to you, from General Stroop, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q In your opinion, do you think that Major Best would have given you those orders had he not first received them from General Stroop?

A It was perfectly impossible for anybody like Major Best to do any such thing without having a direct order from General Stroop. All we were supposed to do was carry out the orders issued to us, particularly in such an important matter which concerned the life of a human being. Particularly in such a case, none of us would have dared to make an independent decision.

Q Case, this particular soldier was not executed because of too many civilians, I believe you said?

A Yes. Buhlmann told me that the carrying out of this act was not possible because civilians kept interfering.

Q So, on this occasion the civilians protected the flier from the police, instead of the police protecting the flier from the civilians, is that correct?

A I would like to state here that we had nothing whatever to do with the police. We were an SS organization under the direct command of General Stroop, and had no authority of police or Security Police.

Q I will put it to you this way: that this particular flier was saved by the population from the army, is that correct?

A The population didn't protect any flier. It doesn't follow from the fact that a bunch of people came along for curiousity and kept walking along with the flier that you can talk about protection of the flier by the population. I should hardly think that in this area, where for instance in the neighboring village, all kinds of people had been shot by strafing bombs, that the opinion of the population would have been too favorable to the flier.

Q I believe you said you reported back to General Stroop that this particular flier was not executed?

A Yes, I made a written report to General Stroop through Major Best, in which I reported the non-execution of the order and gave reasons thereto.

(Goss-Cross)

Q I believe you said General Stroop wanted to have some strong words with whoever was responsible for that?

A Yes.

Q Was Buhlmann ever punished by General Stroop or anyone else?

A No.

Q Were you punished by General Stroop or anyone else?

A No.

Q March 18th is the date that you gave Michely the order to shoot this second American flier, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Had you not ordered Michely to take that American out and shoot him, then Michely would not have done so, would he?

A Yes.

Q Michely followed your orders in executing the flier, is that correct?

A Michely was obeying General Stroop's order transmitted by me, to shoot this flier.

Q If you had not given the order, he would not have shot the flier, is that correct?

A He would not have shot the flier.

Q If you had not received General Stroop's order which you got through Major Best, you would not have given the order, would you?

A Yes.

Q Major Best would not have given the order down to you unless he would have received it from General Stroop, would he?

A Yes.

Q If you had failed to receive the order from Major Best, the flier would be alive, would he not?

A I can't say, because somebody else would probably have shot him.

(Goss-Cross)

Q You could have saved this flier's life by refusing to give this order, could you not?

A If I had been in the position to risk being shot myself, yes.

Q Well, you placed yourself in that position once and nothing happened to you, did it?

A I gave this order to Buhlmann to shoot this flier due to the orders of General Stroop and in accordance with those orders, I made it his mission to carry it out. Buhlmann reported to me that due to the interference of the civilians the order could not be carried out. Thus, I considered that I had followed through the order all right and that he had a sufficiently good reason to tell General Stroop that it had been impossible for us to carry out the order. After talking to Major Best, however, I discovered that this wasn't so and that General Stroop wanted the matter cleared up by himself personally one more time and when General Stroop says, "I see occasion to say a few serious words to these men", then we know what this meant all right.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I believe that is all, if it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Are you through with the witness?

CAPTAIN VANCE: Yes.

PRESIDENT: Are you finished?

MAJOR SAXON: Not yet, no, sir.

PRESIDENT: Court will adjourn until 0900 hours tomorrow morning.

(Whereupon at 1645 hours the court adjourned until 0900 hours Friday, 14 February, 1947.)

KENJI GOKE, an accused voluntarily resumed the stand and testified through an interpreter as follows:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Lieutenant Goke, did you make application to General Strong to be transferred from this assignment in the German school to some other assignment?

A Not with General Strong.

Q To whom did you make such a request?

A During the visit of personnel, reference General Bruteman, I made application to Major General Ziebel, an application to be transferred to another assignment, considering the circumstances under which I had been used there.

Q Was this application of yours ever acted on?

A Yes, I was given the assurance that I would be used somewhere else or would be transferred to some other assignment, but this wasn't possible any more since there was no personnel available to continue this school because we were only very few trained men, and the danger under which Germany lived at that time was so great that everybody had to stick to the job to which he was assigned. During Christmas time when I had another opportunity to talk to Brigadier General Zielbd I asked him once more if it would be possible to get a transfer for me, but under the circumstances which I mentioned before I had to stay on the job.

Q Now, Lieutenant Goss, in the instructions to the Werewolf students did you ever instruct them or receive any orders to instruct them they were to shoot American fliers?

A Never, because we had our duties in an entirely different field.

Q You have been asked here by the prosecution why it was you failed to execute the order — Stroop's first order. Tell the court why not.

A These were the last eight days during which General Stroop was present at Wiesbaden. General Stroop had told Major Best that he did not consider this matter finished, but he would have some talk with us, so it was clear to us that in spite of the good reasons we could bring up, we had to expect a severe punishment for the way we had acted and what was meant by Stroop's words is that he would have a strict talk with us. We knew from the testimony which the prosecution witness Gunther has given here before the court, who is an experienced front line soldier and had been ordered by General Stroop to be present at an execution of an SS man in order to strengthen his morale.

Q Lieutenant Goss, what you believe saved you was the possible end of the war?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

Q What in your opinion prevented General Stroop from carrying out the threat he made to Major Best?

A Only the fact that through the continuous retreat of the German army and events which changed from day to day, made it impossible for him to put us before a military tribunal.

MAJOR SAKON: Your witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Has the defense finished the examination?

MAJOR SAKON: Dr. Rau wants to examine him.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q Lieutenant Goss, if I remember exactly, you said during the war you were severely wounded. You received sixty splinters. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q How many splinters have you got in your head?

A Even today I still have left about thirty splinters, two of which are still in my brain and sixteen still in my face.

Q In which part of the brain are these two splinters?

A One of the splinters is here and the other one here — both of them large as a pea.

DR. RAU: Let the record show the witness pointed to his left temple and the second time to the middle of his forehead.

A (cont'd) And these splinters were found through x-ray here in the prison hospital.

Q Do you know how deep in your brain these splinters are?

A They are so deep, it is impossible to operate on them and take them out.

Q If I remember right, you were wounded during the summer of 1941, is that right?

A Yes.

Q When were you discharged from the Wehrmacht?

A End of '42.

Q Do you know the diagnosis under which you were discharged?

A Yes, that I had to stay under permanent medical observation.

Q Were you discharged as unfit for military service?

A Yes.

Q How was the result of the medical examination when you were examined again to be drafted once more, if you know?

A Unfit for military service, conditionally.

Q At that time were any other soldiers previously discharged as unfit for military service examined?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object.

DR. RAU: I would like to prove that it was not caused by a change in the personal condition of the accused, but general actions which took place at that time.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

Q Were at the time other soldiers previously discharged as unfit for military service recalled for active service?

A Yes, the last men who were valuable to Germany were called at that time.

Q Now, I bring to your attention again February 1945. At that time you had a conference with General Stroop. Were you called to come to this conference or did you happen to be there?

A As far as I can remember, it happened on the occasion of a report I had to make to General Stroop.

Q Why did you discuss at this opportunity the question of parachuted enemy fliers?

A Because this was a question which was foremost in our minds every day on account of the daily air attacks in our area.

Q Do you know who touched this problem?

A I can't say any more today.

Q What was discussed in detail?

A On this occasion it was discussed that all parachuted enemy fliers who would fall in my hands would be shot.

Q Is that all, or was anything else said?

A After two and a half years, it is impossible for me to . . reconstruct a conversation I had with General Streep. I can remember only the most important items and that one was the most important item for me.

Q But the most important problem at this conference as far as you recall was the fact all fliers had to be shot?

A Yes.

Q Did you consider such a statement an order?

A General Streep wasn't used to making long speeches about his orders. He always gave his orders in clear short words because he knew that an order of his was always binding for his subordinates.

Q I think you misunderstood my question. I asked you whether you considered a statement like this made during a conference already as an order.

A The statement of Streep was made in the form of an order. It was clear to me this was an order and not just a statement which didn't mean a thing.

Q At any time was the so-called "non-interference" order brought to your attention?

A I have to mention in this connection that we as a unit of the Werewolf were an organization belonging to the Waffen SS and lived completely separate from all other units and for this reason had no contact at all with police orders or regulations. The only orders in which we were interested were the orders which we received directly from General Stroop for us and our unit.

Q Does this mean that you did not hear about the "non-interference" order?

A Yes.

Q You said that General Stroop had appointed you the commander of the town of Wallrabenstein, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Which units of the Wehrmacht or armed forces were under your command this way?

A The village itself had no military forces. It was only a transient point for troops. For this reason, all troops which came through the village, or which were quartered in the village for a night or so were under my charge.

Q That means, if I understand you correctly, also the troops of the army and air forces?

A These troops were not under my command for disciplinary acts, but they had to follow my orders in regard to security, billetting and other actions which I might have taken as far as the village was concerned.

Q At that time you were an SS officer, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Wasn't it the custom that the Wehrmacht and SS always had separate town commanders?

A It was customary in general that from the superior headquarters one man was ordered for a certain village or town to be the commander. Whether there was a difference between army, air forces and SS is unknown to me. And, I would like to mention that I got the order from the divisional commander of an army unit to put up anti-tank defenses in the village.

Q You had a subordinate, Buhlmann?

A Yes.

Q Do you know where he is now?

A As far as I know, he is in Dachau.

Q As a prisoner?

A Yes.

Q Where did Buhlmann get the flier which he brought to you? Did he capture him or take him from somebody else?

A The flier as I mentioned once before, had parachuted in the meadows, about one kilometer from the village. From our place we could see the crowd which came to the place where the flier had parachuted and come down to earth. In order to fulfill my duties as town commander, I had the flier brought and therefore gave the order to Buhlmann to pick up the flier.

Q When you sent Buhlmann to the battalion for special use, which order did you give Buhlmann in regard to the flier?

A I didn't send Buhlmann to this battalion.

Q Isn't it right that this flier was delivered to this battalion?

A Yes.

Q Who did deliver him?

A Two boys.

Q Did you get in contact with the commander of this battalion for special use, or any other officers?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May we have a recess in place?

(PRESIDENT: The court will recess in place.

(Whereupon the court recessed in place.)

DR. HAUS: Will the reporter repeat the question.

(Whereupon the last question was read by the reporter.)

A No.

Q After the 18th of March 1945, how long were you still together with General Stroop?

[redacted], that right?

Q [redacted] to complied after the conference with General Streng.

I [illegible] the discussion what we had before I made this statement I said that these orders came from General Stroop and only when I made this written statement I pointed out "and only by writ[illegible] statement"--and I said that this was the only channel [illegible] through which we could receive such an order [illegible] as we did [illegible] or to form an idea of such kind.

(Answer [illegible])

Q Why didn't you mention this in this statement which was made truthfully under oath, that you had already another flier in your custody when you had not shot and when you delivered to another camp or unit? (from General Stroop)

A During this interrogation only the case of the second flier was discussed by the interrogator and interpreter. [redacted] case of this kind from [redacted]

Q Do you wish to say that the incident with the first flier is true?

A [redacted] received this report from General Stroop and there is nothing else. Q [redacted] I am reading to you now from Prosecution Exhibit 141, "Around the middle of March 1943 I had received specific instructions from [redacted] that, whenever an Allied flier would fall in the hands of my unit this flier has to be killed." That means you had specific instructions from [redacted] to that right? [illegible] I can state definitely that this matter

Q Isn't this [illegible] means that means

[illegible] a position to [illegible] of this character.

Q Why didn't you remember in June 1946 that you had received such an order from General Streep?

A I can't tell you that today anymore.

Q Isn't it a fact that you didn't have an order of this kind from General Streep otherwise you would have said so in your statement?

A I have received this order from General Streep and there is nothing else I can say about it. In addition I had this one special order which came to me through Major Hoet and which referred to this one particular [illegible]

Q I am reading to you now once more a sentence from your own statement, Prosecution Exhibit P-141. "I can state definitely that this murder committed by Hichely was a direct result of the orders which were passed on from Hoet through me and based on my knowledge of the SS organization of the Service Command 12. I am certain that this order mentioned above had been given by Streep to Hoet." Did you make this statement?

A Yes.

Q Why are you drawing a conclusion in this statement and are not referring directly to an order which you received, supposedly from General Streep?

A During the discussion which we had before I made this statement I said that these orders came from General Streep and only when I made this written statement--cross out "and only my written statement"--and I said that this was the only channel of command through which we could receive such an order because none of us was allowed to give or to issue an order of this kind.

Q Isn't this statement again only in conclusion because that means that none of you are in a position to issue an order of this character.

A For us it was impossible to give an order on our own. I think this will be proven through witnesses.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Lieutenant does you realized back at that time and know that the shooting of this unarmed, surrendered prisoner-of-war amounted to a heinous crime, didn't you?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgement. I think the addition of these objectives make it an improper question even for cross examination. He can ask him if he thought it was an offense or crime or homicide but the objectives make it improper.

PRESIDENT: Objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q If you didn't think that a crime was being committed by shooting these prisoners, why is it that you did not want these 16 and 18 year old boys under your command to do the shooting?

A The shooting of a man isn't the same as when I go into a store and buy something there. An act like this would deeply impress the future life of any young boy. I consider it irresponsible to lead the conscious of a young man with an act like this, about the importance of which he does not know anything at this time.

Q Well what effect would this action have on a mature man, say a man of your age and Michely's age?

A Every war is tough and we who fought on the front and have fought with the enemy hundreds of times--for us it was only obedience to orders to act in this manner. We haven't done anything in this war but to fulfill our duty towards our people and our country and I don't think there was any soldier, no matter in which army of the world he was fighting and on which side he was fighting, who gladly lifted his rifle and shot his enemy. But, in my own behalf, I made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter: it is obvious that a grown up man can take a different position to these things and can understand the necessity of such action better than a young boy.

(Cross-recross)

For us it was a necessity of war which forced the weapons in our hands. Nobody shot voluntarily.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

MAJOR SAWYER: Nothing further.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

QUESTIONS BY LIEUTENANT COLONEL WALKER:

Q Lieutenant, what was your service in the SS?

A Colonel, what are you referring to my rank?

Q No, your service. What dates did you serve in the SS?

A From 7th or 8th of October, 1944 until the end.

MAJOR SAWYER: May I ask another question, if it please the court?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAWYER:

Q Was this the Waffen SS or the Allegmeine SS?

A The Waffen SS.

Q I believe that I have asked you this before but I want to make sure. Were you drafted into the Waffen SS on about the 8th of October?

A Yes.

MAJOR SAWYER: That is all.

PRESIDENT: No further questions by the court. Take your place in the dock.

(Whereupon the accused was excused and resumed his place in the dock.)

(Cross-court-redirect)

MAJOR SAMS: Heinrich Micholy.

HEINRICH MATHIAS MICHELY, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAMS:

Q State your name to the court.

A Heinrich Micholy.

Q What is your age?

A Thirty-three years.

Q What is your home address?

A Dudweiler in the Saar Basin.

Q You are one of the accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q Are you married or single?

A Married.

Q What does your family consist of?

A My wife and one child, a girl four years old.

Q When did you first see service in the German Army?

A In February, 1939 until May 1939.

Q When did you next see service in the German Army?

A In November, 1944.

Q What has been your lifetime occupation in civilian life?

A I was a teacher in public school.

Q When you were relieved from the service in 1939 what did you then do?

A I was working again in my civilian profession.

Q How long did you actively continue in that work?

A Up to September, 1944 interrupted through stays at the hospital.

Q Just tell the court what you mean by your stays in the hospital? When did that take place?

A In July, 1940 I had an accident on my motorcycle. For this reason I was in the hospital for approximately two years.

Q What did your injuries consist of?

A I had very grave head injuries. I lost my right eye and I had [illegible] a break, a very grave break, concussion and double fracture of my scull.

Q How long did that keep you in the hospital the first time?

A Until November, 1940, approximately [illegible] weeks.

Q You were in the hospital off and on from then until when?

A Until the end of 1942, had mainly to [illegible] used to and acquainted

Q What did you do in the summer of 1944? [illegible] served. For this reason

A In the summer of 1944 I was with the Hitler Youth in the West Wall for work on the fortifications. [illegible] for twenty minutes.

Q Tell the court the duties you had when you were there?

A I was a Technical Sergeant of the Hitler Youth and as such I was in charge of one group of boys and we supervised there the work which was carried out by those boys on trenches and anti-tank defenses.

Q How long did you continue that work?

A Until the beginning of November, 1944 when I was drafted into the Waffen SS.

Q Where were you first stationed after being drafted into the Waffen SS?

A In Tiefenthal at the Werwolf School.

(Michely-direct)

Q When you were first sent there after being drafted into the Waffen SS what was supposed to be your assignment?

A I was to be trained there.

Q That is you would receive instruction there yourself, is that right?

A Yes.

Q For how long a period did you receive instructions?

A The first course took approximately four weeks.

Q Tell the court what that instruction consisted of.

A The instructions consisted mainly in getting used to and acquainted with explosives and with demolition work and furthermore instructions in small arms.

Q After you received this first four weeks instruction what then became your work there?

A At the beginning of this course I had expressed, already, my opinion that in view of my physical condition I felt unfit for this kind of work and made an application to be discharged. I get a reply that I was a teacher by profession and therefore they had the intention to use me as a teacher and to have me work as a teacher in the school. For this reason I stayed there.

PRESIDENT: The court will recess for twenty minutes.

(Thereupon the court recessed at 1000 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 1030 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense except Dr. Trost, who is absent sick, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

Let the record show that the accused Michely has resumed the stand.

HEINRICH MATTHIAS MICHELY, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make an unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR BAXON:

Q What is the highest rank you held in the Waffen SS?

A Private.

Q After you took your training or orientation course, what were your duties then at the Werewolf school.

A I didn't have any real duties. I was merely waiting for me to be sent to another course where I was supposed to be trained as an instructor.

Q Who was your commanding officer there at the Werewolf school?

A SS First Lieutenant Goss.

Q How many other instructors were there beside you?

A Two more.

Q And who were they?

A Buhlmann and Breuer.

Q The Buhlmann you refer to is the man who testified in the prosecution's case, is he not?

A Yes.

Q Where is Hoenow? Do you know?

A No.

Q How many students did you have there in the school in the month of March, 1945?

A About 14.

Q Did you actually give instructions to these students in March?

A Yes.

Q Just tell the court what that consisted of.

A They were learning demolition and they were trained in infantry weapons.

Q Did you act as an instructor yourself at that time?

A During the whole time I was there I had a total of one hour of instruction that I held because Goss was not present. That was about soldierly behavior.

Q What were Lieutenant Goss' duties in this school of Wallrabenstein in addition to being a sort of superintendent of the school?

A He was also community commander, and that was indicated by a sign which was posted at the school--community commander.

Q He kept charge of order in the town of Wallrabenstein?

A Yes.

Q Did a part of your duties consist of assisting in maintaining order in that town?

A As a subordinate it was.

Q During your time there at the school did General Stroop visit the school?

A Yes, twice.

Q When he would visit the school, what was the purpose of the visit?

A I don't know.

Q Did he conduct any conferences with the students there--that is, give any instruction?

A I remember his addressing some words to the students, but I don't know whether you could call it a conference or a meeting.

Q Was it a sort of an instruction to them as to what their duties were to be?

A No. He didn't know that himself.

Q Were you who were instructors there under arms?

A Yes. We had all kinds of weapons there.

Q Coming to the 18th of March, 1945, will you just tell the court what happened regarding an American flyer, so far as you were concerned?

A Csas sent me out in order to capture, if possible, a stranger who was running around the area. I took a pistol along and went to the spot indicated, and after a search of about a half an hour I succeeded in capturing the flyer. He gave me his weapons--a pistol which was loaded and off safety, a long knife, and six spare magazines with seven rounds each.

Q Just a moment, Michely. How long did it take you to capture this flyer?

A About a half an hour.

Q Did you have to pursue him and finally overtake him to capture him?

A Yes.

Q How far ahead of you was he while you were pursuing him?

A At first about 100 meters. Then when he reached the woods he arparently stopped there. At any rate, I came closer to him, and in the woods I got as close as 5 meters to him.

Q Let me ask you: While you were pursuing him you were armed, were you not?

A Yes.

Q Did you have any instructions from Lieutenant Goss to shoot this man if you could not capture him?

A No. The only orders I had was to attempt to capture him.

Q Did you fire any shots at him?

A No. I didn't have an order to do that.

Q You could have shot him, could you not, had you had such an order?

A Of course.

Q When you did capture him did this stranger, as you refer to him, have a gun in his hand?

A Even while I was chasing him I could observe that he had a pistol in his hand.

Q Did you know while you were pursuing him of what nationality he was?

A No.

Q When you finally captured him, did you at that time learn his nationality?

A Yes.

Q How did you learn that?

A He told me.

Q You speak English, do you not, Michely?

A Yes.

Q After you captured him, took the knife and gun from him, what did you next do?

A I took him to our quarters and turned him over to Goss.

Q About what time of day was this?

A It might have been 2 p.m.

Q What was done with the flyer after you delivered him to Goss during the afternoon?

A I know that he was taken to the second building. I know that he was searched for weapons again there, or for more objects which he wasn't supposed to have. What else happened to him I don't know in detail, 'cause I wasn't present.

Q Were you present any time during that afternoon when Lieutenant Goss attempted to communicate with Wiesbaden?

A I couldn't be present, because Goss couldn't call from a school but had to go up to the Mayor's office.

Q Just tell the court, now, what next you had to do so far as this flyer was concerned.

A About evening Goss gave me the order to take the flyer to Idstein and shoot him on the way.

Q Before that, let me ask you further, did you take from this flyer other things besides the gun and the knife?

A Not at that time.

Q Was the rest of his equipment removed from him there at the headquarters?

A What was taken away from him was in the schoolroom on top of a cabinet.

Q Just tell the court what was taken away from him and put on the cabinet.

A His pistol was lying on that cabinet; his knife was; the spare magazines; two maps; a wallet containing several kinds of currency--German, American, and French currency; also, a lighter. That is all I remember.

Q Do you know how much money he had in these various kinds of currencies?

A Not exactly. I know he had both bills and coins.

Q Did this flyer tell you how long he had been in this area before you captured him?

A Yes. He said he had been in this area for as much as three days.

Q Did he tell you what he was doing around there?

A No.

Q Did he decline to tell you that?

A Yes.

Q You asked him, did you?

A Yes.

Q Did he have any clothing on him that appeared to be that of a flyer?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. He is leading the witness, if it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Just tell the court how this flyer was dressed, that is, the type of clothes he had.

A He was wearing the American flyer's coveralls, including flying boots. - No headgear.

Q You have stated that Lieutenant Goss called you in. At about what time was that that evening?

A It was about the time it was getting dark. I don't remember the exact time of day.

Q And what did he state to you?

A He told me, "Michely, you are taking this man to Idstein, and on the way you will shoot him."

Q Did he tell you what with?

A He pointed out to me that I ought to take the American's pistol along, because we ourselves were short of ammunition.

Q Did you then follow out his order?

A Yes.

Q And after you had executed his order, what did you do?

A After the flyer was dead I took his identifying papers, his identifying bracelet away from him, and went back. I reported to Goss that I had carried out his order, and I turned the identifying objects over to him, including the bracelet. Later on, with the agreement of Goss, I took this bracelet on my person.

Q Did you make a report relative to the shooting of this flyer?

A Yes. That same evening I wrote a report on the typewriter.

Q What did you do with that report?

A This report was countersigned by Goss and the next day was sent to Wiesbaden by way of Idstein with a courier.

Q Prior to this time, and around the 15th of March, 1945, did you have occasion to be in Wiesbaden concerning a captured flyer captured by your unit?

A I was in Wiesbaden that day, but not on account of this flyer matter, but for another reason.

Q I wish you would just state to the court what conversation was had concerning captured fliers at this time when you were in Wiesbaden, and between whom.

A I had to take a report of first Lieutenant Goss to Major Best. On that occasion I told him that we had a captured flyer in Wallrabenstein. Upon that Best asked me why this man is still alive. That was all.

Q At that time did you have some conversation with General Stroop?

A No.

Q Was there then another time a day or two later that you had such a conversation?

A Not with General Stroop.

Q Michely, did you at any time have a conversation with General Stroop regarding the disposition of fliers who might be captured in your area?

A I never had any conversation alone with General Stroop. When General Stroop was talking to me it was an occasion on which he talked to all men.

(Michely - Direct)

Q Where was that?

A When we were sworn in.

Q Was that at Tiefenthal or in Wiesbaden?

A Tiefenthal.

Q Will you just state to the court what General Stroop told you men at the time you were sworn in as members of the Waffen SS?

A General Stroop described the general war situation to us. He swore us in and by shaking his hands he made us pledge allegiance. And at that occasion, he told us that there were difficult tasks ahead of us, that the decision for our country was coming, that "It goes without saying for me that every one of the men will do his duty to the very last, and anybody who will become soft or will go on other than straight path or will attempt to fail to obey our orders will disappear, and without a trace, too."

Q Was that the understanding that all of you who served in the Waffen SS in that area had, that that is the punishment that would happen to you if you failed to obey an order?

A Yes.

Q Did you know of punishment that had been meted out to members of the Waffen SS in that area who had failed to obey orders?

A I had knowledge of some sentences pronounced by the SS court and also there was the example of the bridge in Remagen.

Q What was that example that you knew about?

A These men who had failed to blast this Remagen bridge in time, through failure or disobedience to orders, had been shot promptly and summarily as was announced over the radio.

Q Did you know that they were German officers?

A Yes.

Q Did you have occasion to know of some 50 Volkssturm soldiers in the area of Mainz who had been sentenced to death about the first of March for failure to obey orders?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. He is leading the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR FAXON:

Q Tell of any other occasion you know of where persons had been sentenced to death for failure to obey orders there at that time in March.

A General Stroop gave the order to shoot 50 Volkssturm man for refusing an order in Mains-Heisenau. The only reason they did not have this sentence executed was because of the fast progress of the Americans.

Q About what was the date of this affair you refer to?

A I don't remember the exact date. It was immediately prior to the capture of Mains.

Q It was shortly before this incident on March 18, was it not?

A Yes.

Q Did you know on March 18 approximately how far the Americans were from your location?

A Yes. I had been at Wiesbaden a short time before that and at that time Wiesbaden was already under fire from the other side of the Rhine.

Q Approximately how many kilometers were the Americans from you on the 18th of March?

A Might have been 20 kilometers.

Q Were you receiving air bombing and strafing attacks around this time of March 18?

A Daily.

Q Did you consider yourself in the front line at that time?

A Yes.

Q Did you know what would happen to you had you failed to obey the order of Lt. Goss to execute this flier?

A I remember the words that General Stroop said on the occasion of our being sworn in, and I realised that I couldn't even count on getting a child, was driven into a trap. Having that, I broke my right knee. Q You understood them that if you failed to obey this order of

Mr. Cross that you would be summarily executed yourself, is that correct?

remained CAPTAIN VANCE: We object as leading, putting the words in the mouth of the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained. In German?

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q What did you think would happen to you if you failed to obey this order? A I had had this accident in France, I was sent to Germany as a [illegible] would have been a matter of seconds that I would have been shot.

further Q Do you recall that day you evacuated Wallenbergsteig? A Yes.

A I was the last man to leave Wallenbergsteig, on March 27.

Q How far were the Americans from you then?

A A thousand meters. In jail — or, rather, you were removed to jail. Q And how far did you go before you were captured? A I was at that point 150 kilometers.

Q What time were you captured? A At that later on the chief camp in the vicinity of Schlusselburg, Germ.

Q Where from you held as a prisoner of war?

A From Marseilles in southern France, in the punishment prisoner camp No. 4[illegible] is the name of this stockade that wouldn't permit you to go Q How long were you held there as a prisoner?

A Two months.

Q Then where were you moved to?

A I was then sent to a labor camp, an airport near Marseilles, and I worked as a cook in the American kitchen. Q And on your leg?

Q And then winter of last year.

A Then the unit was transferred to the airport of Istres in southern France. And there in Istres, I was used in the American Officers

Club as an English and French interpreter, and while on duty riding to the supply point, I was driven into a tree. Doing that, I broke my right knee and was sent to the hospital, and the treatment of the leg was interrupted because I was sent to gaol. For that reason, the leg remained stiff and two weeks ago I was told that it would stay that way for the rest of my life.

Q Where were you told that? Here in Dachau?

A [illegible]

Q For that reason were you removed from this prison camp to gaol?

A When I had had this accident in February, I was sent to Germany on a hospital train and I had myself discharged ahead of time and took further treatment at home. I was home for ten days. I was arrested.

Q Then were you arrested for [illegible]

A On account of this matter?

Q And you have been in jail [illegible] any time, you were removed to jail there immediately and they were unable to treat you for this injury in that night?

A Yes. At first it was possible, but then later on the chief cops in Dachau No. 1 didn't permit it any more.

Q Where do you mean here? I see, "What is now the spot," and I

A Yes. I had two massages and light treatments here yet.

Q What is the name of this clergyman that wouldn't permit you to get further treatment? [illegible]

A [illegible]

Q. Is he still there?

A When I left Dachau No. 1, he was still there.

Q How long ago did he discontinue the treatment on your leg?

A Some time August of last year.

Q. I hand you Prosecution Exhibit 144-B and ask you to state if that represents a picture of you and two Americans who were interrogating you relative to this affair?

(MICHELY-Direct)

A That is my name [illegible] but I don't want

Q Did you know their names?

A I only know the name of one of them. [illegible] will caution you not to

Q What is the name that you do know?

A Zinn, Jack Zinn.

Q Of those two Americans can you point out which one is Zinn?

A The one on the left, on the far left.

MR. MICHELY: Let the record show that the accused pointed out the [illegible] as the third person in this picture, on the far left.

QUESTIONS BY MR. MICHELY: During your four or five months' career as a [illegible] now, was there one of these who was with you constantly on the [illegible] taking of these 20 pictures that are known as Exhibits 111-A to 111-J?

A Yes, [illegible] ever [illegible] anyone else at any time to show [illegible] when you went out to the place where the actual shooting occurred that you have heretofore testified to, just tell the court what happened between you and Zinn as to the correct place where the shooting occurred and the taking of the pictures.

A I pointed out to these Americans the point where I had shot this American flier. Mr. Zinn told me, "That is not the spot," and I insisted upon my statement. He insisted upon his statement. He wanted to take pictures, a reconstruction of the incident, and for that purpose he grabbed me here at my shirt collar and put me in the place where he wanted me in order to take his pictures. When I showed to him that I was annoyed, he said, "Why don't you escape and I will shoot you from behind like a dog and that will save us the expense of a trial." Upon that, he took the pictures where he wanted to take them. [illegible]

Q [illegible] which were taken on a number of days, where the actual shooting was, is that correct? [illegible] don't realize what the significance of [illegible]

CAPTAIN WINOKUR: No objects. He is leading his witness again. I [illegible] was [illegible] way, now I don't don't mind this witness telling anything he wants to, but I don't want the Major to tell the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained. I will caution you not to lead the witness.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Was the picture finally taken where Kim wanted it or where the shooting actually occurred?

A The pictures were taken about 10 or 12 meters away from the place I had indicated.

Q Now, Michely, during your four or five months' service as a member of the Waffen SS, did you ever shoot any other Allied prisoner of war?

A I never shot any human being besides this flier.

Q Did you ever receive an order from anyone else at any time to shoot an Allied prisoner of war other than this one order you got from Lt. Gens?

A No.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Michely, to get back one moment to these pictures in evidence, you signed a statement which was described on the back of each photograph in the office of the prosecutor, didn't you, shortly before the charges were served on you?

A Yes.

Q Did you tell the prosecutor or any member of the prosecution staff anything about Kim having the picture made at the wrong place, or make any complaint whatsoever about the pictures?

A No. At that time, I didn't realize what the significance of these pictures was at all. For instance, I also signed a statement on those pictures that the coffin was exhumed and thrown away, and I don't even know that.

Q You read what was on the back of the pictures before you signed it, didn't you?

A Yes.

Q The prosecution staff or anyone did not force you to sign it, did they?

A I wasn't forced to do it, but I wasn't told what the purpose of these pictures would be, either. The first impression I had was that these pictures would be used for propaganda purposes in America.

Q As a matter of fact, you were asked to read what was stated on the back of the picture and state whether that was the truth or not, weren't you?

A Yes.

Q And you signed it and said it was the truth?

A Yes.

Q Now, let's get down to the 18th of March, 1945, when Coss sent you out in the fields to capture the flier. You stated you saw the flier and pursued him and he had a pistol in his hand, is that right?

A Yes.

Q When you captured the flier, he had ammunition with him, that is right, isn't it?

A Yes.

Q Did the flier shoot at you while you were pursuing him?

A No.

Q Did the flier try to harm you in any manner while you had him?

A No.

Q Then you took him back to Lt. Coss, I believe?

A Yes.

Q And about nighttime, Lt. Coss gave you the order to take the flier to Idstein and on the way to kill him, is that right?

A Yes.

Q About what time of day did you capture this American flier and bring him into the schoolhouse?

A About 2 P.M.

Q I believe you said that the weapon and maps and various articles were taken from the flier and he was interrogated. How long did that take?

A I don't know how long it took at all, because I wasn't there until the end.

Q About what time did you leave with the flier to take him out to shoot him?

A About the time it got dark, might have been 7 o'clock.

Q So the flier was there at the schoolhouse for approximately five hours, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Who guarded the flier to keep him from running away during those five hours?

A An old man, more than 50 years old, belonged to our unit.

Q Why did you decide to wait until nighttime to kill the flier?

A That wasn't up to me to decide.

Q Who made that decision to kill him in the nighttime?

A 1st Lt. Goss.

Q There was no reason why you couldn't have killed him between 2 o'clock and 7 o'clock at night, was there?

A I don't know.

Q Now, did you shoot and kill the flier with the American weapon as shown by these pictures which have been introduced in evidence?

A No, not with the weapon that is shown in the picture.

Q I don't mean that weapon; with an American pistol that looks like the one shown in the picture?

A Yes.

Q Did you bury the flier or make any arrangements to have him buried after you killed him?

A I personally did not. Mr. Goss made the arrangements. He had a coffin made from the local carpenter and notified the local mayor and he was buried the next day.

Q How many times did you shoot him?

A I remember approximately that in the beginning and at first I fired about three shots at his back. Then he fell down across the road, and since it started getting dark and I couldn't observe the effect of my shots any more, but still thought I could hear him moan, I fired two more shots in the head.

Q And you were standing right over his body firing down, as shown in this picture which has been introduced in evidence, is that correct?

A About, I don't remember exactly.

Q And after firing those shots at him from the back and two into his head, you were satisfied the flier was dead, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And after you were satisfied that the flier was dead, you removed his identification bracelet from his arm, is that correct?

A And his tags which he had around his neck.

Q And on those tags and on that bracelet was the name Jimmie H. Heatwole, that is right, isn't it?

A Yes.

Q Was Goss waiting at the schoolhouse for you to come back and report that you had carried out his order to execute the flier?

A I don't know whether he had been waiting for me. All I know is he was there when I came back.

Q And you told him you had killed the flier and where the dead body was?

A Yes.

Q When you reported to Goss, what did he say to you?

Ta 158-pm-87-2/11-10

A 11, I don't remember any reply of him. That is right, he told me to write this report.

Q The report was made to whom?

A To General Stroop through Major Best.

Q What did you put down in that report?

A I put down in this report the whole occurrence, how I captured the flier. I also wrote that I had received the order from Gose to take him to Lidstein, that he attempted to escape on the way, and that I shot him while he was trying to escape.

Q Who told you to falsify the report to the effect that the flier was shot while attempting to escape?

A Gose let it. Gose.

Q Do you know if he had received any instructions as to how these reports should be made?

A No.

Q I believe you said that after you came back you brought the identification tags and the bracelet, and that Gose decided you could have the flier's bracelet, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Did Gose give it to you?

A I asked him about it. He said I could have it and I took it off the cabinet.

Q From then on you wore Jimmie Haithman's bracelet, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You testified in answer to Major Tenon's question that on an occasion you went to see Major Best in Wiesbaden, and you had reported that you had a flier in custody in your organization and that he asked why he had not been killed. When did you make that visit to Major Best?

A As far as — to my knowledge, on the 15th of March.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q You could have saved the flier's life, your own and Goss' by taking that flier to the American authorities, couldn't you?

A I didn't have any way of getting him back to the American lines.

Q You know that the war was at the end on that day, practically at an end, didn't you?

A No. As late as the 31st General Stroop was out in our place at Hallrubenstein. At that time the Americans had crossed the Rhein near Frankfurt and Hanau and he said he wanted all weapons, including heavy weapons and he would succeed in throwing the Americans back and he said it went without saying that we, as well as he, would join the fighting front if there was no other way. At that time I had no way at all of recognizing what the end would be.

Q Micholy, you heard Buhlmann testify before this court in the prosecution's case, didn't you?

A Yes.

Q That is the same Buhlmann who refused to execute a flier two or three days before you executed this one, wasn't it?

A That is the same Buhlmann but as far as I know he didn't refuse to carry out any orders.

Q You know he didn't kill the flier when Lt. Goss ordered him to?

A Yes.

MAJOR SAXON: Nothing further from the defense.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness will take his place in the dock.

MAJOR BAKER: Major B[illegible]

GEORG PREU, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

[illegible] DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR BAKER:

Q State your name.

A [illegible], Georg.

Q What is your age?

A 39 years.

Q What is your home address?

A Wiesbaden.

Q Are you married or single?

A Married.

Q What does your family consist of?

A My wife and three children.

Q You are an accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q Presently confined in Dachau?

A Yes.

Q What was your occupation in civilian life?

A The profession which I studied to become was an engineer.

Q When did you first join the armed forces of Germany?

A I had gone through several reserve maneuvers before the war and during the war, in 1943, I was detailed to the Waffen SS.

Q Where were you stationed in 1943 with the Waffen SS?

A I was sent to the SS combat command in Africa.

Q How long did you serve there?

(Best-direct)

A Until the evacuation of Tunis in the first days of May.

Q Then where did you serve next?

A Then we stayed in Italy for a short while and, effective the 15th of June, I was sent to Corsica.

Q Then?

A At the end of the evacuation of Corsica in September 1943 I was detailed to the Higher SS and Police Leader in France.

Q How long did you serve in France?

A I remained on the staff of the Higher SS and Police Leader of France until the end of November 1944.

Q What rank did you hold at that time in the SS.

A SS Sturmbannfuehrer, Major.

Q When were you detailed to Wehrkreis No. 12?

A Toward the end of November 1944 I was called to Berlin by radio but I couldn't follow through these orders right away but arrived a few days later so that I couldn't perform the job which I was supposed to take at first and toward the beginning of December, I think it was the 5th, I received my assignment to the Higher SS and Police Leader, Rhein-Westmark.

Q Who transferred you there, Major Best?

A General Fruetzmann.

Q What was General Fruetzmann's function in the German Reich?

A General Fruetzmann was the commanding officer of the undertaking "Wehrwolf" for the whole Reich area.

Q What was your assignment in Wehrkreis XII?

A According to the orders which I received in Berlin I was supposed to the the commanding officer of the undertaking Wehrwolf in Wehrkreis XII, and I received instructions from General Kruetzmann in accordance with that, when I reported to Generaloberst Speer. I first told him I was reporting as commanding officer of the undertaking, Sonderstab Ia and secondly what my instructions from Berlin were, the war of the enemy [illegible]. Let me ask you this question. Did you know General Stroop before this assignment, that never included any of these orders that he had given me before for about fifteen minutes perhaps, in the month of October to transmit a message from General Obert, the Higher SS and Police Leader of France.

(Best-direct)

Q You had never served under General Stroop and were not otherwise acquainted with him, is that correct? Just was concerned?

A Nothing at all. In the first few days when I reported to General Stroop, did you receive any instructions, orientation or training in the Sonderstab activities before you were assigned to Wehrkreis XIII. Leader A. I had been trained as a pioneer professionally and also as a soldier and that is probably the reason I got this job as chief of the Sonderstab in Wehrkreis XIII that is [illegible] in my command will originate from it. When you say "pioneer" do you mean engineer, is that the same? Answer: Well, I don't mean engineer as machine engineer, but as engineer in the army sense, concerning demolitions [illegible] staff in charge of Sonderstab. Did you get some orientation from General Kruetzmann or his staff before you went to Wehrkreis XIII received [illegible] -- to supervise Sonderstabs under General [illegible] command as a staff officer?

Q Will you just tell the court what instructions you had that you were to carry out your mission by in Wehrkreis XIII, what was your mission? [illegible] General Kruetzmann explained the mission of the Sonderstab to me to the effect that the Sonderstab was to support the fighting troops at the front [illegible] orders and that was [illegible] General Stroop himself. In the by having these men put to work behind the enemy's lines and demolish the supply lines thereby causing trouble. The main job was the interference with enemy supply. In addition to that there was the general instruction that any attempt at the life of any member of the enemy armed forces was prohibited in principle.

Q Your instructions then never included any of these orders that have been testified to here such as non-interference or the order to kill enemy fliers?

A No, nothing.

Q When you came to Wehrkreis XXI what did you find was already in operation so far as the Wehrwolf project was concerned?

A Nothing at all. In the first few days when I reported to General Stroop and informed him of the instructions I had received from Berlin he replied as follows: "There is only one Higher SS and Police leader in Westmark and his name is Jurgen Stroop and that is me." I have been assigned and confirmed to my position by the Fuehrer and Reichsfuehrer respectively and anything that is happening in my command will originate from me. I have already set up a Wehrwolf and I reserve the right to command it personally for myself and now that you're here you might as well take over the position of a staff officer on my staff in charge of Wehrwolf matters."

Q That is the position you received there then -- to supervise Wehrwolf activities under General Stroop's command as a staff officer?

A Yes.

Q Did you have any authority to give any commands of any kind even relative to the operations of the Wehrwolf?

A No, that was prohibited on principle. There was only one man who could give orders and that man was General Stroop himself. In the beginning things worked out this way -- that I would still get orders directly from Berlin addressed to my address. General Stroop stopped this by sending a teletype to Berlin saying "I request that all correspondence concerning Wehrwolf activities in Corps Command XII be sent to the Higher SS and Police Leader, General Jurgen Stroop."

(Best-direct)

Q Then such orders as thereafter came from General Fruetzmann or instructions from General Fruetzmann, came through General Stroop's headquarters to you?

A Yes.

Q Did this create an unhappy situation so far as you were concerned? Were you dissatisfied?

A Yes, very dissatisfied and I attempted to be recalled or transferred to some position outside of Wehrkreis XII right away. For that reason I went up to Berlin one more time in January 1945. I said what I had to expand I was promised a prompt change. At the beginning of March a representative of General Fruetzmann came to Wiesbaden. He convinced himself of the correctness of my statements on the spot and shortly thereafter General Fruetzmann himself came to Wiesbaden but that unfortunately was too late because two or three days later General Stroop's office was removed away from Wiesbaden, that is, evacuated.

Q That last visit from General Fruetzmann was just before the end of the war, wasn't it?

A Yes, that was about the 8th of March, the 10th or 20th of March.

Q You had a Wehrwolf school at Hallrabenstein, is that correct, Major?

A Yes, toward the end of the war. At first it was in Tiefenthal.

Q Did you have any other Wehrwolf schools in Wehrkreis XII?

A No.

Q The Wehrwolf, as a matter of fact, never got into training or (best-direct) or operation in Wehrkreis XII?

A Unfortunately we had no communication, that is I didn't, with the men in action so I don't know what did happen. I had instructions from General Fruetmann to live together with a man at the front constantly in order to remain informed as to what was going on. General Stroop made this impossible and he said, "You will stay with me and if it is necessary for you to go on you will be going with me." Thus, I was able to leave Wiesbaden only once together with General Stroop going to Koblenz, Trier and Saarbrucken. We met a lot of people who didn't interest me a bit and I didn't see a thing about anything that concerned me in the enterprise Wehrwolf.

Q Take the one school you had in Wehrkreis XII, in Wallrabenstein, were you allowed by General Stroop to spend any time at this school?

A No, I had asked to be permitted to live in the school when it was located in Tiefenthal but he disapproved. After the large scale air attack on Wiesbaden the office of General Stroop was also damaged. Upon that he permitted me to move to Tiefenthal for a short while. I moved to Tiefenthal on the afternoon of the 12th of February and on the next day at noon on the 13th of February, the school was completely destroyed by bombs so that I was forced to move back to Wiesbaden.

Q That is the only time you ever spent at the school from the time of its organization and from the time you got down there?

A Yes.

Q Did you have any command functions at all under General Stroop?

A Yes.

Q Did you have any authority over the patrolling or policing and maintaining of order in the City of Wallrabenstein?

A No.

Q Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not General Stroop gave that authority to Lt. Goss directly?

A May I ask you what authority you are talking about?

Q I am talking about the authority of policing and maintaining order in the City of Wallrabenstein.

A No, this matter was unknown to me. I found out about this only here from Lt. Goss.

Q Was it not also a fact that General Stroop maintained direct liaison with Lt. Goss and without considering you at all?

A It happened frequently that he contacted Lt. Goss directly.

Q It developed that you were nothing more than a figurehead as far as the Kohrwolf was concerned at Wehrkreis XII?

CAPTAIN VANCE: No object.

PRESIDENT: Objection sustained.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAYON:

Q Previous to March 15th had you ever received any instructions from General Stroop as to what disposition should be made of the captured Allied fliers? I mean previous to March 15, 1945?

A No.

Q Had General Stroop even so much as talked to you about his own views on that subject?

A I know of one order only that came out on the 15th or 16th of February 1945 which read as follows: There were four cases of death after an attack on Liefenthal on members of another school and they were to be buried. I went over by order of General Stroop in order to take part in the burial. When I arrived with my car at the entrance to the town of Martinsthal the Mayor of the town was standing there and stepped me and asked me, "Mr. Best, how are your wounded comrades doing?"

I asked him, "What comrades are you talking about?" He said that one four or five hundred meters away was wounded by a parachuted flier. I informed him I didn't know anything about this incident having come from Wiesbaden. I had the spot pointed out to me and drove over there with my car. There a comrade of ours, an SS Major was lying who had a shot in his lower jaw and about three or four meters away from there the body of an American flier was lying. A doctor was standing with that group, also a few policemen and a few Air Corps soldiers. I asked at once what had happened here and the following was told to me.

In the little town of Wiesbaden on the Rhein --

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PRESIDENT: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense, except Dr. Frost, who is absent sick, all of the accused, the interpreter and reporter are present.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SACKS:

Q Major Knot, will you continue where you left off at the recess?

A During this inquiry I was told the following: In the neighborhood of Eltville, an American plane had been shot down. One of the fliers parachuted, cut off his parachute after he landed on the ground and tried to escape to the forest which was located in the neighborhood. People had observed him parachuting. A group of anti-aircraft artillery which was located in the neighborhood sent immediately [illegible] who told [illegible] which was located in the neighborhood sent immediately some men out to catch this flier. Furthermore, members of the Wehrmacht and of the police were present to participate in the capture of the flier. Shortly before reaching the forest, the flier was surrounded, an SS major approached him up to approximately six meters when the flier who was trying to escape suddenly turned around, threw himself to the ground and with a 12 millimeter Colt, shot at the SS major. The shot entered the lower jaw and the SS major fell to the ground. Then the flier jumped on the SS major, who was lying on the ground, took the major's pistol out of his hands, used the major's body as cover, and continued shooting. Then the soldier started shooting at the flier and one or two of these shots hit him fatally. When I arrived, the air force detachment had already taken all the papers, the number of the flier, et cetera, and had left to make a report to their unit commander. I took care of the transport of the wounded SS major to the hospital on the Michberg. The physician on duty refused to accept the wounded man because he himself couldn't do anything and he transferred the wounded man to a specialist in Wiesbaden. Upon arrival at the hospital in Wiesbaden, the wounded man died.

(Next Sheet)

Q About what date was this, Major Best?

A I can give you the exact date. That was on the 15th of February 1945.

Q That is the only instance you know of matters that affected fliers at any time before the 15th of March, is that correct?

A Yes, but the reason why I reported on this incident is a question which I was asked this forenoon, whether I had received orders of any kind from General Streep in regard to parachuted fliers, and I might add that when I returned from this burial I reported to General Streep, who told me then that he feels it necessary to issue an order that greatest care has to be used when taking parachuted fliers into custody, that every man who participated should have his loaded pistol unsecured in his hands and his last word was, "Who shoots first has the advantage."

Q All right. Now, Major, getting back then to the 15th of March 1945, did you receive a message from Lieutenant Goss?

A Yes.

Q In what manner did you receive that message?

A From an employee of my office. I was informed that somebody had called over the phone in the name of Lieutenant Goss that he, Lieutenant Goss, had a flier in Wallrabenstein, and that he was requesting orders from General Streep what had to be done with the flier.

Q About what time of day did this message reach you?

A That might have been around four o'clock in the afternoon.

Q What did you do as soon as you received this message?

A I passed this message of Lieutenant Goss on to General Stroop.

Q In what manner, in what form did you do that?

A Through personal report.

Q Your office was in the same headquarters as General Stroop's, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q What did General Stroop say to you?

A General Stroop was thinking for a moment and then he said, "the flier has to be shot."

Q What did he direct that you do?

A From the manner in which this order was given it was obvious that this was the order which I had to pass on to Lieutenant Goss.

Q What did you do next insofar as this order is concerned?

A Lieutenant Goss had told me during the telephone call that during the late afternoon he would come to the place Under the Eichen, where he could get the order from me.

Q Did you go to that place later in the afternoon?

A Yes.

Q About what time did you go down?

A That might have been around six, six-thirty.

Q Did you see Lieutenant Goss there?

A Yes.

Q Did you give him General Stroop's order?

A Yes.

Q Now, when did you next see Lieutenant Goss?

Q What conversation was had between you and Lieutenant Goss at that time so far as pertains to this flier?

A Lieutenant Goss reported to me that it had not been possible to carry out the order. On my question why, he told me that through the interference by civilians it had been impossible to carry out the order.

Q What did you do next then in regard to making your report to General Stroop of the failure of Lieutenant Goss to carry out this order?

A I personally informed General Stroop of this report.

Q What did he say to you?

A He was a little bit upset and told me in nearly the same words, "This is a bad sign for the reliability of the men if they start to get soft. It is necessary for me to have a serious talk with them.During the next meeting you have to bring this to my attention."

Q Subsequent to this conversation, that is, after this conversation with General Stroop, when did you next see Lieutenant Goss?

A That was again one day later, that means on the 17th.

Q Did you see Lieutenant Goss again on that date at this same place?

A Yes.

Q Did you convey to him General Stroop's reaction to the failure of the execution of this order?

A Yes.

Q Major Best, always when you conferred with Lieutenant Goss, it was not down at Wallrabenstein, but Under the Oaks, is that right?

A Always Under the Oaks.

Q You have heard the testimony here relative to the shooting of the American flier, Jimmie Heathman on the 16th of March, 1945?

A Yes.

Q Did you know anything about that shooting or have anything to do with it before the actual shooting?

A No.

Q Did you ever at any time while you were in Wehrkreis 12 under General Stroop, give to Lieutenant Goss or anyone else an order by you to shoot a parachuted flier or prisoner of war of any kind?

A I have only conveyed one order to Lieutenant Goss, which I had received from General Stroop.

Q That is not the question. Did you ever personally give an order of this type?

A No.

Q Major Goss, how many, if any, of these accused who are in the box here did you know prior to the end of the war?

A I knew the accused Fuehr, Number 4.

Q Just tell what your acquaintance was with him.

A Fuehr and I are fellow countrymen from Mainz and we know each other for approximately twenty years.

Q Did you know him at all during the war? That is, I mean, were you associated with him in the same unit?

A No.

Q Are there any of the other accused that you know?

A Yes, Colonel Schimm, number 3.

Q What is the extent of your acquaintance with him?

A I was introduced to him during an official meeting in 1938 for a very short time.

Q Did you know him at any time during the war?

A No, for the first time I saw him again at the prison in Wiesbaden.

Q That was after the war?

A After the war, yes, in June 1946.

Q Now, you know General Stroop. Is your acquaintance with him any more than what you have testified to here?

A No.

Q Are there any of the other accused that you know at any time before the end of the war?

A Yes, 1st Lieutenant Guse and the soldier Micholy.

Q That knowledge is as you have testified here already, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Did you know any of the others?

Q Major Best, referring you to Charge I and the particulars in this indictment against yourself and the others, did you conspire with any of these accused to either individually or collectively or as a principal or accessory, to do any of the things referred to in Charge I?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. It calls for a legal conclusion of the witness and further it invades the province of the court to decide a question which is before the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

A No, in no way.

Q I want to ask you, Major Best, in regard to Charge 9, whether or not you conspired with Jurgen Stroop, Hans Trumler, Otto Sonann, Erwin Goss and Heinrich Matthias Michely, on or about 18 March 1945, at or near Hillrabenstein, Germany to wilfully, deliberately and wrongfully encourage, aid, abet and participate in the killing of a member of the United States Army, believed to be Jimmie R Heathman, who was then and there a surrendered and unarmed prisoner of war in the custody of the then German Reich?

CAPTAIN VANCE: The same objection, if it please the court.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

A No.

Q Did you participate in any way in the killing of Jimmie Heathman?

A No. May I add something else which I had forgotten before?

MAJOR MASON: No, I'll ask you questions, Major Best, unless you want to correct that last statement.

WITNESS MAJOR BEST: No, not the last one.

Q All right, Major Best, what did you forget?

A I forgot to mention that I got acquainted with Colonel Trumler while stationed at Wiesbaden before the end of the war.

Q What was the extent of your acquaintance?

A I got acquainted with Colonel Trumbo when he came to General Stroop's office one day a conference was over between General Stroop, the Q Were you at that conference? were working out ion.

A Yes. I was in the ante room, the number of persons in the room? Did you introduce yourself to him?

A Yes. The liaison duties would come in to Wiesbaden to the What changes were made in or General Stroop?

A I wasn't the commanding officer of the unit Werewolf any more, but General Stroop devoted me to a position of staff officer of the Werewolf. Did you ever see this happen?

Q Well, were there other staff officers of the Werewolf there could test to me.

A Yes. I'll say, Yes, I believe you said you received a telephone call from Colonel Trumbo. Was you were the representative of the Werewolf organization in General Stroop's headquarters? one call.

A What kind of message did you receive?

A I was informed by an employee of the office of headquarters that a telephone call had come in from Lieutenant Lowe, since I was

Q What were you there for then?

A I was only the liaison officer between General Stroop, the Werewolf school and the men who were working outside.

Q What was the size — the strength, the number of persons in the school?

A That varied.

Q What was the largest during the time you were there?

A There was a second course for men who had taken the first course because additional information had been received. There might be sixty or seventy and running like thirty to forty. In the end when the school was transferred there were twelve to fifteen men left.

Q And Lieutenant Goss was there and you were the liaison officer between Lieutenant Goss and General Stroop?

A Yes.

Q And did you remain in that capacity when General Stroop moved his headquarters away from Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q Each time Lieutenant Goss would come in to Wiesbaden to the headquarters, would he talk to you or General Stroop?

A Normally he would come to me, but it so happened General

Stroop would see him on the stairs and take him to his office right away.

Q Did you ever see that happen?

A Whenever I was in the building, afterwards Lieutenant Goss would come to me.

Q March 15, 1945, I believe you said you received a telephone call from Lieutenant Goss?

A I didn't receive a telephone call.

Q What kind of message did you receive?

A I was informed by an employee of the office of headquarters that a telephone call had come in from Lieutenant Goss, since I was not present in the office in the forenoon.

(Testimony of Goss)

Q Well, did you get a message about what he wanted to get in touch with you?

A Yes.

Q What was that?

A First, Lieutenant Goss informed me that he had captured a flier at Hallrabenstein, and he requested orders what to do with him. He wanted to get this order at the offices under the oaks in the late afternoon.

Q Was there anything else in that message?

A No.

Q Did you go to see General Streep that same day?

A Yes.

Q Lieutenant Goss asked you what to do; he hadn't said anything about what General Streep wanted done, that is right, isn't it?

A First Lieutenant Goss knew that I couldn't give him any orders. He was to pick up the order there, the intersection under the oaks.

Q Let's not talk about what you know — he didn't tell you to go to General Streep for him, did he?

A No, I repeated the exact words of his message.

Q Then on that same day you went to see General Streep and I believe you told him that Lieutenant Goss had a flier?

A Yes.

Q Why did you go to see General Streep?

A Because I couldn't give my orders to first Lieutenant Goss what he should do with the flier.

Q Did you know what kind of orders General Streep was going to give you when you asked him about it?

A A No.

Q I believe you said General Streep said the flier should be shot, is that right?

(Blot = Streep)

A Yes.

Q General Stroop didn't tell you who to have shoot the flier?

A No.

Q Best, you remember telling exactly what the General did say?

A He said the flier has to be, it is possible he said one or two expressions, either the flier has to be killed or done away with."

Q Did he say anything else that you remember?

A No.

Q Then he left it up to you to work out the details to get the flier shot, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Now, I believe he already made a date at a certain time to meet Goss under the oaks to tell him what should be done with the flier, is that correct?

A First Lieutenant Goss had informed us in his message that he would pick up the order during the afternoon under the oaks.

Q Did you meet him in the afternoon under the oaks?

A Yes.

Q Was there anyone there except you two?

A No.

Q As best you can remember, tell the court what you told Lieutenant Goss.

A I told him the exact wording of General Stroop's order, then we discussed who of the men should be ordered to carry out the order.

Q Now when you say "we" you mean yourself and Goss?

A Yes.

Q What did you and Goss decide should be done?

A We agreed on Buhlmann.

Q How long were you with Lieutenant Goss during this conference?

A Approximately ten minutes.

Q When is the next time you heard anything in reference to this flier?

A One day later on the 17th of March.

Q What did you hear about the flier?

A First Lieutenant Goss reported that the execution of this order had not been possible.

Q Why did he report that to you?

A Because I was liaison officer to General Stroop.

Q What did you say to Goss at that time?

A My first expression was, "Then I have to tell the old guy."

Q And what else did you say to him?

A Then I asked him why the order had not been executed.

Q What else was said by you or Goss?

A Then First Lieutenant Goss gave me the reasons why it was not possible to carry out the order.

Q Did he tell you the civilian population would not permit it?

A No.

Q What did he say?

A He said that through the loss of time and interference by civilians it had not been possible to carry out the order. With interference by civilians he wasn't referring to the fact that civilians did not want to let the flier be killed, but that he as a soldier wanted to avoid giving civilians a show how that soldier was shot.

Q In other words, he did not want to commit murder with a lot of witnesses?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment.

PRESIDENT: Overruled.

A The reasoning was different and for this purpose I cannot answer this question directly.

Q Well, tell me any way you want to why the order was not executed because of the population.

A First Lieutenant Goss felt and acted like a soldier but the civilian population was interested in the shooting of the flier.

Q Well, how does a German soldier execute a man -- take him off in the darkness and shoot him?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgment. I think it is vastly improper even for cross examination.

PRESIDENT: Sustained.

Q Major Best, had General Stroop not given you the order that this flier was to be shot, then no such order would have been issued, is that correct?

A No, that is not correct.

Q What is correct?

A Then he would have given the order directly to Lieutenant Goss, in reply to his inquiry.

Q But on this occasion he did give you the order?

A Yes, because I informed him of the inquiry.

Q Now, that night under the oaks when you saw Lieutenant Goss, had you said, "Goss, General Stroop wants this man turned over to the Wehrmacht," then no such order would have been given, would it?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's judgement. The objection is based on the grounds it is a hypothetical question.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

A I had no reason to lie, because as a soldier I am working as much under oath as a witness before the court.

Q Did you consider this order of General Stroop's to be a legal order?

A Yes.

Q There was no question in your mind?

A No.

Q You had no hesitation whatsoever in taking General Streep's message down to Lieutenant Gess to get the fliers shot?

A No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Major Best, I hand you Prosecution Exhibit 142 and ask you to look at it and state what it is after you have perused it.

A This is my statement which I made in the jail at Wiesbaden 19 June 1946.

Q Is that statement substantially correct?

A Yes.

Q What date did you make that statement?

A On the 19th of June 1946.

Q Major Best, is this the only statement you ever made regarding this case?

A No, I made a second one here in Dachau on the 5th of December 1946.

Q Did anyone read you a copy of that statement?

A No.

Q Who did you give that statement to?

A The interrogating officer of the CIC or War Crimes Group, Augsburg, took the statement along.

Q Was it regarding this matter?

A Yes, it was a little more in detail because it was in question and answer form.

Q Major Best, is the statement you made on the 19th of June 1946 and the one you made on the 5th of December 1946 the same as you testified here today?

MAJOR SARONI: That is all.

A During a visit at General Stroop's Headquarters I met Dr. Trumpler in the anteroom. I can't remember anymore whether I myself introduced myself to Dr. Trumpler or whether his adjutant Captain Kaleske introduced me to him.

Q Is that the extent of your acquaintance with Dr. Trumpler?

He is not trying to define what he is denying. He says it isn't so. I object to all these legal questions.

PRESIDENT: If it was an error go ahead with the question. The ruling of the court is changed.

(Cross-resumed)

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAND:

Q Lieutenant Goss is that the answer you intended to give?

A No.

Q Will you state the answer as you intended to give it?

A I intended to say that during the meeting with Major Dost in the afternoon I expected to get from him the orders which General Streep had given in regard to the further action about the flyer. Correctly said, the exact orders of General Streep in regard to the further action about the flyer which I had captured.

MAJOR SAND: Your witness.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Lieutenant Goss, that made you expect to receive any orders from General Streep? You heard Major Dost say that your message was to him and General Streep's name wasn't mentioned in it, isn't that?

A Major Dost, as he has testified before, was the staff officer, the liaison officer between the Werwolf School, General Streep and the men who were on the job outside. It is a matter of course that I would never go around my immediate superior, in this case Major Dost, and would always request my orders through channels.

Q On every occasion when you wanted to send something to headquarters you did go through Major Dost, is that correct?

A Whenever I wanted something I sent this through Major Dost, of course.

CAPTAIN VANCE: That is all.

MAJOR SAND: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: Any questions by the court?

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

QUESTIONS BY COLONEL M. MERTENS:

Q When was this meeting with Major Dost, on the 17th or 18th of March?

A I don't know, Colonel, which conference you are referring to now.

Q Did you have a meeting with him on both the 17th and 18th?

A No, on the 17th.

Q On the 17th?

A Yes.

Q The order you got on the 17th, did you include that to mean the flyer that was killed on the 18th?

A In principle I had two orders. For one thing I had the direct order from General Smoop, "All flyers who fall into my hands to have shot." I had a second special order which was referring to the first case in which I had inquired specifically what should be done with the flyer because I was of the opinion that this flyer first had to be interrogated. Based on my inquiry to General Streep, Major Best transmitted to me under the oaks General Streep's order to shoot this man. But this first flyer has not been shot due to the interference by civilians and this has been reported to General Streep by Major Best. The reply respectively, whatever General Streep said to Major Best about this incident Major Best passed on to me on Saturday and this may be informed me that we had to expect an investigation on account of the disobedience of General Streeps orders.

Although my excuse had very good reasons, nevertheless an investigation was supposed to be started against me.

Q Heathman was shot on the 18th, wasn't he?

A Yes.

Q Did you get an order on the 18th from Major Best to have Heathman shot or done away with?

A No.

Q You didn't communicate with Major Adut in any way between two o'clock in the afternoon and the time the man was shot?

A No.

(One recess)

PRESIDENT: No further question. Take your seat in the dock.

(Thereupon the accused was excused and resumed his place in the dock.)

MAJOR SAEDN: Micholy.

PRESIDENT: Have you any idea how long this witness will take?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think he will take three or four minutes. It will be the same type of question that was asked of Gad.

LAY MEMBER: Are you going to put it in the same form again?

HEINRICH MATHIAS MICHOLY, an accused, recalled by the defense, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following answers statement through an interpreter:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAEDN:

Q Did you know any of the accused here before the end of the war other than Stroop, Best and Gene?

A No.

Q You have read over charge one and the particulars thereunder?

A Yes.

Q Did you get together, plan, conspire with any of these other accused to commit any kind of a war crime whatsoever?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object on the grounds previously stated.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAEDN:

Q I understand that you didn't belong to the SS until November, 1944, is that correct?

A That is right.

Q Did you ever commit any of the crimes that have commonly been charged to any of the named organizations in charge number two?

CAPTAIN VANCE: I object on the same grounds stated previously.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

(Micholy-direct)

THE WITNESS: No.

MAJOR SAX M: Your witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No questions.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. Take your place in the dock.

(Thereupon the accused was excused and resumed his place in the dock.)

PRESIDENT: The court will recess for thirty minutes.

(Thereupon the court recessed at 1455 hours.)

1061

(Thereupon the court reconvened at 1535 hours.)

PRESIDENT: Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all the members of the court, all the members of the prosecution, all the members of the defense except Mr. Frost, who is absent sick, all of the accused, the reporter and interpreter, are present.

Let the record show that the accused Best has resumed the witness stand.

MAJOR SAXON: If it please the court, Dr. Rau desires to examine Best in behalf of General Stroop.

GEORG BEST, an accused, voluntarily resumed the stand in his own behalf and continued to make an unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. RAU:

Q Mr. Best, when did this SS Major that was shot at by an American flyer die?

A February 15, 1945. On the day he was wounded.

Q Was there any other relationship between you and this other SS Major besides a regular comradely one?

A No.

Q Is it correct that your father died in the course of an air raid attack?

A Yes.

Q When was that?

A On the 27th of November, 1944.

DR. RAU: Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Has the prosecution any questions?

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, the prosecution moves to strike the answers to the questions that have just been propounded by Dr. Kuh, and we make this motion if it is the position of the defense that they thereby were seeking to prove reprisal by way of revenge. If that is what they sought to prove, then we move to strike the answers to the questions that were propounded.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I am not sure just why Dr. Kuh did ask the questions, but I do not think we are called upon to state just why the evidence is offered. We are offering it for such value as the court may give to it and for such reasons we may deem best on argument at the end of the case we make for it.

PRESIDENT: The motion to strike is overruled.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No questions by the prosecution.

MAJOR SAXON: Nothing further by the defense.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness will take his place in the dock.

(Whereupon the accused resumed his seat in the dock.)

HANS GUNTHER, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your name.

A Hans Gunther.

Q Where do you presently reside?

A I am an internee here in camp.

Q You have previously testified in this case in behalf of the prosecution, have you not?

A Yes.

Q What was your position in Wehrkreis No. 12 in the Spring of 1945, up until the end of the war?

A Ia Officer--operations officer--with the Higher SS and Police Officer.

Q Were you acquainted at that time with Major Best, one of the accused here?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether or not Major Best made application to transfer out from under the command of General Stroop during that Spring?

A Yes, I was in the beginning of March, 1945, Colonel Hansen called Q Was that transfer being worked upon from several sources during that Spring time? was in action in the vicinity

[illegible] the transfer was worked on by Colonel Schluss."

[illegible] Colonel Wiesen told me that [illegible] when [illegible] possibly be carried out, and that he had appointed [illegible] officers to investigate the facts in the case. The next morning, Colonel Wiesen informed me that that night before the conversation had taken place between himself, Colonel Wiesen, and the higher SS and police leader, General Krueger, and that in the course of that conversation General Krueger had [illegible] Colonel Wiesen [illegible] had carried out [illegible]

Q Mr. Gunther, do you or do you not know what disposition was made by General Stroop regarding some 50 Volkssturm near Mainz who had refused to obey an order of General Stroop's?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: My objection, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

A I do remember.

Q What disposition was ordered regarding those 50 Volkssturm by General Stroop?

A One night in the beginning of March, 1945, Colonel Niemann called me up and he informed me that he had a telephone order from General Stroop that 50 Volkssturm men who were in action in the vicinity of Mainz were to be shot promptly for mutiny and cowardice before the enemy. Colonel Niemann told me that that was an insane order which couldn't possibly be carried out, and that he had appointed some officers to investigate the facts in the case. The next morning, Colonel Niemann informed me that that night before the conversation had taken place between himself, Colonel Niemann, and the higher SS and police leader, General Stroop, and that in the course of that conversation General Stroop had asked Colonel Niemann why that order hadn't been carried out yet. In that same day, Colonel Niemann also told me that investigations had shown that these Volkssturm men had had neither service records nor any papers, no uniform or insignia, nor any weapons of any sort, and that for that reason they had refused to meet the enemy under those conditions. Upon that, General Stroop told Colonel Niemann that he apparently had been misinformed by the gauleiter.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No cross-examination.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court.

DR. WACKER: Might I ask one question?

QUESTIONS BY DR. WACKER:

Q When you said that he had been misinformed, who did you mean by "he"? Did you mean General Stroop, or did you mean this Colonel Niemann?

A General Stroop wanted to justify his giving his order by saying that he had been misinformed by the gauleiter.

PRESIDENT: The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness is excused and withdrew.)

FRIEDRICH SCHLUME, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your name.

A Friedrich Schlume.

Q You have testified heretofore in this case on behalf of the prosecution, have you not?

A Yes.

Q You are acquainted with the accused Major Rost?

A Yes.

Q Just what was your position in General Stroop's command in the spring of 1945?

Ta 16k-ps-60-2/1k-3

A I was chief of staff of the Allgemeine SS and chief of the personal office.

Q Do you know whether or not Major Best had made application, on some different occasions throughout the spring of 1945 to be transferred from out from under the command of General Stroop?

A Many times Best stated to me personally that he would like to get away from this headquarters.

Q Was he dissatisfied and unhappy in the role that he played in General Stroop's command?

A (The answer was physically stricken from the record by order of the President.)

MAJOR GOLDFARB: I ask that be stricken from the record as not being responsive to the question.

PRESIDENT: Motion sustained.

QUESTION BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q Just state, Colonel Schluss, whether or not Major Best himself was unhappy and dissatisfied with the duties he performed in General Stroop's command.

A Yes. He never felt at home in this staff.

Q Did General Stroop give Major Best any authority or any command function of any kind?

A Best was the personal technical advisor in matters concerning W. He didn't have any power of command as such.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTION BY CAPTAIN MAGEE:

Q Why was Major Best unhappy in General Stroop's command?

A One time about Christmas he had a very severe personal difference with General Stroop.

Q Any other reason why he was unhappy?

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR MARKEY: There besides General Stroop and Lt. Gorsi

Q Do you know whether or not Lt. Goss made application for transfer from [redacted] Lt. Gorsi efforts to transfer from [redacted] out [redacted] voluntarily told [redacted] that he was treated very poorly by Stroop and that he would like to get back to the regular army.

[redacted] your witness.

CAPTAIN WEBER: Nothing further, may it please the court.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court: the witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

[redacted], called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY MAJOR SAXON:

Q State your name.

A Elso Koschun.

Q You have previously testified here in behalf of the prosecution, have you not?

(REMAINDER-Direct)

A Yes.

Q What was your position in Wehrkreis XII in the spring of 1945?

A I was secretary to Major General Streep.

Q Do you recall whether or not sometime in the spring of 1945 you happened to be in General Streep's office at a conference between he and Lt. Gees?

A Yes.

Q Can you place approximately when that was?

A It was in the beginning of 1945.

Q Will you just tell the court what the substance of the conversation between General Streep and Lt. Gees was that you overheard there?

A General Streep said to Lt. Gees, "You know what the treatment of parachuted fliers is supposed to be. That also is one of the tasks of the Werwolf."

Q Was anyone else there besides General Streep and Lt. Gees?

A No.

Q Do you happen to know about Lt. Gees' efforts to transfer from out from under the command of General Streep?

A No.

MAJOR SAXON: Your witness.

CAPTAIN WAECK: No cross examination.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court. The witness is excused.

(Whereupon the witness was excused and withdrew.)

PRESIDENT: Court will recess until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

(Whereupon the court recessed at 1650 hours.)

(Whereupon the court reconvened at 0900 hours.)

PRESIDENT: The Court will come to order.

PROSECUTION: May it please the court, let the record show that all members of the court; all the members of the prosecution; all the members of the defense, except Dr. Treat, who is absent sick; all of the accused; and the reporter and interpreter are present. There is a new reporter to be sworn.

PRESIDENT: The Court has appointed Sergeant William Jones as court reporter. He will be sworn.

(Whereupon Staff Sergeant William F. Jones, U. S. Army, was sworn as court reporter.)

PRESIDENT: Let the record show that Colonel Robertson has advised the President of the Court that he has read all the testimony which transpired in Court on Thursday, February 13th, on which day he was properly absent from court.

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the court, as the only additional evidence that will be offered on Charge IX, the defense now desires to present evidence in the form of certificates in behalf of the accused Michely. It has been stipulated between the defense and prosecution that were these persons here they would testify as their certificates indicate.

PROSECUTION: It has been so stipulated.

MAJOR SAXON: These certificates, for the purpose of identification, have been marked, the German starting with Defense Exhibit Number 3 and the English 3-A through Defense Exhibit 14 and 14-A.

(The documents referred to were marked Defense Exhibits Nos. 3 and 3-A through 14 and 14-A for identification.)

MAJOR SAXON: At this time the defense would like to offer them in evidence in block as Defense Exhibits 3 to 14 and the English thereof 3-A to 14-A. The defense would like to read the English to the court and we waive the reading of the German.

CAPTAIN VANCE: No objection by the prosecution.

PRESIDENT: The stipulation is acceptable to the Court. Defense Exhibits Number 3 to 14-A will be received in evidence and be attached to and made a part of the record.

(The documents heretofore marked Defense Exhibit Nos. 3 and 3-A to 14 and 14-A were received in evidence as Defense Exhibits Nos. 3 and 3-A to 14- and 14-A inclusive, are attached hereto and made a part of the record.)

PRESIDENT: Proceed.

(Whereupon the defense read Defense Exhibits 3-A to 14-A inclusive, the English translations of Defense Exhibits 3 to 14, inclusive.)

MAJOR SAXON: May it please the court, that concludes the evidence on Charge Number IX, with the exception of the right that is reserved to introduce evidence of any witnesses that we have not as yet been able to procure. Some have not shown up and we have not been able to find out why they are not here.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: May it please the court, the defense will now go into evidence with regard to Charges IV and V. The evidence will be presented together. I would like to make a very brief statement with regard to these charges.

The accused in Charge IV are Hoehler and Fuehr and in Charge V, Fuehr alone appears. The evidence will bring into the picture a man by the name of Fraundt who is not an accused. With regard to Charge IV, on the day in question, Luckard, who was the superior of Hoehler and Fuehr got an order from Trummler to "Send two men to my office." Hoehler and Fuehr reported and received certain instructions that will come out in the evidence later on. That day at about eight o'clock or so, Fraundt came back to the headquarters and said "Hoehler you come along", which Hoehler refused to do. Then Fraundt said "You must come along and tell him what the plan is." Hoehler again refused, whereupon Luckard gave him a direct order. Hoehler went along. He sat in the back seat of the car and outside of his presence at the scene and his failure to intervene and prevent it, was all of his participation. The evidence will indicate that the firing was done by Fraundt in Charge IV. In Charge V, Hoehler is not present. The background is the same so far as orders are concerned except that they were transmitted through Breder. The participants in Charge V were Fuehr and Fraundt.

The defense will call as its first witness the defendant Hoehler.

WILHELM HOEHLER, an accused, voluntarily took the stand in his own behalf and made the following unsworn statement through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Your full name is what?

A Wilhelm Hoehler.

Q And you are an accused in this case?

A Yes.

Q What is your marital status?

A Married.

Q And have you children?

A One boy.

Q Your wife and children are living where?

A Crapberg on the Lahn.

Q What was your civilian occupation?

A I was a criminal officer in the criminal police at Wiesbaden.

Q Was that your professional life in the criminal police at Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q When did you first enter the Criminal Police of Germany?

A The first of January, 1938.

Q How old were you at that time?

A Twenty eight.

Q What was your civilian occupation before that?

A I was an order police.

Q And when did you become a member of the order police?

A On the fourth of April 1929.

Q How old were you then?

A Eighteen.

Q Now in the year 1944 with what organizations were you connected?

A I was a member of the criminal police but I was on detached duty with the secret state police at Wiesbaden.

Q During the time that you were on detached duty with the Gestapo, where did you receive your pay?

A I was paid through the criminal police and I was promoted through them.

Q Now at any time was anything done or said about your transfer from the criminal police to the state police?

A Yes.

Q And what happened to that?

A I was requested on several occasions to ask voluntarily for a transfer to the secret state police.

Q What did you do about it?

A I refused to do so because I was not interested in these duties.

Q In addition to being paid by the criminal police and in being promoted by the criminal police, from what organization was your pass and identification issued?

A I had identification papers from the criminal police, a number from the criminal police and also my pistol was from the criminal police.

Q This detail from the criminal police to the Gestapo, do you know how that took place?

A Shortly after the beginning of the war, around October, 1939, I was put on duty from the criminal police at Kassel to the Gestapo at Kassel, together with five other comrades and one criminal commissar.

Q Was that done as the result of any action by you that you know of?

A No.

Q Which of the accused did you know before the end of the war?

A Somann, Trummler and Fuehr.

Q What was the extent of your acquaintance with Somann?

A I saw Somann three or four times because his headquarters was next to ours.

Q Did you ever talk to him?

A No.

Q Did he ever talk to you?

A No.

Q Did you ever have any business of any kind together?

A No.

Q How well do you know Trummler?

A I saw Trummler only once when I reported to him after this particular incident.

Q Outside of that one report, did you ever have any other contact with him?

A I have only seenhim.

Q You have never talked to him otherwise?

A No.

Q Were you ever present at any meetings in Trummler's office?

A No.

Q Were you ever present at any meetings in Somann's office?

A No.

Q How well do you know Fuehr?

A Fuehr was a driver in our office and I got acquainted with him while I was attached with the office.

Q You have read Charge [illegible] have you not, Mr. Roehler?

A Yes.

Q You know what the contents of that charge is?

A Yes.

Q Are you guilty of any of the things that Charge I states that you did?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. That calls for a legal conclusion and invades the province of this court.

PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Coming down to Charge II, do you know that that charges you with being a member of criminal organizations, do you not?

A Yes.

Q Do you know what the names of those criminal organizations are?

A Yes.

Q Name one of them.

A Secret State Police.

Q Were you a member of the Secret State Police?

A No.

Q What is the next one?

A The SS.

Q Were you a member of the SS?

A No.

Q What is the next one?

A The SD.

Q Were you a member of the SD at any time?

A No.

Q What is the next one?

A Leadership Corps.

Q Were you ever a member of the Leadership Corps?

A No.

Q Were you at any time ever a member of these four organizations whose names you have mentioned?

A No.

Q And your contact with the Gestapo was just the fact that you were sent there to work and not through membership, is that right?

A Yes.

Q What did your work consist of?

A I worked on violations of contracts.

Q Violations of contracts by whom?

A By East laborers, Russian laborers.

Q What do you mean by that?

A When we received a report that these men refused to work or had left their working place without permission, I had to take action.

Q What action?

A There were various possibilities.

Q Well, tell them.

A Oral warning, imprisonment up to three days, or a transfer to a camp for labor education.

Q Who did all of that. Did you do it?

A I could only make the application or request. I couldn't make the application. I could only make the proposal for the application.

Q Your work consisted, did it not, of investigations of alleged offenses by European laborers brought into Germany for work, is that it?

A Yes.

Q And when you received word of some violation by these people, your job was to investigate and make a report, is that it?

A Yes.

Q And the same thing was true if you heard a complaint that the German employers were abusing the employees, is that true?

A Yes.

Q What authority did you have outside of making investigations and reports?

A None.

Q Who were your immediate superiors?

A At the end Criminal Councilor Luckard.

Q When did Luckard become your superior?

A In the Fall of 1944.

Q When in the Fall?

A It might have been late Summer too.

Q Well was he your superior on October 19, 1944?

A Yes.

Q Who else?

A The next one was Government Councilor Breder at Frankfurt, Main.

Q Who was he?

A He was in charge of the Gestapo at Frankfurt, Main.

Q Who was your next immediate superior?

A Next to Luckard there was also my immediate superior the Criminal Councilor Kramer at the Headquarters of the Criminal Police at Wiesbaden.

Q Kramer was your superior in the Criminal Police?

A Yes.

Q And Luckard and Breder were your superiors while you were working with the Gestapo?

A Yes.

Q Who was the man by the name of Reichhardt

A He was an official of the Gestapo Headquarters at Wiesbaden.

Q Who was Breder's superior?

A Trumpler.

Q Is the name Breder?

A Yes, Breder.

Q So far as you know, who was Fuehr's superior?

A Criminal Councilor Lueknard.

Q And on top of Lueknard, whom?

A Breder.

Q On top of Breder whom?

A Trumpler.

Q Now coming down to October 19, 1944, where were you on that date?

A On that day I worked overtime and after office hours I was still present at Headquarters.

Q Was that the day you had some connection with an American flyer?

A Yes.

Q What was your first knowledge of contact with him?

A At approximately 1930 in the evening I was just at the permanent offices, that is, the office which is occupied all the time, next to the entrance, when the Criminal Chief Assistant Fraundt appeared.

Q Let's stop there -- was that the office where you normally did your work?

A No.

Q What were you doing there?

A I don't know exactly anymore today.

Q What were you doing in headquarters at that time of night?

A I had so much work to do that I couldn't take care of this during regular office hours.

Q Were you actually engaged in something at that time?

A At our permanent office room there was a certain book in which certain names had to be entered and for this reason it was necessary for us to go to this office frequently.

Q It was about 1930 when you say Fraundt appeared, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Take up the story of what happened from that point and tell it slowly so I can interrupt once in a while.

A Yes. Fraundt said approximately the following: "Wilhelm, get ready, we have to bring an American flier to Oberursel."

Q Did you know where Oberursel was?

A Yes, near Frankfurt.

Q Did you know what it was?

A Yes, it was a prisoner of war camp.

Q After he said that to you, what next?

A I didn't like this at all because I wanted to keep on my work, so I told him, "That is none of our business. That has to be taken care of by the Wehrmacht." Well, he realized I didn't want to go along. He took me on my arm and took me out of the room to the hall in front of it. When we were out of hearing by the official who was on duty at the permanent office room he told me the following: "We have to shoot the flier. Trummler has ordered that a third man should go along." Since I didn't like this at all, to be present at the execution of a human being and realising furthermore that there was no direct order for my person and that it was up to Fraundt to pick up a third man, I refused to go along with him. Even when he told me that nobody else but me was left in the house I stuck to my refusal because I thought there was only a pretense on his part to induce me to go along.

Q Had you had any talk with Trummler that day?

A No.

Q Was Luckard about this flier?

A No.

Q Or with anybody else?

A No.

Q This talk with Fraundt was the first you heard, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q You told Fraundt you wouldn't go, what then?

A Fraundt then left, he returned to the permanent office room soon after I arrived there

Q What did you do between the time you returned and the time you went back to the office?

A Presumably I continued on my work which I had started before.

Q Yes?

A As soon as I entered the room again Luckard came running down the stairs and already from far away in an irritated voice he called to me, "You are going along." Since this was now a direct order for my person I got ready to go along. Then Fraundt and I left headquarters together.

Q Where did you pick up Fraundt. You said a while ago that Fraundt left.

A It seems Fraundt went upstairs and informed Luckard.

Q Yes? Now, up to that point had anything been said to you more than what Fraundt told you -- that the flier was to be shot?

A No.

Q What time of night was it when you left the office with Fraundt?

A It must have been 8:00 o'clock because the official on duty at the permanent office room is relieved always at 20 o'clock and the old man from the daytime was still on duty at that time.

Q Up to that point did you know where the American flier was?

A No.

Q When did you first find out that there was an American flier anywhere within your neighborhood?

A When I leftwith Fraundt he told me, "We go over to Trummler to pick up the flier there."

Q What happened?

A We walked over then to Trummler's headquarters. On the way over Fraundt told me how the matter should be handled. According to this the car should stop on the way to Frankfurt and under the pretense of some motor trouble the flier should be induced to leave the car. Then, outside the car he should be shot.

Q Was anything said up to that time as to who was to do the shooting?

A He said only "we" but before that he said, "You have just to go along. We will take care of everything else."

Q Was anything said before you left the police station as to what your participation was to be?

A Only that I had to go along because he said, "You just have to go along, we will take care of everything else."

Q Then on the way over to pick up the flier you were told what the plan was?

A Yes, I assumed the way it was told to him by Trummler.

Q I want you to testify only to what you know. Why didn't you refuse to go along?

A Because that was a direct order.

Q What did you do then?

A We then entered Trummler's headquarters and there we found the American sitting in one room on a chair. He was handed over to us and then we left headquarters with him.

Q What happened after you left headquarters?

A Since it was clear right from the beginning that I did not have to participate in the execution I entered the car first and took my seat on the left back seat. Then the American entered and took the seat on my right.

Q In other words, you and the American were in the back seat?

A Yes. Fraundt, as the leader of the detail, took the seat next to the driver, in front.

Q Who drove?

A Fuehr.

Q What happened?

A Then we drove in the direction of Frankfurt. On the way civilians brought to our attention that there was an air raid alarm and a short while later the car stopped. The lights were turned off, Fuehr left the car and started to work on the car on the left side, with a flashlight.

Q What did you actually see him do?

A He lifted the motor cover, that is all I could see.

Q What was the next thing?

A Then he came back to the left door and said something to Fraundt.

80 Ts 166
pls 6

Q What did he say?

A I don't know that.

Q What happened then?

A Then Fraundt left the car, too.

Q From what side?

A On the right side of the car.

Q What did Fuehr do?

A Fuehr went back to the cover of the motor.

Q Did you actually see him go there?

A Yes.

Q Now, Fuehr was back to the left side of the motor and Fraund was out of the car on the righthand side. What next?

A Then both of them returned, Fuehr to the left door of the car, Fraundt to the right door of the car. Fraund asked the flier to leave the car. The flier went up immediately.

Q Wait a minute. How did he ask him to leave the car?

A "Get out, get out."

Q With words and motions, is that what you mean to say?

A Yes, he couldn't speak English. And then the flier left the car through the right door of the car. As soon as he left the door of the car several shots were fired.

Q At the time the shots were fired, where were you?

A I was on my seat inside the car.

Q Where were you when you started this ride, in which part of the rear seat were you when you started on this ride?

A The left.

Q Where were you when the flier got out of the car?

A Left.

Q Where were you sitting when the shots were fired?

A On the left, in the back.

Q You stated there was a blackout at the time the car stopped?

A Yes, it was very dark.

Q Do you know whether or not that blackout was in effect at the time the shots were fired?

A Yes, our lights were turned out and otherwise there was no other light.

Q Now, at the time the shots were fired, you were still seated in the same place that you were when you started out?

A Yes.

Q Was this a four door car?

A No, two doors. It was a two door car. On the left side you could not leave the car from the back side because the front seat couldn't be moved far enough against the wheel.

Q Fraundt left the car from the right door, that is true, isn't it?

A Yes.

Q The flier left the car through the same door that Fraundt left, is that what you said?

A Yes.

Q How long was it after the flier left through that right front door that you heard the shots?

A Immediately. He just left the car and as soon as he was outside.

Q Do you know what kind of a pistol Fraundt had?

A Walther PPK.

Q Was that an automatic or single action pistol?

A Automatic.

Q Did you see who fired the shots?

A No, first of all it was dark outside.

Q I didn't ask you why. I just ask you to answer my question.

A No.

A No.

Q Where was Fraundt the last time you saw him?

A On the right door of the car, when he looked into the car and asked the flier to get out.

Q How far would he have been from the car at that time?

A He bent his whole upper body into the car.

Q In order for the flier to get out did Fraundt have to pull his head out of the car?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether Fraundt stayed there or moved between the time he stuck his head in and the time the shots were fired?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We are going to object to that question. He said "from the time he shot the flier" and this witness has not testified he knew who shot the flier."

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I will reframe the question.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Do you know whether Fraundt moved between the time you said he put his head into the car and the time you heard the shots fired?

A I don't know. I didn't see what happened outside.

Q Where was the last time you saw Fuehr?

A On the left door of the car.

Q You said at one time Fuehr had a flashlight on. Did he still have the flashlight on the last time you saw him?

A When he looked into the car he didn't have the flashlight anymore. He might have had it, I don't know.

Q Could you see anything by the flash of the pistol shots?

A The moment the flier left the car and I knew now it would happen very soon I looked in the other direction.

Q So that actually you didn't see who fired the shots, whether it was Fraundt or Fuehr or both, did you?

A No.

Q But you did hear several shots. Now, how much of an interval of time elapsed between the shots you did hear?

A I don't know this anymore today.

Q Could you tell from the sound of the fire whether the firing came from more than one gun, more than one pistol, or were several successive shots from the same pistol fired?

A According to the sound I don't know. As far as I know, the sound is the same from all pistols.

Q In one of your statements you said that Fuehr did the shooting as well as Fraundt. What is the basis of that statement you made?

A Next morning Fraundt dictated to me a report. In this report he said that he as well as Fuehr had done the shooting.

Q And was it on the strength of what Fraundttold you to put in the report that you made the statement that Fuehr as well as Fraundt did the shooting?

A In my own statement I said I didn't see it but that it was my assumption based on these facts.

Q You have only mentioned one fact so far and that was the report that Fraundt dictated. What are the facts?

A Before that Fraundt had said "You only have to go along, we take care of everything else."

Q So upon these two facts you base your statement that Fuehr as well as Fraundt did the shooting, is that correct?

A Yes, and then several shots had been fired and I couldn't determine whether they came out of one or two pistols.

Q Do you know what kind of pistol Fuehr had?

A He had the same duty pistol as all of us.

Q Were they all these automatics?

A Yes.

Q The shots were fired. What happened then?

A Because the flier was lying right on the side of the road Fraundt and Fuehr took the flier over to a ditch.

Q You saw the flier on the ground, did you not, before he was picked up?

A Yes.

Q Describe his position on the ground.

A Lying there, stretched out. His feet were right next to the door of the car. The door was still open.

Q If you were to draw a line from the right front wheel to the right rear wheel, an imaginary line, how far would the flier's feet have been from that imaginary line as the car stood at the time of the shooting?

A Perhaps one meter.

Q The body of the flier was removed and placed in a ditch you say?

A Yes, on a little hill.

Q Was any effort made by anyone to ascertain whether the man was dead?

A He was dead. There was no sign that he was still alive.

Q After his body was brought to the side of the road, what then?

A Then, in accordance with our orders we rode to the Rural Policeman who was in charge of that area.

Q You say "in accordance with our orders". What orders?

A Fraundt had told me that Trummler had given this order.

Q What order?

A That we should ride to the Rural Policeman, should inform him of this incident, so that he could take care of the burial of this flier.

Q You heard the witnesses testify about the car coming up and talking to the Gendarme and how the arrangements were made to bury the flier. Remember that?

A Yes.

Q Was that about the way it happened?

A Yes, only with one difference.

Q What was the difference?

A That not Fuehr, as the witnesses have stated, went into the house to the Rural Policeman, but I did.

A A right angle.

Q Now, in order for Fraundt and the flier to get out of the car, the right front door had to be opened. Can you tell the court whether or not that door remained open or was shut after the flier had left the car and before the shots were fired?

(Hoehler-Direct)

A The door remained open.

Q Can you tell the Court the approximate width of that door?

A 80 centimeters to one meter.

Q What was the approximate position of the flier's feet with respect to the extreme outer edge of the door after it was opened and stayed open?

A The end of the feet were approximately at the level of the edge of the open door.

Q Do you know whether or not that door on the righthand side had a pane of glass in it?

A Yes.

Q The last you saw of Fuehr was when he was standing on the lefthand side. Having in mind that the door on the righthand side was open and remained open during the shooting, and having in mind the position of the flier's feet as you described them, in your opinion, would it have been possible for Fuehr to have fired without going around the front of the car, either to the right or around the rear of the car and then come around to the left?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object to that on the ground that it calls for a conclusion.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: It does. I admit that. I am just asking for an opinion. He was there and he is describing the circumstances.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: In my opinion, Fuehr couldn't have fired from there.

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q From where?

A From the left side, -- and in my opinion, time was also too short for him to run around the car.

Q All right. You have testified that later on that evening it was you and Fraundt who went to the gendarmerie to arrange for the burials. What was the next thing you had to do with this case?

A Well, do you want me to explain what happened next when we went to the gendarmerie office?

Q No. You testified that what these witnesses said was approximately what happened. What was the next thing you had to do?

A The next morning Fraundt came up to me and said Colonel Trumpler wanted a report in the case.

Q What did you do about that?

A He told me that I as a senior man present was supposed to write the report.

Q Did you?

A Well, there was a little argument and in order to finish the matter, I wrote it and he told me what I was supposed to write.

Q Having written it, who signed it?

A At first I showed it to Fraundt and then I went to Luckard and turned the report over there.

Q What happened to the report there?

A Luckard countersigned it and gave me the instructions to take the report to Colonel Trumpler's office.

Q Did you go there?

A Yes.

Q What did you do with the report?

A I handed the report to Colonel Trumpler in his office.

Q Now, you have testified, Hoehler, that you went along on this ride in this car, knowing what the result would be but that actually you did just what you said you did. You also said that you had a weapon, that Fuehr and Fraundt had a weapon. Why did you not use your gun to prevent the man's being shot?

A Freundt had this order from Colonel Trummler which he had to carry out under any condition and he would have been forced to and he probably would have shot me had I wanted to do anything against the order.", is that correct?

A DEFENSE COUNSEL: You may inquire.

Q CAPTAIN VINCE: Before I start, I would like to ask if there is any other defense counsel who wants to examine this witness. If so, I believe he can save time by letting him finish that.

Q DEFENSE COUNSEL: Thank you. Dr. Aschner would like to ask a few questions, apparently, is that right?

EXAMINATION BY DR. ASCHNER:

Q Mr. Koehler, did you at any time find out about orders according to which enemy fliers were to be shot?

A I used to study to become a baker before that.

Q Since you were 18, you have done nothing else except work for the police department, is that right?

Q You were asked what your duties were with the Gestapo and you said you handled violation of contracts with the Russians. Is that what you said?

A Yes.

Q You do not mean to tell the court that you made a contract with these laborers who were imported into Germany, do you?

A Yes, the contract was made at the labor office.

Q It was kind of a one-sided contract, was it not?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

THE WITNESS: I am not informed as to the work of the labor office.

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Anyhow, it was your main duty to see that these forced laborers kept working, was it not?

A Not only that, but also that they were treated decently.

Q When they failed to work, you suggested the punishment they were to receive, is that right?

A There were exact regulations as to what action was to be taken.

Q Did you not say you suggested the punishment?

A According to the regulation, if the leader himself did not make a remark on the files as to what was to be done, I would suggest what was to be done.

Q What other duties did you have with the Gestapo other than handling the foreign labor?

A No others.

Q That was a full-time job, was it?

A Yes.

Q And you followed that job from 1939 until the end of the war?

Ex 167-ars-Fob 17-7

A Yes.

Q You were asked a question, who was your immediate superior and you said a man named Luckard. To what organization did Luckard belong?

A The Secret State Police.

Q Is that the Gestapo?

A Yes.

Q To what organization did Broder, who was Luckard's superior, belong?

A Secret State Police.

Q Was that the Gestapo?

A Yes.

Q These two men were your immediate superiors in 1944 when you were in Wiesbaden, is that correct?

A Yes, and on top of that, Kramer.

Q Koehler, do you remember that while you were in Wiesbaden in confinement, being given some paper and asked to write your story telling about this incident for which you are being tried?

A Yes.

Q Do you remember who gave you that pencil and paper?

A Yes.

Q Who was it?

A Mr. Feil.

Q Did you write a statement in regard to this case?

A Yes.

Q I hand you a document which has been introduced as Prosecution Exhibit Number 20 and ask you to look at this document and tell the court if that is the statement you wrote?

A Yes.

Q Does that document contain the truth?

A Yes.

Q On the 19th of October, 1944 I believe you were working at night and Fraundt came to see you and told you you had to go over to Oberursel with him, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q I believe that you were busy working at that time and expressed a desire that you did not want to go to Oberursel, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Then did Fraundt take you alone, where you could not be overheard, and then tell you they were going to shoot the flier? Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Now, is that the first time that you had heard about a captured flier being in Wiesbaden?

A Yes.

Q How long have you known Arthur Fuehr?

A Since 1941.

Q After your conversation that you had with Fraundt, did you go to Dr. Trummler's office?

A Yes.

Q Did you talk to Dr. Trummler?

A No.

Q Did you talk to Dr. Trummler's adjutant?

A No.

Q Did you talk to anyone about --

A I didn't talk to anybody at all.

Q I meant to ask you, did you talk to anyone about the killing of the flier, with the exception of Fraundt?

A No.

Q When is the first time that you saw Fuehr on this night in question?

A When the two of us left the building together and Fuehr was standing outside next to his car.

Q Who was present when you took the flier into the automobile?

A Fuehr, Fraundt and myself.

Q And the flier?

A Yes.

Q You and the flier rode in the back and Fraundt and Fuehr in the front seat?

A Yes.

Q Of the three of you, who was the highest ranking man?

follows A I was.

Q What was Fuehr's position?

A He was an employee.

Q And who was Freundt?

A He was a criminal chief assistant.

Q And what was your title?

A Criminal secretary.

Q Now, during the ride, did you continue to ride in the back seat and guard the American prisoner?

A Yes.

Q All three of you had your pistols?

A We were obliged to carry a pistol at all times.

Q Now, when did you discuss that you were going to let the car break down on the way and that was when the flier was going to be killed?

A On the way from our office to Colonel Trumpler's office.

Q Who did the talking?

A Freundt.

Q What did he say as far as you can remember?

A He said the car would stop on the way and that an accident would be simulated and then the flier would be caused to leave the car because allegedly we would have to take tubes out of the car, and he would be shot.

Q Did he say where this would occur?

A On the way.

Q What did Fuehr say?

A He didn't say anything.

Q What did you say?

A I didn't say anything either.

Q At the time you picked the American up to take him on his last ride, you didn't know who would do the shooting, did you?

A All I knew is what Fraundt had told me, we would be doing it, that is all I know.

Q How many people were present when he said, "We would be doing it"?

A He himself talking to me.

Q Where was Fuehr?

A Only when I came out I saw he was standing outside by the car.

Q Did this discussion take place in the presence of the American, or before you picked him up?

A It happened at the time when Fraundt took me out of the CQ's office and informed me of the whole matter.

Q Now, from whom did you obtain custody of the American flier?

A We walked into a room and there he was, sitting on a chair.

Q In whose office?

A In the office of Colonel Trumpler.

Q Did you see Colonel Trumpler at that time?

A No.

Q Did you know him at that time?

A Yes.

Q Now, when you got out to a place you heard being testified about as the "Wandersmann," was that where the car stopped?

A Yes.

Q Who got out of the car first?

A Fuehr.

Q How long did he stay outside?

A Two or three minutes.

Q Did he ever get back inside the car until the shooting was over?

A He only leaned into the door.

Q I believe you said when he first got out, you saw him raise the hood, is that right?

A Yes.

Q Were the lights burning on the car at that time or shut off?

A At the instant the car stopped, the lights were out.

Q Now, while Fuehr was outside with the hood of the car raised, where were the other three occupants?

A Inside the car.

Q And about how long did the three occupants remain in the car until the next person got out?

A Until Fuehr came back and said something to Fraundt.

Q What did he say?

A I can't say now, I don't know.

Q About how much time elapsed between the time Fuehr got out of the car and came back and said something to Fraundt?

A About three minutes, I can't say exactly.

Q Now, who was the second person to get out of the automobile.

A Fraundt.

Q Now Fuehr when he came to speak to Fraundt was on the same side as Fraundt, was he not?

A No, on the left side of the car.

Q All right, after this conversation, Fraundt got out?

A Yes.

Q Who was the next to get out?

A Then when the two came back, Fraundt on the right and Fuehr on the left, they bid the flier to get out.

Q Did he get out?

A Yes.

Q Was this a two door automobile?

A One on each side.

Q And did the flier have to crawl over the front seat to get out?

(Meehlam - Cross)

A The seats could be tipped over.

Q Who was the fourth man to get out of the car?

A After the flier had been shot, I got out.

Q You say you didn't get out of the car until after the shooting was over, is that right?

A Yes.

Q What is your best judgment as to how many pistol shots were fired?

A I can't say any more today, might have been two or three.

Q And how many pistols were fired?

A I didn't see it.

Q I know you didn't see it — you heard it.

A Well, since Fraundt had said, "We would be shooting," and he and Fuehr were out there and the next day in this report it said he had done the shooting, I assume there was shooting.

Q What else do you believe?

A Nothing else.

Q Now, in your statement you said, "The short sequence of the third shot gave me the impression two pistols had been fired and that is the reason I believe Fuehr had also fired." Was that one of the reasons that made you believe there were two pistols shot?

A That might be. I can't say any more today for sure. It might have been one and in my opinion it was one, too.

Q Why did you put in here there were two?

A Well, on account of these reasons, that was my opinion at that time, and that is why I put it in.

Q If that was your opinion, why are you changing it here today?

A Well, if I picture the whole thing in my mind and I remember, the last time I saw Fuehr was beside the car, I can't believe he fired.

Q At the time you wrote the statement, you were under the impression you were telling the truth?

Tr. Loe 2/17
Tr. Loe 2/17
EG 5

A Yes.

Q Now, you knew exactly when you left Wiesbaden in this automobile that this American was going to be murdered?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I object only to the characterization of the witness.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

A That he was shot.

Q That he was shot or did you know he was going to be shot?

A Yes.

Q And you were the highest ranking man in that car?

A Yes.

Q And you were sitting in the back seat during that trip?

A Yes.

Q What did you do, if anything, to protect the flier from being shot?

A I was in no position to do anything.

Q And you did not do anything?

A No, the only thing I could have done was shoot my two comrades and let the flier get away.

Q You knew he was going to be shot, because you turned your head the other way?

A Yes.

Q Now, what is the first time you got out of the automobile?

A After the shots had been fired and after I heard the flier had fallen to the ground.

Q Why did you get out then?

A Well, it was dark out there and the two of them wanted to get the flier away, so I used my flashlight.

Q You assisted in getting the flier to the ditch?

A Well, he was carried.

Q And another reason, that you wanted to see if he was dead?

A No.

Q You examined him to see if he was dead, didn't you?

A I examined him and didn't see any sign of life any more.

Q Well, your lawyer asked you, and you said yes, he was dead.

A Well, he didn't seem to show any signs of life.

Q Did you feel his pulse?

A I don't know any more.

Q How many holes did you see?

A I wasn't able to determine, didn't look for it either.

Q Now, did you hear the statement read into the record as Prosecution Exhibit 65, statement by Arthur Fuchs?

A Yes.

Q (Reading) "During the middle of October 1944 the officers Wilhelm Moehler, Richard Fraundt and I were told to report to the commanding officer of the Security Police Rhein Westmark and when we got there received an order from Trummler." Do you deny you went to Trummler's office on that occasion?

A I don't deny that. That is not a fact.

Q You say you do or don't deny it?

A The only thing I can deny is when something did happen and I am not saying the truth about it.

Q All I want to ask you is did you go to talk to Dr. Trummler or did you not go there and talk to him?

A I did not go there and did not talk to him.

Q Reading further, the same exhibit, "I drove the car on the Reichstrasse from Wiesbaden in the direction of Frankfurt. About a distance of twelve kilometers from Wiesbaden I stopped the car on the above mentioned road. The point of stopping was the Wunderermann, a restaurant on that road. Both officials, Wilhelm Moehler and Richard Fraundt got out of the car with the flier." Do you still deny you got out of the automobile with the flier?

A I am not denying anything that is true because I did not get out; you can't call it a denial because it isn't, so you can only call it a denial because it wasn't true.

Q I don't understand your answer.

A I did not get out.

Q So Fischer did not tell the truth about going to Dr. Trummler's?

A DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court. This concerns the character of a witness and it is for the court to decide.

CAPTAIN VANCE: I withdraw the question.

Q Now, after the shooting, did you go with Freundt and Fischer to Mr. Eismann's house to tell him to make arrangements for the burial of this body?

A Yes.

Q How many times were you at Mr. Eismann's house?

A Once.

Q I believe Mr. Eismann was not at home, but you talked to his wife?

A Freundt was talking to his wife.

Q Now, when you found him on the road somewhere out of Wallau did the discussion take place -- strike that question. After you left Eismann's house, did you later see Eismann?

A Yes.

Q And you told Eismann he would have to make arrangements to have the body buried, is that correct?

A Freundt did that.

Q What did you say?

A I don't know whether I talked to Eismann on that occasion when I met him. There was some strong strafing and we went down and took cover under the bridge over the autobahn.

Q Did you make the report on the same day?

A Yes.

Q And you made the report and signed it?

A Yes.

Q And the reason you made it was you were the highest ranking man on this ride?

A I wouldn't have had to write the report.

Q Well, you wrote it because you wanted to write it?

A No, because I didn't want to keep arguing with Fraundt. Fraundt apparently wanted to put the work on somebody else.

Q Fraundt had a great influence on you?

A Fraundt didn't have influence on me.

Q Then you made the report because you thought it was easier than to argue?

A Yes, there were only a few things, I didn't want to argue.

Q What did you put in the report?

A I wrote that on the way to Oberursel the flier stated he wanted to relieve himself. The car was stopped, Fraundt got out of the car then Fuehr, then the flier got out of the car and he had barely gotten out of the car and started running away. Fraundt at first shot after him and upon that he collapsed to the ground dead, after a few paces.

Q Now, why did you falsify that report?

A Fraundt told me that was the way the report was to be made according to orders of Colonel Trumpler.

Q When did he tell you this?

A That morning he came to me.

Q What do you understand was the purpose of falsifying this report?

A It wasn't up to me to deliberate about that matter. After all, it was an order of the Colonel.

p14-17B-1

Q. I am not asking you that, I am asking what you think was the purpose of falsifying this report?

A I don't know, as far as your way of thinking goes every crime, Q. It was to cover up a crime? What do you mean to call the court?

A I don't know. Order from a Colonel of the SS and therefore I [illegible] of the op[illegible]

Q You know that you and Fraundt and Fuehr murdered this man and you didn't want to put it in the report, that's correct, isn't it? Yes or no, Fraundt and Fuehr and Frauendt. You felt that no wrong deed was committed in fact what you say? Wanting is not the point here.

CAPTAIN VANCE: If it please the court, I am going to ask the witness to answer my questions. Right now we do this deed;

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I think he has answered it, and furthermore, I think this type of questioning has exceeded beyond the point of cross examination. Were you told to keep this matter a secret by [illegible]?

PRESIDENT: Repeat the question.

(Whereupon reporter read last question.

A No.

Q Are you telling the court you and Fraundt and Fuehr did not [illegible] commit a crime that night?

DEFENSE COUNSEL: I pray the court's objection.

PRESIDENT: Objection overruled.

A In my opinion it was not a crime. [illegible]

Q Hoehler, you were scared and shaking on that ride that night, weren't you? [illegible]

A Because that was not just a walk through the woods, because if a man is killed that is not such a simple matter, is it?

CROSS EXAMINATION, continued

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q No, I am asking you. As far as your way of thinking goes everything was all right on that night, is that what you mean to tell the court?

A There was an order from A Colonel of the SS and therefore I was of the opinion that that was a legal order.

Q I am not talking about the Colonel, I am talking about you and Fuehr and Praundt. You felt that no wrong deed was committed is that what you say?

A Yes.

Q Why did you pick the night time to do this deed?

A Well I don't know that. I only found out a short time before that that that was supposed to be done.

Q Why were you told to keep this matter a secret and not discuss it?

A I don't know.

Q Well, that is a fact is it not?

A Yes.

Q You, Praundt and Fuehr had a discussion which decided that neither of you were to say anything about this killing, is that right?

A No.

Q Who told you to keep it secret?

A Praundt told me there is no need of anybody else knowing about this.

Q You didn't tell anybody about this did you?

A No.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q Herr Hoehler, do you know the difference between a presumption and personal knowledge of a fact?

A Yes.

Q Did you know the difference at the time you wrote those statements that the prosecution has put into evidence?

A Yes.

Q Now in that statement that you made--or maybe it was more than one--you put in the exact things upon which you really only had a presumption?

CAPTAIN VANCE: We object. He is leading the witness. He is putting words into the mouth of the witness.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Wait a minute. I don't mean to. I will rephrase the question.

Q Were these statements you made based entirely upon matters which came within your personal observation or were some based on presumption?

A Assumption.

Q On this particular occasion, you held the highest rank of the three, what authority did you have over Fraundt?

A None.

Q Did you and Fraundt do the same work, normally, in your office?

A Yes.

Q What kind of work did Fraundt do?

A Fraundt had a different type of work, files.

Q During the normal course of events--your work day in and day out--did you have any authority to give orders to Fraundt?

A No. In the police it was like this: That all police officials below the rank of Kommissar, regardless of what their particular rank was, had the same authority. By that I mean that none of them had any right to tell anybody else anything.

Q When Fraundt first spoke to you about going along did he, at that time, tell you how many people were going along?

A No.

Q When did you first find out that Fuehr was also going along?

A When I came out there and saw Fuehr standing next to the car.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing more.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q I may have misunderstood you but I want to get this. Did you say all police officials had equal powers regardless of rank?

A In practice it worked out as follows:---

Q I don't care about the word "practice". I am asking you if I understood your question and answer?

A I would have to give an explanation to that.

Q I don't want an explanation. Colonel Berman asked you a question to that effect and you answered it "yes". I want to know if I understood you correctly or not?

A I omitted an explanation in answer to that question.

Q Did you answer that regardless of rank they had equal powers?

A Yes.

CAPTAIN VANCE: Nothing further.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Dr. Aheimer would like to ask this witness a question.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DR. AHEIMER:

Q Will you please explain this matter which you have just been asked about by the prosecutor?

A As I have said before, primarily everybody had the same authority but in such cases when some official would get a job assigned to him and some other man would be assigned to him to help him do the job then the man who got the original assignment would have authority over the others, regardless of what their ranks might have been.

Q By that do you mean to say that this was the way it worked out throughout the police or only in your office?

A In the Security Police.

Q One final question. Why did you not refuse the order of the criminal counselor Lechner to come along?

A Lechner would have been compelled to notify Colonel Trummler about this and I would then have to account for the fact and Colonel Trummler would have had me shot for disobedience of orders.

Q Were you at any time informed that the consequence of refusing an order would be?

A Yes, the maximum punishment.

Q What do you mean by that?

A That without any further trouble the man concerned would be shot in the case of an order being refused.

Q You have mentioned a while ago that in the Security Police every official below the rank of Kommissar had the same authority. How do you know that that was the case throughout the Security Police?

A Well I know it from my experience with the police. For instance, that a chief secretary could give me an order if he was the chief of some office or if he was assigned to some particular job and I was assigned to him.

Q So that is a conclusion you drew from the type of work you were doing?

(Koehler-redirect)

A Yes.

Q What was the name of the office in Wiesbaden to which you were detailed from the Criminal Police?

A State Police Branch Office.

Q Was that an independent office or was it not?

A It was not independent.

Q Well, where was the nearest independent office?

A In Frankfurt Am Main.

DR. AHRENS: That is all.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Nothing further.

PRESIDENT: No questions by the court, the witness will take his place in the dock.

(Thereupon the accused was excused and resumed his place in the dock.)

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Josef Kramer please.

JOSEF KRAMER, called as a witness by the defense, being first duly sworn, testified through an interpreter as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY DEFENSE COUNSEL:

Q What is your full name?

A Josef Kramer.

Q What is your present status?

A I am in custody.

Q Do you know a man by the name of Wilhelm Hoehler?

A Yes.

Q If he is in this courtroom will you point him out to the court?

A Number 5 (Indicating).

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Let the record show that he identifies the accused number five as Hoehler.

Q During the years 1944 and 1945 what was your occupation?

A I was in charge of the Criminal Department in Wiesbaden.

Q What does the Criminal Department mean, is that a part of the CRIPO?

A The CRIPO.

Q When did you first take charge of the CRIPO in Wiesbaden?

A On 15 July, 1934.

Q How long did you last there?

A Until August 28, 1945.

Q When did you first know Hoehler?

A Hoehler? That must have been towards the beginning of the war--1940 or so.

Q Do you know what Hoehler's occupation was?

A Yes, he was a criminal secretary.

Q Criminal secretary of what?

A Of the Criminal Police.

Q Do you know whether or not Hoehler, at any time, was detailed from the criminal police to another organization?

A Yes.

Q When and to what organization was that?

A That was shortly after we got a man from Kassel. He was then detailed to the State Police in Wiesbaden by order of the Criminal Police main office in Frankfurt.

Q Did the fact that Hoehler was detailed to the Gestapo effect his membership in the CRIPO?

A He was merely detailed there to aid them. We kept carrying him in the CRIPO and paid him and he had his identification papers from us.

Q By whom were his promotions controlled, the CRIPO or the Gestapo?

A The criminal police. The criminal police promoted him.

(Kramer-direct)

Q To your knowledge, to what organization was Koehler carried as belonging from the time you first met in 1940 until the time you last saw him in 1944?

A The Criminal Police was carrying him.

Q Do you know whether or not Koehler was at any time a member of the SS?

A He was not.

Q How do you know?

A I know that because for one thing I was in charge of his personal records and he didn't have any uniform nor any identification.

Q Up to what time were you in charge of his personnel records?

A Until the end.

Q Up until the end of the war you say that Koehler was carried always as a member of the CRIPO?

A Yes.

Q Could a man be a member of the CRIPO and the Gestapo at the same time?

A He was a member of the CRIPO, but he was detailed, he was merely detailed.

DEFENSE COUNSEL: Your witness.

CROSS EXAMINATION

QUESTIONS BY CAPTAIN VANCE:

Q Why was Koehler put on duty with the Gestapo?

A Because they undoubtedly needed men.

Q How long did he stay there?

A He was there until the end.

Q How many years?

A If he left in 1940--yes, he got there in 1940--until the end of the war.

(Kramer-cross)

Q Why was he kept there so long?

A I don't know that. The reason he was detailed was because of an order from the Chief SHAEF Office in Frankfurt, yes.

Q Was it customary to keep a man on detail for an indefinite period of time with another organization?

A That happened occasionally.

Q When did Koehler get this promotion?

A That came through at least one or two years after he had already been detailed to the Gestapo.

Q Was that shortly after the 19th of October, 1944?

A That might be so.

Q Do you know why he was promoted?
